Letters from Mexico

By Arnold Meyers

Hotel Canada Y Ameco, R31
Avenida Cinco de Mayo,
Mexico City, D. F.
December 24, 1952.

Dear Mother and Dad:

As I write this letter, it is just Christmas eve. I have come in from supper at Sanborns. After asking for my key at the desk, lo and behold, the clerk hands me a letter — your letter, no nicer Christmas present could be imagined. You must have figured everything out nicely. For days I have been getting more and more impatient. Well, thanks for everything.

Don't use the above address for any future letters as I am leaving in a few days for Vera Cruz, and then for Tchuantepec (pronounced Tay-wahn-tee-pec) which is at the very bottom of Mexico. It costs 120 pesos there and back and takes two days to go there, so I guess I'll have to stay overnight at Vera Cruz, since there are no sleepers on the train. I have not inquired about bus fares; maybe I should.

Chapultepec Park

I have seen so many things that I don't know where to begin. One day I took the bus to Chapultepec park and castle. Took an all-day lunch (10 pesos, $1.10) and spent a thoroughly enjoyable day exploring the park. The most remarkable feature of this park is the huge trees, called "ahuetuete trees."

These trees are about 200 feet tall and at least eight feet across at the bottom. So old are they that they were here when Cortes conquered the Aztecs; even when the Aztec civilizations was at its height. How much longer before that, no one knows. Many battles were fought here during the war of indedependence and there are many statues to commemorate the fact.

Artists' Lane

There is a lane of trees called "La Calabeza de las Artistas," or "Artists' Lane." I had to inquire my way up to the castle, and going on came upon a long series of cement steps leading up through a delightful canopy of verdure, the sunlight streaming through here and there.

At the top of the stairway one comes to a road which leads to a second shorter flight of steps where armed guards are stationed. Why, I do not know. They said nothing, so I went on. To the south of the castle is a beautiful garden, the main feature being a huge statue piece made up of four heroic figures representing the original inhabitants of the country.

This Castle of Chapultepec contains within its walls memories of poor Maximillian and his wife, Carlotta, who were Emperor and Empress of Mexico from 1863 to 1867 — stooges of an international tangle which resulted in the Emperor being shot at Queretaro and his Empress going insane after pleading for his life from Napoleon III. I can't help but feel moved by the story as it is one of the great injustices of all time.

Old Relics

Within the castle are all the old relics relating to the history of the Mexican government; its old laws in the original; the swords; uniforms, and medals of many generals and of Maximillian himself.

There is a gallery of portraits; every inch of the wall being covered by portraits all the way around. These portraits are remarkable for the facial expressions which really accentuate the peculiarities of each subject; one is cross-eyed; one picks his nose; one sneers. Oh, they are laughable, but so true to life. Typical of the snobbish aristocracy, which at one time governed Mexico.

In one room is a perfect model of the cathedral—the holy metropolitan church of Mexico, which I photographed. This cathedral is the largest on the continent.

Huge Painting of Emperor

In another room is a huge painting of the Emperor, which must be twelve feet tall, and on the other wall, a painting of the storming of the castle which takes up at least two-thirds of the wall. Yonder is the state carriage ornamented with gold and cherubims. One noticed the excellent portraits of Benito Juarez, first Indian President of Mexico.

In one case is a tiny carving in bas-relief, lined with diamonds and emeralds — (now I know why the guards.)

At length I betook myself down the back staircase, out in direction of Avenida Reforma. There are several small lakes in this park and along one shore of one, are some grotesque rock formations. I took two pictures here, one in color, which should be excellent. I saw some children playing, "Indians" among the rocks and had two of them pose for me in their shorts, which they did for a peso.

Goes to Xochimilco

The next episode concerns the visit to the Xochimilco, a fine place to get rid of money if you do not know the ropes. I went 15 miles in a streetcar for 15 centavos or 1.65 cents, almost nothing! One has to be ever watchful at Xochimilco — (pronounced sah-chee-meel-co) — that he doesn't waste money on the vendedores or pedlars.

You see Xochimilco is a lake filled with canals and islands and you start out in a large, flat-bottomed boat at the town wharf, the boat being poled by a young man. The first thing you know another little boat shoves off, and in no time is athwart you, asking to take a picture. You go for a bit further and another canoe slips up and wants to play some music for the "Senor," and so it goes.

Beautiful Boat Trip

To be sure, the boat trip is most beautiful; the reflections of the tall, slender eucalyptus trees making fine reflections. I took 18 color shots on this trip. You meet any number of other boats filled with singing natives — very colorful. In this case one should go with a crowd if he wishes to spend a minimum of money. He charged me 60 pesos for the two-hour ride because I was alone. However, I did get some excellent pictures out of it. From September 28th., address all letters to Canadian Embassy, Reforma 1, Mexico City, D.F.

Love,
Arnold.

Good Companions' Club Hears Interesting Talk on 'Humor'

Rev. Ralph Middleton, of Bayside, was the guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Good Companions' Club in Tabernacle United Church, last Tuesday evening, choosing as his subject, "Humor".

"Humor" stated Mr. Middleton, "has a fascination for thinking people. Humor is human and and needs intellect to perceive contrasts. It needs the social setting for its manifestation and appreciation. Humor is medicinal in the early stages of an unhealthy mind, spirit and conduct."

During the course of his talk, Mr. Middleton gave illustrations of English, Scottish, Irish and American humor, showing that different types of jokes or situations which are funny to one nation are not necessarily humorous to another man. "A man is known by the jokes he tells, the jokes he laughs at, the way he spends his money and the way he spends his leasure time," said Mr. Middleton.

At the beginning of the meeting, Rev. R. Rowley led in a short devotional period. Following the business meeting conducted by president ,"Loo" Andrews.

The refreshment committee served refreshments.

'Candles' Theme At Holloway W.M.S.

The February meeting of the Holloway Street W.M.S., was held in the church parlor with almost a record attendance. The president, Mrs. G. Coulter, presided, extending a gracious welcome to guests and members present, and opened the meeting with a suitable message in the form of a poem.

An impressive worship service was conducted by Mrs. J. Cordes, assisted by Mrs. Walters and Mrs. A. Campbell. The theme, "The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper" having been chosen for February as a month symbolic of world wide fellowship because of the observance of the World's Day of Prayer.

Mrs. Cordes introduced the guest speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. R. W T. Middleton, of Bayside, who briefly yet most effectively enlarged on the theme of the worship service and followed with an address on the unusual subject "Candles", which was divided into four classifications, namely, ships' candles; candles of sacrifice; candle of self effacement, martyr's candles. With apt illustrations used, including references to experiences during her travels, and the closing simile that the church be a huge candlestick and each member a tiny candle with Christ providing the flame, Mrs. Middleton left a deep impression on all those present.

Two vocal solos, Father, Teach Us", and "Come, Jesus, Redeemer," rendered by Mrs. F. E. Houston, were in keeping with the theme and the spirit of the meeting.

The appreciation of those present was conveyed to the speaker and to Mrs. Houston by Mrs. Walters.

The necessary business was conducted by the president. The meeting was closed by Mrs. Middleton.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Cordes and the members of her group.

Quinte F.N. Club Enjoys Colored Film On Rocky Mt. Sheep

Mr. Cameron Tanner, B.C.I. biology teacher, recently presented to the members and guests of the Quinte Field Naturalists' Club an exceptionally fine series of color transparencies illustrating his study of the Rocky Mountain big-horn sheep conducted in Banff and Jasper National Parks.

The competition from the elk or wapiti, imported into the parks in the 1920's, has resulted in a critical reduction in the population of this sheep. Severe overgrazing has been followed by excessive soil erosion and threatened extinction of the sheep.

Thousands of Elks

Thousands of the elks have been shot by the park wardens and turned over to the Indians for meat and leather goods which were sold to the numerous tourists. Mr. Tanner spent most of a summer at an altitude of 7,000 feet and worked in snowstorms in July.

Close-ups photographs of the sheep were taken after tireless waiting in a "blind" located near a block of salt.

Mr. Tanner's numerous scenic "shots" complimented the beauty and grandeur of the Canadian Rockies, often described as the finest scenery in North America. They were enjoyed by photographers and biologists alike.

The summer camp, sponsored annually by the Federation of Ontario Naturalists, was described briefly by Miss Lillian Hart, who, in recent years, has benefited by attendance of the varied field lectures on plants and animal life. There are rumors that it may be held in future at Combermere Marsh in Hastings County rather than at its present site at Camp Billie Bear.

Mr. Tanner told more of his Rocky Mountain project and his photography during the serving of coffee and cookies.

A short business discussion followed.

Mrs. Farnsworth read an interesting article on the origin of St. Valentine's Day, and then introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Garn Dobbs.

Mrs. Dobbs, who is a member of the Dominion Council of the W.A., of the United Church of Canada, gave a most interesting and informative address on the different phases of the work of the W.A.

Mrs. La Rue thanked Mrs. Dobbs for her fine address.

A social period was enjoyed following the close of the meeting during which refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Lloyd and Mrs. Creelman.

Y's Men's Club Holds Annual Ladies' Night

Thursday evening, at the Y.M.C.A., the Belleville Y's Men's Club held its annual "Ladies' Night."

Under the chairmanship of Willis Hutchinson, over 60 Y's Men and Y's Menettes sat down and enjoyed a delicious chicken dinner, complete with all the trimmings. Grace was said by Harold Bankier.

Between courses, a sing-song was conducted under the leadership of Scott Denton and Roscoe Mooney, who presided at the piano. A talented quartet of Y's Men competed vocally with a picked quartet of Y's Menettes to determine which sex had the finest representation of singers. The final votes were so close that it was declared a draw, although the ladies may have had a slight edge.

Immediately following the dinner, Jim Pearson proposed a toast to the ladies, the toast being ably replied to by Mrs. R. H. Mooney.

The difficult task of sergeant-at-arms was conducted by Gerald B. Hyde, who managed to enrich the club funds considerably by ruthlessly levying fines to all parties.

Favors Presented

During the dinner the ladies were presented with favors.

The next portion of the evening was conducted under the chairmanship of Robson Clarke. Robbie, a great believer in audience participation, put various Y's Menettes and Y's Men through tricks and gags that kept the fortunate onlookers doubled up with laughter. The crowning phase of Robbie's evening of entertainment was achieved by the mysterious reappearance of Larry Buck, who proved that a Y's Man can face any problem, and come out on top.

The final stage of the evening was spent in round and square-dancing to the music of Hugo Diggins and his band, of Picton. Miss M. Waldron and Mr. Willis Hutchinson won the spot dance, while president and Mrs. Ed. Littlejohn won a competitive dance. Both couples were presented with prizes.

Towards the end of the evening refreshments were served by members of the Y's Menettes Club, which provided a fitting close to another enjoyable anual Y's Men's Club Ladies' Night dinner and dance.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A Little Gumption Can Often Solve an Intolerable Problem

Over and over I have said it, and now I say it again: the chief reason why so many women continue to agonize along, chained to unbearable marital situations, is simply because they haven't the gumption to step out of them.

Listen to this, for instance:

"I made a big mistake when I married a reformed drunkard. That is, he made me believe he was reformed, while all the time he was hiding the fact that he was still drinking. He would run down anyone who took a drink, boast that he hadn't touched liquor for ten years, and declare that no married man was any good who would hang around beer parlors.

"I went to work for a while, and, two months later my husband lost his job. That same night he told me about it I became sick and had to have a serious operation. I didn't know until afterward that he was out getting drunk when I wasn't expected to live. He didn't work for almost a year and a half, although he was offered jobs during that time.

Finally he took a part time one, but the money he earned went for drink. One time he left the house saying he was going to pick up his pay. I waited dinner till late at night, but he never came home, and was gone for five weeks. To make things look better, he told people I had kicked him out, but after he came back he told me that he had been so drunk he didn't even know where he went. That was only one of many lies he was constantly telling.

I left him, one time, because he struck me — which he has done more than once — but made the mistake of coming back because I had no job and was sick. For almost a year he kept all his money, ate out himself and wouldn't buy food for me. He would go away weekends, and when he came home would boast that he had spent over $40 in two days just for drinks.

Wants to Sell Home

"Now he is working at a brewery, which makes everything worse because he can get his drinks free. He stays away from work often, however, and then he draws money out of the bank to drink. He has no use for a wife, only for a housekeeper, and he tells me that the only reason he doesn't go away and leave me is because he is waiting to sell the house we live in so that he can get his half of the money that's in it. It was my money that bought the home in the first place — that, and one other house — only I was foolish enough to put the houses in both our names. Last summer, he sold the other place we had, and he fixed things at the bank so I couldn't touch the money till I agreed to pay all our bills and split the rest with him.

"At one time I talked to a lawyer about a separation. I just don't know what to do."

I wonder just what advice this woman was given by the lawyer she consulted. One would think it most likely that he told her she ought to get away from her husband immediately. And what reason could there possibly be for her not doing so, unless it is that she is too indecisive to go ahead with separation proceedings?

If she hesitates because the house in which she lives is tied up in her husband's name as well as her own, and she fears he would again cheat her out of money she should have if she left before it is sold, legal arrangements could be made to protect her interests. Personally, however, I would think that a woman with any gumption at all would prefer to leave such a man even though it meant a financial sacrifice. This wife has worked before, and she can probably work again. She speaks several times of being sick, but the chances are that much of her illness is directly due to the strain under which she lives. If she were free of this strain, her health would very likely be infinitely better, so that she would be able to support herself.

The most sensible advice anyone can possibly give her is to go right back to the lawyer she consulted before — or, if he was not capable, then to pick another one more carefully — and start separation proceedings immediately. So far as I can see, she has nothing to lose and everything to gain by such a move.

Quick White Bread Answers Twelve Letters In One Column

By Mary Moore

Everybody seems to have gatherd a second wind after Christmas and they are using some of it to pile my desk with letters. You know I enjoy your letters, and that this is not a gripe, but an explanation. Monday's column usually is devoted to some one special food and various ways of serving it. But today I'm answering a dozen readers at once who are asking for a repeat of white bread. Some of you are calling this "simplified" white bread. I have gone back through my files for one year and cannot locate a recipe that I entitled "simplified" white bread. So I am giving you a White Bread with a Quick Method and hope it is what you are seeking.

WHITE BREAD

(Quick method—4 loaves)

Scald 2 cups milk until very hot and add to it 2 cups cold water. Measure 1 cup of this liquid into a small bowl and when it is lukewarm add 2 packages granular yeast and 2 teaspoons sugar; let this yeast mixture stand for 20 minutes then stir it a little. To the 3 cups of liquid in large bowl add 4 teaspoons salt and 6 tablespoons sugar. Mix and allow to stand until lukewarm. Sift bread flour and measure 11 cups and make a well in centre of the flour in a large bowl. Add 1-4 cup very soft shortening to the lukewarm liquid, then add the soaked yeast mixture. Pour these liquids into well in flour and stir until all of the flour is dampened. Now knead the dough in the bowl with the hand for 5 minutes until dough becomes smooth. Turn out on greased board or table top (do not flour board) and knead with both hands for 8 minutes. Place dough in bowl which has been well-greased, cover with slightly dampened towel, cover with a dry towel and let rise until doubled in bulk in warm place —preferably at from 75 to 80 deg. Fahr. This requires about 2 hours. Turn out on lightly greased board and cut into four even pieces with greased sharp knife. Shape each piece into a ball, folding cut surfaces under. Let these stand 15 minutes covered. Then shape these balls of dough into loaves and place in greased loaf pans, cover and let rise at room temperature for 1 1-2 hours or until doubled in bulk and risen a little above rim of pan. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes, then reduce heat to 400 deg. Fahr. and continue baking 35 minutes longer. Bread has a hollow sound when baked through, when it is rapped on the bottom with knuckles. Turn out of pans at once onto wire racks to cool. If desired bread may be brushed with melted butter while still warm. Do not put in bread box until bread is cold.

There are a few requests for repeats for the Wacky Cake which is a chocolate cake. One girl said it was entirely too wacky—hers was a flop. To this girl I would like to say try it again following this recipe closely; some of my young bride friends swear by it. Like ladies though.

WACKY CAKE

(Repeated by request.)

Butter well a 9-inch pan. Sift into the pan 1 1-2 cups sifted flour, 1 cup white sugar, 3 tablespoons cocoa, 1 teaspoon each baking powder and soda, 1-4 teaspoon salt. Make 3 wells in these sifted dry ingredients and into 1 put 1 teaspoon vinegar, into another 1 teaspoon vanilla, and into the last 5 tablespoons melted butter. Over all pour evenly 1 cup warm water. Now stir until all flour is dampened and batter is smooth. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 30 to 35 minutes. This cake is at its best when eaten very fresh. Try buttter icing on it flavored with orange rind, using 1 tablespoon orange juice instead of milk or cream to moisten the icing.

Plans for Welcome-Home Party Should be Made After Son's Return

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our son served overseas for two years during World War II, then came home for several months, and went abroad again as a civilian employee. During this time he married an American girl, also a government employee. Now they are returning home and are to visit us for a while. We're thrilled! And we would like to give them a homecoming party, at once so that we may introduce our relatives and friends to his wife, and also to show our appreciation to his friends and our friends for their kindness to him during and after the war. But he has always been extremely self-conscious, hates parties, and my husband and daughter insist I'm making a mistake even to consider this party now. What is your advice. (Mother).

Please, please, be so considerate and understanding of your son's possible reactions that you will make no Welcome-Home-Party plans until he returns and you can broach the idea to him. Otherwise you may spoil the joy of his homecoming. His self-consciousness may have, probably has, evaporated, and he may even look with a more friendly eye on parties — or his bride may gently persuade him that your Welcome-Home party is just what "we" want!

Golden Wedding — A Great Occasion!

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My parents will be celebrating their Golden Wedding anniversary soon, and we would like to plan an "Open House." Are invitations sent for this kind of celebration? If so, how are they worded What are the usual hours?

2. What is served on this occasion? Is punch served?

3. Are the guests supposed to bring presents? And, if so, are the presents opened when they are given? — M.A.

1. The most informal way to give the invitation is by telephone or notes. Or if you wish to send a simple written or engraved invitation as it quite usual), this is a good form.

The usual hours are 4 to 7, or sometimes 2 or 3 to 5 or 6.)

2. The customary tea-menu is a good basic menu: tea and-or coffee (with punch or other cold drink for the drinking of the toasts); small sandwiches, with simple fillings, and perhaps made of various kinds of bread: small cakes or interesting cookies — and a handsome anniversary cake.

3. Guests of course do as they wish about bringing presents to a wedding anniversary celebration — but for such an important occasion as the Golden Wedding, I think most of the guests will be inclined to bring presents. And, if possible, time should be scheduled for "the bride and groom" to open the presents at the party.

Congregational Meetings

ST. PAUL'S UNITED

Stirling — The annual congregational meeting of St. Paul's United Church was held in the church parlors last Wednesday evening.

At 6.30 some fifty sat down to a potluck supper provided by the ladies. At 8 p.m. Rev. A. E. Baker called the meeting to order for a brief worship period. The Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison and Psalm XCVIII was read responsively.

Mr. C. F. Davidson was appointed secretary for the evening.

The financial report showed that 1952 was the largest year since 1942 according to givings and disbursements. The minister's pension fund was discussed and two resolutions were read and passed to be sent to the Presbytery and hence to the Bay of Quinte Conference and the General Council of the United Church of Canada.

The reports of several officers were given showing a progressive year. Mr. R. A. Patterson moved the adoption of all reports which was seconded by Mr. Volney Richardson.

Stewards Re-elected

The retiring Stewards were re-elected by acclamation and a committee appointed to designate terms of office.

Camp Quin-Mo-Lac was discussed and a request presented to raise $1 per family, was left in the care of Mr. J. L. Good.

Mr. James Foulds, of Kingston, sent a communication requesting that all church records of no further use be forwarded to the conference archives library.

The minister's salary was raised to meet with qualifications with the Bay of Quinte Conference.

A hearty vote of appreciation was extended to Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Baker for their untiring efforts and congenial fellowship during the past year and best wishes for the year ahead.

Mr. Baker fittingly replied, expressing hope that everyone would love and serve the Master and be blessed with the utmost blessings for the centennial year of 1953.

Wellington on the Lake

The Old Home-Farm

Broad fertile fields with soil well-tilled
Where once the virgin forest grew,
In which the Indian hunter roamed
And skilfully his arrow drew,
A land to which our fathers came
The Loyalists of long ago—
Well worthy of the fadeless name
As passing years so plainly show.

While looking on the smiling fields
When verdant with the growing grain,
Our thoughts turn to the passing years
And glimpse the forest once again;
The forest that with iron will
A loyal forefather laid low,
Who hewed a home upon the hill
This Loyalist of long ago.

And now he sleeps where first he fell
A tree in this far, forest land,
But oh! to us he left behind
A legacy so fine and grand—
A legacy of smiling fields,
Of orchard and of gleaming sod,
And oh, a gift more wondrous still—
True loyalty and faith in God.

WHAT NEXT!

What next in this unpredictable senior B loop. Saturday night the Orillia Pontiacs, who are practically out of the playoffs, proved they'll be no stepping stones for other teams of the group. Their trusty hockey tomahawks, scalped, deflated and scuttled the Kingston Goodyears by a basketball count of 17-5. According to the line-up in a morning newspaper, the Goodies iced but ten men, four of them dedefencemen. Maybe they are saving their strength for tonight's battle here with the Glens, but the Goodies' position is such one would think they would welcome points of any kind at any team's expense. However, that's the way it is and the Goodies had better look to their laurels if they want to make the playoff spot.

It will probably be a roaring, win-hungry crew that faces the Glens tonight in what should be a typical Kingston-Belleville ice battle. The Glens, out in front of their section by two points, will go all out to stretch the lead and let the Petes and the Goodies worry about the "money spots." "Red" Doran says his charges are well rested and ready for the joust tonight. No ill effects are apparent, he said, from the "Henry the VIIIth." chicken dinner Manager Don McNevin served to the boys at his Roblin's Lake cottage on Saturday night.

It was a grand party with every man taking on a pullet (roasted) and some of 'em going back for seconds. McNevin proved a perfect host. Tony Parisi had three brothers there from Niagara Falls, young clean-cut youngsters who were here to watch Tony turn back the Oshawa Truckers on Friday night.

IT COULD BE YOU!

Some lucky fan will leave Memorial Arena twenty-five dollars richer tonight, while others will take home the usual prizes. Manager Don McNevin and his executive have come up with a "Mystery" game with the 25 iron men as the prize. All you have to do if buy one of the special programs and you are eligible to play. It is an easy game, one which nearly everybody has played. It will take place between the second and third periods. So get yourself one of the programs and join the fun. Somebody will be a winner.

ACTION NEEDED!

See by the papers that the junior "A" executive of the Ontario Hockey Association has ordered two referees and one linesman to take charge of all games from here in.

It's about time the moguls took some action in an effort to curb the wild and woolly play that has featured not only the junior "A" set-up but practically every classification in the hockey calendar and that includes the mighty NHL.

To date two managers of National Hockey League clubs have been tabbed fines of $500 for invading referees' dressing rooms and giving officials a piece of their mind. It's mighty expensive talking and mayhap the yak-happy moguls got their moneys' worth, but the inference remains that they must have had some grounds for yelping. The said "grounds" being that some conscientious officials "done their duty as they saw it" and acted accordingly.

It looks like the old cliche: "It all depends on whose ox is being gored", still holds good. In both cases the screaming bosses had the losing teams, and we wonder what would have happened had the shoe been on the other foot.

This season has been a wide open one on officials from peewees to Nationals. The senior loop in Western Ontario has produced some of the most riotous goings-on since "Mickey McCool" heaved the Protestant pig over the barn in ould Donnybrook." It has been much better in other leagues, and even the senior "B" group down thisaway has come up with some questionable antics. The officiating here has not been bad all told but some games have been productive of some borderline arbiting.

As a matter of fact the "best-handled" game here was that in which two referees were on the ice. And in this department's opinion, that is part of the answer to this continued rough play that has resulted and will continue to result in unnecessary injuries.

And it would not be a bad idea for all concerned if managers of the teams left in the playoffs insist on two referees in the "money series." Excitement and tension are much higher in playoffs and playdowns with the result there is liable to be more rough play and subsequent injury. Then, too, there is the other effect on the players. The "wise Joes", who are not averse to sinking a foot of butt-end into an opponent's ribs or bread-basket under the linesman's nose, so to speak, would think twice if the "linesman" was invested with referee's powers. At least it would be a big help, and well worth the extra cost.

Slap Down Canadiens, Bruins As Hawks Blast Leafs for Two; Rangers Hold Habs to 1-1 Tie

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A couple of weeks ago, folks around the National Hockey League circuit were beginning to feel sorry for the slumping Detroit Red Wings. Now some of the folks feel sorry for themselves.

The NHL champions appear to have made a smooth transition from a jittery January into a fruitful February.

Montreal Canadiens had their last chance to halt the Detroit runaway Saturday night when they took on the Wings at Montreal with one point separating the two clubs at the top of the league standings. But the Wings slapped Canadiens down 3-1.

The shattered Habitants proceeded to allow the last-place New York Rangers a 1-1 tie Sunday night as Detroit overcame a case of third-period shakes to dispose of the fifth-place Boston Bruins 5-3. That left the Wings a comfortable four-point margin, plus two games in hand, over their nearest rivals.

It was a frightful week-end, too, for Toronto Maple Leafs. Looking forward to an easy double-header with Chicago Black Hawks, who hadn't won in five previous tries, the Leafs dropped both ends of the home-and-home set by identical 4-2 scores.

That left the Leafs in fourth place, four points behind the Hawks and only two ahead of the Bruins in the last play-off position.

The Canadiens gave it a good try Saturday night. They outshot their rivals 12-3 in the first period and 13-12 in the second, but had to settle for a 2-1 deficit at that point as Terry Sawchuk worked near-miracles in the Detroit cage.

Once rookie defenceman Jim (Red-Eye) Hay gave them the lead late in the middle frame, the Wings were free to play it cosy. Gordie Howe shoved his 39th goal into an empty net in the final minute, after Montreal had pulled goalie Gerry McNeil in favor of an extra forward.

Eddie Litzenberger, a lend-lease rookie from Montreal Royals of the Quebec Senior Hockey League, got the lone Canadien goal. John Wilson was the third Detroit marksman.

Defenceman Red Kelly, a defensive standout at Montreal, turned offensive hero at Boston as he scored twice, his second goal giving the Wings their victory. The Bruins had wiped out a 3-0 lead on goals by Real Chevrefils, Johnny Peirson and Fleming Mackell before Detroit pulled away.

Only one penalty was called, a minor to Bruin rookie Leo Labine at the 17:45 mark in the third period.

Rookie George Senick, called up from Saskatoon Quakers of the Western Hockey League in mid-season, gave the Rangers their tie against Montreal when he batted in his own rebound late in the third period. Bert Olmstead sank Maurice Richard's relay for the lone Canadien tally.

The two Chicago-Toronto clashes followed a similar pattern, the Hawks pulling away in the late stages after overcoming Toronto leads.

Playing-coach Sid Abel, Jimmy Peters, Jim McFadden and Bill Mosienko looked after Chicago scoring in Toronto Saturday while Danny Lewicki and George Armstrong tallied for the Leafs. Sunday it was Bill Gadsby, Cal Gardner, Gerry Couture and McFadden for the Hawks, while Tod Sloan got both Leaf markets.

Barons Ground Flyers 4-2 To Take Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cleveland Barons trimmed St. Louis Flyers 4-2 Sunday night and again took over sole possession of first place in the American Hockey League from the idle Pittsburgh Hornets.

In other Sunday games, Buffalo Bisons shaded Syracuse Warriors 4-3 in overtime and Providence Reds swamped Hershey Bears 7-3.

At St. Louis, the Barons piled up a 4-0 lead in the first two periods.

Bob Bailey got the first Cleveland goal and Ray Ross was credited with the second after defenceman Bert McNab of the Flyers kicked the puck into his own nets.

Gord Pennell and Sam Lavitt got the other Bison scores. Harry Pidhirny, Don Ashbee and Cal Burnett tallied for the Warriors.

Quakers Stretch League Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Saskatoon Quakers moved four points in front of the Western Hockey League race by downing Calgary Stampeders 3-1 Saturday night. Playing coach Doug Bentley fired two goals and Johnny Chad notched the third. Steve Witiuk was the Calgary marksman.

New Westminster Royals thumped Victoria Cougars 6-4. Gord Gashoway sank a pair for the Royals, Ollie Doroboy, Gerry Cabana, Blinky Boyce and Bob Love adding singles. Jim Fairburn, Colin Kilburn, Ed Mazur and Stan Long connected for the Cougars.

Edmonton Flyers whipped Seattle Bombers 9-1 Sunday ending a streak of 17 games on home ice without defeat. Vic Stasiuk sparked the Flyers with two goals and two assists. Earl Reibel and Frank O'Grady also racked up two goals apiece.

Marlies Stagger to One-Point Lead As Barrie Drops Decision to Teeps

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Barrie Flyers and Toronto Marlboros, their sails full set for the final drive in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, ran into storms during the week-end.

Playing a home-and-home series with the eighth-place Windsor Spitfires, the Marlies Saturday night took a 3-2 defeat. Sunday they managed a 2-2 tie. The one point gained, plus a 3-0 loss suffered by the Flyers at the hand of St. Catharines Teepees, put the Marlboros on top of the league.

At Oshawa an overtime goal gave fifth-place Galt Black Hawks a 5-4 victory over the sixth-place Generals.

Sunday Montreal Canadiens made an impressive debut in the Ontario loop by downing Toronto St. Michael's 5-4. St. Mikes are third in the OHA series.

Three Rivers Reds and Quebec Citadelles played a home-and-home series in the Quebec league. Saturday they played a 2-2 overtime tie and Sunday the Reds won 6-3. The result didn't change their league standing; Quebec is second behind the Canadiens and Three Rivers is third.

In Windsor Saturday night 18-year-old Tom Reid celebrated the birth of his son—his second child—by scoring the three Windsor goals. Bill Harris and Ron Ingram scored for the Marlies.

Sunday's game in Toronto was a bruiser, with seven major penalties. Louis Bendo and Wally Maxwell scored for Marlboros, Bob Brown and Elmer Skov for Windsor.

St. Catharines won their game on goals by Bill Haas, Bert Kastelic and Ken Schinkel. Norm Defelice blocked 58 shots for his shutout.

In Oshawa, Ken Wharram tallied in the last minute of overtime for the Black Hawks. Les Binkley in the Galt nets blocked 73 shots, 30 of them in the first period. Hec Lalonde led the Hawk attack with two goals. The others went to Peter Kowalchuk and John Sleaver. Bob Mader notched a pair for the Gens and the others went to Bob Attersley and Harry Sinden.

Montreal Canadiens' victory Sunday kept their road record clean. They have been beaten by only one Ontario club, the Marlboros, and that game was in Montreal.

Mercurys Lead Indians by 5 Points, Need Two More Wins for Loop Title

The odds favor Owen Sound Mercurys to win the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series this year.

With four games left on the schedule, the Mercurys have 64 points, five more than the second-place Stratford Indians, with five games on tap. The Mercs need only two more wins to take the title.

Saturday night they downed Sarnia Sailors 6-1 for their seventh win in eight starts. The Indians trounced the fifth-place Chatham Maroons 16-2, redeeming an 11-6 loss to Brantford Redmen Friday night.

Dutchmen Win

Saturday night's other game saw Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen down the Redmen 5-1. The win almost clinched third place for the Dutchies, now seven points ahead of Brantford.

In the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A southern group, Sudbury Wolves downed North Bay Trappers 5-4 while Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, Greyhounds turned back the last-place Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. Indians 9-1 Saturday. The Indians retaliated with a 5-3 victory over the second-place Hounds Sunday.

Owen Sound's attack was paced by Bill McComb who scored two goals. Haydee McArthur, Jerry Reid, Ray McCallum and Andy Grant scored the others. Roly Beauchamp tallied for Sarnia.

Four of Stratford's goals were scored by Billy Flick. Ken Schultz, Lloyd Ferguson and Herve Dejordy sunk three each and Pat Wilson scored twice. Billy Walsh notched the other. Joe Carveth scored both Chatham's goals.

Meet For Feather Title

PARIS, (AP) — Percey Bassett of Philadelphia and Ray Famechon of France meet in a 15-round fight to tonight for the interim world featherweight championship.

The two little guys are fighting for the interim title because Sandy Saddler, recognized king of the 126-pounders, is doing a hitch in the United States Army.

When he gets out of the service the title will revert to Saddler.

Frankford Bowling Loop

Frankford — The Frankford Bowling League saw action again this week, and saw the Outlaws all but clinch first place in the standings. They took five points from Preston Chase's Jets, although to do so, they had to roll the highest game of the year in the league, and the second highest triple. Ross Huffman's Racketeers dropped far behind in the race, as Bob Arbuckle's Hopefulate made it a clean sweep over them. The Hopefulate were sparked to victory by Will Rankin's 324 game, his second 300 game of the season. To date, he is the only member of Division "A" who has rolled two this year. Gib Gilmour's Gib's Gang took seven from Jack Farley's Jack's Jokers, while Karl Austin's Curley's Crew took five from Lloyd Hanna's Robbers, dropping them into seventh place.

Standing to date, Outlaws 104; Racketeers 89; Gib's Gang 83; Hopefulate 82; Jack's Jokers 75; Curley's Crew 69; Robbers 68; Jets 46.

In Division "B" of the league, first place changed hands again, as the Aristocrats, led by Milford Macauley took four oints from Elmer Rogers' Screwballs while Earl Rogers' Merry Macs dropped five points to Selbourne Sharpe's Kareless Kids.

Gavilan, Davey To Draw 20,000

CHICAGO. (AP)—About 20,000 persons are going to pay up to $25 apiece Wednesday night to watch Chuck Davey try to capture Kid Gavilan's welterweight crown.

Davey, fair-skinned and blond, is quietly serious, almost studious. Gavilan, sleek and dark, is jovial, often boisterous.

Davey, a Detroit policeman's son was reared in comparative security—one of the "haves"—compared to the bleak "have-not" background of Gavilan, son of a Cuban fieldworker.

Davey is a graduate of Michigan State College and is qualified to be a high-school principal.

Gavilan got most of his education in the ring. He had his first bout 15 years ago at the age of 12. He went to school a few hours each day and whacked at sugar cane with a bolo knife the rest of the time. He says he got the idea for his much-publicized "bolo punch" from this field work.

Tri-Bells, Livvies Breach Closed Hopes President

HAMILTON (CP)—J. M. Hart, president of the Ontario Amateur Basketball Association, said Sunday night he hopes the breach between Tillsonburg Livingstons and Toronto Tri-Bells is closed.

He made the statement following a meeting of OABA officials here, called to discuss charges that a member of the Tri-Bells had been the target of anti-Semetic remarks from members of the Livvies following a game in Tillsonburg Jan. 31.

"The OABA sincerely hopes the incident has been closed and the future of basketball can be maintained on the same high level of sportsmanship that it has enjoyed in the past," Hart said.

In a statement to the meeting, Jerry Livingston, central figure in the exhibition game between the two teams, said:

"Sometimes in the heat of a ball game we says things that are taken in a different manner than they were intended. Such an incident occurred in the game last Jan. 31.

"If the Jewish people have taken exception to any remarks of mine, I sincerely regret it, as no aspersion was intended."

English Pair Wins Skate Title

DAVOS, Switzerland (CP)—John and Jennifer Nicks, a brother-and-sister team from Brighton, England, edged out a Canadian couple Sunday to win the world figure-skating championship for pairs.

Frances Dafoe and Noris Bowden of Toronto finished a close second to the Nicks. The Hungarian brother-and-sister team of Marianne and Laszlo Nagy was third.

The Nicks' performance and the five-minute stint of the two Canadians were so smooth and precise that the placing was in doubt until the very end.

The judges gave the Nicks 11 points to 10.91 for the Canadians. The Nagys had 10.66.

Maritime Hockey Clubs Overrule Prexy Suspension

HALIFAX, CP) — The Maritime Major Hockey League rocked on its foundations during the week-end, but goalie Al Millar is still playing hockey.

The tempestuous netminder of Charlottetown Islanders, who drew a match penalty and an assault charge in Halifax, Friday night, when he was accused of striking a woman spectator with his stick, was back in the nets in Charlottetown Saturday, facing Halifax Atlantics.

He even drew another penalty—a minor for tripping an opponent.

But for 15 minutes it looked as if the league would fall apart over the decision by the Maritime Amateur Hockey Association that permitted Millar to play.

Free on bail till his assault case is heard next Wednesday, Millar was under automatic suspension as a result of his match penalty.

The Islanders appealed to the MAHA Saturday, and it agreed to overrule the suspension by the league president, J. E. Hudson.

Informed of the decision, president George Tingley of the Atlantics ordered his team to stay off the ice for their Saturday night game in Charlottetown and threatened to withdraw it from the league.

Marciano 8-5 Favorite Over 'Joisey' Wise Ones Say Hope Is Early Victory

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Frank Lane of Chicago White Sox cemented his position as the tradingest general manager in the history of baseball when he obtained first-baseman Ferris Fain from Philadelphia Athletics in the winter's most important deal.

Since he took the job in 1948 with the avowed intention of "making some changes," Lane has taken part in 70 deals involving a total of 18.. payers. Not a single man remains of the White Sox team he inherited from his predecessor, Leslie O'Connor.

Early betting quotations here make Rocky Marciano an 8 to 5 favorite to retain his heavyweight title when he fights Jersey Joe Walcott for the second time at Chicago April 10.

This has created some surprise in view of the fact that Pappy Joe was far ahead on points and looked a certain winners when Rocky pole-axed him in the 13th round at Philadelphia last summer.

The wise-money figures Walcott shot his bolt in the first bout, when he made probably the greatest fight of his long career, only to lose. The odds makers doubt he can shake off the memory of that terrible left hook.

They add that Joe has turned 39 since the other fight. His only hope, they believe, lies in the possibility he can sail into his powerful young rival and put him away within two or three rounds. A man could get hurt trying to do that to Marciano.

The hardest working athlete in the world at the moment almost certainly is Jack Kramer, the big tennis player-promoter. A fellow who followed Jack's troupe closely says the wonder to him is that the veteran pro has been able even to stay close to his new rival, Frank Sedgman, in victories won on their tour.

As he described it, Kramer puts in such a full day handling the details of arrangements in each city that it's something of an anti-climax to him when he finally climbs into his shorts and faces Sedgman across the net.

HIGH SCHOOL TEAM WINS

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — A team of young curlers, called from their classrooms to replace another entry which failed to appear, Saturday won the New Brunswick schoolboy curling title. The Saint John high school rink won all five matches it played in the two-day bonspiel. They will represent the province in the Dominion schoolboy meet at Saskatoon.

Fred Saigh Ready to Pay All Claims

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Fred Saigh, St. Louis Cardinal owner who was sentenced to a 15-month prison term for income-tax evasion, said Sunday he is "ready, willing and able to pay any legitimate" government tax claims against himself or the club.

He issued a statement taking issue with a court statement saying that he owes $399,359 and the Cardinals $159,542 in back income taxes and penalties.

Saigh said he first heard "these tremendous figures" in court Jan. 28, the day he was sentenced to prison and fined $15,000 for evasion.

"If there are legitimate claims against the Cardinals and me they should be presented and paid instead of being bandied around in the press," Saigh said.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The trouble with freak hands is that they are usually bid like freaks. Players are better off extracting rule information first. If they still care to gamble it is with less uncertainty.

NORTH
♥A K 8 7
♦9 8 7 5
♣A 2

WEST
♠10 9 6
♥Q 10 9 4
♦A Q 3 2

EAST
♥J 6 5 3 2
♦K J 10 6 4
♣J 3

SOUTH
♠Q 8 5 4 3 2
♥None
♦None
♣K Q 9 8 7 5 4

There is a grand slam in either black suit. I was asked how to get there. Rule shows a small slam and a grand slam is probable.

The correct bidding goes like this:

South	North
Pass	1 H
2 C	2 NT
4 S	4 NT
5 C	6 S

South should not open the bidding with some freak bid. Such a freak holding tells him that somebody else will probably have a hand that can or will open. No use gumming up the works too soon.

The four spade jump by south promises six tricks. With six of his own, north can see 12. With big support, north knows that spades should be trumps. So, small slam in spades is quite obvious.

Five clubs after four no-trump fenies an ace. Since the jump by buth was not on the first round it denies two sures. So the six tricks in south could not be two kings and four queens.

Some of the tricks in south must be short suit tricks. Unless the entire diamond suit is void, six spades is the correct north bid. So far as north is concerned, a small slam is his limit.

If north can bid six without knowing south has two voids, it is a good gamble for south to bid seven. The grand slam will depend on finding north with both black aces. Which is not too much to hope for. It is a gamble that is not entirely blind.

UPSET CURLING VICTORY

OTTAWA (CP)—Little Aubrey, Que., Saturday upset Ottawa's powerful Rideau Curling Club to capture the Governor-General's Trophy and the Canadian double-iron curling championship. Two rinks from the little farming community 35 miles northwest of Montreal scored a 24-13 victory over the Rideau curlers.

CLARK RINK VICTORS

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Dr. Ralph Clark's rink of Peterborough Saturday defeated an Agincourt quartet skipped by L. Ross 15-5 to win the group five play in the provincial curling championship playdowns. The Clark rink was Ontario representative in the Dominion Curling championships last year at Winnipeg.

BRUINS LOSE SCHMIDT

BOSTON (AP)—Milt Schmidt, Boston Bruins captain, has a cracked rib, an X-ray showed Saturday, and has been ordered to sit out a week or 10 days by Dr. Thomas Kelley, physician for the National Hockey League.

Schmidt suffered the injury Feb. 1 when he was boarded in a game against Montreal Canadiens. George (Red) Sullivan, star centre of Hershey Bears in the American Hockey League, has been recalled by the Bruins because of Schmidt's injury.

Dr. Geo. Faulkner Named Director Golf Association

TORONTO (CP)—The 1953 Ontario open golf championship will be held June 18-19 at Windsor, manager E. H. Banks of the Ontario Golf Association said at the annual meeting Sunday.

He said the provincial amateur championship will be held Aug. 5-8 at Brantford.

The two outstanding events in Ontario golfing last year, he said, were Gerry Kesselring's double win in the Ontario Amateur and the Ontario Open and the 7-5 win of the Ontario juniors over the juniors from the District of Columbia.

Kesselring, Kitchener golfer who copped the amateur championship for the second successive year, defeated Jim Neale of Hamilton in the final at Kingston for the Toronto Star Trophy. He won the Birk's Trophy for the fall tournament at Brantford with a 67.

The junior contest at Mississauga July 29 was a return match between Ontario golfers and golfers from the District of Columbia, Delaware and Virginia. United States golfers won in 1951 but the championship was brought to Canada in 1952.

Association President Robert Abbott of Peterborough said the association closed the year Nov. 30 with a profit of $396 and total surplus of $7,640.

Mr. Abbott announced the resignation of James Traviss, honorary secretary-treasurer.

Directors elected from clubs outside the Toronto area included: P. A. Blackshaw of Owen Sound; Bruce Bradley of Oshawa; Lionel Browne of Peterborogh; A. L. Code of Perth; Dr. G. V. Faulkner of Belleville; A. F. Fuerth of Windsor; W. C. George of Couchiching; G. R. Johnston of Brockville; J. P. Kinghorn of Lookout Point; D. E. MacDonald of Cornwall; Douglas Macklin of Sarnia; Ivan Miller of Chedoke; A. S. Mitchell of Cutten Fields; F. Moir of St. Catharines; J. B. Nash of London; Stan Payne of Peterborough and W. D. Powell of Brantford.

Harper, Kroll Tied in Tourney

EL PASO, Tex., (AP)—Golfers Chandler Harper and Ted Kroll tied for first place in the $10,000 El Paso Open Sunday with 72-hole scores of 278. They are to play off for first money today.

Harper, the Portsmouth, Va., shotmaker, and Kroll, of New Hartford, N.Y., finished together in the last threesome with Harper shooting a one-over-par 72 and Kroll a one-under-par 70.

The final 18 holes of the tournament was played in a blinding dust storm over the 6,309-yard El Paso Country Club course.

Rudy Horvath of Windsor, Ont., shot 73 Saturday and finished with 76 for a total of 294.

Canucks Dominate Michigan U. Track Meet

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Athletes from Ontario and Quebec Saturday night turned the Michigan Amateur Athletic Union meet into a Canadian track carnival.

Most of them competed under the host banner of the University of Michigan as unattached freshmen who will be eligible for regular competition next season.

They figured in winning efforts in five events and set AAU records in three of them.

The all-Canadian Michigan distance medley relay team of Geoffrey Dooley and Jack Carroll, both of Montreal, John Moule of Hamilton, Ont., and John Ross of Oakville, Ont., clipped nine-tenths second off the AAU record of 10:26.6 set by Loyola in 1952.

Al Rankin of Ottawa ran number two on the Michigan shuttle hurdle relay that won in :25.7. George Lynch of Toronto and Ross teamed with Americans Roy Christiansen and Bill Hickmen to win the two-mile relay in the record time of 7:43.7—4.6 seconds better than the two-year-old AAU mark.

Among other Michigan freshmen grabbing glory were Pete Sutton of Oakville and Ron Wallingford of Ottawa. Sutton won the invitational 440-yard dash in a record :49.8 and Wallingford took the two-mile race in 9:33.8.

Roy Pella of Sudbury placed sixth in the shot put with a heave of 46 feet 4⅘ inches.

KINGSTON RINK WINS

RENFREW (CP) — The curling rink of J. G. W. Sands from Kingston Saturday won the eastern Ontario division 1 title to enter the Ontario curling championship finals.

The Kingston team defeated the Deep River rink skipped by Dr. W. S. Skelly, 13-10. Other members of the winning rink were B. Edney, B. Tetro and H. Reid.

AT THE CAPITOL—Torrid, tempestuous, beautiful Gene Tierney is currently being seen in the Walter Wanger production "Sundown," tonight until Wednesday at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program "The Fighting Rats of Tobruk," the men who stopped Rommel.

Bobo Wins Eight in Row

BOSTON (CP)—Carl Bobo Olson, top-ranking United States middleweight, chalked up his eighth straight victory Saturday night by drubbing Norman Hayes of Boston in a 10-weighed 162 1-2 to Hayes' 160.

Olson, a 2½-to-1 favorite, weighed 162½ to Hayes' 160.

Scoring consistently with right hands and flashing combinations to head and body, the San Francisco battler by way of Honolulu pulled away in the sixth round to win easily.

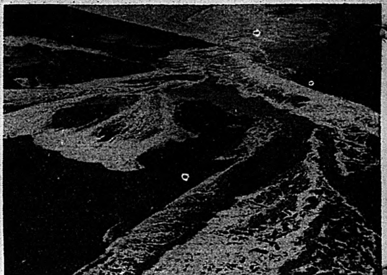
Thousands of Acres Must be Pumped Free of Water



How the sea poured in through gaps in Holland's centuries-old dykes is shown in this aerial photo of the break near Willemstad, Holland. One-fifth of the country was flooded, tens of thousands of cattle drowned and damage impossible to estimate inflicted by the worst flood in Holland's history. Though the water has receded, thousands of acres, below sea level, will remain covered with sea water until it is pumped over the dykes into the ocean. — Central Press Canadian.

The strain of fear-filled days and nights shows in the faces of a mother and child of Grav[illegible]deel, Holland, who, though returned to their home, are stricken when they see the damage done by the flood waters. — Central Press Canadian.

4 Acts Passed By Legislature Not in Effect

TORONTO (CP)—Four acts passed by the spring session of the Ontario legislature are still not in force because they have not been proclaimed by the lieutenant-governor.

They are the Crown Timber Act, the Proceedings Against the Crown Act, the Edible Oil Products Act and the Ontario Cancer Institute Act.

The general reasons given for the delay are that the regulations which actually implement a statute have not been completed. It is expected that the ministers responsible for these acts will be asked questions concerning their implementation when the legislature meets next week.

The timber act, an important piece of legislation as far as Northern Ontario is concerned, was a compilation of eight existing statutes with some extensive changes. Its object is to put forests on a sustained yield basis and give the government greater control over forest practices.

The oil products act gives the agricuulture minister power to license manufacturers of all foodstuffs containing edible oils and to regular quality, packaging and advertising of such products.

The act enabling proceedings against the Crown followed similar action in the United Kingdom in 1947 and in Manitoba and Nova Scotia in 1951. Subject to certain exceptions, the Crown can be sued in the same way that a person can.

The fourth act permits the setting up of a corporate body of nine members with power to plan, construct and establish buildings and other accommodation for research in cancer.

W. Berlin Unable To Hold Waves Of Red Refugees

RONN (AP) — Mayor Ernst Reuter of Berlin said today the flood of refugees from Communist-ruled East Germany has become a "colossal peace-time tragedy." He said free West Berlin will drown in refugees unless a new program to fly out 1,000 a day to West Germany is speedily put into operation.

Reuter told a press conference here that in January 25,000 anti-Communist refugees filled Berlin's shelters to overflowing.

"In February we expect another 30,000," he said, "and this is only the beginning of a mass movement whose ultimate gigantic proportions no one can foretell. We are in the midst of a colossal peace-time tragedy. If drastic action is not taken soon Berlin will sink into an insolvable situation."

Accused Must Die

BODMIN, England (Reuters)—A jury ruled Friday that Miles Giffard, 26, must died for "butchering" his parents and pushing them over a cliff so he could take the family car to visit his girl friend.

The jury found he knew the difference between right and wrong when he clubbed his parents to death with an iron bar.

Giffard admitted the killings, but pleaded insanity. Psychiatrists for the defence said he was suffering from schizoprenia split personality but this was denied by a prison doctor called by the prosecution.

KICK FATAL: 18 MONTHS

TORONTO (CP)—Peter Stankiewicz, 28, was sentenced Friday to 18 months in reformatory for fatally kicking a drinking companion, Robert Beatty, in a downtown rooming house. He said Beatty robbed him.

Starlings, Sparrows, Tramps Of Canada's Bird World

By JACK VAN DUSEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Starlings and sparrows are tramps of Canada's bird world and the wildlife service of the department of resources and development offers some hints on how to get rid of them.

The service says there are 18 proven methods of getting rid of the birds which are not included among those protected in Canada by the Migratory Birds Convention Act. Starlings and sparrows cause considerable damage to buildings, gardens and crops each year.

Many of the birds are attracted to an area by some specific thing, usually a free meal. So the wildlife service suggests that householders remove loose or uncovered garbage and keep farm-yards clean of loose grain spilled from feeding poultry flocks. The sparrows and starlings won't stay around a place where they will starve.

Other good methods of discouraging them include the covering of ledges and crevices in buildings with wire mesh or netting and trimming trees. Starlings like to roost on the top slender twigs of trees and if the tree is trimmed they will soon desert it for a more comfortable perch.

Methods of Frightening

A few methods of frightening the birds away include setting off a Roman candle or two when the birds appear, ringing bells or rattling pebbles in a tin can.

Another effective way, although it takes more effort, is to destroy the nesting places and eggs.

Duck Census

Wildlife officers in Canada and the United States now are conducting their annual mid-winter count of North America's waterfowl population.

It will be some time before the duck census is completed but there is at least one encouraging sign of an increase in the population in Eastern Canada.

A comparatively mild winter in eastern Ontario may account for a 60-per-cent increase in the number of black, merganser and golden eye ducks spotted in winter nesting grounds. In one area, bird spotters counted 160 of the ducks in the same nesting areas that yielded only about 100 last winter.

The duck population in most provinces has been increasing in recent years and wildlife officers are looking for a big increase from the present survey.

Fur Trade Revival

Eastern Ontario once was the heart of Canada's fur industry.

But that was more than a century ago before many settlers drove out or killed off fur-bearing animals. But trapping seems to be making a comeback.

H. R. Boucher of nearby Dunrobin, Ont., is one example of the modern-day trapper. He owns a saw mill but also does some trapping on a part-time basis. Last season he and his sons took 700 pelts and netted about $1,400.

Mr. Boucher is one of several hundred part-time fur trappers who are learning a lesson in conservation from Ontario lands and forests department men who show them how to divide up an area, each man having an exclusive trapping preserve.

Once trappers could buy a trapping licence as easily as a pair of socks. Now he gets his licence from a conservation officer who must be satisfied that he is trapping on his own land or has trapping permission from the land owner.

Part-time trappers are being organized into associations which regulate trapping and protect the fur-bearing animals from over-exploitation.

Plant Scientists Working To Develop New Grains Capable of Resisting Rust

By WILFRED CHISLET
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP)—A few potted plants at the University of Manitoba some day may be worth millions of dollars to North American grain growers and may sidestep a serious threat to the Prairie economy.

Plant scientists, in three separate laboratories, are working to develop new grains capable of resisting rust, a malignant fungus which each year becomes more menacing. Rust is borne in spore form by strong air currents from breeding grounds in Mexico and Texas.

Perennial Menace

Rust each year bites into wheat and barley, major dollar-earners for Canada in world markets. Like some diseases and insects, it has the ability to gain strength and break down previously resistant grains. The latest scourge is Race 15B which first appeared in the early 1940s. No licensed grain is able to withstand it.

Plant scientists here believe they have found a double answer to 15B—a new wheat variety known as "CT 186" and a new malting barley called "UM 1020."

The wheat, produced by the federal laboratory of cereal breeding, is not expected to be licensed until next year. The barley, expected to be licensed this month, was developed by the university's plant science department. Both research centres work closely with the federal laboratory of plant pathology on the campus.

Great patience and time are required to produce a new grain. Countless crossings and 12 years went into "UM 1020." Many months must pass before seed can be produced.

The rust battle starts when breeders select various traits necessary in a new grain. Scientists know where they can get these desired factors, sometimes in a hardy grass, and the problem becomes one of crossing plants and waiting for results.

Experimental Plots

Some grains are planted in experimental plots at any of the 18 testing stations in Western Canada. In winter they are grown in greenhouse pots. If seed is available, it is sent to California or Arizona for an extra winter crop.

The time spent waiting for generations to grow is the most serious drawback in experiments. Then there are the many different qualities which must go into a grain.

A new wheat, besides being able to fight off rust, must have a multitude of qualities to be of use in highly competitive grain markets. It must possess good roots, high yields, sturdy shucks, frost resistance and high milling and baking qualities.

Wheat also must be able to resist the sawfly, an insect which lays its eggs in wheat stems. The larvae gnaw through the stem and then cut off the top by boring a ring.

A good barley needs similar qualities but partly in reverse. Wheat must be high in protein, something undesirable in malting barley. Both grains are ready prey for loose smut which turns kernels into fine brown powder.

Lucky Discovery

"CT 186" was developed from what was known as "RL 2265." This variety was the result of a cross between a strange new wheat discovered in a southwestern Manitoba field. Named McMurachy after its finder, it was bred with Exchange, highly resistant to rust.

The result was satisfactory until "Race 15B" rust appeared. The new wheat, "CT 186" is "RL 2265" crossed again with McMurachy and three times with Redman, an excellent milling and baking grade.

While new grains are being produced, others are in the breeding process. Researchers hope these will prove more rust resistant and look to the time when the blight will be eliminated.

Rust, even in a good year, costs the Canadian farmer millions. It was negligible last season but in 1951 cost an estimated 8,000,000 to 10,000,000 bushels of wheat alone.

Second Man On The Ticket

By Edwin Lanham

The Governor shook his head. "You're not busting a law suit now, Bill. We're dealing with a fine old lady."

"All right," Bill said. "But we have got to get her somehow. We've got to, Governor."

"There must be some way to get to her," Bill said, and looked at me. "How about it, Roy?"

"Well," I said. "She's got a grandniece she's pretty fond of. That's the only avenue I see."

"What age?" Bill asked.

"Young," I said. "And pretty."

"Look at him," said Lucy Strawn. "He's blushing."

Whether I had blushed before, I was not sure, but certainly her remark reddened my ears. I felt self-conscious and Bill Evers did not help. He snapped his fingers and said, "If it's that way, let's put Roy to work on the grandniece." He looked hard at me. "Don't you ever shave?"

"When I get a chance. I've been up two nights running."

"Well, get shaved and get a clean shirt and get back to Hydetown," Bill said. "Get that grandniece."

"That's no use either," I said. "I tried that. I'm afraid she won't co-operate."

"So you tried that," Lucy said.

I looked at her and said, "I had a job to do."

"Well," said Lucy, "any time I can help you in your work, please let me know."

"Your own job keeps you pretty busy, doesn't it?" I said. "And by the way, where is Clyde today?"

"I'm seeing him at lunch," she said smugly.

CHAPTER XV

Governor Warburton asked quietly, "Bill, what's on the schedule today?"

"An easy day, Governor. Lunch with the Governor of Mississippi, over at the Governor's mansion. Non political. Couple of conferences in the afternoon. No speeches."

"And tomorrow?" the Governor asked.

"Mostly a train ride, then the Birmingham speech tomorrow night. Next stop, Hydetown."

"That's what I'm thinking," said the Governor. "Next stop, Hydetown." He glanced at me. "Roy, how was the plane service to Hydetown?"

"Not good, Governor."

"Plane crowded?"

"Not very."

"Then I suppose we could get accommodations without too much trouble?"

"We," said Bill.

"I was thinking I might take a quick trip to Hydetown and talk to Miss Hattie," the Governor said.

"You mean leave the train?"

"Why not?" the Governor said mildly. "There's nothing on the schedule tomorrow but a train ride. I'll be in Birmingham for my speech tomorrow night, Bill."

"And how do you think you're going to get to Birmingham, Governor?"

"Fly."

"No," Bill said. "Positively no. You'd be recognized on the plane. It would start a raft of rumors."

"I'll take that chance," the Governor said. "I have to." He looked at his watch. "It's about time to call on the Governor of Missisippi. Bill, you work out the details. Get the plane tickets. Roy, you'll come with me."

"If anybody goes, I'm going," Bill said.

"You'll be needed on the train."

"But, Governor, what about your Birmingham speech? You haven't prepared your Birmingham speech."

The Governor hesitated a moment. "I'll take Lucy along," he said. "I'll dictate it to her on the plane."

"Not Lucy," Bill said. "McDonald will wonder what happened to her. She can't go."

"Then I'll speak off the cuff in Birmingham," the Governor said. "I've done it before. Now look here, Bill, get John Mills on the telephone and ask him to meet us at the airport."

Bill scowled, and pressed his lips together, and blew out a hissing breath of protest, but he was on the telephone calling the airport when I left the Governor's suite. I had a good lunch at a cafe on Capitol Street and walked to the train. I was tired, and was on my way to my drawing room when I met Clyde McDonald in the aisle. His eyes opened wide.

"Say," he said, "I thought you were in Hydetown."

"I just got back," I said wearily and it was an instant before I realized what his words meant. I looked at him sharply and said, "What gave you the idea I was in Hydetown?"

A grin spread across Clyde McDonald's fat, malicious face. "Grapevine," he said.

I frowned. It was not like Lucy Strawn to be indiscreet, and I was choosing the words I would say to her as McDonald pushed on past me. I hesitated a moment, then followed and saw him getting his suitcase out of his drawing room.

"Going somewhere?" I asked.

"I'm dropping off here in Jackson," he said.

"We thought you'd be staying with us until we got to Hydetown," I said.

"I don't wait for news to come to me," Clyde said, and gave me a one-sided grin. "I go after my news."

"Have a good trip," I said, and turned into my own drawing room. I waited there, watching out the window, until I saw him get off the train, suitcase in hand. then I went down to the platform and followed him. He went into the station, bought a ticket, and moved toward the gate. A chalked notice stated the train would leave at 2.18. I looked up the 2.18 in the timetable. It was not a Washington train. I was sure then where Clyde McDonald was going. He was going to Hydetown, and he had undoubtedly received a telegram from Melvin Fisher. That was how he knew I had been to Hydetown.

I telephoned the Governor's suite at the hotel, and Lucy Strawn answered. She told me that Bill and the Governor had gone on to the Governor's mansion for lunch, and I said, "How about your luncheon date?"

"I'm waiting," she said. "Why?"

"It will be a long wait," I said. "Clyde went to Hydetown."

"He did?" Lucy cried. "That's swell. Then I can go with you and the Governor, after all."

"It's up to the Governor," I said.

"Roy," Lucy said, "the plane leaves at 7 o'clock and I'm planning to get three tickets."

Lucy Strawn awakened me. She pushed the door of my drawing room open an inch or so and I heard her urgent whisper, "Snap out of it, Roy. It's late."

My window curtain was nearly closed, but through the gap at the bottom I could see that it was dusk outside.

I dressed and packed my suitcase, but did not take time to shave. I lugged the suitcase to the Governor's car, and found Lucy waiting with a portable typewriter, a small overnight case and a Gladstone bag belonging to the Governor.

"Come on," said Lucy, and picked up her overnight case. I grunted and reached for the portable and the governor's bag. She led the way to the station platform and I followed her in silence through the waiting room to a cab. Once inside it, I said, "Don't be so conspiratorial. Where's the Governor?"

"We're picking him up," Lucy said. "Just relax, Roy."

CHAPTER XVI

The cab moved along Capitol Street and I heard sirens, saw a car go by under police escort. I said, "That must be the Governor now."

"That's his car," Lucy said. "He's not in it. Around back, driver."

There was a parking lot at the rear of the hotel, and a car entrance from the hotel, that led to it. The cab pulled up to the rear door, and instantly a big man, bundled in a topcoat, hurried out and got in the cab with us. I said, "You'll have to give the password."

Governor Warburton chuckled and said, "Meathead."

"The airport, driver," Lucy said.

The Governor turned down the collar of his topcoat and breathed a deep, relaxed sigh. "I feel like a free man, not a politician," he said. "Ah, breathe that air! Look at those stars! Roy, it's a long time since I played hookey."

"Roy, this is the pitch," Lucy told me. "We're travelling separately. That is, you and I are together and the Governor is solo. No one would expect Willis G. Warburton to be flying around the country alone, you see."

"Once you get out of Jackson, I think we'll be all right," the Governor said. "Trouble is, people know I'm here in town. What I'm afraid of is someone might recognize me at the airport."

I recalled the layout of the airport and said, "I think we can work that. It's dark now. They have an observation nook at each end of the administration building. You can get in one of those in the dark, and you won't be seen."

The taxi turned onto a bare stretch of road leading to the airport. I told the driver to stop in the parking area, away from the lighted entrance. The Governor slipped out and walked along a path beside the building to the observation area. We watched his solid figure move off into the darkness, then I took Lucy's arm and we went into the building and through the waiting room to a lunchroom at the east end. I ordered a sandwich and coffee.

A loud-speaker was announcing our flight. Lucy said, "Come on."

I gulped my coffee, paid, and followed her out. Under the flood-lights on the apron I glanced around, but saw no sign of Governor Warburton; it was quite dark in the observation area. I went on up the steps with Lucy and we found seats together.

I saw the Governor's bulky form moving rapidly across the concrete toward the plane. His collar was up and his hatbrim was down and I might not have recognized him myself had I not known who was coming aboard. He hurried up the steps and moved up front, and a moment later the door was shut and the plane taxied to the runway.

There were only a half-dozen passengers aboard. Lucy looked at me. "You look like a hunted man."

"I'll never write another book."

She put her hand on mine. "I'm sorry I said that Roy. I was just kidding. Of course you're going to write lots and lots of books, just as good as the others."

"How do you know? You never read any of them."

"On the contrary," she said quietly. "I read them all."

I was pleased and surprised, but said, "I didn't think they were your type."

"Just what do you think is my type?"

I grinned and said, "Havelock Ellis, maybe, but not biographies."

"Havelock Ellis?" said Lucy. That has-been!"

The plane was taking off. It cleared a blinking light and began a slow, banking turn. The lights of Jackson appeared to our left.

The plane droned on northeastward. I dozed a while, and did not come awake until the lights of Atlanta showed below. The plane landed at the airport and we waited in our seats. Two passengers left the plane, and several more came aboard.

In the air again, I promptly fell asleep, and when I awakened, my head was on Lucy's shoulder. I sat up and she gave me the wise smile a sleeper on a public conveyance usually receives from his companion on awakening, the sort of smile that makes him wonder what he said in his sleep.

Lucy asked, "What color is her hair?"

"Whose hair?"

"Don't blush again."

"I never blushed in my life," I said.

"Or shaved either," said Lucy. "And incidentally, you snore. I suppose she's a blond."

"As a matter of fact, she is," I said. "Her name is Ginny Perkins and she's a pretty, sweet, natural kid. So don't make any cracks to her."

Lucy quite needlessly smoothed a seam in her gray tailored skirt; her fingers plucked at the thread I could not see. "You know Roy," she said, "we kid around a lot, and all that, but sometimes you disturb me. You say things that make me wonder."

"Wonder what?"

Mother, 3 Children, Three Others Die In Quebec Fires

Lac Ste. Marie, Montreal Scene of Blaze Fatalities

LAC STE. MARIE, Que. (CP)—A mother and three of her four children were burned to death early today in a fire which destroyed their isolated farm home in this Gatineau district 60 miles north of Ottawa.

Killed in the early - morning blaze which was caused by an exploding oil stove were Mrs. Germaine Lachapelle, Lucette, 1, Gislaine, 2, and Muriel, 3.

The father, Claude Lachapelle, escaped with a fourth child, Monique, 6, and a nephew, Jean Paul Lachapelle, 12, who was visiting from Toronto.

Meagre reports said the three who escaped were burned, but did not indicate the extent of their injuries. It was also reported that Jean Paul was burned in a vain attempt to rescue one of the children from an upstairs room.

NO PICKUP

MONTREAL (CP) — The death toll from a fire in suburban Ville Jacques Cartier rose to three today when a 29-year-old mother died in hospital from burns suffered in the blaze that took the lives of her two daughters.

Mrs. Alphonse Desmarais died in hospital from third degree burns to her legs and upper body. Louise, 2, and Monique, 5, were asphyxiated by heavy smoke when flames destroyed the one-storey frame bungalow last night.

The father, a tramway employee, was at work.

Robert Charpentier, an 11-year-old playmate of the Desmarais children, made an heroic effort to save the mother and two girls.

He entered the flaming house after breaking a window and seeing the woman stagger, he called to her and held open the front door. She walked toward it, then collapsed as her dress caught fire. She fell and pushed the door shut.

"I tried to open it again," he said later. "Couldn't though. She must have been lying against it."

The firemen found the woman jammed against the door when they smashed it in. The children, trapped a few feet away in the kitchen, were dead.

An oil furnace was believed to have caused the fire, which spread rapidly, throwing off thick smoke.

Soviet Legation In Tel Aviv Rocked by Bomb

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — A bomb-explosion — believed in reprisal for recent anti-Zionist charges by Soviet officials in Moscow —rocked the Russian legation here Monday night. Five persons including the wife of the Soviet minister were injured.

The Israeli government denounced the blast as a "dastardly outrage." It expressed its regrets to the Russian envoy and his staff and promised "swift justice" to those responsible for the attack.

The injured are reported to include: Mrs. Claudia Yershov, wife of Soviet Minister Pavel I. Yershov; the minister's woman secretary; Yershov's chauffeur and another male member of the legation staff, and a Jewish child in a nearby building.

The two male staff members were taken to hospital where they underwent operations. The other victims were reported only slightly hurt. All the injuries apparently resulted from falling furniture or flying glass splinters.

The explosion was the latest in a series of anti-Russian incidents here that have followed the recent wave of anti - Zionist charges through the Soviet world.

Soviet Union Condemned

The Israeli Knesset (parliament) recently condemned the Soviet Union for launching an anti-Jewish campaign.

The blast apparently centred in one of the legation offices on the ground floor of the three-storey building in central Tel Aviv. Several Jewish-occupied buildings in the vicinity also were damaged.

It was generally assumed the bomb was thrown from a street that runs beside the building.

However, no one reported seeing the hurler approach or make his escape, although Israeli police were standing guard at the main entrance to the legation and Soviet guards were on duty in the court-yard.

Previously, two partially successful attempts were made to burn a Russian bookshop in Jerusalem and bomb or grenade attacks were made on the Czechoslovak legation and a Communist youth club here.

FALSE ALARM

TOKYO (Reuters) — Japanese fishermen who directed planes and boats to a new volcanic island 200 miles out in the Pacific admitted Monday it was a false alarm. What they saw the Myojin reef, thrown up by an underwater eruption last September. Three days ago the fishing vessel Seiju Maru II reported explosions and a "new island" in the area.

THE WEATHER

However, cloud spreading eastward from a disturbance over eastern Nebraska edged into southwestern Ontario overnight and will slowly spread across the province today and tonight. Wednesday will be mainly cloudy and a little milder with snow spreading eastward across the province during the day occasionally mixed with rain in southern sections.

Mothers May Have Saved Boy From Hanging

SUTTON, Ont. (CP)—Two mothers who went out to look for their children may have saved a seven-year-old boy from possible hanging during a game of cowboys and Indians Monday.

The women found their own children locked in a horse stall in a stable on the Sutton horse show grounds with their hands tied behind their backs.

The seven-year-old boy was found with a rope around his neck and the loop thrown loosely across the beam. Part of his clothing had been ripped off.

Sutton is 50 miles north of Toronto.

DEFENCE MINISTER DIES

MADRAS (Reuters) — Defence Minister Sir Ngopalaswami Ayyangar of India died here early today.

Ayyangar, 71, had been an outstanding figure in Indian politics for many years. In turn a professor, civil servant and district magistrate, Ayyangar was prime minister of Kashmir from 1937 to 1943.

Formosa Policy Now Honest One Says Canadian Home from Korea

OTTAWA (CP) — Bill Boss, Canadian Press war correspondent in Korea, said today the United States' new Formosa policy would "merely formalize a situation that has existed for 15 months."

Boss was interviewed after appearing last night in a CBC Domin-"Press Conference."

He said President Eisenhower's decision, announced in his state of the union message, to cancel the 7th fleet's orders to screen off Formosa "made the situation honest."

"I reported from Formosa last March," the red-bearded reporter said, "that the Chinese Nationalists were raiding the mainland coast."

"They were doing so despite the so-called 'screen' and with the knowledge of U. S. military and naval advisers helping them retrain their forces.

"From the island of Quemoy, just off the southeast China port of Amoy, the Nationalists can actually mortar the mainland. They patrol the mainland coasts daily with their air force.

Boss said he doubted the policy would affect the Korean war. The only troops the Chinese Communists likely would feel called upon to divert would be for maintaining local security. But they know as well as the Free World does that the Nationalists are unable to launch a serious diversionary attack and maintain it."

"The Nationalists lack the equipment, supplies, ammunition and shipping needed to launch and maintain a front down there," he said.

He said President Syngman Rhee of South Korea had spurned suggestions that Nationalist troops be employed in the Korean theatre. "Rhee's point is that using the Nationalists would extend the Chinese civil war to his country and so much the more reduce chances of one day getting any Chinese out of Korea."

Boss said it was "difficult" to understand why Britain said she opposed lifting the "neutralization" off Formosa. She must have known it wasn't being enforced and in her own policy toward China she had always been "realistic."

On the other hand, her opposition to suggestions that the China coast be blockaded was understandable. The risk of a Chinese Communist or Russian vessel being sunk by U. S. warships could ignite a major conflict.

"And on a narrower front, she has been able to accept the fiction that 'pirates' have been intercepting her shipping in those waters, knowing well they were Nationalists. But if the U. S. Navy were to enter the act it could be more embarrassing."

CANADIAN NUNS TELL OF TORTURE BY RED CHINESE

Said to Have 'Murdered' Over 2,000 Orphans

VANCOUVER (CP) — A story of torture and humiliation suffered in Red China was told Monday by four Roman Catholic nuns who arrived here from Hong Kong.

They are Sisters St. Alphonse of St. Dorothy, Que., Mary Germaine of St. Prosper, Que., St. Germain of Pont Rouge and St. Jean Baptiste of Montreal.

All except Sister St. Germain were in good health after the long sea voyage.

Sister St. Alphonse, Sister Mary Germaine and Sister St. Germain were charged by the Chinese Communists with the "murder" of 2,116 orphans.

Had Orphanage

They were stationed at the Sacred Heart orphanage in Canton where they operated a receiving station for abandoned children. Many of the children were dying when found on the streets. The Reds accused them of responsibility for the deaths.

Sister St. Jean Baptiste taught in a school in Canton which was closed by the Reds in August, 1951. She was imprisoned in her home.

The three sisters who operated the orphanage and two other nuns who returned earlier to Canada were reviled at a public trial in Canton in December, 1951. They were sentenced to five years in prison.

Public Trial

The day of the public trial they were put into a truck and driven through Canton and everybody had a chance to throw rocks and filth at them.

"Once in prison they were not treated too badly by the Reds," said the sister superior.

"But they had to work very hard every day from early in the morning until late at night making cotton shoes."

They were ordered to leave China last Christmas.

Given Extra Thought

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario municipal affairs department apparently wanted to give a little extra thought to a query sent by the Windsor board of control.

The board wrote last Feb. 13 to inquire about amending the Statute Labor Act to authorize a poll tax on single men and women over the age of 21.

The reply — received 355 days later — said Windsor could sponsor a private bill in the legislature seeking such legislation for the city.

Gen. Van Fleet Says U.N. General Offensive in Korea Now Would be Certain Success

By JOHN RANDOLPH

SEOUL (AP) — Gen. James A. Van Fleet said today a United Nations general offensive in Korea now would be a certain success.

On the eve of his farewell to the 8th army, the 60-year-old retiring commander again expressed belief in carrying the war to the Reds, said the UN lost opportunities for whipping the Communists and called for a 1,000,000-man Republic of Korea Army with 20 combat divisions.

Van Fleet made the statements in answering questions asked by The Associated Press as he prepared to turn over his command Wednesday to Lt.-Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor and leave Korea for the first time since he arrived 22 months ago.

Lost Two Chances

Van Fleet said the Allies lost two chances for victory in Korea, disclosed his own most heart-shaking decisions as commanding general, and gave what he feels are the two greatest achievements of the 8th army under his leadership.

He included a tribute to the "anti-Communist patriotism and loyalty" of the RoK soldiers, whom he transformed from disorganized, frightened bands into 14 hard-hitting modern divisions. In the absence of the victorious offensive he never led, the reshaping of this RoK Army will probably be Van Fleet's monument in Korea.

Authoritative sources say that for more than a year Van Fleet has not been able to launch a single battalion attack without consent from the Far East command in Tokyo — and that Van Fleet himself was heartsick when UN and U. S. decisions twice held him back from closing with the Reds for decisive battles in 1951.

Questions and Answers

The list of questions and Van Fleet's answers:

Q — Do you think that a general offensive in Korea can be successful at this time?

A — Certainly.

Q — If there have been lost opportunities in Korea, what do you feel was the most serious?

A — When the Communists over-extended themselves in May, 1951. When we broke Communist defence in fall of 1951.

Q — What do you feel was the 8th army's greatest success while you were commander?

A — Defeat of Communist April-May, 1951, offensive.

Q — What do you consider to be the most important military action during your command?

A — The two defeats of the Communist army — (A) April-May, 1951, including counter-offensive; (B) breaking Communists in October-November (Allied) offensive.

Municipalities Ask Per Capita Grants to Pay Social Services, Want Revenues from Courts

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Municipal Association today presented a nine-point brief to Premier Frost and his cabinet. Six of the nine points urged the province to give further aid to municipalities.

Aid was sought on a per capita basis to counter rising social service costs. Delegates wanted the revenues from the courts of justice and registry offices to counteract cost of providing services. They wanted the province to assume all cost of maintenance of children taking into care of Children's Aid Society branches.

The municipalities asked for federal - provincial compensation to property-owners whose land suffered from high lake levels, increased workmen's compensation payments to keep pace with the rise in the cost of living, and additional housing for the aged, financed from sources other than municipal taxes.

The association asked for revision of the Local Improvement Act and also preparation of a standard plan for two- to eight-room schools by the education department.

Some standard school plans are available. Only one school board has adopted them.

W. Germans Ban Neo-Nazi Group

BONN (AP) — The West German government today banned the neo-Nazi "Free Corps Germany" and four of its leaders were arrested.

The West German cabinet today decided that the organization, which has nearly 2,000 followers, had aims which endangered the constitution, an official spokesman said.

One man named Alfried Scheel, former leader of the Nazi Students League, had already been arrested a month ago by the British authorities as a suspected plotter to bring Nazisk back into power.

Family Court Cases Blamed on Selfishness

KITCHENER (CP) — Judge C. L. Austin of Guelph said Monday the chief cause of strife in family court cases is an adult who does not meet adult requirements of unselfishness, knowledge and responsibility.

He said in a talk to the Kitchener-Waterloo Rotary Club that the world is too full of adults who haven't grown up mentally or emotionally.

New Highways Are Planned By Department

TORONTO (CP) — Controlled-access highways to North Bay and Sudbury are planned by the department of highways, it was reported Monday.

The new route to Sudbury, branching off the Barrie highway onto No. 69 north of Barrie, will cut more than 50 miles off the distance to Sudbury. Traffic to that city now goes by way of North Bay. The new route to North Bay is over No. 11 highway, which runs from Toronto to North Bay.

The department plan calls for a new leg on No. 69, cutting northwest from Gravenhurst through Parry Sound. This road is part of the Trans-Canada highway, and may be completed this year.

Design for New Fighter Completed Says Newspaper

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says today Avro Canada Limited has completed the preliminary design of a new delta-wing fighter, believed to be in the 1,000-miles-an-hour class.

The twin-engined aircraft will be known as the CF-104, the paper says in a newspage story.

In its present blueprint form, the paper reports, the CF-104 is considered years in advance of any jet fighter in production or near production in any part of the world.

Avro officials declined to comment on the report.

Defence Minister Claxton in Ottawa declined to comment on the report.

Alberta Indian Dies on Gallows

EDMONTON (CP) — Marius Gerard, 49-year-old Cree Indian, died on the gallows early today at nearby Fort Saskatchewan jail for the knife murder of the woman with whom he had been living.

The trap was sprung at 12.03 a. m. MTS and he was pronounced dead at 12.18 a. m.

An Alberta Supreme Court jury convicted Gerard of the murder last Sept. 19 of Dorothy Donenais, 44, in the home they shared at Grand Centre, Alta., 150 miles northeast of here.

Gerard did not take any stimulants and walked unaided to the gallows. He was attended by two priests.

GOVT. WILL NOT LAUNCH PROJECT IN SASKATCHEWAN

Need More Information Says Prime Minister

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent says that the government is not prepared to launch the big South Saskatchewan river power and irrigation project without further information.

This information, he told the Commons Monday, is whether the project — estimated by a royal commission to cost some $250,000,000 — is the best use that can be made of the vast South Saskatchewan river basin to irrigate and bring power to Canada's largest wheat-producing province.

Cost Not Frightening

Mr. St. Laurent said the cost estimated by the commission does not frighten him. The cost to the federal treasury would not be anywhere near $250,000,000. But the commissioners posed the question as to whether a proposed huge dam would be the best way to proceed.

Personally, he said, he thinks the dam plan is a good project.

"And if I can be convinced to the extent where I can honestly say that I believe in it, I will recommend to my colleagues to make the recommendation to Parliament. But I want to be sure that if this asset is used in this way it will not be apparent shortly afterwards that there was a better use to which it should be put."

The prime minister's statement was the first official government view given since the commission's report made Feb. 2. It recommended against starting the project at this time.

Guards Injured In Prison Blast

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (AP) — Seven members of the Washington state prison staff were injured Monday in the explosion of a make-shift, prisoner-manufactured bomb.

The blast was believed by prison authorities to have nipped a plot by a group of hardened convicts to blow their way to freedom.

Al Remboldt, a deputy warden whose condition first was listed as critical, was reported by hospital attendants today as improving.

They were inspecting one of two crude bombs found in a cell when it went off.

Five other persons, including Warden John Cranor, suffered minor injuries.

Four lifers held in solitary confinement, were believed to be the ringleaders of the scape plot.

NEW INSURANCE PLAN

REGINA (CP)—Provincial Treasurer C. M. Fines announced Monday that the Saskatchewan government automobile insurance organization has established a new flat-rate "package policy" with a premium rate of $16 a year for cars and farm trucks. The new car rate is $1.50 lower than the previous available policy but protection is reduced from $25 collision deductible to $50.

An additional 180 men and women received from the Queen's hand the various awards announced in her New Year's honors list.

Surrounded by brightly - uniformed officers of her household, she entered the ball room, stepped to a dais and stood very still before two thrones of state under a scarlet canopy while a guard's orchestra, in red uniforms played "God Save the Queen." Then she bade the company to be seated, and the spectators took places on gilt and crimson chairs to watch the ceremony.

The Queen wore a silk frock of deep purple, with a V neckline, elbow length sleeves and straight lines. Her only adornment was a diamond brooch at the left shoulder.

The sword was used only in the creation of the knights. Those receiving the accolade, stepped from the line and knelt before her. From an equerry she took the sword as each approached, and with the flat of the blade touched each knight on both shoulders, the sword flashing over his head as she changed from side to side.

Among those knighted was Lincoln Evans, trade unionist assailed by left-wing Socialists for accepting an honor from royalty. Evans, 63, is general secretary of the Iron and Steel Trades Federation.

Say 23 Romanians Admit Guilt In Anglo-U.S. Plot

Reds Charge Prominent Men as Spies, Saboteurs

VIENNA (AP)—Radio Bucharest reported today that 23 persons, including a former cabinet minister and many oil industry leaders, have pleaded guilty to charges of spying for Britain and the United States and sabotaging the big Ploesti oilfields.

The trial began Monday before a military tribunal at Ploesti, site of Europe's largest oilfields which the Allies air-attacked while they were in Axis hands during the Second World War.

The defendants include former finance minister Alexandru Alexandrini and former top officials of big oil companies.

The defendants were accused of membership in an Anglo-American spy and sabotage network formed by "American and British trusts" with the aid of Romania's former King Michael I, now an exile in Western Europe.

Romania's Communist government took over the private companies' royalties in 1949 and nationalized the companies in 1951. Recently published official reports claimed Romania had filled its 1952 oil quota by 101 per cent, but there have been reports since that the output has been cut drastically.

Radio Bucharest said "American and British trusts sent to Romania with the object of organizing vast espionage and sabotage systems, leaders of the former oil companies disguised as members of American and British military missions."

The group was accused of hindering increased output of crude oil, sabotaging oil investments, misappropriating funds granted by the state to the oil industry, provoking inflation, and sabotaging measures for economic rehabilitation and stabilization of the Romanian currency.

Immigrants Not Becoming Burden On Services

—Goodfellow

TORONTO (CP)—Welfare Minister Goodfellow said Monday night immigrants are not becoming a burden on provincial public welfare services.

In a speech prepared for a CBC Ontario network, Mr. Goodfellow said the question is often raised whether immigrants are assimilating themselves into society and doing a good job of supporting themselves.

"Our records show that very few immigrants have required assistance through public sources in Ontario," he said. "I have been impressed with the way in which they have been accepted into community life."

He said a typical example was that of a 45-year-old Dutch immigrant who arrived with a family of 11 children and $17 in his pocket. Within a few years, the family acquired six farms and invited other friends from Holland to settle in the vicinity.

Firemen, Hostlers Get 12 Per Cent Boost in Wages

MONTREAL (CP)—A one - year agreement providing for a general wage increase averaging 12 per cent for locomotive firemen and hostlers was announced today by Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways.

The agreement, negotiated with the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, is effective Feb. 16 and includes minor changes in working rules along with the increase, retroactive to April 1, 1952.

The average hourly wage rate for firemen and hostlers now is $1.30.

The two railways recently reached agreement for a similar increase for members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen after a long series of negotiations capped by the Brotherhood's threat to call a strike unless satisfactory settlement was reached.

Agreements with non - operating employees and other groups were concluded in the late fall and early winter.

Gang Vengeance Murder Suspected

TORONTO (CP) — Chief coroner Smirle Lawson said today a man whose dismembered body was found buried in an embankment last week-end was slain.

Police said the body is still unidentified, but they suspect the man may have been the victim of gang vengeance. The body was in an embankment near the lakefront in east-central Toronto and it appeared an attempt had been made to burn it.

Dr. Lawson said the man was probably killed last fall. An autopsy showed he was smashed in the head, then the body was subjected to intense heat. Efforts were made to sever the head and the legs and arms also were chopped.

Police are checking missing persons lists in an attempt to establish identity. One shoe, part of a work shirt and an army jacket are the only articles of clothing remaining. A fingerprint from one hand has been taken by police.

Possibility of a link between the killing and the murder of Mrs. Agnes Organ last October is being investigated. Her mutilated body was found in the Don river.

Public Hearing On Zoning By-Law Will be Held

The Ontario Municipal Board will hold a public hearing on Thursday, February 12., in the city hall council chambers to deal with the application of city council for approval of its zoning and land use by-law. The meeting will start at 9.30 a.m.

City taxpayers have had the opportunity of acquainting themselves with the provisions of the proposed land use by-law through the medium of public meetings held at the various schools in the city. At these meetings members of the city council planning committee along with ex-Ald. E. G. Porter, explained the by-law and how its approval and ultimate passing would protect property values in the city.

Under the proposed by-law there would be definite restrictions on where business and industry could be located and persons living in residential areas could be assured their districts would remain residential.

Taxpayers are invited to attend Thursday's hearing by the Ontario Municipal Board at the city hall and to speak, either in support or in opposition, to the proposed by-law.

Service Centre For the Blind A Real Need

"The welfare of all the groups within a community is necessary to the total state of welfare of any town, city or district," said an official of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. "It is this that we have in mind when we make our appeal for $25,000 to erect the Kingston Home and Service Centre for the Blind.

"In all, in this district, there are 404 blind people to be served. Of these 146 are resident in the county and city of Belleville district.

"Nowhere can one find a more industrious, independence loving group than the blind, and our aim has always been to help them to help themselves, and so assist them to that degree of independence of which each is capable.

"The proposed Home and Service Centre is designed to forward this aim. Its three floors will provide occupational and training shops, recreational facilities, offices, lounge, dancing room and bedrooms for some 30 residents. It will also enable the C.N.I.B. to carry on more effectively its eye service and blindness prevention work.

"While $25,000 is a considerable sum of money to ask in these demanding days, we feel it is a sum not beyond the means and generosity of the people of this city. It is, too, not more than adequate to provide a building worth of our community, and to the need it will fill. Build for the Blind," he urged.

The city campaign is scheduled to end February 14th., and the quota is not yet reached. Potential donors are urged to send their donations to the Bank of Montreal as soon as is convenient.

Merchants May Hold Santa Claus Parade This Year

There is a distinct possibility the city will see a Santa Claus parade next Christmas season. Although the festive season is hardly more than under wraps for one year, the Retail Merchants' section of the Chamber of Commerce are deeply involved in plans for the coming Yule. Committtee members met this morning in Lattimer's Town Room for the regular monthly meeting under the chairmanship of Bill Wills.

In past meetings, this proposed plan for the parade has undergone considerable discussion. However, it is hoped by members of the committee, Christmas activities will not be limited to a parade in future years. If the present proposal is adopted, each retail section in the city will purchase a float; for instance: the clothing retailers might contribute funds for a float, the ladies' wear goods might co-operate in the purchase, and so on. In this manner, the initial cost of financing the parade, which would be the first parade, would be much alleviated.

Special promotion sales in retail stores are planned for the spring and fall seasons, and, of course, Christmas. During these particular instances, with the exception of Christmas, all retailers agree there is a distinct lull in business, and it is hoped through these promotion campaigns purchasing may be stimulated.

Committee members are considering the advisability of circulating questionnaires thru'out the city and possibly the district, to ascertain what are the drawbacks in local stores. The method of distribution of the form, the questions which will be asked on the form have not as yet been planned. Secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce will submit a plan next meeting.

Child Evangelism F. C. Exhibits 'Good News Clubs' Teaching Methods

Last evening the Child Evangelism Fellowship committee for east Central Ontario, which includes the district of Belleville, Kingston and Peterborough held a pot luck supper meeting in the Y. M. C. A. with a fine representation interested members, teachers and friends present.

Following the splendid banquet-like repast, Mr. Wilbur Wright, chairman, introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Charles Leach, of Kingston, director of Christian Youth Fellowship and chairman of the Child Evangelism Fellowship movement, who spoke on the great work the Child Evangelism was doing with the children of eastern and central Ontario, especially with problem children and the greater work still to be done.

Early Seeding

He stressed the necessity of early sowing of the seed of the Gospel in the life of the child that the spiritual life may grow, as God's word will keep from sin, because sin in the heart acts conversely by keeping the heart from God and of great need of teachers for the work. There are now 800 million in Communism and if Christians of the world will not act at once to save these precious ones, another 800 million will be lost. Order out of chaos will come by peaceful means by helping others to make a better world by spreading the Good News, else western civilization will be destroyed.

From a recent survey it was found that out of 11 children, but three attended Sunday School. "If we don't visit them today, we may visit them tomorrow in the penitentiaries. Teachers need to be taught how to reach the boys and girls. The responsibility of Christians today toward the boys and girls is a tremendous one; there has been a lack of love; of example; and of responsibility. Jesus said: 'Occupy till I come.'"

Teaching Demonstrations

Following the address, Mr. William Watson, head of the teachers' training class, introduced the two teachers, Mrs. Murray and Mrs. Williams who demonstrated the method used in the Good News Clubs, which were held in the various homes of the city, here and elsewhere, by use of the flannel-graph method. Mrs. Murray told pictorially the story of Abraham's servant going for a bride for Isaac, Abraham's son, and of Rebecca's answer to go with him. She gave the spiritual application and the invitation.

Mrs. Williams gave her demonstration, using the valentine hearts to make a Valentine man. But this valentine man was seen to have a black heart pierced through by the arrows of sin. He was then given a white heart filled with love, in fact he was all love; his head was full of loving—thoughts; his heart of deeds; his hands and feet of acts. She also gave the spiritual application, and the invitation to become one of God's little ones.

Sunday School vs Court

The Reverend H. W. Giffin of Foxboro United Church also spoke briefly in connection with Child Evangelism, in which he was deeply interested. "Out of 20 children, but eight take in what they hear, while nearly 85 per cent take in what they see. As the twig is bent the tree inclines." Mr. Giffin also mentioned that Edgar Hoover, of the F. B. I. had stated that there is scarcely one case brought to court among those children who have attended Sunday School. He also mentioned the fine response of the Foxboro church children, that at the special meeting about 75 out of 80 had received Christ as a personal Savior.

Preceding the demonstration lessons, Mr. Robert Brown led in a series of choruses with Mrs. Ambrose as piano accompanist.

Mr. Giffin closed the meeting.

Tulips, Hyacinths Pushing Way Above Ground

Possibly the bear and the groundhog were right after all.

February 2nd. came and went without the hibernating animals seeing their shadows when they poked their snouts out of winter hibernation to take a look at the weather. Tradition has it that absence of any shadow means that Old Man Winter is just about licked.

And now the hyacinths, tulips and pussywillows have jumped on the bandwagon and are making early appearances.

City residents with flower plots in a sheltered area facing the south, state that tulips and hyacinths have pushed their way above the ground, while motorists driving through the country on Sunday reported that the pussywillows are out.

But the pessimists say we will pay for all this fine weather — possibly in March or April.

Proceeds Will Be Used For Flood Victims

Senior Captain Fred Brightwell, Salvation Army Officer here, said yesterday that the Salvation Army would receive money for the flood victims across the sea.

He stated that tomorrow evening (Wednesday) there would be a special meeting held at the Citadel, 256 Pinnacle Street, in which the sound film "Out of the Night" would be shown and the proceeds of this money to go to the special fund for the flood victims. This picture as the story of a once successful advertising executive, who because of overwork and domestic trouble, takes to drink and sinks to the level of Skid Row in Chicago. His way back to good living is a remarkably vivid, believable account of actual happenings, shockingly real and tragically true to life.

The public is invited to attend this meeting or send their donations for flood relief to The Salvation Army, 256 Pinnacle Street, Belleville.

Mrs. Ethel Smith Lawrenson Makes Big Hit on TV Show

Bright studio lights and television cameras didn't faze a young Belleville singer, who last night made her initial appearance on television.

The young singer was Mrs. Ethel (Smith) Lawrenson, who appeared on the Monday night "You Can Be a Star" talent show over station WHAM-TV in Rochester. Mrs. Lawrenson sang one of her favorite numbers "With a Song in My Heart" and drew a big hand from the studio audience in Rochester. The talent show program is staged every Monday night and either amateurs or professionals are eligible to take part.

But the prospect of being with fast company did not disturb the Belleville singer. During the brief introductory period, when contestants are questioned by the master of ceremonies, Mrs. Lawrenson was perfectly at ease.

She spotted Belleville as being "about" 113 miles east of Toronto, but admitted she wasn't too sure of her home town's population.

"People back home will shoot me for this, but I must admit I don't know," she said. "I think it is about 25,000."

But there was no doubt about the local singer being sure of her ground when she went into her number. Dressed in a dark, strapless evening gown and wearing a smart swept-back hairdo, the Belleville girl was a charming picture as she appeared on the TV screen and was loudly applauded by her studio audience.

Winners of the talent show are determined by a panel of judges, assisted by the votes of TV listeners. Belleville listeners can give Ethel a boost by forwarding their votes to the "You Can Be a Star" show in care of WHAM-TV, Rochester.

Majority of Fatalities in Highway Accidents Due to Driver Error

"Every four hours in Canada some place a person is killed in an automobile accident and each 15 minutes another is injured in the same manner," Ralph W. Harris of the All Canada Insurance Federation told members of the Rotary Club at the noon luncheon yesterday.

Speaking on behalf of 300 insurance companies across the country, the speaker explained that more than 30,000 persons were killed in auto accidents within the past 20 years. During the last seven years, wherein automobile numbers have increased rapidly, there has been a huge increase in the accident ratio.

"During 1951, 2,700 persons were killed in auto accidents across Canada and most of these accidents were the fault of the driver" Mr. Harris said. "Through statistics we have discovered 95 per cent of accidents may be attributed to driver error, 71 per cent occurred on dry, straight highways and 97 per cent of all cars involved were in good mechanical condition."

Regarding automobile insurance rates, Mr. Harris said three factors — the number of accidents, repair costs and more generous court judgments in recognition of the cost of living—affect rates.

"Despite the fact that these rates have increased anywhere from 100 to 300 per cent since 1939, the insurance business has succeeded in holding the cost down largely by cutting back profits to less than one per cent," the speaker said.

In concluding, Mr. Harris listed six rules for motorists to follow. He urged the car be kept in good mechanical condition at all times, that the rules of the road be adhered to, that motorists obey fundamental rules of courtesy, that they do not try to compete with every "driving fool" on the road today and they do not drive for at least two hours after consuming an alcoholic beverage. The last rule offered by the speaker was for motorists to assure themselves of adequate financial responsibility in case of an accident.

The speaker was introduced by Carl Crosby and thanked by Bert Houston.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Prices held steady in forenoon stock market trading today as trading slowed.

Papers and foods were strong in industrials. Utilities and constructions slipped. Manufacturing companies also slipped.

Frobisher, a holding company, was a standout in golds, adding 15 cents in a turnover of 70,000 shares. Senior golds traded lightly for small losses but a series of small gains in juniors buoyed the list.

Uranium issues continued firm but many other issues showed small losses. Chimo, Gunnar and Rix added pennies but Radiore Uranium dropped four cents in a turnover of 28,000 shares. New Larder U, New Highridge and North Ince slipped.

Higher-priced base metals weakened slightly but others gained. Steep Rock, Bellekeno and North Trinity gained pennies while Barvue, Cassiar and Sherritt Gordon lost larger amounts.

Western oils gains ranged to 15 cents. Leaders were Britalta, Gridoil and Okalta. Pacific slipped.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP) — Cattle sales were too few to establish a trend today at the Ontario stockyards. Hog prices were not set and no sheep or lambs were received. Receipts: cattle 300; calves 60; hogs 340; holdover from Monday, 2,800 cattle.

Fed yearlings 21-24.

Choice veal calves 28-32.

PRODUCE MARKET

Farm Forum News

All five forums were very interested in the subject of relationship between town and country. River Valley and Hazzards believed relations friendly and co-operative, better than a few years ago. Melrose stated that farmers weren't spending as much money this past year. Merchants like the farmers' trade because, as a rule, they either pay cash or do without. Foxboro says the relationship is not good and could be vastly improved.

Several remedies were suggested. Melrose said: "With school busses taking the country children to high school, rural and urban are mixing more. If every teen-age boy from the city would work on a farm through his holidays he would get an insight into the farmers' way of life." Foxboro thought a good thing would be an exchange of speakers with panel discussions and questions from the floor. Also regular contact by farm organizations and forums with local newspapers and radio stations.

River Valley said: "More education for city people needed to realize that possibly half weight of beef and one-third weight of pork is lost in killing. Also too many city people do not realize that the farmer does not get the bulk of the money charged to the consumer.

Hazzards: "As in two opposing groups or businesses a certain amount of misunderstanding or petty jealousy appears; we feel the best way to smooth it out is by getting together in groups to talk things over:

"(1) Work together in groups, such as fall fairs and Women's Institutes.

"(2) Play together, such as hockey teams, band.

"(3) Regular use of radio and press.

"(4) Children attending school together."

A group from Madoc Kiwanis were very helpful in the discussion at Hazzards.

Attendance on February 2nd. was as follows:

Brookdale 16; Foxboro 14; Hazzards 33; Melrose 12; River Valley 20.

Expedition to Antarctic On Way Home With Two Main Objects Accomplished

By LOUIS L. LECK
Canadian Press Correspondent

SYDNEY, Australia (CP) — A French expedition to the Antarctic is now in Australia on its way home with its two main objects accomplished.

These were a comprehensive study of the rare emperor penguin, found only in the Antarctic, and a survey of the complete coastline of Adelie Land, the French sector of the Antarctic.

With them the expedition brought 10 emperor penguins. Three died early on the voyage but the scientists hope that the others will survive the long voyage to France.

Disastrous Start

The expedition started with bad luck. Their main base at Port Martin was destroyed by fire a year ago and only seven men remained in the Antarctic when their ship, the Norwegian sealing vessel Tottan, left. They established a new base at Geology Point, 60 miles from Port Martin.

"We have proved that the Antarctic is no longer a place of primitive dog sled transport as it was as late as 1929," said Mario Marret, leader of the expedition. "The success we had with our weasels (tracked vehicles with enclosed cabins) proves that mechanical transport is successful. Future expeditions will be able to benefit by our experience and make plans which will give them more time for research."

In the middle of the winter last year Marret decided to try to reach the burned-out camp at Port Martin in a weasel. With another Frenchman as navigator and Robert Dover, an Australian observer, they set off in the darkness. It took them 35 days and for 25 days of that time they were immobilized by blizzards. During the blizzards they stayed inside the cabin of the weasel and kept the engine running so they would not freeze to death.

Once at Port Martin they salvaged two other weasels and took five tons of stores to Geology Point.

When summer and daylight came again three of the party made a 45-day rip to the polar plateau.

Filmed Penguins

The expedition made a close study of the emperor penguin, which had a rookery at Geology Point. The scientists filmed the strange birds and studied their breeding habits, embryology and development. All other penguins and land animals travelled north on the pack ice, but the emperor, three to four feet high, never leaves the region. The scientists believe they have some of the answers to questions as to how this penguin can live on the ice, with fish from the almost frozen sea its only food, incubate its eggs and feed the living chickens.

This expedition was Marret's third. He spent 1950-51 at the Port Martin base and a summer at the French polar expedition's Greenland base. During the last war he was a hero of the French resistance movement, parachuted several times into France and was captured by the Gestapo.

Dover, the Australian, had previously spent a year with the first Australian expedition to Heard Island.

Diabetes Hereditary Survey Conducted at Hospital Shows

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—If grandpa, dad or sister has diabetes be on the lookout for the disease in yourself and your children.

This warning is pointed up by a detailed survey of the inheritance of diabetes conducted by research at Victoria Hospital.

The investigation, which studied the histories of 1,631 diabetics, mainly from southwestern Ontario, disclosed the following facts:

1. About 50 per cent reported a family history of the disease.

2. Where one parent is diabetic twice as many children are victims of diabetes than where neither parent suffers from the disease.

3. In families where there is a history of diabetes the age at which the disease appears is earlier than where no such family history exists. It is particularly early where diabetes appeared in the family trees of both parents.

The survey also supported a long-held belief in medical circles that susceptibility to the disease is handed down from generation to generation.

The investigators said they found that where one parent was diabetic and the other had no history of the disease about two per cent of the children were diabetic. But where one parent had the disease and the other reported a family history of diabetes, six per cent of the children were diabetic.

Truce Talks at Panmunjon 'Unpardonable' Says Officer

"To harangue and delay and allow your opponent to become stronger so that he can fight you harder later on is unpardonable, in my humble opinion as a soldier."

Almond was quoted in an interview with U. S. News and World Report, a weekly newsmagazine. Stating that the interview was the first with Almond since his retirement from active duty Feb. 1, the magazine said "the army's seal on Almond's lips has been removed and he here tells the story of what really took place in Korea."

Almond was in command of the 10th corps, which was forced out of North Korea by the Chinese Communist counterattack in the summer of 1951.

Asked what he thought of the decision to hold cease-fire talks, Almond said:

"I felt at that time that the Chinese Communist and the North Korean armies were on the most wobbly legs that they had been to that date (July 11, 1951).

"They were punch drunk and ineffective, and I, personally, thought at the time that it was the time to finish off the effort.

"I had no confidence in the armistice talks then, and I don't now."

Almond went on to say that he would have favored truce talks for 10 or 20 days with a stipulation that if no agreement had been reached by then, the peace conference would be called off.

The general said he thought at the time "and I still think so"—that there is a military solution to Korea.

He suggested:

1. A naval blockade of the Chinese mainland.

2. Bombing of Manchurian railroad lines which bring supplies to the North Koreans.

3. Assaults by Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist forces on the Chinese mainland.

AERIALISTS ESCAPE

LOUISVILLE KY. (AP)—Four women aerialists, billed as human butterflies, plunged 30 feet to the ground Monday when a cable hoisting them aloft snapped. All escaped with minor injuries. Equipped with big, fanning butterfly wings, the circus performers dropped with a peculiar slowness as the wings acted like parachutes to slow their descent.

RCAF Wings Presented To Three Air Cadets

TRENTON — Last Friday afternoon, Group Captain J. B. Millward, DFC, Commanding Officer of RCAF Station, Trenton and G/C D. H. MacCaul, CD, Commanding Officer of No. 6 Repair Depot Trenton, presented the Royal Canadian Air Cadet wings to three members of number 173 Trenton High School Air Cadet Squadron at an impressive ceremony held at RCAF Station, Trenton.

The three successful trainees were Glen Hadley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Hadley, 111 Henry Street; Frank Johnston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Johnston, 66 Heber Street, and Donald MacCaul, son of G/C and Mrs. D. H. MacCaul. Group Captain MacCaul presented the wings to his son Donald.

Squadron 173 is made up of approximately 125 boys and girls who turned out in full strength for the wings presentation and the presentation of other awards won by members of the squadron. The general salute, which was taken by Group Captain Millward was led by the Squadron's Commanding Officer, Squadron Leader W. G. Spencer. The girls were particularly impressive looking in their neat blue jumpers and white middies.

Squadron No. 173 was formed in Sept. 1942 at a meeting in Trenton arranged by officials of the Air Cadet League of Canada. As a result of that meeting the Trenton Rotary Club undertook the sponsorship of the squadron. Mr. V. P. Carswell agreed to act as Commanding Officer, T. W. Spear as Adjutant, M. C. Harrison as Equipment Officer and Dr. E. A. McQuade as honorary medical officer. College Street Public School became the first headquarters for the forty cadets enrolled.

The squadron, at its inception, was affiliated with No. 6 R.D. but later was transferred to RCAF Station, Trenton. This station is responsible for supplies and it maintains a liaison officer, FO R. S. Thorne, to ensure that the station may help the squadron in every way possible.

Another very important phase of training is the system of exchange visits for a period of two weeks to the United Kingdom and the USA which was inaugurated in 1947. Winners of these exchange visits are as follows: 1947, Harold Carswell to the United Kingdom; 1949, Creighton McConnell to the USA and 1952 Douglas Hinton also to the USA. It is interesting to note that both Harold Carswell and Creighton McConnell are now members of the RCAF.

May Never Know Flood Death Toll

LONDON. (AP) — The full death-toll of Britain's east coast flood disaster may never be known, Home Secretary Sir David Maxwell Fyfe told the House of Commons, today.

Known deaths total 283, he said. Police believe a further 50 may have been drowned, most of them on Canvey Island in the Thames estuary.

The unofficial count of dead has been reported as 546.

Fyfe said no one can really tell how many people are missing.

The board and executive met on Friday evening for an artist selection meeting and chose the following attractions to be presented in the forthcoming season pending official confirmation from New York.

Visits City

Charlie Lynch, a quarterback 'great in the middle 20's', was up from Kingston during the weekend. He works at the Aluminum plant in the Limestone City.

As a rugby player he worked for Ottawa at the time the Capital City crew won the Canadian championship. The Roughrider braintrust of yesteryear has a favorite pigskin performer he likes to tell you about. He wasn't a teammate or even in the same league. But for those readers who are in their middle 30's, the name of Harry Batstone will always standout as a great backfielder with the great Queen's team that also played another great star in the same era in the person of Pep Ledley.

Charlie, now greying, claims Batstone, a college player, was the greatest he ever called signals against.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. E. Morton Parker leave this week for a trip to the Barbadoes Islands. They will spend two weeks on the ocean before arriving at the West Indies.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Parker will return this week from Montreal to take up residence in Mr. Parker's parents' home on Queen St. while the elder Parkers vacation in the south.

Mrs. W. W. Weaver will spend a few weeks in Florida, leaving her home here today on the first leg of the trip south.

Stirling Edges Admirals 8-7 In Valley League

TRENTON. (Special) — Stirling took over third place in the southern section of the Trent Valley Hockey League here last night when they edged the Trenton Admirals by an 8-7 score.

The Admirals held a 3-2 edge at the end of the second period but Frankford outscored them in the second heat to tie the count at five all.

The winners had the edge in the third period firing home three goals to their opponents' two to cop the nod.

Stirling's first line of Robson, McCrory and D. Wannamaker grabbed the scoring spotlight accounting for six of the eight tallies. Robson paced the pack with three while Wannamaker helped himself to a pair and McCrory got the other.

Beale, Jones and Scott were the trigger-men for the Admirals, scoring all the goals. Scott got the hat trick with his linemates each getting a brace.

The game was fairly rugged with 17 penalties being handed out by the officials. McCrory drew a minor and major and Beale drew a five-minute rest.

Charge Adjourned

KITCHENER (CP)—A charge under the deserted Wives and Children's Maintenance Act against Henry William Paepcke of nearby Elmira was adjourned indefinitely in domestic court Monday.

Mr. and Mrs Paepcke have been charged with murder in the death Jan. 27 of their daughter, Glenis, three years, 10 months.

The couple was taken into custody following post-mortem examination of the child's body. The autopsy allegedly revealed a cerebral haemorrhage and extensive bruises.

The desertion charge, with Mrs. Paepcke as complainant, had been laid previously.

140,000 Acres Land Flooded In Great Britain

LONDON (Reuters)—The giant flood that rolled over nearly 140,000 acres of land in eastern England last week stretched from a point 12 miles north of the Port of Grimsby, in Lincoln, through Norfolk, Suffolk and Essex, to just north of Deal, Kent.

About two-thirds of this coastal strip was affected. Some areas, particularly around river mouths, saw floodwaters 15 miles inland. Other parts of the coast escaped entirely.

The unofficial toll of the flood in lives, land and homes, by counties, is:

Lincoln: 40 dead, 12 missing, 5,336 homeless, 17,000 acres flooded. Heavy losses of sheep and poultry.

Mablethorpe, Skegness and Scunthorpe were the main towns on the Lincoln coast hit by floods.

Norfolk: 87 dead, 23 missing, 9,150 homeless, 27,000 acres flooded. Stock losses: Cattle 65; pigs 75.

Flooding began at King's Lynn and continued intermittently along the entire coast. At King's Lynn, the worst-hit town in this county, floods followed the banks of the River Ouse 15 miles upstream. The holiday resort and fishing port of Yarmouth, on the River Yare, came in for similar treatment. Hunstanton, 10 miles north of King's Lynn, was seriously hit.

Suffolk: 42 dead, 6 missing, 1,000 homeless, 20,000 acres flooded. Livestock losses: 78 cattle, 46 pigs, 200 sheep, 800 poultry.

Penetrated 15 Miles

Flooding affected about half of the coast of Suffolk. Floods penetrated up to 15 miles behind the port of Harwich, on the Suffolk-Essex border but officially part of Essex. Ipswich, county town on the River Orwell, suffering flooding in low-lying areas.

Essex: 114 dead, 8 missing, 2,560 homeless, 9,000 evacuated, 35,000 acres flooded. Livestock losses: Cattle 1,050, sheep 1,000, pigs 400, poultry 5,000.

Essex was the worst-hit county. Canvey Island, in the mouth of the Thames, suffered heavy loss of life. It was completely overrun. Foulness Island was also inundated, though loss of life was small. Virtually every town on this coast was hit, notably the popular seaside resorts of Clacton and Southend.

Kent: North coastline flooded to a point just north of Deal but, so far as is known, no deaths; 450 homeless, 40,000 acres flooded. Livestock losses: Cattle 1,200, sheep 10,000, Pig and poultry losses heavy.

Chatham, Gillingham and Rochester, the three navy towns on the Kent coast, were partly flooded. Sheppey Island, off the coast, was inundated.

Jury Verdict Said Not Supported By Evidence

TORONTO (CP)—A jury verdict convicting Norman Boyd of being one of five men who robbed a Leaside bank of $46,000 Nov. 30, 1951, was described Monday as "unreasonable and not supported by the evidence" before the Ontario Appeal Court.

Defence Counsel G. Arthur Martin, appearing for Boyd, made the observation during an appeal hearing against the three-year sentence given for armed robbery.

The court reserved decision.

Mr. Martin said that while five men were charged as having taken part in the robbery, only four were seen by witnesses.

Chief Justice J. W. Pickup interrupted Mr. Martin's arguments to say that the Appeal Court had received a letter from the trial judge, in which Judge Robert Forsyth said if he had been trying the case without a jury he would have accepted the alibi evidence and acquitted Norman Boyd.

The alibi evidence was given by Arthur Anderson, for 39 years employed in the survey department at city hall. He testified that Norman was with him the day of the robbery.

Mr. Martin said the only evidence connecting Boyd with the robbery is the identification of a single witness.

Crown Counsel W. B. Common challenged Judge Forsyth's right to express such an opinion and said it is "unheard of in our courts."

He said the crown theory is that Norman Boyd went to work with Anderson, broke away during the morning to take part in the robbery "and then conveniently got back" on the job.

PROMISE OF BETTER THINGS

The session of the Ontario Legislature which opens this Thursday is expected to be one of more particular interest to municipalities than any Queen's Park session for some time past. It follows the announcement of only last week that an interim report of the committee on provincial-municipal relations proposes a change in the system of grants.

It is indicated, though not assured as yet, that the interim report will be acted upon immediately. If this is to be done, the important innovation will be unconditional grants to the municipalities on a population basis.

The whole thing is still unfortunately vague, but in lieu of any specific announcement of just what the municipalities may expect, there has come an assurance from Municipal Affairs Minister George Dunbar that no municipality will suffer financially as a result of the changes to be made.

This is an important assurance. The special committee has been a long time at its studies of the difficult financial problems which beset the municipalities and which, in consequence, bear so directly upon the tax burden of the municipal ratepayer. It would be unwise, and hardly fair, we think, for the Government to suddenly confront the municipalities with a drastically revised system of grants on such short notice.

As important as it is that some new formula be worked out, and as eager as the municipalities are to see one in effect, that whole question is far too big to be brought suddenly to a head. And it appears even though the Government is anxious to proceed with at least some phase, or phases, of a new system at this session, any immediate changes will be on a tentative basis.

This may be assumed in the importance that is attached to one of the major recommendations in the interim report. It is proposed that the most equitable arrangement upon which grants should be based is one where uniform assessment can be applied to the whole province. This, of course, would require considerable time to achieve.

The immediate prospect, however, is that there will be per capita grants rather than the conditional grants that are now given toward municipal police and fire protection costs. These would be graded upward according to the size of the municipality in recognition of the fact that the larger the community the more costly it is to provide these services.

It has been recommended to the Government that the unconditional grants should be on a basis of five dollars per head in each municipality. This is the figure which rumor has associated with the interim report's proposal and if it is acceptable to Mr. Frost, there is the prospect of a considerable gain for most municipalities in the budget he will bring down later in the current session.

Last year, under the conditional grant plan, Belleville, for instance, received roughly $40,000 toward police and fire protection costs. If an unconditional grant is to be given on a five dollar per capita basis, this city would receive in the neighborhood of $100,000, a rather handsome increase

There is some feeling in Queen's Park circles that Premier Frost may be in a fairly generous mood at this time, having gained an extra $25,000,000 out of the financial agreement signed with Ottawa last summer. At the same time it is considered unlikely that the premier will commit the government to an established tariff of grants or any set scale of payments

He is known to be in favor of some policy whereby the municipal taxing field could be enlarged and the municipalities would not be so greatly dependent on the provincial treasury. This, too, of course, is the way most experienced municipal officers would like to see it. For it is only by this means that the municipalities can retain reasonable control over their own affairs.

For all the lack of specific details of what the forthcoming session will produce there is evidence that the province is contemplating a new formula which comes closer to meeting the long-sought needs of the municipalities. This session will probably only see a start in that direction but with it should come a picture of wider readjustment for the future.

STRENGTHENING THE STAFF OF LIFE

It strikes us that there might be quite a few men who haven't yet been told some of the more recent facts of life. Since the first of the month—we learn now—something new has been added to the traditional bread-and-butter diet of Canadians. Whether we have been aware of it or not a lot of us have been eating "enriched" bread.

Since early in the war years some Canadian white bread has had vitamin B added but now regulations permit bakers to literally load a loaf with vitamin ingredients. Why it has taken all this time to get around to feeding us our vitamins in this simplest of ways is not explained but now vitamin-laden bread is yours for the asking.

The new enrichment process is voluntary. If it is enriched, white bread will have thiamin or vitamin B1, riboflavin or vitamin B2, another B vitamin and iron added to it.

New ingredients are also available in brown and whole wheat bread. Brown bread can be colored by means of whole wheat flour, graham flour, bran, molasses, caramel or a combination of these. The maker must state on the label whether it contains whole wheat flour or not, and the percentage of it in the bread. If the bread is colored with molasses or caramel, or both, this must also be stated on the label.

No bread shall be called whole wheat, however, unless at least 60 per cent of the flour in it is whole wheat flour and the percentage must be stated on the label. For all the new wrinkles, the nutrition experts tell us that 100 per cent whole wheat bread still is the bread with the highest food value. However, the differences between it and the new enriched white loaves are probably very small.

At a meeting of the city council last evening Mayor R. J. Graham presided and all the aldermen were present. The most important matter settled was the reduction in some of the salaries paid to city officials. We give here a comparison of the new and former salaries: City Clerk, now $700, former salary $800; City Treasurer and Waterworks Accountant, now $900, former salary $1275; City Solicitor, $400, former salary $500; City Surveyor, $700 and $200 as Waterworks Superintendent, total $900, former salary $800; City Engineer, now $450, former salary $510; Fire Chief, $200, no change; Assistant Fire Chief, $100, no change; Medical Health Officer, now $100, former salary $75. Proposed savings $510. The duties of each officer will be defined by the council.

Misled Pigeons

(Windsor Star)

There are fence-viewers, weed and alley inspectors, and so on, but it has been left to Champaign, Ill., to select the first official pigeon controler. He is a police officer named after the pigeon-control buck was passed to police. Henceforth his job is to shoot pigeons.

Pigeons are a nuisance, even here, but what usually saves them is that they become selective nuisances. They don't bother all householders equally, as starlings have been known to do when they infest a street or community. Instead, the pigeons pick out a few homes and roofs that suit them. Just why isn't clear. But all others are spurned.

This would be smart strategy if the pigeons did it consciously, and it's still clever although done instinctively. By and large, it prevents any mass indignation being built up against pigeons. Of 50 householders in a block, 48 may say they have no grudge against pigeons, in fact rather like them. What do the protests of the other two count against such odds.

Evidently the Champaign pigeons took bad advice somehow, and got in wrong with the whole community.

The Illinois report does not say what the pigeon-controler will do with the birds he pots. But come spring a fine aroma of pigeon pie should float out his open kitchen windows from time to time.

A Good Word

(Charlottetown Guardian)

"Dominion" was hit upon as perfectly describing a sovereign state which extends, in the biblical phrase, "from sea to sea." The law officers of the Crown in Ottawa may have been perfectly correct in advising the Government that the name of this country is "Canada," rather than the longer phrase, "Dominion" of Canada, but the word Dominion is a very fine one, with proud connotations and it would be a pity to conclude that it has outlived its usefulness.

ICE FISHING

I like to cast for trout in May
And fish for bass when that's allowed.
I'll gladly spend a summer day,
And more, with my old fishing crowd.
But me they never will entice
To join them fishing through the ice.

With K. T. Keller I have caught
Red snapper off the southern keys.
Tarpon with him I've hooked and fought,
Never to bring one from the seas.
But if ice fishing goes K. T.,
I will not bear him company.

I have no real desire to go
I'd rather hear the north wind blow
When I'm at home beside the fire.
Instead of fishing through the ice
For perch I'll pay the market price.

Honoring Sir Robert

(Ottawa Journal)

It was Joseph Howe, the tribune of Nova Scotia, who once said:

"A wise nation preserves its records, gathers up its muniments, decorates the tombs of its illustrious dead, repairs its great public structures, and fosters national pride, and love of country, by perpetual reference to the sacrifices and glories of the past."

It was in this spirit, we feel sure, that Prime Minister St. Laurent announced to Parliament that a monument to Sir Robert Borden, Canada's Prime Minister in World War I, will be erected on Parliament Hill.

Mr. St. Laurent, making his announcement, spoke of Sir Robert Borden "being recognized by all Canadians as one of our great prime ministers....all recognize the great part he played in Canada's development in the last half century, in World War I and in Canada's constitutional development."

What a glory of our parliamentary way, telling of absence from our politics of sterile ideological hates, that a great Liberal Prime Minister can thus speak of a great Conservative Prime Minister!

Sir Robert's memorial, Mr. St. Laurent hoped, would be unveiled on June 26, 1954, the 100th anniversary of his birth in Grand Pre, Nova Scotia. The Journal's hope is that the memorial's place will be on the high ground in front of the West Block overlooking the old Supreme Court building and in direct line with the monument of Sir Wilfred Laurier, Sir Robert's great contemporary, which stands on the high ground in front of the East Block.

Such a site, we believe, would be better than the grounds surrounding the Parliament Buildings, or Centre Block, already fairly crowded with memorials to statesmen before and after Confederation.

These Things Remembered

(Ottawa Journal)

The story of the week we liked best was that which told of how it came that Major John Eisenhower, serving in Korea, happened to get to Washington to see his father inaugurated as President.

As the Washington correspondent of the San Francisco Chronicle told it:

"Just before the inauguration Dwight Eisenhower asked President Truman:

"Sir, may I ask you a question: Who ordered my son home from Korea? He's been giving me hell about it.'"

"'I did' Truman said. 'Just tell him that contrary old man in the White House did it.'"

Not much wrong with the leaders and politics of a people when this sort of thing can happen—generosity, kindness and chivalry rising above strife, softening asperities, making controversy more sportsmanlike and manly.

It is the sort of thing, thank heavens, which has become something of a tradition in most parliamentary countries.

One classic example came in an incident between Gladstone and Chamberlain. Chamberlain, breaking with Gladstone on Home Rule, became the "GOM's" most merciless critic; pursued him implacably, with seeming rancor. One day there rose from the back benches a young man to deliver his maiden speech — Austen Chamberlain, Joseph Chamberlain's son. When the speech was over, a page boy brought a note across the floor to Chamberlain the elder who, upon reading it, betrayed deep emotion. The note, a graceful congratulation to a father upon a promising son, was from Gladstone.

One recalls too, the case of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Dr. ("Red Michael") Clark. Clark, a disciple of John Morley and Joseph Cowen in the great days of radicalism in Newcastle, came to Canada to become the Liberal member for Red Deer, and the devoted friend and follower of Laurier. In 1917 the friendship floundered; Clark in a searing speech, questioned not only Sir Wilfrid's policies but his motives The two men never spoke again.

A couple of years later Sir Wilfrid died, and the House met to hear the leaders pay him tribute. Sir Thomas White for the Conservative, Mr. D. D. Mackenzie for the Liberals, and Mr. Rudolphe Lemieux for Quebec, all spoke movingly, but the man who stirred the House to its depths was Dr. Clark. Rising without notice, begging the Speaker's permission to add his word of tribute, he went on to tell of how long friendship with Sir Wilfrid had been broken, of how their paths had ceased to cross, then added: "But, Mr. Speaker, when some time ago word came of the death of my son in France the first note of sympathy to come to me, the sweetest and the tenderest, was from Wilfrid Laurier."

In a world made dismal by hatreds and rancors, incidents like these forbid despair.

London Will Set Styles

(Windsor Star)

If London steps into the forefront of fashion centres, the credit may belong to Queen Elizabeth. Not that she dresses extravagantly, but rather that she shows good sense and good taste, which is more than can be said for Paris and New York styles much of the time.

Down the years the tradition took hold that London styles were dowdy, with heavy, utilitarian tweeds substituting for the more glamorous materials fashioned into "creations" by Parisian stylists and New York imitators. There were grounds for this point of view.

When the Queen, as Princess Elizabeth, came to North America in the fall of 1951, fashion-conscious women kept an eye peeled for her wardrobe. What they saw surprised them, as was admitted at the time. The Princess was a well turned out young woman. London was established as a fashion centre.

Now the Royal Family's designer, Mr. Norman Hartnell, is predicting the Coronation will have a world-wide effect on styles.

This is a subject on which we easily can get over our head. In fact we're practically treading water right now. But we like to think Designer Hartnell is right. Fashions obviously can use a steadying influence.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The flu epidemic which recently chased weirdly and with incredible speed across the face of Europe, and across some areas of this continent, has rou[illegible] little shiver of dread amongst all of us who are old enough to recollect the savage flu epidemic of 1918.

This new epidemic is very light. It lays thousands low for a day or two, in one district: and overnight strikes, lightly and swiftly, in a new region, afflicting whole populations.

That is exactly what happened in the early spring of 1918 when the Spanish influenza, as it was called, made its preliminary appearance. The war was on, at that time. And my regiment was out in rest in a French village several miles behind the line. We had heard of this mysterious and swift-passing epidemic. It struck us like one of those swift summer twisters of wind that come and go in a breath. If I recall rightly, over 450 officers and men of the regiment were smitten with it overnight. The whole regiment was put on sick parade, while the 450 first victims lay and shivered and felt unutterably miserable for twenty-four hours. Our remedy, I think, was a double shot of rum and two quinine pills. The following day, the remainder of the regiment were laid low; and the first victims were already recovering. It was all over in three days, and only a handful of men suffered any further consequences of it.

That happened all over Europe, for those few days and weeks.

Then came the autumn. And the flu, which had, as it were, taken our measure in the spring, struck like a deadly plague. This countryside was paralyzed by it. Thousands died, and virulent forms of pneumonia not only carried people of all ages to their death but left others with most damaging after-effects.

Medical science of course has already taken into account the resemblances of this present epidemic to that of the early part of 1918. It would be well if the general public were acquainted with the possibilities of coincidence in this respect, and prepared themselves to co-operate with the doctors in any way they may decide.

Personal Health Talks

CHRONIC ANOXIA IN EVERYDAY LIFE

A person who breathes air containing as much as three parts of carbon monoxide gas per thousand will collapse abruptly and become unconscious or powerless or "frozen," as miners say, after a few breaths of the polluted, odorless atmosphere.

In some instances the victim of carbon monoxide asphyxia (anoxia) may suddenly feel tightness across forehead, throbbing in temples, severe headache, dizziness and dimness of vision. His face will appear flushed. If not utterly powerless to help himself the victim may be irrational and resist rescue efforts.

Of course the first aid treatment is immediate application of artificial respiration even while the victim is being carried into the open air and without a moment's pause until medical attendants take over.

Because such sudden loss of consciousness from carbon monoxide anoxia and because C-O is odorless and colorless, rescue crews in mines carry canaries, for birds or small animals are overcome more quickly than men.

Likely to suffer from chronic C-O anoxia (not poisoning, just deprivation of oxygen supply to body cells, tissues, organs) are garage workers in cold climate or weather when automobile engines are running and the door or windows closed; clerical workers in the office connected with such garage; traffic cops in city canyons when motor traffic is heavy and the air still; linotype operators; blasting workers; meter testers; soldering machine operators; housemaids in homes where no one cares about the health or safety of the hired girl—so she is allowed only an inadequate heater without proper vent to the chimney or outdoors; people who use portable heaters (burning gas, kerosene, gasoline, charcoal or other fuel) to warm up bathroom, bedroom or other small enclosure temporarily; and most of all, housewives who spend hours every day over fuel-burning stoves with or without stovepipe connection to chimney flue or outdoors, in poorly ventilated kitchens.

I'm ashamed to mention any more than a few of the symptoms competent medical authorities ascribe to chronic C-O anoxia, but just to give you an idea—headache vertigo, memory defects, insomnia, yawning, pallor but full hemoglobin and red cell count or higher, and whoa Nellie that's enough.

In most instances C-O anoxia is not even suspected as the cause of these bizarre symptoms, even if the sufferer consults a physician; usually he or she doesn't, but rather "tries" this and that nostrum, diet or treatment.

Whether the organic, tissue, cell damage done by C-O anoxia can be fully repaired, or, say, cured, depends on the severity of the gassing or length of time of exposure to air mildly polluted with C-O. In any case the best remedy is a mixture of 7% at first, later 5% of carbon dioxide and oxygen, administered with artificial respiration to the victim of acute anoxia, or in regular seances of, say, five minutes three or four times a day, of inhalations of the mixture from inhalator or bag.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LIKE HEADLIGHTS AT NIGHT

Every one of us, no matter what our origin, our color, creed, or nationality, needs a guiding faith. The faith that we own is something like the strong headlights on our automobile that throw their beams far ahead in the dark night. These headlights give us confidence.

It's that way with the faith that we own. It keeps lighting up the way. It assures us when there is darkness all about us. So long as we pay attention to the lights we know that all will be safe and our journey will be happily complete.

It is our spiritual values to which we must adhere, first of all. Without them, no matter how vaunted, material values would consume us in chaos and failure. There would be no liberty of the human spirit. Freedom would be outlawed, and the dignity of man would be at an end. Religion is the first requisite for leadership in a confused and materialistic world.

Before the completed task must come the vision. Lincoln saw it when he referred to a "house divided" and in his statement that a country could not happily endure "half free and half slave." And so, through faith, prayer, and allegiance to God, and although dying a martyr, the Union was saved.

The way ahead, however, is not always clear, though our headlights of faith throw their beams ahead. Often there is fog. Then it is that a greater faith is needed, caution and added courage being called upon. Faltering in an emergency never pays. It means dropping God, the Pilot.

It is the wonder of God that He gives to individuals and to nations their headlights of faith to guide them through their nights of darkness. Miraculously "God builds the nest for the blind bird; and may it not be that He opens closed eyes and unstops deaf ears to sights and sounds from which others by these very senses are debarred?" Thus did Michael Fairless inquire in her immortal little book, "The Roadmender."

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

READ IT

When President Galo Plaza of Ecuador left his country recently to visit the United States, he handed over the government temporarily to Vice President Gilbert. In doing so he handed him a Bible and said, "I leave you with the Bible, which I have read every morning to help me exercise patience and Christian courage."

When we link this with General MacArthur's statement that every night before he retires, no matter how tired he is, he reads a portion of the Bible, we see how mightily this book is regarded by some of our contemporaries who are active in the administration of world affairs. The idea people sometimes have that the Bible is a book to be read only in church or by a few pious people of the grandmotherly variety is utterly inaccurate. Millions of people very humble in station and ability are every day, along with certain great leaders, pondering the Word of God and finding therein a real source of courage, comfort and guidance.

It took several thousand years for the Bible to be composed. It is God's revelation of His will for man, made through the choicest lives of God's chosen people. The divine directives with their complete spiritual authority have come through the lips of God's chosen prophets, sages and apostles.

Congregational Meetings

TABERNACLE UNITED

The annual congregational meeting of Tabernacle United Church was held Friday evening following a potluck supper convened by members of the Women's Association. Rev. Ray A. Rowley presided and opened the meeting with suitable Scripture reading and prayer.

In the absence of Mr. Gil Wamboldt, recording secretary of the official Board, Mr. H. R. Varcoe recorded the minutes.

Mr. Rowley in his remarks said: "As we look back over the pathway of 1952 there is much that calls forth our gratitude to Almighty God, and our humble thanksgiving for the accomplishments in which we have been privileged to share. There has been manifested throughout the congregation a fine spirit of optimism, harmony and goodwill that is most encouraging. As we move into another year new opportunities await us, new challenges confront us, open doors are before us—let us face them in a spirit of worship, prayer and study to prepare ourselves to be used in a manner commensurate with the hour."

71 New Members

He paid tribute to the efficiency of the elders, whom he likes to call "The Minister's Cabinet." A spring and autumn visitation campaign was held with the result of 71 new members added to the church roll. The Session report showed 18 funerals had been conducted by the minister, 20 ministers and 46 baptisms. A silent tribute was paid to the deceased members.

Mr. Rowley also paid tribute to the Committee of Stewards, a group of men whose fine business qualities and integrity cannot be surpassed by any church. Despite the many responsibilities placed on them, all current expenses were met and a fine financial balance was shown at the end of 1952. This committee also recommended to the congregation increasing the minister's salary by $200 in 1953.

Allocation Exceeded

Particularly gratifying is the fact that the Missionary and Maintenance givings have been steadily increasing from year to year and 1952 allocation of $1800 was exceeded by $300. The allocation of both Afternoon and Evening Auxiliaries of the Woman's Missionary Society had also been met. And the work of the three women's departments: the Women's Association, Comrade Club and Keen Age Club has been most commendable, the groups having raised over $3,200. The Men's Club had some exceptionally fine programs and have enjoyed a splendid fellowship; they have been the highest financial aid to the all church bazaar for the last three years.

The Sunday School is one of the most interesting departments of any church. The theme of the church school is "Learning to Worship." Tabernacle has enjoyed the formation of a 14-piece orchestra under the capable direction of Mrs. George Wright. This orchestra is made up of boys and girls from the church school and they played two numbers for the meeting. Tribute was paid to those in charge of the nursery school whose personal sacrifice enables parents to attend morning worship.

Many Projects

The C.G.I.T. and Explorers indulged in many projects during the year: Bible, missionary and health instruction. They held a "Mother and Daughter" banquet; operated booth and raised $45 for the all church bazaar; made and filled candy boxes for bed-ridden patients at the County Home, made Christmas menus for the hospital and packed a Christmas hamper for a needy family.

The Sixth Belleville Cub Pack was formed in Tabernacle Church in March and satisfactory progress has been made. Another new group was organized in October, that of the Young People's Fellowship, a group of young teen agers who are under the fine leadership of Messrs. Wesley Mifflin and A. D. Archibald.

The Young People's Union accomplished a great deal with the kind help of Mr. Bob Hadcock, student of theology at Albert College. The Good Companions, a club of young adults enjoyed a fine program of Christian fellowship and the Women's Guild, while associated with Tabernacle United Church, is interdenominational and is a study group.

Women's Guild

These women have enjoyed an exceptionally good year looking into such subjects as "Our Prejudices", "The St. Lawrence Seaway Project", "Trends in Education", "North Atlantic Treaty Organization", "Geneva Agreement in Trades and Tariffs", "Ontario Training Schools and Reformatories", "Jury Service, as it Affects Women of Ontario," with Mrs. C. L. Wallbridge as guest speaker; Rev. F. Whittington, Protestant Chaplain of Kingston Penitentiary, was also a guest speaker. The Guild has given financial assistance to C.A.R.E., Unitarian Service Committees; Canadian Save the Children's Fund, and W.C.T.U.

The choir also received tribute from the congregation for their loyal and faithful service.

Three new appointments were made to the official board, that of Mr. Gordon Williams to the Board of Session; Messrs. Frank Davidson and Eugene Harrison to the Committee of Stewards.

MADOC JUNCTION

MADOC JUNCTION— A happy evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bridges when they entertained the teachers and members of the intermediate and senior boys' and girls' classes of the Sunday school.

Games, contests and singing were enjoyed. At the close, the Friendship Circle was formed and all sang, "Blest Be The Tide That Binds," and "God be With You 'Till We Meet Again." Mr. K. Stewart, a former pastor, was present.

Refreshments of ice-cream, coke, candy, cookies and grape juice were served by the hostess.

Mr. Kenneth Stewart, of Lakefield, was a recent guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Harlow.

Mrs. Russell Sills and little son Bobby, of West Huntingdon, spent Friday with the former's father, Mr. Raymond Chambers.

Mr. Clarence Fitchett is in Toronto attending the 53rd annual convention of the Ontario Association of Agricultural Societies which is being held at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd McEachern of Ottawa, spent the past weekend with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Reide.

Miss Bessie Hollinger and Mr. H. Burke, of Fuller, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Harlow.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Wannamaker of Stirling, visited Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Fitchett on Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Murney Kirkey spent Saturday evening at Mr. and Mrs. Orrie Seeley's, Stirling.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Nelson spent last Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kelly and family, of Warkworth.

Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Stapley and children, of Trenton, spent the tea hour on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Stapley.

Stage Actress VS Movie Stars For Awards

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Final campaigning began today for the 25th annual Academy awards, highlighted by a tight race between two stage actresses and three movie stars.

Two leading nominees for the best actress Oscar are Shirley Booth, the humdrum housewife of "Come Back, Little Sheba," and Julie Harris, the eager adolescent of "The Member of the Wedding."

They oppose Joan Crawford, the terror-stricken playwright in "Sudden Fear;" Bette Davis, the fading actress of "The Star;" and Susan Hayward, who portrayed singer Jane Froman in "With a Song in My Heart."

Certain to figure in the campaign is the argument that the stage actresses have the advantage of playing their roles hundreds of times in the theatre. Still, Miss Booth appears to be the favorite.

Gary Cooper Favored

Gary Cooper, veteran of 25 years in the movies, is favored for leading man honors over a field of four relative newcomers. He was cited for his role as the dutiful sheriff in "High Noon." Opposing him are Marlon Brando, the Mexican revolutionary in "Viva Zapata!" Kirk Douglas, ruthless film producer in "The Bad and the Beautiful;" Jose Ferrer as the artist Toulouse-Lautrec in "Moulin Rouge;" and versatile Alec Guiness in "The Lavender Hill Mob."

Nominated for the best picture award were: "The Greatest Show on Earth," "High Noon," "Ivanhoe," "Moulin Rouge" and "The Quiet Man."

Oscar will go on television when the awards are presented at the Pantages Theatre March 19. A TV set-maker, RCA-Victor, will pick up the $100,000 tab for the event.

Few Surprises

Monday night's nominations offered few surprises. About the only omissions that raised eyebrows were those of Laurence Olivier, ("The Member of the Wedding").

Cécil B. de Mille, who seldom receives Academy notice, surprised with recognition of "The Greatest Show on Earth," in the best picture and best directed film categories.

Other major nominations were: Best supporting actor — Richard Burton in "My Cousin Rachel;" Arthur Hunnicutt in "The Big Sky;" Victor McLaglen in "The Quiet Man;" Jack Palance in "Sudden Fear;" Anthony Quinn in "The Bad and the Beautiful;" Jean Hagen in "Singin' in the Rain;" Colette Marchand in "Moulin Rouge;" Terry Moore in "Come Back, Little Sheba;" Thelma Ritter in "With a Song in My Heart."

Nominations were made by 11,665 members of the industry. The final awards will be voted by the 1,600 members of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

CYCLIST KILLED

COBOURG (CP)—A cyclist was fatally injured Friday night in a two-car crash here. The body of Andrew Kerr, 43, of Cobourg was found on a lawn 25 feet away. The two drivers, Vernal Linton and Bernard Traini, both of Cobourg, told police they did not know a cyclist was involved. The body was found by a constable investigating the crash. The drivers escaped with cuts and bruises.

Coronation Means Few Food Bonuses for British People

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—The Coronation is going to mean a few food bonuses for the British people—but nothing as hearty or mouth-watering as the non-restricted fare of other crownings.

In fact, the government concessions for the great occasion—a few extra ounces of margarine a person plus sugar and candy—fell a little flat. Newspaper editorials greeted them with thinly-veiled irony.

Still, there was one beefy sop to the stomach, recalling the lavish and meaty days when great roasts turned lazily on open-air spits. Anybody will be able to hold a Coronation ox barbecue—all you need is the ox, fuel and cook.

Lucky Wokington

Luckier than most centres is Wokington, Berkshire, which had either an ox or venison promised long ago to provide a party for the elder citizenry.

An 80-year-old member of the fire department, veteran of the 1937 coronation barbecue, is scheduled to start things at 10 p.m., the evening before Coronation Day. Oak log fuel will be lit in the town square, the ox will be spitted and the carcass shifted into grilling position on the steel tripod used first for the barbecue marking Queen Victoria's jubilee.

Delicious juices will be captured in special pans while the basting of hundreds of precious rations continues all night under the eye of the fire department chief. If all goes well, the first slices will be served at noon Coronation Day.

Undoubtedly the leading barbecue chef in Britain is Harry Johnson, 63, whose light touch with a carcass has been perfected with 1,500 oxen, deer, pigs and sheep. Johnson, an engineer when he's not barbecuing, was sought by 68 places for Coronation duty but will use his three-foot carving knife, now 42 years old, at Bournemouth.

Some branches of the United Farmers' Union have reported scores of requests for qualified chefs—a situation which the international academy of cooks and chefs tried to rectify with an offer to supply some at a small fee. No takers have been reported yet, however.

Oak Fuel Best

A good-sized ox costs about $290 and should supply about 3,000 portions. Proper fuel, experts say, is as essential as clear weather. Oak is best, sprinkled periodically with bay leaves and pine needles.

The lack of enthusiasm about the Coronation rations, ox or no ox, was summed up by a News Chronicle editorial, titled ironically, "In Merrie England." The government, the editorial said, possibly was afraid of issuing more rations in case traditionally festive spirit ran amok.

Extras include a pound of sugar a person, quarter pound of "marge," increased glucose, full-cream powdered milk, toffee, potato flakes and popcorn.

There'll be extra allotments of other rationed foods, such as cheese, for street or children's parties celebrating the crowning. The food ministry also made reference to ham, tinned meats and sausages as non-rationed foods good for parties. Eggs will be off ration by then and candy has just been freed from ration controls.

For the general public—an echo of the days when England's beer was stronger—there's Coronation beer abrewing. Three times as strong as the current variety, it costs more, too.

Pre-Coronation Fashion Show Has Hats of Many Shapes

By MURIEL NARRAWAY,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Hats like inverted soup plates, flying saucers and cartwheels lent a spectacular touch to the pre-Coronation fashion shows.

To go with slick little town suits and figure-hugging dresses, designers chose smooth straws in golden tan shades like wild honey, or primrose and mimosa yellows. These had shallow crowns and turndown brims that hid most of the hairline.

Norman Hartnell, the Queen's designer, featured a "flying saucer" in black smooth straw piped in black ribbon. This had a nine-inch front brim, turning upwards in wicked-looking points before reaching the back of the head.

Follow Dress Trends

Most of the big hats had little brim at back, thereby following such dress trends as the tango line—straight back and forward fullness. Hartnell, however, gave variation with such as a black felt crown brimmed all round with loops of natural straw some six inches from crown to point.

There were more big hats this year, but head-hugging styles still held prominence. The gusty British breezes that sometimes last throughout the summer will ensure popularity for the pancake toques of soft silks that match the neck trimmings of coat dresses and town suits. With their practical smartness this style is forecast as the hat of the year.

Big Variety

There were high-crowned narrow brimmed boaters, stove-pipe styles and tiny half-hats made completely of flowers. One designer featured a huge Tudor rose of pink organza, tipping over the forehead, worn with a grey silk suit.

Even the Queen's milliner, Aage Thaarup, kept Coronation themes subdued. The Tudor rose, thistle, daffodil and shamrock were used as trimmings. One model had a lion and unicorn in straw, chained together across the front crown.

The comet touch is possible for those who want a streamlined silhouette like the airliner whose name it bears. This means brimless pillboxes over smooth hair-styles will stay in place on the windiest airfield. The flat-crowned hat tapers in to a wide ribbon and curves out to fold under, suggesting a tiny double brim.

Fashion Flashes

SPAIN contributes its quota of influence to new Spring clothes. Very much in the Spanish vein is a slim, navy wool suit, the skirt trimmed up both sides with tassels. The same trimming is found all over the bolero jacket, which is worn over a tucked white organdie blouse. A wide, tucked cummerbund of garnet red silk repp completes the colorful suit.

THE MODE AND MOOD for separates continues unabated, especially for party wear. Worn with a halter of dull black jersey is a full skirt of pinkish grey heavy satin, quilted all over with hand-made puckers tacked down with pearl beads.

A NEWCOMER to suit jackets is the barrel type jacket with a cardigan neckline. Nicely done, this fashion, in a novelty weave woollen in pale taupe. The jacket is edged down the front with brown silk braid, which also is used for the curved, slit pockets. A brown silk taffeta bow fills in the high neckline, and is part of the accompanying blouse.

ALWAYS EFFECTIVE is the golden evening gown, and a beauty is found in a slender, Grecian-inspired sheath of supple, gold metallic brocade accordion pleated from neckline to hem, with a wide, tailored belt of gold kidskin.

YOU'LL BE DELIGHTED when you see the new fabric gloves for Spring. White double woven cotton is used for a handsome glove, the long gauntlet outlined down the side and hem with pale pink ribbon and rows of slightly deeper pink and pale blue French knots.

SELECTED with the idea of being worn after the wedding as a gala evening headdress, is a diadem crown of tiny pearl beads wired to give an airy branch and leaf effect.

BUSY AIRLINE

STOCKHOLM (CP)—The Scandinavian Airlines System carried about 600,000 passengers in 1952, compared with 506,000 the previous year. Current reports show the three-nation air corporation now has 6,800 on the payroll.

DIES YEAR LATER

HAMILTON (CP)—Harry Lee, 34, wounded during a family argument a year ago, died Sunday. He had been paralyzed from the chest down since the shooting. He was shot during an argument with his brother, King. The brother later was acquitted on a charge of shooting with intent to maim.

EYE SPECIALIST DIES

MONTREAL (CP)—Dr. John Alexander MacMillan, 67, one of Canada's leading eye specialists, died Friday at his home here. Born and educated in Finch, Ont., he was chairman of the medical board of Royal Victoria Hospital here from 1945 to 1948 and for some years, professor and chairman of the department of ophthalmology at McGill University.

Three passages in the Bible referring to prayer were read by Miss Johns, Mrs. Robinson and Mrs. Hogle, followed by a reading, "Prayer Dispels Darkness From the Soul and Fills it With Light".

Two lovely solos by Mrs. Tinkess with Mrs. G. Wright at the piano, were greatly appreciated.

After the meeting, the ladies enjoyed a Valentine afternoon tea served by the social convener, Mrs. P. Kerr and her committee.

Mrs. Davidson reminded everyone of the World's Day of Prayer to be held in Tabernacle Church on February 20, and hoped for a good attendance.

JOHNSTOWN W.A.

The Johnstown Women's Association met on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. C. E. Dickie, Middleton Park, a former neighborhood member, whose husband has been posted to Ottawa.

The president, Mrs. Ernest Bush, opened the meeting. The Scripture, Acts 12:5-17, was read by Mrs. C. J. Brunt, Mrs. Roy Harry gave the Lesson Thoughts, "Living Without God". A fine explanation of The Lord's Prayer, was given by Mrs. Ernest Bush.

In the business session, it was arranged to have a quilting at Mrs. Roy Harry's on Thursday, when the W.A. would also be guests for dinner. It was agreed that $25 be donated to the Overseas Relief Fund and that a donation be given to the Blind Campaign.

A reading was given by Mrs. Dickie followed by a trio by Mesdames Curtis, Smith and Meyers. Several readings were given by Mrs. Maurice Mallory, Mrs. G. McLean and Mrs. Moore.

Mrs. Leach said, "In every age and in every land, Christians have come to the Lord's table and had there entered into communion with Christ and into fellowship with one another". She concluded with a Bible passage. Scripture readings Mark 14: 12-26 and John 13:1-17 were given by Mrs. Harry Rutter and Mrs. R. W. T. Middleton. The meeting was closed by Mrs. Leach, after which refreshments were served by the hostess and a social time was enjoyed.

It is believed that Wilson tried to jump clear and was caught beneath the rolling truck.

Letters from Mexico

By Arnold Meyers

Hotel Arronte, Puebla,
Mexico, Dec. 31, 1952

Dear Mother and Dad:

The first two days here were uncomfortably cold, my overcoat and scarf being necessary all the time. Today, however, is much warmer. There is usually a scattering of cumulus clouds over Puebla making photography tricky. Still I obtained some interesting things, I know.

Yesterday afternoon I went through the Puebla cathedral, second largest in Mexico. It is a sight which frankly, I could not possibly describe in words. You have to see it to believe. There is gold all over the place, of course, and many huge paintings which measure at least 14 feet in height; monstrous things in gold frames.

Gigantic Fresco

The ceiling is of an immense height, and arched, decorated in gold. There is the round dome, as in most Mexican cathedrals and its ceiling is decorated with a gigantic fresco (painting) like a mural, which is composed in a circle.

In one place there is a blood-smeared reclinging figure of the Christ in a glass case. Then there are huge, gold candlesticks which are something like eight feet tall. Groups of Americans are being taken through every so often. There were booklets on the church, sold in the church, one of which I bought.

This afternoon I also saw through the Hidden Convent of Santa Monica. This is the most peculiar and mysterious place that I have ever been through. In 1864 the Juarez government enacted the famous reform laws by which all church property became the property of the state and all convents and monastries were closed. Many priests fled into the country as well as nuns.

Defies Order

But the Convert of Santa Monica defied the order of Juarez and secretly kept going for more than 70 years, despite the fact that a police station was located right across the street.

The nuns were 24 in number and the convent part of the building adjoined the cathedral which was on the corner.

Living in the foremost part of the convent were four families who sympathized with the nuns and continued to bring them food throughout all this time. In one of their rooms was a bookcase—an innocent looking bookcase. It had a little affair at either end to hold a pot of flowers. Behind the flower-pot was a little lever which, when worked, opened a secret door in the wall.

Once through this opening, we were in another room which contained a large statue of Christ. Previously, before discovery of the nuns, this figure hid behind it another door. In a corner of the room was a trap door in the floor, which, on opening, disclosed a spiral staircase. "I'll take you down this after a little," said my guide. The doorway led into a hallway, and from the window at the end of it, one looked down into the inner courtyard or 'patio.'

Torture Instruments

We passed into various 'cells' or the nuns' own rooms where they made many things as portraits of Christ in needle work; painting; figurines and other articles. On display in one of these rooms were a number of instruments with which the nuns used to torture themselves in the doing of penance.

From here we passed into their sacristry where they worshipped. Here, on the wall hung the crown of thorns which the nuns wore next their shaven heads. There were also ropues of lashes with which they would whip themselves.

From this hall we went along a corridor and descended the dark, dismal, circular staircase to the catacombs where they buried their dead, for it was impossible to bury them outside. In this room the corpse was placed in a cell in the wall and sealed up for seven years, after which time it was reopened and the skulls kept in one box and the remainder of the bones dropped into a deep 'well', in one corner of the room. This in order to make room for more burials. My guide showed me the box of skulls. In it one could see eight or ten skulls.

Prayer Chamber

After leaving this rather macabre place, we proceeded into a little room all done in black and very dark. This is the secret place where the nuns came to pray. This was always done by candlelight.

Beneath the crucifix in the midst of black drapery sat a skull. This was for the purpose of meditation upon "Death." Then there was, of course, their kitchen and then out into the courtyard. Across the yard was a miniature replica of the shrine at Guadalupe Hidalgo which the nuns made so that they might be able to make the pilgrimage, at least in spirit. They overlooked nothing.

In one room adjoining the cathedral part, peep-holes were made in the wall which looked like part of the decoration of the church, so that the sisters might take part in the service, at least in spirit. What a remarkable place— real thriller.

Arnold.

Workshop Play Featured By Theatre Guild

The presentation of a workshop play, and the casting for another radio play in the series to start this week over CJBQ, formed an interesting program at a recent regular meeting of the Belleville Theatre Guild.

The workshop play, entitled "Fresh, Variable Winds," is one of a series written primarily for presentation and discussion at meetings of home and school associations and is already scheduled for the February meeting of the Queen Victoria Home and School Club.

Under the direction of Doris Bradford, an efficient cast made local Guild history by including child actors for the first time. Gordon Thompson played the part of a busy father, desperately worried by the behavior of his young son, portrayed by David Punchard. May Goldie took the part of Aunt May, mother of four boys and a possessor of a wealth of sound experience, while Elsie Punchard and Julia Bradford played the mother and daughter from across the street.

Winsome Lewis assisted the director and Clem Rice was in charge of make-up. At the conclusion of the play, Linton Read, head of the Belleville Collegiate English department, commented helpfully on the production in such a way that both cast and audience profited by his remarks.

Before the meeting adjourned, Joan Tanner described briefly the plot and characters of the radio play "The Ghost of Benjamin Sweet" and called for volunteers to try out for parts. She announced that the first rehearsal, appropriately enough for so spooky a production, would be held on Friday, February 13th. A successful casting session followed, with plenty of candidates for each role.

Massassaga W. A. Hears Talk on Birds, Flowers of Bermuda

The February meeting of the Massassaga W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. Hobert Adams. The meeting was opened in the usual manner.

Mrs. H. Jose gave the treasurer's report. Roll call was answered by 25 members and one visitor present.

Letters of thanks were read from Jack Finden and R. Leal of Korea, for Christmas gifts and also from Mrs. A. Valleau for flowers and cards received while ill.

General business was disposed of. Collection was taken and five members paid dues.

Mrs. Clarence Thompson had charge of the devotional period. Mrs. J. Thompson read the Scripture lesson from Acts 12: 5-17. Rev H. H. Hillis closed this part of the meeting.

Guest Speaker

The program was opened with Mrs. Davidson introducing the guest speaker, Miss F. Fitzgerald of the O.S.D., Belleville, who spoke on her two months spent in Bermuda last summer, helping to start a boys' camp. She explained quite fully Bermuda, the people, flowers, birds and fauna.

Mrs. Ross expressed the appreciation of all present to her for her inspiring talk.

Mrs. Morley Davidson favored with a solo "Teach Me to Pray".

Refreshments were served by Mrs. C. Thompson's group.

The March meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. George Flower. The date is changed from Wednesday to Thursday, with Mrs. N. Salisbury's group in charge.

Treasures From Private Homes To be Exhibited

Treasures gracing the homes of private Toronto citizens, of which some are worthy of a museum's collection, will be on display at the Art Gallery of Toronto in the 4th annual exhibition of "Collectors' Pieces", sponsored by the Women's Committee. The exhibition opens on February 12th and for three weeks, until March 8th, Art Gallery visitors will have an opportunity to view the rare and valuable pieces owned by local collectors.

One of the highlights of the exhibition, especially with 1953 being the year of the coronation is a Royal Worcester porcelain figurine of "Elizabeth Trooping the Colours". This splendid equestrienne piece was created to commemorate that famous day in June of 1951, when the Queen, then Princess Elizabeth, substituted for her ailing father at this colorful ceremony. Only 100 of these statuettes were cast before the mold was broken. The first was presented to the Queen Mother and the second to the Queen herself. The one which will be on display is No. 53 and is believed to be the only one in Canada.

Medical Display

This year's exhibition will hold a special interest for all doctors, as a collection of ancient medical instruments will be on display. One of the most interesting and finest of these is a "bleeding bowl" dated 1688. It holds exactly 3 ounces, making it possible for an ancient apothecary to measure the exact amount of blood he had taken from his unfortunate patient. Other items include invalid and infant feeding bottles and a "tongue scraper".

Many other intriguing pieces will be on display, including a fascinating collection of children's jewellery, some of which is Egyptian and dates from 1,000 B.C. Much of this collection consists of beautifully carved scarabs and charms which it was hoped would protect the children from evil spirits. There will also be a group of quaint little porcelain cottages which were used in the 18th and 19th centuries as night lights and pastille burners, perfuming the poorly ventilated houses of those times with sweet smelling fragrances.

Numerous other items of interest will complete the exhibition, and all of these will be on display this year for the first time.

LADIES' GUILD

DESERONTO — The Ladies' Guild of St. Mark's Anglican Church held its regular monthly meeting in the Sunday School room, with 12 members present.

The president, Mrs. E. Harvey, opened the meeting.

Thank-you cards and letters were read from ladies who had received candy and flowers. Bills were presented and moved paid. A plant is to be sent to Mrs. T. Naylor who is a patient in Kingston General Hospital.

A sale of home cooking was planned for the afternoon of February 14th in Mr. Burkett's vacant store and also a rummage sale to be held at a later date. It was unanimously decided that the name Ladies' Guild be retained as originally organized.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. Fields.

After the meeting was closed, refreshments were served by the following committee, Mrs. Barker, Mrs. W. Crabbe and Mrs. Charles Knight.

BEETLE MENACE

BISHOPSTONE, England (CP)—The 400 inhabitants of this Sussex village have started a fund to repair their 1,000-year-old church. "Death-watch beetles" have been discovered in the roof timbers.

'How to Know God' Theme at Bridge St. W.M.S. Meeting

Mrs. C. Hyde, the newly-installed president of the Woman's Missionary Society of Bridge St. United Church, officiated at the Thursday regular meeting.

Members and visitors were warmly welcomed, the reports read and approved and important future meetings were stressed. The Presbyterial meets in Holloway St. Church, March 25th.

The day of prayer is February 20th. in Tabernacle United Church.

Mrs. S. Cronk's and Mrs. A. May's group was in charge of the program. The devotional was taken by Mrs. G. Campbell, who read a passage of Scripture from 11th. chapter of St. Luke's Gospel on "The Gift of the Holy Spirit," the greatest of all promises. A reference to the hymn "I Need Thee Every Hour," which was sung, made a thoughtful introduction to this part of the service.

Mrs. Myrtle Houston sang a fitting solo, "Come Jesus Redeemer, Abide Thou With Me."

Guest Speaker

Mrs. Arthur May introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. E. Hickey, as a personal friend and a woman of deep religious experience. The speaker had as subject of her address, "How to Establish Ourselves With God and Live With Him." "We must discover how to know His presence and to realize that God has found us." She gave examples of conversion through nature and poetry and made reference to the singer, Marion Anderson.

In reading the 139th. Psalm, she explained that establishing one's self with God that problems have solutions. Mrs. Hickey left with each one a deep realization of God's presence and power.

Mrs. Duncan McTavish offered to Mrs. Hickey the thanks of the society for her helpful and thought-provoking address.

A social half hour was spent as the group in charge served tea.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

This matter should be discussed with your pastor

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm engaged to a man who has been divorced. There were no children by this marriage.

He would like to have a large church wedding. Do you think this would be wrong?—J. B.

Dear J.B.: Since I think most etiquette authorities agree that the status of the bride determines the type of wedding, and since in your case it is your first marriage, it would be perfectly proper for you to have a large wedding if you wish.

However, you must realize that sometimes churches disapprove church ceremonies in a case where either person has been divorced, so before making any plans you had better consult the pastor of the church in which you would like to be married and talk the whole thing over with him.

Fourteen isn't too young to have a little common sense

Dear Miss Fairfax:

At 14, I am infatuated with an 18-year-old boy who lives in another state. Whenever I go out with other boys here at home, I begin thinking of him, and so I have a miserable time. I don't like to go any place, do anything or listen to any song that reminds me of him, and it is getting so that I dread going out on a date because I know how it will make me feel, and I don't consider it fair to my date, either.

When I am with this boy alone he is very sweet to me, but when we are in a crowd of people he either ignores me or insults me. If I could live near him all the time, I know it would be easy to solve my problem, but I see him very rarely, and in between the times I see him, I can't forget the good times we used to have together. If only there was some way to forget I ever met him, so that I could have a good time the way a girl my age should!—L. I. P.

Dear L.I.P.: While I fully understand that a teen-ager's feelings about a boy are very real at the time, and that it is perfectly natural for her to be disturbed when things don't go as she would like to have them, at the same time I think it is fair enough to expect girls and boys to use a little common sense and not carry things to foolish extremes. And that is just what you are doing in this case—carrying something to a foolish extreme.

Whether you realize it or not, you are getting a big kick out of working yourself up into a fine emotional state about this boy, and out of trying to make yourself believe that here is the romance of a lifetime. You'd rather stay home and devote an evening to daydreams that are going to get you exactly nowhere, than go out on dates with boy friends much more appropriate for you than this 18-year-old, who actually cares so little about you that he ignores and insults you in front of people. Does this make any sense at all, when you really think about it? You know it does not.

Fourteen isn't very old, I admit, but I think it is plenty old enough for you to start learning how to keep things in their proper perspective. This means that you will stop giving unreal importance to a friendship you do not even have, and start being a natural, normal girl who has fun with all her friends, and so is liked by everybody besides having a wonderful time herself.

Women's Activities

TRINITY UNITED W.M.S.

Madoc — Trinity United Women's Missionary Society held its February meeting at the home of Mrs. S. Ashley on Wednesday afternoon with an attendance of 29. The president, Mrs. Delbert Carmen, was in charge and opened by reading a poem, "Faith."

The business period included minutes, roll call and treasurer's report. A shower of ditty bags and gifts of jewellery, fancy ribbon were received from the members and associate helpers, which later on will be forwarded to Miss Howse, missionary in Angola.

Mrs. Albert Empey reported on Stewardship and concluded her talk with a prayer for Miss Edwards, of Newfoundland.

Mrs. Fred Fleming reported on Community Friendship. Miss Holmes, supply secretary, brought in several suggestions and plans for work during the year, announcements to be made at the March meeting.

Mrs. L. Bennett had charge of the worship service. The theme for the year, "Means of Grace," and for the February meeting, "The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper" was the theme. An introductory message was read by Mrs. Bennett with a follow-up of the record of the Lord's Supper as found in the 14th. chapter of Mark and read by Mrs. E. Moore. Mrs. Joe Rollins read from the 13th. chapter of St. John's Gospel. Hymns in keeping with the subject were read.

Program

Mrs. Earl Burnside was in charge of the program; Mrs. Empey read a couple of circulatory letters received from Miss Howse in Angola, telling of her work at the different mission centres, and how the ditty bags and gifts were distributed. Mrs. Burnside then gave a talk on "African Churches"; she was assisted by Mrs. Nayler, who gave a reading on "Travelling Schools" and Mrs. Adams, who gave a summup of the chapter in general. Mrs. Bennett took the closing exercises with prayers for the leaders and missionary work in Angola and for the people of Britain, Holland and all the countries that have been struck with the floods and destruction so recently. A pleasant social hour followed.

UNITED CHURCH W.A.

Deseronto — The February meeting of the United Church Women's Association, of Deseronto, was held at the home of the president, Mrs. J. A. Dawson, with 13 members and two visitors present. The topic for the meeting was "Prayer."

Mrs. Charles Cole read the Scripture lesson. Silent payers were offered for sick members and shut-ins.

In absence of the secretary, Mrs. McKee, the minutes were read by Mrs. Don Dawson, also report on Flower Fund and cards sent. Mrs. P. Stover gave the treasurer's report showing results from pancake supper, which was most gratifying, despite the small crowd.

A pleasing duet by Mrs. Wm. Crothers and Mrs. Wm. Wood was enjoyed. Mrs. H. Alysworth and Mrs. J. A. Dawson each gave a reading.

A donation of $10 was voted by the society for the Blind Building drive.

The hostess and helpers served refreshments.

GIVEN 15 MONTHS

BRAMPTON (CP) — William Fleming, 31, of Fergus, was sentenced Friday to 15 months on charges arising from the June 27 traffic deaths of two teen-agers from Streetsville.

Fleming was given a year in reformatory for dangerous driving and an additional three months for leaving the scene of the accident. His driver's licence was suspended for two years.

William Green, 14, and Anne Vanderheul, 15, were killed while walking home from a movie at Port Credit. Their bodies were found later on the roadside. Fleming gave himself up to police the next day.

Skirt Band Too Tight

By Mary Moore

It's a state of mind—this reducing business.

The question is do you care whether your skirt band is loose, or are you shackled by your nibbling habits?

Besides the feeling of superior health and the lift to your spirits I think it gives a pleasant type of superiority complex to take off ten pounds or so.

If you add up the positive factors they make a staggering total: (1) Better health; (2) Better spirits; (3) Better figure; (4) Admiration of loved ones and friends; (5) Self-respect; (6) and the super-plus reward of new clothes.

Would you like to join the happy throng of reducers? What reducing readers seem to find of most practical help to them are reducing menus. I'll give you some variations to take all of the monotony out of your routine.

Do waist-stretching and bending exercises too, for the combination of calorie-counted meals and exercise accomplishes desired results faster.

Please consult your doctor before doing any of these things strenuously.

BREAKFASTS

(1) One-half grapefruit (no sugar) (50 cal.); 1 slice 100 per cent whole wheat toast (75); 1-2 pat butter (38); 1 boiled or poached egg (80); clear coffee (0). (3) 1 large tangerine (44); 3-4 cup hot whole wheat cereal, plus 1 tbsp. wheat germ, 2 teaspoons brown sugar, 1-2 cup whole milk (205); clear coffee (0).

LUNCHES

(1) Consomme 1-2 can diluted (55); crisp bacon, tomato and lettuce sandwich on unbuttered whole wheat bread, 2 slices, (240); banana, 1 small ripe (75); 8 oz. skim milk, (84). (2) 1 slice whole wheat bread buttered (125); 1-in. cube cheddar cheese (80); 1-4 head lettuce (12); 2-oz. cottage cheese, (70); 2 slices pineapple, no juice, (88); 8 oz. buttermilk (85). NOTES:

Unsweetened but spiced applesauce is delicious. If you want to sweeten it do so with sucaryl.

When you know you are weakening and are tempted to eat a cookie at four o'clock in the afternoon pour yourself an 8-oz. glass tomato juice and sip it with an unbuttered rye wafer, the two having only 100 calories.

You will see that these recommendations are high in protein foods—eggs, cheese, meat, milk. That is for a reason. You must eat plenty of protein to keep your basic nutrition stable.

I am making extra copies of this routine. If you want it write to me but please remember to enclose stamped envelope.

GOOD MANNERS

Writing a note to minister to thank him for funeral service

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would like very much to write a note of thanks—is it customary to do so?—to our minister, who spoke so beautifully at the funeral of a close friend of mine. I'm at a loss to know just how to word such a letter. Also, what is the proper salutation to a minister? And how should the envelope be addressed?—M. B.

To write a note of appreciation to a minister for a funeral service he has conducted may not be 'customary,' but it really should be, and indeed it is proper to make this fine gesture. Please do follow your splendid impulse, and perhaps write something like this:

Dear Mr. Worthyman,

May I tell you, please, my deep appreciation of your service at the funeral of my dear and long-time friend, Mrs. John Hall? I was deeply touched, not only by the beautiful way you read the service, but also by your fine words of tribute to my friend. Thank you for the comfort you gave, and the abiding inspiration.

Sincerely yours,
Margaret Brownell
(Mrs. John Brownell)

Address the envelope to: The Reverend Peter Worthyman. If your minister has a scholastic degree (D.D., for example) the salutation is: My dear Dr Worthman, and address the envelope to: The Reverend Dr. Peter Worthyman, or The Reverend Peter Worthyman, D.D.

How to address fiancee's aunts and uncles

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When my fiance introduces me to his aunts and uncles, he says, for example, "This is my Aunt Mary," or "This is my Uncle Tom". How am I then supposed to address them, when I know them only by that name?

2. My fiance's aunt, one whom I have never met, recently sent me a nice little gift. When I write her my thank-you note, what is the proper salutation for this note?—M. R.

1. After you are married, it would be taken for granted that you would call your husband's aunts and uncles and cousins what he does. . . "Aunt Mary", "Uncle Tom", "Cousin Margaret" or "Peggy" But before you are married, you should wait for the suggestion to come from them before you change from calling them by the formal "Mrs. Allen" and "Mr. Allen" to the informal "Aunt" and "Uncle".

2. Since you have not even met your fiance's aunt, I suggest that you address your thank-you note to "Dear Mrs. Hilliard".

Silver goblets with china plates

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

As our wedding anniversary present, my husband and I have just been given eight silver goblets, beautiful heirlooms in his family. Of course we haven't silver plates, but we have some very lovely china plates. Is it proper to use the silver goblets with china plates?—Marie.

Yes. . . indeed yes! And I hope you have great joy in using these handsome heirlooms.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Good Looks in the Making

Beauty is a sort of passport, and lucky is the young lady who was born with it. Let us hope that she makes every possible effort to retain these blessings, and has a health code and sticks to it, gets exercise out of doors and minds her eating habits.

The Plain Janes aren't so bad off; not in these days, when so many different elements contribute toward attractive appearance. A woman of intelligence and good taste can get better looking every day until she moves into life's autumn.

Vanity Does Not Inspire Intellectual Advancement.

One cannot remodel one's nose, change the color of one's eyes or make a receding chin push itself forward, but one can cultivate attributes of loveliness that may be even more compelling than physical perfection—charms that bring the admiration and affection of other human creatures.

A sweet whispered word, the pressure of a hand, can mean more than a satisfying reflection in the mirror. Though, of course, a pleasing reflection does count for a lot.

We are sick and tired of the word glamor. The dictionary says that glamor is "a fictitious glory of beauty; a deceptive or alluring charm." Well, glamor girls are all around us; a dime a dozen. There are millions of cute little gals, and some of them have dead-pan faces because there is not much inside their heads. Personally, we prefer types that are not so fabulously handsome, but have lights turned on in their eyes and in their smiles. Very beautiful women sometimes are vain, and vanity does not inspire intellectual advancement.

It is a girl's duty to see that she has a gardenia complexion, beautifully arranged hair, a svelte shape, and graceful movements. That is just putting one's house in order. Also, one should cultivate fine qualities of mind and spirit. If a girl's head is full of nothing, she isn't going to travel very far along the road of popularity and personal happiness.

The ingredients of charm include affability, tact, delightful manners, poise, a sense of humor, tolerance. One cannot afford to indulge in unpleasant emotions — envy, anger, jealousy — because they have a deplorable effect upon health as well as appearance.

CANADA'S FAVOURITE!

THE GREEKS HAVE A WORD FOR IT

. . . WE MEAN the magic word that tells a mule to get going. It probably worked better than usual, recently, when Greek mule-drivers had to transport into the isolated interior, roofing materials needed for the construction of refugee shelters. The government purchased 2,000 tons of aluminum for the purpose — and incidentally licked the transportation problem.

Another nice thing about aluminum's lightness is that a given poundage goes two to three times as far as with other metals. It often means that aluminum, with all its advantages, actually costs less, too. Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd. (Alcan).

PICTON

Growers, Operators Satisfied With Canning Prices Set

Picton—Prince Edward County canning crop growers and canning factory operators today expressed satisfaction with prices set for canning factory produce for 1953. These were arrived at Saturday in Toronto following a series of meetings between the Ontario Vegetable Growers' Association and the Canned Foods Association.

With a substantial carryover, the price of tomatoes took an expected drop the new price being $2.00 per ton lower to $38 for first grade, $28 for seconds and a basic of $33.00.

Last year's tomato pack was 2,971,000 cases, nearly double the 1951 pack, it was reported. The viewpoint is also expressed that canners, many with large carryovers, did not desire to see a drastic price cut at this time.

Price of corn, of which there is also a surplus, dropped $1.00 per ton to $25.00.

Peas held steady at $98.50 per ton and it is anticipated the acreage will be maintained. Of the 1952 pack, estimated at 3,340,000 cases stocks on hand at the beginning of the year totalled 2,389,000 cases, it was estimated. With an estimated consumption of 325,000 cases per month it is expected that the carryover in this product will be below the 1952 figure.

Where the canner uses his equipment to harvest the growers' peas, the canner will receive one dollar more per ton.

Some canners feel that the acreage of tomatoes will be reduced this year. They point out that the canned product has reached a high price, resulting in slower sale. There is little likelihood that price of canned goods on the shelves will drop at least until the 1953 pack is offered, and even then the increased operating costs may keep the product at present retail prices.

J. E. Baxter, Bloomfield, and D. O. Reynolds, R. 8 Picton, were members of the negotiating committee, representing canners and growers respectively.

Anyone interested in Red Cross work is urgently invited to attend.

FRANKFORD

Frankford—Mr. and Mrs. Gerold Burtch, of Bloomfield, called on friends in Frankford last week.

Plans were discussed for the coming Sidney and Trenton Council of Christian Education Convention to be held in King Street United Church in Trenton this spring, at a meeting at the home of the president, Mrs. Warren Harlow, near Stirling, Friday evening.

A choir rehearsal was held in Frankford United Church Friday night with Batawa and Frankford choirs combining. For the week of evangelistic services to be held beginning February 15, the combined choirs of Batawa, Frankford, Stockdale and Zion will be taking an active part. All members of these four choirs are asked to be at the Frankford Church on Friday night for a final rehearsal.

TRIPLETS BORN

Replies to Diefenbaker

The prime minister gave the government statement in reply to a question by John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) who precipitated a debate on the subject by submitting an amendment to the government's motion to go into a study of the estimates.

His motion "regrets" that no provision is made in the estimates for the South Saskatchewan project. To this the CCF added a subamendment that the government's Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act engineers "recommended" the scheme.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner also entered the day-long debate. He said both amendments should be defeated because they are not in accordance with the facts. There was a vote of $500,000 in the estimates for 1953-54 for the South Saskatchewan project, But the government had not decided if the money should be spent.

He said the South Saskatchewan project had never been discussed by the cabinet.

Never Recommended

As for the CCF motion, PFRA engineers had never recommended the project. PFRA engineers didn't make recommendations, but only reports. It was the minister who made the recommendations.

Mr. Gardiner said South Saskatchewan is one of the special major projects which goes beyond the scope of PFRA, used for water conservation in the West since the 1930s. The agriculture minister suggested that when western rehabilitation is "fully planned and finally under way" federal farm rehabilitation work might be extended across Canada.

act based on the PFRA legis-

It could be in the form of an lation to take care of soil surveys and other activities to improve lands.

The minister, long an advocate of the South Saskatchewan project, said:

"I want it distinctly understood that there is not any trouble between myself and any other members of the government."

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, urged the government to begin the South Saskatchewan project. There was every evidence it could make the "heartland of Saskatchewan" a productive area. The people of that province were "disappointed and disheartened about the apparent acceptance of negative findings."

Terms Costs Inflated

The opposition leader termed the commission's cost estimates as "inflated." They were about double the estimates of PFRA engineers.

He and other members of the opposition, including Mr. Diefenbaker and Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) called for a "free vote" on the opposition amendments. Under such a vote members of all parties could vote as they felt without regard to party considerations.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the government had been promising the project for years. Now the government said, after a year-long commission study, that still more investigation was needed.

Mr. Diefenbaker, after a series of exchanges with Mr. Gardiner, said the agriculture minister is "as hard to pin down to an answer as picking up mercury with a fork."

GEN. VAN FLEET

Q — What was the most important or perhaps most typical decision you ever made in Korea?

A — Two decisions: (A) The April-May offensive; (B) took chance after that offensive to cut off replacements to RoK army to set up RoK Army training program.

Million Men

Q — What do you consider to be the ultimate realistic strength of the RoK Army?

A — The answer of 20 divisions or 1,000,000 men has been given in the past.

Q — What convinced you that the RoK Army could be made into a real fighting force?

A — The lack of training as I found it in the RoK army indicated that any army with little training could not be a real fighting force. The qualities of anti-Communist patriotism and loyalty and their early response to a sound training program — proved in battle — convinced me they could be made into a real fighting force.

Q — On leaving Korea, what is your greatest regret?

A — Leaving Korea, the officers and men of the 8th army, and the RoK Army and people.

Q — Under ideal conditions, what would be your own solution to the military problem in Korea?

A — No comment.

Get Another Chance

COLUMBUS, O., (CP) — Housewives who lost out on an opportunity to buy round, sirloin and T-bone steaks for 39 cents a pound Sunday will get another chance Tuesday.

The Metz supermarket sold 7,000 pounds of New Zealand beef for that price Sunday. It is expecting another shipment of 15 sides tomorrow.

Sunday's sales provided a near-bedlam. Police were called to control the crowd.

PLAY IN TRAIN'S PATH

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — A New York Central electric train ground to an unscheduled halt Friday near here. Reason: two four-year-old boys sitting between the rails, playing. The engineer stopped his train 10 feet from them. They looked up curiously and went on playing. A conductor took them aboard and deposited them with police at the next station.

British Ship Nearly Finished Salvaging Cargo

SYDNEY, Australia (CP)—A 600-ton British salvage ship has nearly finished salvaging a £250,000 cargo in deep waters off the Australian coast.

A year ago the specially-fitted ship Foremost 17 came to Australia to salvage nearly 2,000 tons of lead, zinc and copper ingots in the sunken freighter Cumberland. The vessel was lying in 300 feet of water off Green Cape, near the New South Wales-Victoria border.

The Cumberland sank in 1917 after hitting a German mine. A salvage expedition in 1938 failed to find her but the Foremost 17, using asdic, found the wreck at the first attempt.

The Foremost 17, with 31 trained salvage men aboard, laid six permanent buoys in a circle 800 yards across with the wreck in the centre. The ship then was manoeuvred exactly above the Cumberland. This was necessary because the depth and exposed position made ordinary diving methods impossible.

Ticklish Work

The divers, working from a diving bell and by telephone, supervised the laying of explosive charges and later the actual salvaging. This is done by a 3½ ton "grab" operating from a derrick. When the diver in the bell sees a load in the jaws of the "grab" he signals for them to close and the salvaged material is hauled up and unloaded on deck.

Weather has been the main difficulty. Even a slight swell makes the "grab" swing about the wreck like a pendulum. And in such conditions the diving bell also could be smashed against the side of the wreck. In the first three months' operations there were 29 gales in the area.

When the weather is fine the crew of the salvage ship works day and night. When it roughens she makes for the little port of Eden and every few weeks comes to Sydney to refuel, restore and unload the ingots.

The crew get much more than ordinary seamen and claim they earn it. Last year, after a few months of successful operations, the company flew them all back to Britain for a holiday.

Haida, Crusader Will be Relieved Early in Spring

OTTAWA (CP)—Two Canadian tribal class destroyers, the Iroquois and the Huron, will leave Halifax April 29 to relieve the Haida and the Crusader in the Korean war theatre, naval headquarters announced Saturday.

The Iroquois and the Huron are veterans of the Second World War and have already completed one tour of operations in the Far East. The Haida will return to her home base at Halifax while the Crusader will return to Esquimalt, B.C.

The Huron spent five months in the Korean theatre in 1951, returning to Canada in September. The destroyer was paid off into reserve and taken in hand for refit and modernization of her weapons. Completed last fall, the ship was recommissioned Nov. 18.

The Iroquois returned to Halifax last month from her first tour and is being refitted.

Playmates Make Secret Pact As Chum Drowns

DETROIT (AP)—A pact by frightened playmates to keep secret the accidental death of a 10-year-old chum in a rubbish pit Saturday was dissolved Sunday when the victim's brother told his mother.

The victim's brother, Bruce, 13, told his mother, Mrs. Ernest Deneau, after he had made a pact with another playmate, Dale Worthington, 8, to say nothing in fear that they would be blamed. Bruce said the boys had been playing in a pit scooped out for the disposal of rubbish.

Suddenly a chunk of frozen dirt and sand slipped from the top of the excavation, struck David and knocked him into the foot-deep water.

His playmates tried to lift the frozen mass that pinned their chum but it was too heavy.

11 Natives Given Death Sentence

MASERU, Basutoland (Reuters) Nine African men and two women were sentenced to death today for killing a fellow tribesman and carving up his body in a weird ritual intended to improve the crops.

The killing was the latest and most gruesome of an increasing number through this British African colony. Medicine men inspire ritual murders for purposes of deposing rival chiefs, improving crops and increasing a tribe's influence.

Every inhabitant of Kubung village was invited to attend the ritual slaying of headman Pheello Smith's father-in-law. Smith, one of the 11 sentenced Africans, sought "medicine" from the flesh of the victim, Motetwa Memane, to help the crops.

Justice Favors Right of Appeal In Some Cases

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—The right to appeal committals for the kind of contempt of court committed usually by newspapers is favored by Chief Justice John C. McRuer.

In an address to the Canadian Managing Editors' Conference Saturday, he said there is no right to appeal against a summary judgment for criminal contempt in present Canadian law, and Superior Court judges' arbitrary power is exercised with great caution and only in the clearest cases.

"There have been innumerable instances of punishable contempts allowed to pass unnoticed," he said, "and good judges exercising arbitrary authority are likely to go to extremes in the exercise of caution when their judgment is not subject to review by a court of appeal."

Chief Justice McRuer said he thought that if a right of appeal exisited the law would be more strictly enforced to preserve the rights of parties before the court.

He confined his approval of a new appeal law to "criminal contempt not committed in the face of the court," which includes contempt by the publication of evidence or comments before the case is heard, publication of comment before the trial or after trial and before appeal time is up, or appeal is heard and criticism of the administration of justice.

Succession Duties On Estate Become More Tangled

HAMILTON (CP) — The problem of succession duties on the $1,500,000 Laughlin estate became more tangled today with the death of one of the five heirs.

John Laughlin Sr., died in his gas-filled Toronto home last month. Nine hours later, his son and sole heir, died from the effects of the gas and the estate went to four uncles and an aunt.

Fred Chantler, 82, an uncle of John Laughlin, Jr., was one of the heirs before his death in St. James Infirmary here.

Succession duties on both the Laughlin estates will have to be paid and Mr. Chandler's share now also is taxable.

Canadian Artist GetsN.Y. Contract

TORONTO (CP) Ray Dudley, 21-year-old Canadian pianist recently returned for a successful European tour, has been given a three-year contract with Columbia Artists of New York.

Dudley, born in Bowmanville, Ont., and winner of the $1,000 Eaton Award in 1952 and the fall international competition at Geneva, Switzerland, will be under the personal management of Arthur Judson, president of Columbia. The young pianist has made more than 150 concert appearances in the last two years and has appeared with the Toronto, Royal Conservatory, Kitchener and Waterloo symphony orchestras.

Dudley is the second Canadian artist to sign a Columbia contract. Lois Marshall, Toronto soprano, received one in January. He will return to Europe this spring for engagements in Paris and London.

Two Persons Die

DETROIT (CP)—Two persons died Sunday night when fire roared through the 33-room Manor Hotel in downtown Detroit. Some 50 guests, many dressed in night attire, groped their way through dense smoke to safety.

The victims were not identified. Hotel records and the guest register were destroyed.

It was believed the fire was caused by a short circuit. There was no estimate of damage. Much of the interior of the building was damaged.

Engineers Hope To Repair Dikes Before Next Tides

AMSTERDAM (AP)—Dutch government engineers believe they can complete temporary repairs to Holland's vast network of dikes in time for the next flood tides on Feb. 16.

But the longer task, winning back from the North sea the areas it has grabbed, will never end.

Permanent repairs to dikes shattered in the Jan. 31 hurricane will merge in a land reclamation program that never ceases in this sea-girt land. Much of Holland is built—quite literally—out of the ocean.

The primitive Frisian tribesmen began the job around 400 B.C. and work has gone on ever since.

One-fifth of modern Holland's 12,850 square miles of land lies below sea level. More than a half of the country lies below the storm level. The Dutch are continually seizing more land from the sea. And from time to time the jealous waters take their revenge, biting deep into Holland, as happened last week, with a loss thus far of 1,372 lives.

Living in such cruel intimacy with the floods, the descendants of the Frisians have gradually acquired skill in controlling water by dike-building and drainage. They had to become hydraulic engineers in order to survive at all.

The Dutch in 1270 dammed the river Meuse in two spots near its mouth, creating a 30-mile-long stretch of reclaimed land. It was a staggering engineering achievement. But it was foolhardy.

The dikes held for 150 years. Then without warning in 1421 the river Meuse punched a hole in the main dike and sent a wall of water over 65 villages, drowning 100,000 people in a single night.

CONFIDENCE GAME

BRANTFORD (CP) — Joseph Ewasiuk of Toronto was sentenced Friday to two years for defrauding a Brantford man of $741 in a card game. He pleaded guilty. Evidence was the victim, a recent German immigrant, left the money under a bed in a hotel room while accompanying Ewasiuk and another man to a house for a savings bond. The Brantford man's money was gone when he returned for it.

Program Aimed At Hungarians Without Children

BUDAPEST (AP)—The government Sunday outlined a broad program aimed at encouraging Hungarians to have more children.

To help pay the expenses, bachelors, spinsters and childless married couples were directed to pay a special tax—four per cent of their income.

A decree outlining the Communist government's extensive program, called "protection of mothers and children," declared that in view of the considerable financial burden this program places on the state "it is reasonable that those without children, the bachelors and the spinsters should contribute."

The new tax must be paid by bachelors between 20 and 50 and spinsters between 20 and 45, as well as by childless couples. Members of the army and the state security office, disabled veterans and university students between 20 and 24 are exempt.

NEW BOSS!

They changed the lead-horse down Kingston way—and apparently the switch paid off. According to a story out of Kingston this morning there was trouble in the Goodyears' camp after three defeats in a row, one a crushing 17-5 setback by Orillia, and the top-brass called for a shake-up. Result was that generalissimo Joe Watts was removed from command and Johnny Carr-Harris took over the administration and coaching pips.

Says the story: "The appointment of Carr-Harris means that no nonsense will be tolerated in future. Carr-Harris has been given a free hand and heads will fall if his orders are not obeyed to the letter ...."

Whatever Carr-Harris told the Goodies prior to last night's game here, evidently had the desired effect. Whether it is a flash-in-the-pan awaits to be seen, but suffice it to say the Goodyears came up with the best performance staged on Belleville ice this season. They skated miles, checked both ways like fiends and as though Lady Somebody or other had a sympathetic twinge they were on the right side of a few "breaks."

True, they defeated the Glens 8-4 and deserved to win on the night's play, but it should go on record, and not filed under the word "alibi" that four of their eight goals rated assists from Glen players. Two caromed in off a Moira man's body, one was accidentally pushed in by Parisi and Jackie Wardhaugh miscued when he fired the puck in his own net when trying to clear.

But there is no complaint. That is hockey, and it can happen to any team.

The Glens have four games left to play while Kingston has three. The Men o' McNevin are back in Kingston tomorrow night, and take on Stouffville, a toughie, here Saturday night. They go to Peterborough next Monday evening and the following Saturday take on Orillia here in the last scheduled game. Kingston tangles with Belleville and Peterborough twice—and that's it.

PETES' LINKS HERE TONIGHT

The junior Black Hawks extended their league-lead with four points at the expense of Cobourg last night, defeating the lakeshore kids by a 7-4 score. They entertain the Peterborough Triple Links here tonight in their last scheduled game of the season. The Hawks are "in" as far as first place is concerned, but there can be a battle on down the line. The Hawks have garnered 48 points up to last night with one game to play. Kingston Vics are in second place with 35 points with two to play; Lindsay is third with 30 and the Petes' Links fourth with 28. It could be a battle for third and fourth place between the Links and Lindsay. Just a reminder, the first and fourth teams play off, as does the second and third in the three-of-five semi-finals. Finals are best-of-seven.

Tonight's game with the Links should be another good clash between these ancient enemies. The Petes are anxious to knock off that third position and the Hawks are equally anxious to swell their total. Coach Don Barrett will drive his charges with all stops out, despite the fact that they have the top-spot in their collective hip pockets. It should be a good tilt and worthy of fandom's support.

BASKETBALL FINAL TONIGHT!

The Belleville Moiras and Trenton RCAF Flyers will clash in their third and deciding game for the Bay of Quinte intermediate "B" basketball championship tonight in the BCI gymnasium. The Flyers took the first game of the best of three series, but the Moiras, stung by the defeat, lashed back with a 54-34 victory. The teams were at sixes and sevens over the locale of the third tilt, but finally decided to play the game here. It should be basketball of topflight calibre between two outstanding teams. Game gets under way at 8.00 and basketball enthusiasts should not miss this one. The winners meet the Kingston-Brockville victors for the eastern Ontario title.

Marlene, Pal Lead Tourney

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)Marlene Stewart, outstanding Canadian woman athlete from Fonthill, Ont., and Hobart Manley, Savannah, Ga., led qualifiers in the Everglades Club's invitational mixed foursomes golf tournament Monday with a two-under-par 69.

They put together scores of 34-3569 for the 6,129-yard Everglades Club layout to pace the field of 91 teams.

FALLS FIGHTER WINS

Lead Parade by Four Points, Gord. Howe Top Point-Getter, Kelly on Verge of New Record

MONTREAL (CP) — The newest instalment of the National Hockey League's official statistics came out today but the continuity of the piece still looks as if it is the combined work of Red Wings booster brigade and the Detroit Chamber of Commerce.

The big red team leads the parade by four points, with two games in hand. Gordie Howe is so far out in front with his record-threatening 39 goals and 71 total points that the figures are approaching the cost-of-living index. Terry Sawchuk still has the lowest goals-against average among the netminders, and Alex Delvecchio's 35 assists lead all other helper-outers in the circuit.

As if these somewhat familiar doings aren't enough, now comes Red Kelly. The ace defenceman of Red Wings is on the verge of breaking a record that has stood for 21 seasons—most goals scored by a defenceman.

Old Time Record

In 51 games this season, Kelly has scored 16 goals. The record is 19, set in the 1921-22 season by Harry Cameron of the old Toronto St. Pats club. Cameron performed his remarkable feat when the schedule was only 24 games.

Kelly, in his sixth season in the NHL and named to the league's all-star team the last two seasons, racked up 17 goals in the 1950-51 campaign and 15 last season.

Howe, with his 39 goals, is slowly cutting down the margin that separates him from the record 50 goals in a season, set by Maurice Richard of Montreal Canadiens eight years ago. It was a 50-game schedule when the Rocket averaged a goal a game.

Howe is also in sight of the record 86 points he piled up in each of the last two seasons.

Big Gordie can still take over the assist leadership, too. He is only three behind Delvecchio's 35. No season record is in sight but who holds the mark of assists? Another redwinger, Ted Lindsay, who collected 55 in the 1949-50 season.

Lindsay is second to Howe in the current point-scoring, with 52. Richard remains in third place, his one goal and two assists lifting his total to 50. Delvecchio, with one goal and five assists, moved up a notch into a fourth-place tie with Wally Hergesheimer of New York Rangers, who went pointless. Each has 45. Paul Ronty of Rangers, also pointless, slipped from fifth to sixth place with his 39, tied with Metro Prystai of Red Wings.

Red Wings came out of last week's scramble with the best performance—two wins and a tie—and pushed their points to 64 in the team standings. Canadiens fell victims to Red Wings and had a win and a tie in two other games, leaving them with 60 points.

The only change in the standing was provided by Chicago Black Hawks, who snapped out of a slump, won two games in three starts and took over third place from Toronto Leafs. Leafs suffered a three-game setback and still have 50 points, against Hawks' 52. Boston Bruins broke even in two games in their new drive for a playoff spot. In fifth place, they have 48 points and also have three games in hand over Leafs. New York Rangers, cellar occupants, got two ties in as many games and now have 36 points.

The goal-tending battle showed little change. Sawchuk leads with a 2.04 average but his margin was trimmed a bit by Montreal's Gerry McNeil who had 2.08. Before the season runs out Sawchuk must play in two more games than McNeil. The Montreal goalie leads in shutouts with nine.

Bad man Lindsay went through the week with no penalties but still tops the league with 100 minutes in the cooler.

'Li'l' Arthur Wins Decision Over McFater

TORONTO (CP)—Li'l Arthur King of Toronto, British Empire lightweight boxing champion, won a unanimous 10-round decision over Toronto's Allan McFater Monday night. King weighed 140½, McFater 144¼.

King, fighting out of Philadelphia for the last few years, had his opponent in trouble from the eighth round on when a solid left split McFater's left eyebrow.

King carried him for the rest of the fight, throwing only soft lefts to the head while McFater had trouble finding a target.

The fight, which attracted about 10,000 spectators, was about even until the third round, but the 25-year-old King opened up with blistering left hooks to the head and rights to the body. It was just a matter of time as the Philadelphian piled up a big lead and apparently could have named the round to put McFater away.

In the eight-round semi-final Billy Fifield of Toronto won by a third-round technical knockout over Tex McEwan of Nigara Falls, N.Y. Fifield weighed 167¾. McEwan 174¾.

In a preliminary, Bobby Rivers, 159½, Niagara Falls, Ont., won by a technical knockout at 2:59 of the second round of a scheduled six-round bout over Ricardo King, 156½, Philadelphia.

The scores were, Recreations (5) 3755, Trenton (2) 3648 and Belleville Dromes (3) 2943, Picton Dromes (4) 2917.

N. Labelle was high scorer with a triple of 870 and single of 386. Other scores were Joe Legault 805; M. Moreau 724; W. Colclough 757; R. Huffman 705; N. Kelly 724 and R. Saylor 657 (two games).

Bassett Stops Famechon In Third Round

By HARVEY HUDSON

PARIS (AP)—Power-punching Percy Bassett of Philadelphia stopped France's Ray Famechon in three rounds Monday night to win the interim featherweight championship of the world.

A capacity crowd of 16,000 in the Palais des Sports saw the 23-year-old American Negro stagger the European champion with a left hook to the chin and then drop him with a terrific right to the head late in the third round.

When the bell rang for the start of the fourth round of the 15-rounder, Famechon's handlers signalled to the referee that their fighter was finished.

The capacity crowd, which included world featherweight champion Sandy Saddler, now a U.S. Army private stationed in Germany, contributed to a gross gate of about $60,000.

Bassett weighed 125¼ to Famechon's 125½.

Saddler's title was "frozen" when he entered the army. The "interim" tournament was set up by boxing commissions around the world to keep the division active until the New York titleholder returns from service.

But in the third, Famechon took a hard right while the referee was breaking the two.

This angered the normally-careful Famechon and he went in to slug with his heavy punching foe. He was backed to the ropes by Bassett's ceaseless assault and then was staggered by a left hook. The right whizzed over and Famechon hit the floor.

WHITLOCK TOP SCORER

HALIFAX (CP)—Buck Whitlock of Charlottetown Islanders compensated for lack of goals with assists last week to strengthen his lead in the Maritime Major Hockey League scoring race. Statistics released by secretary-treasurer C. S. McAlden, including Feb. 6 games, showed Whitlock with 96 points, 11 more than Billy Watson of Halifax Atlantics.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

This is the first of two articles concerning the life and hockey works of one of hockey's greatest figures, the famous veteran Captain James T. Sutherland, founder of the Hockey Hall of Fame at Kingston, hockey's Grand Old Man.

Great oaks, says an old adage, from little acorns grow, and this might aptly be applied to the development of hockey from the embryo stage to its present position among the most attractive sports in the world. The tiny seed was planted in Kingston a long time ago and just as the tree that grew was bearing its first fruit, a stalwart Kingston athlete and sportsman, James T. Sutherland, became its first ambassador of goodwill, and, being a natural salesman he spread its gospel far and wide. If hockey's Grand Old Man didn't plant the original seed, he certainly aided in the growth to mighty proportions.

Away back in 1888 Captain Jim was one of the shining stars in behalf of the Athletics, who operated in the Kingston League on an out-door rink a stone's throw from the house in which Mr. Sutherland has resided these many years.

It has been claimed that the Kingston League of 64 years ago was the first in history, but, be that as it may, it is factual that there was such a league, and that it was composed of Queen's University, the Athletics, Royal Military College and the Kingstons. Queen's won the championship when in the final game they defeated Athletics by 3 to 0. And defenceman Jim Sutherland did a robust checking in a lost cause.

Mr. Sutherland, founder of the International Hockey Hall of Fame, past president of the Canadian and Ontario Hockey Associations and Life Member of both organizations, is now in his 83rd year, but still as devoted to the hockey cause as when he skated with the stars in 1888. He has lived to see that seed grow into the "Spreading Hockey Tree" that is now green in most countries of the world.

Mr. Sutherland recently told this column: "In what was the first organized league of which we have any authentic record, we played on an open rink with side-boards rising not more than 30 inches above the ice surface. That old Dix Rink presented many hazards both to the players and spectators.

"Only after the storms came and the snow was piled high around the low fences, were the spectators able to view proceedings from lofty heights and without being endangered. Among the notables who saw us in spirited competition were Principal Grant of Queen's University; Rev. Mr. Carson and many of Kingston's most prominent residents.

"Following that outdoor venture Queen's University erected an adequate indoor arena which was made to order for skating and hockey and met with popular approval. Carnivals and other attractions were staged at regular intervals, and drew large and enthusiastic crowds. This was one of Canada's first indoor rinks."

The second of this series on the founder of the Hockey Hall of Fame appears next week.

Cocky 'Keed' Gavilan 12-5 Favorite To Retain Welter Title Against Davey

By JACK HAND

CHICAGO (AP)—Cuban Kid Gavilan, a confident 12-to-5 favorite, is looking past Wednesday's welterweight title defence against Chuck Davey to an excursion into the middleweight ranks.

In the camp of unbeaten Davey, the Michigan State grad with the record of 37 victories and two draws in 39 pro starts, things are tense. Nerves are taut. Handsome Chuck is on edge.

This metropolis boils with fight fever. Cab drivers sing Davey's praise. Professional bettors respect Gavilan's proven class. An advance sale of $210,000 is reported by the International Boxing Club's Truman Gibson, keeper of the Chicago Stadium treasury. TV salesmen offer a $25 ringside seat for free at 10 p.m. EST on the CBS network.

The gym work is finished. Gavilan belted over spar mate Al Niang with a left to the body Monday in his final workout. Davey, already under the 147-pound class limit, took a hike through Lincoln Park.

Gavilan, the champion from Cuba, is unconcerned. He prefers to talk about what comes next.

"I wait until there is a new middleweight champ," he said. "Then Gavilan Keed challenge the champ."

Who does he think the new champion will be?

"Randy Turpin, sure thing," he said. "Bobo Olson? No. I saw him fight. He not a hard hitter. Turpin best man. I like to fight him."

This may sound pretentious for a fellow on the eve of a fight that has stirred Chicago like no scrap since the classic Tony Zale-Rocky Graziano rematch in 1947.

This probably will be Gavilan's biggest pay day—perhaps as much as $100,000. He gets 40 per cent or $80,000 of the $200,000 net house guaranteed by the TV sponsor. And he may get another $20,000 if the crowd is big. Davey also gets his biggest purse—$40,000, and 20 per cent over $200,000.

"I think I will win in 15," said Davey. "I wouldn't go into a fight if I didn't think I was going to win."

Kingston Hands Glen Roys 8-4 Defeat; Junior Hawks Trounce Cobourg 7-4

Fashion Inspired Performance In Rugged Hard-Hitting Game; Share Section Top With Glens

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

It could be they're under new management, or the sting of that 17-5 defeat at the hands of Orillia on Saturday still rankled, but the Kingston Goodyears, playing inspired hockey defeated the Glen Roys 8-4 in a rugged fast senior "B" game here last night.

The Goodyears staged the best exhibition seen by a Kingston team here this season. They struck a terrific pace from the start while their checking was made-to-order both ways and Johnson in the nets came up with one of his better exhibitions.

In fairness to the Glen Roys it must be said two of the Kingston goals ricocheted off Glen Roy players into the net while Jackie Wardhaugh, attempting to clear, drove the rubber in his own goal for the final Kingston tally.

It was a typical Kingston-Belleville battle with neither side sparing the heavy body-checking, but Referees "Moe" Walsh and Jim Crombie had the boys under control. Ten penalties, all minors, were handed out, seven going to the Goodyears.

Tied for Top

The victory put the teams all even in third place in the overall group standing and tied for top slot in the eastern division with 24 points, five in front of the trailing Peterborough Petes. The Glens have a game in hand over the Goodyears.

The Glens appeared off color in the first period and the fast-skating Goodies fired home four goals to a single return. The teams split four tallies in the second heat and the winners outscored the foe 2-1 in the third period.

Johnny Myke paced the Goodyears attack with two goals and the rest went to Deluca, Murray, McGregor, Tinkess, McKeown and Partis. The Glen line of Wardhaugh, Mulvihill and MacDonald stole the scoring spotlight for the Glens with MacDonald getting a pair and Mulvihill and Wardhaugh one each. Green got two assists.

There was a fast interchange in the first period before Deluca sank Murray's pass to open the scoring after six minutes of play. Twenty-six seconds later Myke's angle shot struck Reeves' leg and glanced into the net to put the Goodies two up. In a Gaston-Alphonse gesture Londry got in the way of Wardhaugh's drive and deflected the puck past Johnson to give the Glens their first tally. The Goodyears put on the pressure and with the Glen defence looking a trifle sloppy Murray raced in and tucked Nicholson's pass in the rigging. McKeown slapped in a rebound with minutes to go to give the Goodyears a 4-1 period lead.

Missed From Close In

The Glens roared back in the second period but they were missing from close in. Johnson stopped three sizzlers from his doorstep then Partis broke into the clear and hit the post. MacDonald, Mulvihill and Wardhaugh's passing play clicked after five minutes and the former beat Johnson cleanly. Five minutes later Mulvihill dipsy-doodled his way through the Kingston defence for the Glens second counter but Myke got that one back on a ricochet shot a minute later. Tinkess made it 6-3 near the period play on a fine passing play with Murray.

The checking was hard and close in the third period with both sides handing out terrific body checks. No damage was done as play surged rink-length. The Glens had a decided edge in the first half but the hard-hitting defence and Johnson plus an off-the-net shooting display robbed them of goals. The Goodyear front lines were always dangerous and on the alert for breakaways. One clicked when Gerow fed Partis a goal mouth pass to increase the lead to 7-3. The Glens put on the power and it paid off when MacDonald scored from Mulvihill and Green.

Then came Wardhaugh's heartbreaker when he drove the puck in his own net when attempting to clear and the fun was over for the night.

Harper Takes El Paso Pesos

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—Tough Chandler Harper broke his driver on the second hole Monday but used a brassie to whip Ted Kroll by three strokes in the play-off for first money in the $10,000 El Paso open golf tournament.

The 39-year-old Portsmouth, Va., veteran carded a one-under-par 70 in the 18-hole playoff while Kroll, 33-year-old shotmaker from New Hartford, N.Y., blew a one-stroke lead with a horrendous seven on the 14th hole and wound up with a 73.

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Windsor AKO rallied in the fourth quarter to defeat St. Jerome's College Lions of Kitchener 54-49 Monday night.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—The jury's still out as to whether television is a boon or a menace to baseball and football, but there no longer can be much doubt that the new sports medium is the greatest thing to happen to newspaper circulation since the invention of colored comics.

We are moved to his profound reflection as the eyes slowly recover from a hard week-end of TV fight experting and prepare for another tough session beginning Wednesday night, when Kid Gavilan and Chuck Davey will come at us on the silver screen from Chicago.

If our own experience is any criterion, millions of persons who ordinarily do with two daily papers, one morning and one afternoon, will buy one off every stack this Thursday to find out what really happened to their hero, Davey.

This is no swipe at television. It is grand, free, and here to stay. The only trouble is that people continue to try to score boxing matches from their rumpus rooms and then become disgruntled when they discover they must not have been watching the same bouts as the referees and official judges were.

For our part, we discovered a good while ago that the fight we saw on TV often bore but passing resemblance to the one witnessed by members of the trade who were sitting at ringside. We learned this by talking with them next day. Millions of new home experts who have learned the fine points of fight judging only since TV do not enjoy this advantage and so must read where they went wrong.

An example was Bobo Olson's one-sided win over Norman Hayes last Saturday night in Boston. Unless we are badly rattled, not many of those who witnessed the lively scrap in their homes were at all prepared for the unanimous decision which indicated that Hayes had caught a real shellacking.

We thought it had been pretty close and would not have been surprised if Hayes had lost by no worse than a split decision in his home town. Yet we read next day that the one judge who did give Hayes a few rounds and made it fairly close was booed by the crowd. Just goes to show.

We learn from ringsiders that, actually, Hayes fought only in brief spurts while Olson swarmed over him continually and gave him a cruel beating in the last five rounds. Why this did not register on the screen we do not pretend to know, unless it is for the obvious reason that the TV camera is, by necessity, situated a good piece from the ring.

Men's Commercial Bowling League

Four teams were 7 point winners in the Men's Commercial Bowling League Friday night with one lone 5-2 contest.

Pats Barber Shop led the way in the scoring with a total pinfall of 3440 to down Welding Gases 7-0. The win put the Pats into second slot.

Bosiaks maintained their 3 point lead over Pats Barber Shop by virtue of their 7-0 win over Balyx Bros.

Harold Thrasher of Star Welding, took both high triple and high single honors with a 781 three string and a 307 single.

Other good scores are as follows: B. Trumpour 779; C. Martin 773; H. Whittaker 735; J. Barriage 734; J. Knott 717; H. Ryan 706; R. Jone 691; D. Batchelor 689; J. Valchar 688; E. Bowers 681; R. Score Four in Second Period To Notch 24th Schedule Win; Petes 3-Links Here Tonight

By JOHN GOODFELLOW

Belleville Black Hawks, determined to keep their sharp edge as playoff time approaches, last night defeated the last place Cobourg Jays 7-4 in the latter's arena. The regular junior "B" schedule ends for the Hawks in Belleville tonight, with Peterborough Oddfellows as the visitors.

For a team that has won only one game this season, the Cobourg club put on a remarkable display of grit and hustle against the league champions.

Pat Gilmour, George Jacklin and Ron Halstead each scored twice for the winners, Pete Jones getting the other. The Cobourg scoring was equally divided among Dutch Boswell, Paul Pearse, Bill Hessen and Jim Dawes who each picked up a goal.

Gilmour sent the Hawks in front near hte seven-minute mark of the first period, slapping home goalmouth relays from Dave Jones and Green. Boswell was back two minutes later to tie it up, scoring from a faceoff inside the Belleville line after Roly Campbell had won the draw.

Pearce put the homesters ahead 2-1 on a fine rink-length rush to beat Bobby Green at 10.05. Jacklin tied it up again five minutes later. Archie Stocco rammed a shot from the left boards that Lingard stopped, but Big George was htere to bat it home.

Sloppy clearing by the Jays put Belleville two goals up. Green, standing in the Cobourg zone, suddenly found a clearing shot at the end of his stick and he promptly rifled a high one into Lingard's cage.

Halstead got his second goal, hammering in Jacklin's passout from behind the net. Jacklin made it 6-2, sinking a high baskhander as he crossed in front of the net. Halstead and Hull started the play.

Hesson cut the margin in half at 7.26 of the third canto. Trapping Pearses pass at the edge of the crease, he slipped it past Green.

That was all the scoring until the final minute of play, then both teams traded tallies. Gilmour made it 7-3, flipping in Hank Therrien's goalmouth pass. Dawes ended the scoring ith five seconds left, aided by Pearse and Hessen.

The teams:

Belleville: Goal, R. Green; defence, Goyer and P. Green; centre, Brooks; wings, Casey and Hermiston. Alternates, Stocco, Delbosco, Hull, Jacklin, Halstead, Jones, Therrien, Gilmour and Russell (spare goaltender.)

An unusual distribution of cards is likely to slap you in the eyes at almost any time during a bridge game. It is no time to get excited. Exhaust rule bidding before you decide to gamble.

There came the tournament deal shown here:

WEST	EAST
♠K Q J 2	♠8 5 4

SOUTH
♠None
♥A K J 9 7 2
♦A K Q J 9 3 2
♣None

This is how it should be bid:

South	North
2 D	2 S
3 H	4 D
4 NT	5 D
7 D	Pass

In answer to an opening of two in a suit, any response other than two no-trump guarantees a sure trick. This information is not needed by south in this case, but there is no harm in getting it.

As soon as north assists diamonds, which he does on the second round, south knows he must go to seven diamonds. There is not one chance in a billion that it will be defeated.

South knows this without seeing the north hand. Because the north diamond assist shows four small in that suit. With these, enough small hearts can be ruffed to establish that suit.

There is, of course, the bare possibility that east is void in hearts. In which case a heart lead from west would defeat the grand slam. But, the combination of both is very remote.

The four no-trump bid is the convention for asking how many aces and kings he has. You could contend that this round of bidding is superfluous here. But there is no harm in using it.

West will no doubt lead the club ace, which south ruffs. Lead a round of trumps, cash the heart ace, and ruff a heart. This makes what is left a laydown. Crazy cards, but no use you getting that way.

American Wins Figure-Skating World Title

DAVOS, Switzerland (AP) — Hayes Alan Jenkins of Akron, O., a 19-year-old sophomore at Colorado College, skated away with the men's world figure-skating championship today in a brilliant free style display which gave him a narrow margin over Jimmy Grogan of Colorado Springs, Colo.

Jenkins was trailing Grogan as the free style skating started today, but he put on such a powerful, precise display one of the nine judges felt compelled to give him a perfect score of six on his execution. The lowest score Jenkins received was 5.5.

Grogan, who won first place in the compulsory skating Monday, was several points behind Jenkins in the free skating.

In the final scoring, Jenkins received a placement figure of 13 and a total point score of 1,647.6. Grogan's scores were 16 and 1,636.8.

In a big surprise, Ronald Robertson, 15-year-old high school sophomore from Long Beach, Cal., took fourth place with an excellent exhibition which raised him from seventh in the standings after the compulsory figures.

Robertson's scores were 35 for placement and 1,560.2 for total points.

Fielder Regains Scoring Lead In American League

NEW YORK (CP)—Guyle Fielder, rookie centre of St. Louis Flyers, regained the American Hockey League scoring lead this week.

Fielder had 18 goals and 40 assists for 58 points after tallying nine points in four games during the last week to regain the spot he held earlier in the season. Ike Hildebrand of Cleveland held second place with 55 and Lorne Ferguson of Hershey, last week's leader, dropped to third with 54.

Hildebrand led in goals scored with 29 and Fielder's 40 assists tied him with George Sullivan of Hershey in the play-making department.

Pittsburgh's Gil Mayer held a commanding lead in the goaltender column with an average of 2.35 on 108 goals allowed in 46 games. He recorded his fifth shutout during the last week to tie Johnny Bower of Cleveland Gordie Bell of Syracuse for top honors.

BANCROFT

Pontiacs Ground Trenton Flyers By 10-5 Score

BANCROFT (Special) — A crowd of more than 1,000 persons jammed the local arena here on Thursday night for the annual exhibition game between Bancroft Pontiacs and the Trenton Flyers of the Trent Valley loop. The game was played under the auspices of the Canadian Legion branch and served to further the Pontiacs' winning streak as they downed the aggressive Flyers by a 10-5 score. The Pontiacs remained undefeated on home ice and have lost only one game away from home this season. The contest had become a deadlock over the past three yearly games with each team winning one and one game ending in a tie. Fast, hard-hitting hockey was featured as usual and stellar performances were turned in by Hipson, Smidt and Meloche of the Flyers and by goalie Young and forwards Elwood Brough, Norman Brough, and Bob Ramsbottom of the local club. Elwood Brough performed the hat-trick for the Pontiacs, two of them solo efforts.

The first period saw Flyer goals by Hipson and Meloche and two Bancroft counters by Elwood Brough, unassisted.

Second period action ended in a 7-4 score on local tallies by Doug Comrie (2), Ted Maxwell, Wayne Coe and Elwood Brough. Hipson and Bailey scored for the visitors. Doug Comrie netted two goals in the first 39 seconds of the period.

In the final period Bob Ramsbottom rang the bell twice for the home team and Meloche netted a Flyers single. Wayne Coe sank the final goal of the game for the Pontiacs, his second for the night. The Trenton club outscored Bancroft in the penalty department 6-2, all minors.

As the result of a fine show of co-operation among local organizations and the patrons, members of the Bancroft Lions Club collected more than $160 between the second and third periods to aid overseas flood victims.

The teams: Bancroft — goal, A. Young; defence, J. Hattin, L. Dougall, C. McAlpine, S. Stringer, F. Bruce; forwards, E. Brough, N. Brough, B. Comrie, B. Ramsbottom, T. Maxwell, B. Green, R. Severin, D. Maxwell, W. Coe.

Trenton — goal, Cook; defence, Smidt, Bailey, Meloche, Attrill; forwards, Davis, Hipson, Greystone, Tardiff, Brill, Shevis.

FRANKFORD

Stirling Dumps Frankford 5-2

FRANKFORD — In the Frankford Lions Arena Saturday night, Stirling handed Frankford a 5-2 setback in a Trent Valley League game which resembled golf more than hockey. The ice was almost as soft as cold cream, and the only person who carried the puck all evening was the referee.

The teams battled on even terms for two periods. There was no score in the first stanza as both Bates and Foshay came through with some remarkable goal tending. Frankford drew first blood, as Adams banged home a pass from Graham, at the four-minute mark of the second period. Wannamaker took a pass from Mason, and broke away for the tying score for Stirling eight minutes later.

In the third period, Frankford was a very tired team, after a hard-played game the night before, and there was no denying Stirling. Robson teamed up with Wannamaker for the tie-breaking score. Stewart scored from Hermiston and Wright while Frankford was a man short. Robson scored his second goal from McCrory, and a third from McCrory and Wannamaker. Pukancik got Frankford's second goal of the game from Carey and Hood.

Needless to say, the game was very ragged throughout because of the condition of the ice, but both teams played hard all the way, trying their best to make a game out of it. The game was clean, with only three penalties apiece being levied by referees Carson and Williams.

Teams: Stirling — goal, Bates; defence, Armstrong, Tanner; centre, Robson; wings, McCrory, Wannamaker; alternates, Burgess, Mason, Stewart, Wright, Hermiston, Williams, Bastedo, Ingram.

Movie 'Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The movie industry is suffering the pangs of the second revolution in its 50 years of existence.

Twenty-five years ago, the apathy of the movie-going public forced film-makers to add sound to the silent screen.

Today the gigantic rise of television in public favor has forced the same men to bring new dimensions to the movies.

Three-dimensional films have swept Hollywood. Rash predictions are being made. Some foresee that the present flat screen will soon be dead. Others predict there will be room for both styles.

What are these new-dimensional methods? There are two main divisions:

1. Depth pictures:

Scientists say there is only one way to achieve a sense of depth on a movie screen. That is by flashing two images on the screen and having you watch through special glasses.

It is an optical trick. The two images of the same picture are filmed from slightly different angles. Each of your eyes sees only one picture because of the special glasses.

2. Big-screen pictures:

These are not three-dimensional. The screen is about 2½ times normal size and curves at the sides. Because it is so big, you feel as though you are actually participating in the screen action.

There are now two main methods:

A. Cinerama. This was the pioneer. It requires three cameras and projects three images on the huge screen.

B. Cinemascope. It uses a special lens on one camera and one projector to broaden the picture to fit the giant screen. This method is owned by 20th Century-Fox, which is willing to let other studios use it.

The argument against big-screen pictures is that they require costly theatre changes.

Cinerama was the device that touched off the film revolution. Its sensational reception started movie bosses thinking perhaps new screen dimensions would help stamp out the TV peril. The clincher came when an inept quickie called "Bwana Devil" did booming business because it was in 3-D.

Tireless Tabs May Not Score Goals But They Count in Clawing Clinches

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When Hamilton Tigers play an Ontario Hockey Association Senior A game their opposition may give the official scorer plenty of work. But the Tabbies, door mats of the seven-team league, are always sure to keep the penalty timers busy.

Monday night was no exception. The Tigers bowed 12-0 before the third-place Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen and the referees handed out a total of 54 minutes in penalties during the wild affair. Four of the sentences were majors for fighting.

In an exhibition game played at Sudbury, the Wolves, leaders of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A Southern group, topped Valleyfield Braves of the Quebec Senior loop 6-3.

Jack McKenzie and Don Bauer paced Kitchener's attack with three goals each while Maurice Levesque scored two and the others went to Harry Psutka, Clare Martin, Bucky Buchanan and Howie Lee.

Bobby Schnurr, Hal Baron, Harry Pidsodny and Jack McKenzie engaged in a first-period brawl to draw majors while Dutchie captain Clare Martin was given a 10-minute misconduct for pushing the officials.

Dufferin Winners

TORONTO (CP)—Dixie Tass, owned by F. Milton of Hamburg, N.Y., and driven by Bob Givens, and Swing Up, owned by G. Hess of Morrisburg and handled by Percy Robillard, each scored a heat victory in the featured class A trot at Dufferin Park Monday.

Roy Hanover, owned by T. Fisher of Stayner, and Coleman, owned by F. Milton, split heats in the secondary event.

Why We Say--
"A LITTLE SCAMP"
9-29

. . . Out of battle

A small boy who gets into trouble might be referred to as a "little scamp." The scamp though actually means one who is out of the battlefield or not eligible to be in the army. The word came into English through the Old French, "enscamper" and from the Latin ex (out of) and campus (the battlefield). Technically anyone who wasn't a soldier was a scamp.

Scooter Is Vehicle for Adventure for Two

Off on trips of adventure on motor scooters are Jean Fuller, 19, of Kent, Eng., and Alvin Rhiando, Surrey, a former resident of Canada. Jean's scooter will take her to Paris, but Rhiando plans a 10,000-mile trip to Cape Town, South Africa. He is trying to popularize the scooter which he designed and which he hopes to manufacture for sale at $450. — Central Press Canadian.

P.M. Says Canada's Economy To Continue to Show as Good Job in Peacetime as in War

MONTREAL (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent went back out on a limb today and predicted that Canada's economy will continue to show that it can do as good a job in peacetime as in war.

In an address prepared for delivery to the annual convention of the Canadian Lumbermen's Association, he recalled a prediction he made before the same body in 1944 when Canada's war effort was at its peak.

He had said then, "what it was possible to do for destruction in war will be equally possible for in peace."

Some newspapers had called that optimistic but "since the war we have not only maintained our production but increased it tremendously; we have maintained a remarkably high employment have absorbed in our industry all those who were in the services and in war work and we have succeeded in reducing our national debt by no small amount."

Had Proved Wrong

It was true that his statement was based on a belief that years of real peace lay ahead. This had proved wrong but even so the years before Korea began were years of buoyancy and growth.

Looking ahead, Mr. St. Laurent said, "I am still optimistic enough to think. . .that, under our freedom and with our enterprise, we Canadians will be able to operate our economy as successfully for national security and human welfare in peacetime as we were doing in 1944 to meet the destructive demands of total war. I believe the experience of the years since 1944 has justified that optimism."

Mr. St. Laurent said Canada's cold-war arms production is not yet at the stage where it is flooding out "but I don't think that time is too far off."

Problem Not Over

". . . But our problems will not be over when the equipment and weapons needed by our forces roll off the assembly lines in quantity, as they are beginning to do now, or when the new airfields and army camps and installations are completed.

"We have to remember that what we are trying to do is to prevent a war from breaking out and that unless those whom are opposed to our free way of life change their ideas quite radically we are likely to have to go on living in the hostile uncertain atmosphere for quite a long time."

For the cold war was more than an arms race; it was really "a struggle between two different ways of managing human affairs."

Shortage of Engineers In Canada Reported

OTTAWA (CP) — Building of the trans-Canada highway and other major Canadian roads is being delayed "by an acute shortage of engineers," the publication Road and Wheel says in its current issue.

The official organ of the Canadian Good Roads Association says road building is the largest engineering activity in the country but not one Canadian university provides special training for highway engineers.

A ROUGH START

TORONTO (CP) — The marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lipshutz got off to a rough start Friday.

Mrs. Lipshutz was taken to hospital and detained for X-rays of an injured hand.

BADLY BURNED IN BLAST

SARNIA (CP)—Badly burned over most of his body in a gasoline explosion Friday, Jerry Dorais, 50, a Sarnia garage proprietor, was reported in serious condition at Sarnia General Hospital Friday night. Dorais was "deglazing" cylinder walls on a car when sparks set off an explosion in a can of gasoline on the cowl of the car.

10 YEARS FOR RAPE

TORONTO (CP) — Gordon Hottinger, 21, of Brantford, Friday was sent to penitentiary for 10 years for raping a 21-year-old girl after a hotel room party last October.

Evidence was that the attack took place in the Don Valley in east-central Toronto while Hottinger was driving the girl home. She is a railway office employee.

Second Man On The Ticket

By Edwin Lanham

"What you really think of me."

I was surprised and said, "I didn't think my opinion would carry any weight with you, one way or the other. But, as a matter of fact, I think you're pretty She."

"Well, thanks," said Lucy.

"You know your job, and you can do it without asking a lot of questions," I said. "That's a pretty rare quality."

"At least I got my bait back," Lucy said wryly. "But I think I'd prefer my qualities well-done not rare. How about my legs? They're done to a turn, aren't they?"

"They are," I said.

"And my hair is nice," she said.

"It's plenty nice," I said.

"Well?" said Lucy.

"Well what?"

"Well and good," she said. "Well and good. And the heck with you, anyhow."

CHAPTER XVII

The plane was banking, and I saw the lights of an airport down below. The hostess passed smiling along the aisle, reminding us to buckle out safety belts.

"Lucy," I said, "you're a very handsome girl, but I don't think it was necessary for me to tell you that. You're pretty well aware of it already. It shows in everything you do."

"It does?" she said tightly. "How?"

"Well, in the way you walk," I said. "That little wiggle."

"I don't wiggle."

"Yes, I said. "You wiggle And it shows in that smile of yours. It's sort of contented. When you smile at a guy you make him think he's just a mirror reflecting it back at you."

"You heel," said Lucy.

"And it shows in the way you pat your hair and look at your nails and lift your right shoulder," I went on. "It shows all over you."

"Mr. Mason," she said. "You say the nicest things."

"You asked me," I said. I wasn't criticizing. It's usually that way with your type. Girls who have been around are always pretty sure of themselves."

"Been—around?" Lucy said.

"You know what I mean." I said. "Sophisticated. You're not denying you're sophisticated, are you?"

"I have an overlay of sophistication," Lucy said. "But it's wearing pretty thin right now. In just about a minute it will crack and the primitive woman will break through and gouge out your eyes."

The plane bumped on the runway, and Lucy, somewhat flushed, unbuckled her belt in silence. The plane taxied up to the apron, and as soon as the door was opened Lucy went ahead of me down the steps. I followed her into the administration building, without a backward glance for Governor Warburton.

In the waiting room, smoking a cigar, was John Mills. He moved his head slightly, a nod toward the door, and Lucy and I went on out and waited to claim the luggage. A moment later Governor Warburton came through the door and moved on past us into the darkness.

We were on a three-lane highway, driving very fast through the night. John Mills said, "It was a surprise when I got that phone call Willie. At first I thought it was a gag. What's the trouble, anyhow?"

Governor Warburton began explaining to his friend just what the situation was, and I leaned back on the seat beside Lucy and lighted cigarettes for each of us. She took hers without a word.

"We'll be about an hour on the road," I said. "Lucy, you and I always kid each other. I never guessed you were sensitive."

"I'm not sensitive," she said. "No more than anybody." She took a deep drag of the cigarette. "But, Roy, enough is enough. You'd praise a cook for dishing a good dinner. You'd compliment a bootblack for a high shine. Sometimes you ought to praise a girl for——for—"

"For what?"

"For being a girl," said Lucy.

The Governor turned his head. "Roy, John and I have been talking it over. Now, it's pretty late. It will be touching midnight when we get to Hydetown."

"Ginny Perkins," John Mills said. "She's our problem."

"We don't want the word to get out that I paid a midnight call on Miss Hattie," the Governor said. He grinned at me. "You and the girl got along pretty well, didn't you, Roy?"

"Passably," I said.

"Roy," the Governor said. "What do you think? Think you can get her out of the house?"

"I'll try, Governor," I said.

The headlights picked up a sign that said: "Hydetown: Rotary Meets Wednesday.' John Mills said, "I'll stop a way down the street, and we'll get out there. Then you drive on up to the house, Mr. Mason."

He turned the car to the curb and stopped by a sycamore tree. "We'll wait here," he said. "You take the car, Mr. Mason, and as soon as we see you drive away with Ginny, we'll hustle up there.

"One thing more, Roy," the Governor said. "Bill Evers and I mapped this thing out. If we are seen here, we call up the hotel. There's a photographer there from Ego Magazine, to make a big layout on Warburton Day. If we're seen we call him and pretend it was a prearranged stunt, a sentimental call on my old schoolma'am."

I got behind the wheel and drove off, leaving them grouped under the sycamore tree. I stopped in front of Miss Hattie's cottage 100 yards further on. A porch light was burning, and most of the downstairs lights were on, I went through the gate and up to the door.

I knocked, and heard slow steps approaching. The door came open a few inches and I stood facing Miss Harriet Perkins. The lines around her eyes tightened and she said stiffly, "So it's you. I suppose you've come for your reading lamp?"

"The lamp was a present for you."

"I don't accept bribes, young man," Miss Hattie said crisply "Come in and get it."

The lamp was on a hall table, thec ord wrapped around its stem. Miss Hattie picked it up and held it out to me.

"Just take it along, young man."

"Of course," I said. "But now that I'm here may I speak to Ginny for a moment?"

"Virginia's not here," Miss Hattie said.

"Do you know where I can find her?"

"At the depot," Miss Hattie said, with a shrug of her vast shoulders. "She went down to the depot. Good night, Mr. Mason."

CHAPTER XVIII

I backed away from her and she closed the door firmly in my face. I ran quickly down to the sidewalk, and in the light of a corner street lamp, made a beckoning gesture, I saw the three of them hurrying toward me.

"Ginny's not here," I said. "She is down at the depot."

"That's bad," said Governor Warburton. "We'll have to work fast, John, what time does the train get in?"

"What train?'

"I don't know what train, except Clyde McDonald will be on it, coming from Mississippi."

"I see," John Mills said. "I guess it would be the 12.02." He said and moved along the walk to the cottage. He knocked hard at the door.

A voice inside said, "I said goodnight, Mr. Mason."

"Miss Hattie, this isn't Mr. Mason," the Governor said. "Get out your peachtree switch. This is Willie Warburton."

There was silence, then the Governor went on. "You always used to listen to my side of the story, Miss Hattie. I hope you'll listen now."

Slowly the door was opened and we saw Miss Hattie's pale eyes, opened very wide. "So it's you, Willie," she said.

"I made a long trip here to talk to you," the Governor said. "Miss Hattie, it's like the old days. Here I am in trouble again, and nobody's fault but my own." His smile was rueful, and all the frank Warburton charm was in it. "May I come in?"

"I'm surprised at myself," Miss Hattie said. "But, yes, I'll let you come in. Come in, Willie."

"This is my secretary, Miss Strawn," the Governor said. "And my assistant, Mr. Mason."

"I know Mr. Mason," Miss Hattie said.

"Miss Hattie," the Governor's gentle voice said, "I came to ask you to listen to my speech in Hydetown Wednesday." He held up his hand. "Now wait a minute. First I want you to know what I'm going to say in that speech. I want you up on that platform with me when I say. 'Ladies and gentlemen, this is my old school teacher, Miss Hattie Perkins. I guess I was the worst boy in her class. My marks were as bad as anybody's and I was a lazy, shiftless kid before Miss Hattie got hold of me."

"Willie, you weren't as bad as that," Miss Hattie said. "I've had worse boys than you."

"I was bad enough," the Governor said." And let me tell you this, old dear, Mr. Mason put that paragraph in his book without consulting me. I never read the book. I never knew what he said. Bad as I was as a boy, Miss Hattie, I think you'll believe me when I say I wouldn't have made any false claims for myself."

"That's true," Miss Hattie conceded.

"I hope I never will," the Governor went on. "Miss Hattie, it hurt me deep when I heard you weren't turning out on Wednesday. I couldn't get it then, because I hadn't read that book. But when I get up on that platform I'll tell the facts, and if you say so, I'll tell the story of that sheepskin coat."

"What sheepskin coat?" Miss Hattie asked. Then she nodded. "Oh, you mean——"

"Yes," the Governor said. "I mean the horse race at the Hyde County, Fair. The time I was short in the school funds."

"No, Willie," said Miss Hattie. "I wouldn't want you to do anything so foolish as that."

"It is foolish?" The Governor gave his head a thoughtful shake. "I wonder. Because if I tell that story I can tell how much you did for me, Miss Hattie. I can tell how much your kindness and fair treatment meant to me."

"Thank you, Willie," Miss Hattie said, and I saw moisture in her eyes. "To tell you the truth, I was real hurt when I read that book of Mr. Mason's."

"I don't blame you," the Governor said. "You had a right to be." He moved nearer to her, put his hand on the back of her chair. "Miss Hattie, I hope you're going to change your mind. I hope you're coming to the big meeting Wednesday and sit there on my right hand, the way Johnny Mills and I had planned it."

Miss Hattie sighed. "All right, Willie," she said. "I'll be there."

John Mills spoke for the first time. "It was Melvin Fisher had the highest marks," he said.

Miss Hattie chuckled. "I never set great store by high marks myself."

"Miss Hattie, there's one thing more." Governor Warburton reached down and took her plump hand. "I wouldn't want it known that I dropped in on you here in the middle of the night. I would not want Mr. McDonald to know that."

"Yes," Miss Hattie said. "I understand, Willie."

"And of course you know why he's here," the Governor said.

Miss Hattie looked up at him. "Why, Mel Fisher asked me to put him up."

"So he could get the story from you." the Governor said. "The story of the horse race and the Hallowe'en fund. You're not going to tell him that story, are you Miss Hattie?"

Her eyes opened wide. "My goodness, no," she said. "I wouldn't mention that to anyone, Willie."

I could not help grinning. There had been no real danger. But suddenly I knew there was a danger. I had noticed a beam of light outside on the street and had paid no attention but all at once a car had stopped at the curb. I looked through the pane, and saw three figures on the walk almost at the door.

"Outside, Governor!" I cried. "Out the back way!"

CHAPTER XIX

I whirled and ran to the front door. I threw my shoulder against it just as it was being pushed open. It slammed shut and a startled voice said, "Hey!"

"Excuse me," I said, and glanced over my shoulder. I saw a door at the back swinging to. Lucy and the Governor were gone.

There was pressure again on the door, and I stepped back. It flew open and I looked into Melvin Fisher's sour, suspicious eyes. A step behind him was Clyde McDonald, carrying a suitcase. He saw me and put it down with a thump.

"Where did you come from?" he said, his surprise so real that he forgot to slide the words in his customary tough-guy enunciation.

A soft voice said, "Why, Mr. Mason!" and I met Ginny's bright blue eyes.

"Hello," I said, and added unconvincingly. "I came to get this." I held up my hands. All the time I had been clutching the reading lamp I had won at the bingo game in the firehouse.

"At midnight?" Ginny said.

"Ginny, I came to see you," I said. "I was in town unexpectedly and Mr. Mills drove me over."

"Unexpectedly is right," Clyde said.

"I'd ask you to come in, Mr. Mason," said Ginny. "But you're already in, aren't you? Does Aunt Hattie know that?"

"Of course I know it," Miss Hattie said sharply and rose from her chair. "Mr. Mason, if your offer still holds good, I'd love to keep that lamp."

"I'd love for you to keep it," I said.

Clyde produced a big grin and approached her, holding out his hand. Miss Hattie took it, murmuring. "I'll show you to your room. Please come upstairs with me."

She went on to the staircase and Clyde McDonald said to me, over his shoulder, "You get around, Roy."

"And you're a long way from Washington," I said.

"I guess for the same reason," said Clyde. "From all I hear."

I could not help grinning. "My reason was this reading lamp," I said.

"You'll find your room at the head of the stairs, Mr. McDonald," Miss Hattie said. "First door on your left."

"Yes," he said, and picked up his suitcase. "I'm coming."

Melvin Fisher had stood by with a puzzled air, and John Mills had said nothing. The two men eyed each other, and Fisher commented, "Up late, ain't you, John?"

"That I am," John said. "I wouldn't want to close my eyes, a night like this."

Urges Restrictions be Taken Off Dairy Products Imports

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government, in a sharply-worded note of protest, today urged the new Eisenhower administration to remove American restrictions on dairy imports as quickly as possible.

The note was delivered by a Canadian embassy official in Washington to the U. S. state department. It was the third time Canada has lodged disapproval of the restrictions imposed in June, 1951, under the Truman administration.

Strongest of Three

Contents of the previous two notes, sent in August, 1951, and in January, 1952, have never been made public. The current one, an official said, was the strongest of the three.

In it, the Canadian government expressed "serious concern" over the restrictions, which, it said, was an "infringement of international agreements" to which the governments of both Canada and the U. S. are parties.

The restrictions, inserted as amendments to the U. S. Defence Production Act, limit imports of cheese and other dairy products to certain quotas fixed from time to time by the U. S. government.

Departs From Principle

The Canadian government, in today's note, labelled these curbs as "departures from accepted principles of commercial policy," and said they will "damage seriously" the development of world trade "on a constructive basis."

They "tend to undermine the confidence of overseas deficit countries in their ability to approach a balance by increasing their dollar earnings."

The consequence of these restrictions, said the Canadian government, is that they will discourage sterling-area countries from throwing off their own import curbs, which work against Canada-U. S. exporters.

Sharply Criticized

The U. S. dairy curbs were sharply criticized at meetings last year of the general agreement on tariffs and trade. Resolutions were adopted recognizing the restrictions to be contrary to the agreement's provisions.

Previously, sharp outbursts by dairy exporters, including Canada, The Netherlands, Italy and New Zealand, brought a slight modification last June when the quotas were increased by 15 per cent.

This failed to mollify the exporters who were further angered when the U. S. decided to extend the curbs last Dec. 30 to include dried whole milk, dried buttermilk and dried cream. These were previously not on the restricted list.

Quotas Small

Quotas were set for the first quarter of 1953 and these were so small that it prompted a statement by Trade Minister Howe describing them as "negligible" and predicting that for dried cream and dried whole milk, Canada's exports to the U. S. in the first quarter "will be insignificant."

The U. S. global quota for cheddar cheese imports has been set at about 9,700,000 pounds for the year June, 1952 to June, 1953. Canada's share was estimated at about 2,400,000 pounds for the year — only a fraction of what Canadian producers could ship if the American market was opened widely to them.

Pampered Cat Too Much For Tolerant Wife

DETROIT (CP) — Mrs. Retha Denning said Tuesday in applying for a divorce that she didn't mind when her husband, Wilber, treated his pet cat better than he did her.

She told Judge Thomas J. Murphy she didn't object when he fed the cat choice tidbits from her plate, or when Wilber elected to cuddle the cat instead of her, or even when he insisted that the cat sleep with them.

She said relations became strained when the cat, in a fit of temper, bit her on the foot and Mrs. Denning had to be confined to hospital for two weeks.

The last straw came, she said when her husband demanded she apologize to the cat and "kiss and make up."

"I thought that was unreasonable," she said.

Judge Murphy granted the divorce.

Veiled Threat Against Press By Malan Aide

CAPETOWN (Reuters) — The government today issued a veiled threat against South Africa's press for waging a "horrible lying campaign" against Prime Minister Daniel F. Malan's public safety bill.

Justice Minister Charles Swart made the threat before Parliament in moving for adoption of the bill. It would empower the government to declare a state of emergency in any area disturbed by the campaign against Malan's racial segregation program.

Swart said press interpretations of the bill and reports of it sent overseas make the name of South Africa "stink."

The press had engaged in unprecedented "recklessness" in its campaign, he said.

"When you have a bill, whose provisions are very clear, being so misinterpreted, then I can only ask if the time has not come when Parliament should take some sort of steps," Swart said.

Hockey Fans Save Youngsters In Blazing Home

THESSALON (CP) — A number of hockey fans plunged into the burning home of Mrs. Leonard Trivers Tuesday night and rescued the woman's three youngest children from flames.

An exploding oil heater was blamed for setting fire to the building where Mrs. Trivers, her elderly mother and six children were living, about six miles east of here.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO. (CP) — Synopsis: A disturbance developing over Missouri spread an extensive area of precipitation north to Lake Superior and eastward to Ohio and Kentucky early this morning. With this disturbance expected to move northeastward across Southern Ontario today and Thursday, the precipitation will spread across the province ahead of it. In most regions it will begin as snow occasionally mixed with freezing rain in the south. Slightly cooler weather and an end to the precipitation will follow in the wake of the disturbance Thursday.

DETROIT POLICE SHOOT HUSBAND IN LOVE FRACAS

Wifeand 'Other Woman' See Border Gun Battle

DETROIT (CP) — Thomas Gillard, 26, a former resident of Toronto, was wounded twice Tuesday night in a running gun battle with police at the Detroit end of the Ambassador Bridge which connects this city with Windsor, Ont.

The fracas started after Mrs. Mary Wadley, 25, ran from Gillard's car shouting that he was going to take her to Windsor to kill her.

Native of Toronto

Mrs. Gillard, 19, a native of Scarborough, a Toronto suburb, followed Mrs. Wadley into the toll booth, police said, and told the attendant they had changed their minds about going to Windsor.

Toll collector A. V. Drake, 31, of Windsor, said he was "convinced by the look the first woman's face" that she was in trouble. He called police.

Gillard was approaching the booth when police arrived. The constables said he fired "about five" shots at them before they wounded Gillard as he climbed up on a nearby wall. He broke his right ankle when he jumped or fell to the pavement 10 feet below on the other side of the wall. Hospital officials said his condition was "satisfactory." He was wounded in the back and in the right leg.

Mrs. Gillard later told police her husband forced her and Mrs. Wadley, the mother of two children, into his car at gunpoint and threatened to "drive across to the other side to settle this thing."

Mrs. Gillard told police she knew her husband was driving Mrs. Wadley to and from the plant where they both worked but she "thought there was nothing more to the case than that."

Says Threats Made

Mrs. Wadley said her acquaintanceship with Gillard had been "little more than a casual friendship."

Mrs. Gillard said she married Gillard in Scarborough three years ago. His parents, she said, resided in Toronto but she declined to give their names.

Mrs. Wadley said Gillard phoned her earlier in the day and told "me over the phone he would shoot me, his wife, my husband and my children if he couldn't have me."

"I think he was crazy. He kept telling me that he had a crush on me and that he was in love with me. I told him to forget the whole thing."

Gillard was deported from Canada last March after serving a jail sentence in Toronto. His wife lived in Windsor for several weeks until she got the necessary papers to follow him into the U. S.

4 Killed, 6 Injured In St. Louis Fire

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Four persons were killed and six were injured in an early morning rooming house fire in west St. Louis today.

There were 17 lodgers in the three-storey frame building when flames broke out about 2:45 a. m. CST. Some escaped by jumping from second- or third-storey windows.

BOY, 8, STRANGLED

EDMONTON (CP)—Eight-year-old Lloyd Newman strangled to death Tuesday night when his head was caught in a looped belt on a school-ground exercise bar.

Important Municipal Issues Face Ontario Legislature In Session Opening Thursday

TORONTO (CP) — The 1952 session of the Ontario legislature opens tomorrow, but a major part of its problems in the next six weeks will be municipal rather than provincial in nature.

With no highly controversial issue in sight, the chief items of business are expected to centre on the tangled problem of duplicated municipal services in the Toronto area, and the question of increased grants to municipalities.

The session, third since the last provincial election, will be opened origins of representative government in England.

Will Inspect Guard

Lieutenant - Governor Louis Beihonor and receive a 15-gun salute. He will then proceed to the legislature and read the speech from the throne, a preview of the government's policies and legislative plans.

The Progressive - Conservative administration of Premier Frost enters the session with a top-heavy majority to back up the legislation it will introduce. The Conservatives hold 79 of the 90 seats.

The official opposition is represented by eight Liberal members, led by Farquhar Oliver. The CCF party, which formed the opposition with 21 members before the last election, has only two seats, held by W. J. Grummet and T. D. Thomas. The Labor-Progressive party has a solitary member, J. B. Salsberg.

Large Govt. Majority

The government's majority is so large that only a small centre section of seats on one side of the House is filled by opposition members. They are flanked on either side by government back-benchers and face the cabinet and senior government members across the floor.

The make-up of Premier Frost's cabinet has been altered since the last session. The recent resignation of Thomas L. Kennedy as agriculture minister brought a shift in three posts.

The government probably will bring in legislation aimed at curing the ills of Toronto and its suburbs, which have been trying to reach an agreement co-ordinating their services for several years.

Opposes Amalgamation

The exact form this legislation will take is not known, but it is understood the government is opposed to amalgamation of Toronto and the neighboring municipalities.

It may follow along the lines of a metropolitan council recommended by a royal commission investigating the municipal problem. The council would have exclusive jurisdiction over the essential services of the municipalities, such as health, water and sewage, education, transportation and road construction.

The budget, generally introduced about midway through the session, is expected to be a "stand pat" fiscal policy, neither raising nor lowering taxes to any appreciable extent.

However, members likely will press for more aid to municipal governments, and provision may be made to boost grants beyond the record $119,000,000 figure set last year.

Little Change Anticipated

Little change is looked for in education grants, beyond a plan to assist parents financially in the training of backward children.

There has been pressure in several quarters for an amendment to the Vehicles and Highway Traffic Act raising the minimum age for drivers. Licences now are issued at the age of 16, and in special circumstances at 15.

Other legislation which will probably be introduced includes a revised Pharmacy Act, a move to overcome the shortage of beds in mental hospitals, and changes in child welfare legislation.

U.S. May Ask Allies to Join Tight Embargo on Shipments Now Being Made to Red China

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Eisenhower administration may ask U.S. allies to join in an embargo on all shipments to Red China as an alternative to proposals for a risky naval blockade.

This move was among those some highly-place administration officials thought might come before the strategy-making national security council for discussion at a White House meeting today.

State secretary John Foster Dulles, who told senators Tuesday that as far as he knows Eisenhower has made no Far Eastern commitments beyond his 7th fleet order, planned to attend.

Might Be Alone

One Republican official said a survey has indicated that the United States probably would be alone in any attempt to blockade the China coast and thus cut off shipments of goods to the Communists.

On the other hand, there was some belief in administration circles that the larger anti-Communist countries might be willing to expand the "strategic embargo" recommended against Communist China by a United Nations committee in May, 1951.

Although there has been a great deal of talk in Congress about instituting a blockade, military leaders have made clear any such action would involve risky possibilities of war.

Could Lay Blockade

Gen. Omar N. Bradley was quoted as having told the Senate foreign relations committee Tuesday that as far as international law goes, a blockade legally could be laid against Chinese ports and also against Russian - controlled Port Arthur and Dairen.

Bradley said this was true because China retains legal sovereignty over the ports. But he said British - held Hong Kong couldn't legally be tied up by a blockade directed against Red China.

To some congressmen, Bradley's testimony raised the questions: (1) whether a blockade would be effective without covering Russian-operated ports and (2) whether the Russians might create a war-stirring incident by continuing to send in their ships.

Sentiment in Congress appeared to be swinging toward efforts to get other free countries to join in a blockade.

Senator Homer Ferguson (Rep. Mich.) said he doesn't believe it would do any good to take the problem to the United Nations. He said Britain, France and others ought to be asked individually to join the move. Both countries have opposed any such plan.

Senator John Sparkman (Dem. Ala.) said he would "like to think that other nations might go along" with a blockade so as to "preserve the idea of united action against Red China."

Chairman Alexander Wiley (Rep. Wis.) discussed with the foreign relations committee the problem of speeding up delivery of aircraft and ammunition to the Chinese Nationalists on Formosa—freed for possible attacks on the mainland by Eisenhower's 7th fleet order. Wiley said he understood that arms-aid to Formosa is being stepped up.

Bradley was reported to have told the senators that unless production is raised, Formosa will not get all the supplies the Nationalists want because priority must be given to Korea.

Ottawa to Build 'Flying Saucer' To Travel 1,500 M.P.H., Paper Says

TORONTO (CP)—The Toronto Star says today in a dispatch from Ottawa that a 1,500-mile-an-hour "flying saucer" may be built at nearby Malton.

Its copyright newspage story says reports describe the proposed craft as being able to take off vertically, fly horizontally at about 1,500 miles an hour, and use the gyroscopic effect of a revolving power plant to acquire stability. It would be about 40 feet in diameter.

The paper says a wooden mock-up is reported to be behind tarpaulin screens in Avra Canada's experimental hangar at Malton, to which only holders of "super-security" cards are admitted.

"Reports have been so persistent and apparently authentic concerning the Canadian craft that Western scientists must consider the possibility that Soviet Russia has carried similar developments to a more advanced stage," the paper says.

Blueprints of the Canadian craft, which apparently remains in the category of pure research, are reported to have been studied by the British air ministry.

The story says two years will be needed to put prototype saucer in the air, in the opinion of a Canadian government scientist.

British sources say the saucer would have a gas-turbine engine of unconventional design revolving several times a minute around the pilot, who would sit in a plastic "bubble." The saucer's rim would remain stationary.

Holland Figures Flood Damage At $265 Million

THE HAGUE (AP) — Premier Dr. Willem Drees today estimated the damage caused by the disastrous floods in Holland at 1,000,000,000 guilders ($265,000,000).

Drees warned that the figure was a preliminary one. "Nobody can tell now how long it will take to repair the dikes, or the cost involved in strengthening the dikes," he said.

He asked Parliament not to bind the government to this provisional and rough estimate.

Drees said the damage "represents a serious blow to the Netherlands economy."

Drees said the extra burden on the Dutch economy would not influence Holland's defence commitments. The Netherlands is a member of the projected European Defence Community, a six-country army aimed at strengthening the West against communism.

GOVT. WINS TWO CONFIDENCE VOTES ON SASK. PROJECT

Will Not Move Quickly On $250,000,000 Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—The government has the backing of a Commons majority in its stand against moving quickly on the $250,000,000 South Saskatchewan irrigation-power project.

It won two votes of confidence on the issue in the House Tuesday, its supporters voting for the government on the showdown though some of them had called for stepped-up action.

In a debate that stretched through parts of three days, several western Liberals called for the dam and drew some backing from eastern party members after an office-to-office campaign in the Parliament Buildings. However there was a preponderance of Liberal approval of the government's attitude that it wants more information before acting.

Vetoed by Commision

Immediate construction of the project was vetoed by a royal commission that reported recently to the government. The commission suggested the cost at this time would outweigh benefits aimed at supplying power and irrigation to the dry southwest area of Saskatchewan.

The non-confidence motions in the government were initiated by the Progressive Conservatives and the CCF. They were defeated, respectively, by 123 to 58 and 136 to 61. In each case, a solid bloc of Liberals outweighed the three opposition groups.

The Progressive Conservative motion expressed regret that the government's annual estimates do not contain provision for construction of the dam. The CCF added that the dam had been recommended by engineers of the government's Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration.

After defeat of the CCF amendment Stanley Knowles, CCF whip, appealed to the government to accept the Progressive Conservative motion without regarding it as a non-confidence motion whose passage would topple the administration. However, this got no reaction from the cabinet.

Earlier in the debate, Liberals voicing support of the dam had said they would not vote for motions that—technically, at least—could overthrow the government.

Reds Threaten Berlin Blockade On Defence Pact

BERLIN (AP)—East Germany's Communists boldly threatened today to seal off West Berlin if the Bonn republic ratifies the European defence pact.

In a proclamation that amounted to an outright threat of blockade, the Socialist Unity (Communist) party of East Berlin said that "further isolation" is in store for the Red-surrounded city. It called for negotiations between the West and the Soviets to accomplish:

1. Withdrawal of all military garrisons from Berlin.
2. Abolition of the sector borders dividing the city.
3. Banning of "terror organizations."

Canada's Scottish-Born Senators Insist Queen Really Elizabeth I

OTTAWA (CP) — A Scottish-born senator who never lost the burr in his speech Tuesday night said that Queen Elizabeth is really Elizabeth I not Elizabeth II as described in the royal style and title.

Senator Thomas Reid (L-British Columbia) made the statement in the Senate during debate on a new style and title for the Queen. The bill setting out the wording for the royal style was given final approval. It already has passed the Commons and now needs only royal assent before becoming law.

Senator Reid was born at Cambuslang, Scotland, and came to Canada in 1909 at the age of 23. He said that Queen Elizabeth who reigned in England in the 16th century never was Queen of Scotland, nor was she Queen of Canada which at that time was still French territory.

(The crowns of England and Scotland were united in 1603 when James VI of Scotland became James I of England.)

He said that in the interests of historical accuracy these facts should be taken note of by those who framed the new royal style and title.

Another Scotsman, Senator Donald MacLennan (L-Nova Scotia) said Queen Elizabeth is really a Scottish queen, not English. She is a direct descendant of James VI of Scotland who became King of England when the line of English kings died out.

Senator MacLennan also said he is surprised that Senator R. B. Horner (PC-Saskatchewan) has made no protest about the wording in the royal style describing the Queen as "Defender of the Faith."

That was a title bestowed by the Pope on King Henry VIII. In view of that he had expected Senator Horner, who last year advocated abolition of separate schools, to move that the words be struck out.

Canada's Income Over 10 Billion For New Record

Gross Production Hits New High at 23 Billion

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's expanding labor force gathered in a total peak income of $10,855,000,000 in 1952, providing the main power to boost the total value of gross national production to a record $22,984,000,000.

The bureau of statistics, in a preliminary report, Tuesday estimated that wages, salaries and supplementary labor income jumped by more than a billion dollars in 1952 from the previous high of $9,732,000,000 in 1951.

This increase, along with other hoists in military pay, investment income and earnings of small businesses, helped overcome a drop in net income of farm operators to boost the value of all goods and services produced by $1,536,000,000 from $21,448,000,000 in 1951.

Production prices jumped four per cent, but volume climbed by six per cent as Canadians earned more and spent more to better their living standards.

Spending on consumer goods and services rose to a high of $14,290,000,000 from $13,234,000,000 in 1951. Government spending on goods and services at all levels increased to $4,211,000,000 from $3,201,000,000.

Accrued net income of farm operators from farm production declined by $255,000,000 to $1,861,000,000 from the 1951 high of $2,166,000,000.

And while wages and salaries increased, personal direct taxes jumped to $1,318,000,000 from $1,027,000,000 and indirect taxes—less subsidies—to $2,704,000,000 from $2,441,000,000.

Fighting Slows As Taylor Takes New Command

SEOUL (AP) — Fighting dwindled to patrol activity along the dreary 155-mile Korean battle front today as Lt.-Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor took command of the 8th army.

Taylor, a paratrooper general of the Second World War, became the fourth United Nations field commander in Korea. He succeeded Gen. James A. Van Fleet, who started home for retirement.

Tuesday night B-29 Superforts bombed a Red supply centre at Changamcham, less than 40 miles from the MiG base at Antung, Manchuria, and rail installations at Huichou.

The navy reported that carrier-based planes swept to within 12 miles of the Manchurian border in northeast Korea Tuesday. Pilots said they destroyed 40 buildings and four power transformer stations near Hoeryong, and damaged another transformer north of Chong-jin, 60 miles southwest of the Manchurian border.

Planes from the British carrier Glory roared in from the Yellow sea and pounded Communist targets including a headquarters building.

Whole Family To Jail Cells In Lad's Wake

HAMILTON, O. (AP) — This sounds a little like a chain letter—that led to the jail house.

At 5:30 p. m. Tuesday police arrested Conley Clemans, 15, for failure to have a driver's licence after the car he was driving struck a parked car.

Then it went like this:

6:35 p. m. — Conley's aunt went to police headquarters to inquire about her nephew. She was jailed for drunkenness.

6:50 p. m. — Conley's mother showed up at headquarters to inquire about the two others. The desk sergeant said she became abusive so she was locked up on a charge of disorderly conduct.

7:35 p. m. — Conley's father arrived at police headquarters to "talk things over." He was arrested on a charge of failing to register the automobile after telling officers the car was his property. The car had no licence plates.

Two Canadians Deny Murder Counts in U.S.

Maurice (Digger) O'Dell, 28, and Walter H. Griffen, 26, both of Hamilton, Ont., were ordered held in Erie county jail pending trial. No trial date was set.

The two Canadians were the subjects of the biggest border manhunt in years after Donald F. Hurd, 45, was fatally shot Dec. 9 during a daring daylight holdup of his jewelry store.

750 Bibles Placed in Cobourg Public Schools by Belleville Gideons

An unusual event occurred Sunday evening in Trinity United Church, Cobourg, when, through the services of the Belleville Camp of the Gideons, 750 copies of the Holy Bible and New Testaments were dedicated for placement in Cobourg's public schools.

The dedication of these books took place at a united service, the Baptists and Presbyterians closing down their churches in order to attend.

The service was under the direction of the Reverend E. C. Kelloway, minister of Trinity, and it was he who performed the opening exercise. Following this, the Rev. E. W. B. MacKay, of the Presbyterian Church, read an appropriate Psalm. Mr. Kelloway then called on President Robinson of the Belleville Gideons, who gave an outline of the work carried on by the local camp.

Stirring Demonstration

The message of the evening by Mr. William Caddell, of Toronto, Canadian treasurer of the Gideons, was a stirring demonstration of how God's Word, placed where it can be read by people in many vicissitudes of life, can be a means of spiritual and temporal blessing.

A token Bible was then presented to Mr. R. E. Gordiner, chairman of the Board of Education by Gideon Don Williams, and a token New Testament was presented to Mr. Grant Sine, principal of Cobourg public schools, by Gideon William A. Watson.

The Holy Scriptures were then dedicated in prayer by the Rev. A. G. MacDonell of the Baptist Church.

The enthusiasm with which this presentation was received was indicated by the large attendance at this service, and by the many personal expressions of gratitude to individual Gideons.

Gideon Memorial

After the service, the congregation gave a substantial offering toward the Gideon ministry and many folders explaining the Gideon memorial Bible plan were given out. This is a plan whereby Christians of all denominations, may place Bibles as an expression of sympathy and esteem upon the decease of a Christian friend or relative.

The Bible-placing ministry of the Belleville Gideons embraces the district between Cobourg and Deseronto, and north as far as No. 7 highway, as well as all of Prince Edward county.

For some years the works of the Gideons were confined to the placing of Bible in hotels, hospitals, prisons, and schools; but in 1946 a school testament program was undertaken whereby it is planned to offer a copy of the New Testament with the additional books of the Psalms and Proverbs to pupils in Grade 5 of all Canadian public schools. In excess of 625,000 such New Testaments have been presented, and the rate of placement is increasing year by year.

Dignified Display

Through the co-operation of funeral directors simple, dignified displays have been set up among the other tributes. Appropriate "In Memory" cards, bearing the names of those dedicating Bibles, form part of the display and one is given later to the bereaved. The Bibles so dedicated are placed by the Gideons as a continuing memorial in some institution, there to provide comfort, strength and spiritual guidance for the many who will make use of them.

Such memorial Bibles are being placed in the schools of the district continually, and were used in providing class room Bibles for the Cobourg schools.

Traffic Problems On Highways Depicted on Film

A movie portraying the congested traffic problems on Canadian highways and in the cities, entitled, "Road Block," and produced by the General Motors Company of Canada, was shown at the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club on Tuesday.

Dealing with the problem in a brief talk, D. F. Sandford of General Motors, pointed out there are more than 3,000,000 cars on Canadian roads. He explained the road construction had not kept up with the manufacture of autos. The speaker described road building in this country as being 10 years behind car manufacturing.

"Most of our highways," Mr Sandford said, "were built in the "20's" and have not been kept up since. They are simply dying of old age and there is not enough of them to avoid congestion today."

Giving as his reason why road building in the country has not kept up with the automobile industry, the speaker said, "In the late 1920's and early 30's the country was in the depths of depression, and all road building in the country ceased. A number of years later, the whole world was involved in a war and again construction of highways was halted. At the rate we are now progressing, it will be another 10 to 15 years before the number of roads become anywhere near adequate."

The film depicted scenes of congested traffic, repairs being done to old roads and on the brighter side, new highways under construction. The picture also explained a Trans-Canada Highway is not impossible and some portions are already under construction.

The speaker was introduced by Jack Bonn and thanked by Ralph Clapp.

The measure, to incorporate the Mercantile Bank of Canada, was explained briefly by Alan Macnaughton (L — Montreal Mount Royal) and then given second reading without discussion. It was sent to the Commons banking committee for further study.

The measure already has passed the Senate.

C. C. B. President Says Truly Rehabilitated Blind People Can Help in Many Ways

"If blind people are truly rehabilitated, they will do their best to assist their families, friends and communities," stated Mrs. W. C. Bending, president, The Canadian Council of the Blind, "That is why we have chosen for the theme of White Cane Week, 1953, 'I Would Help You.' "

When asked how blind persons could be expected to help the sighted, Mrs. Bending told how a couple where the husband was blind, solved the nightly problem of the dinner dishes. The husband, who wasn't very fond of washing dishes, enjoyed reading, so suggested that if his wife would wash the dishes, he would read her a story in Braille, while she worked. Not every blind person reads Braille well enough to make a similar arrangement, but all can find some way to help in the home.

The C.C.B. president went on to tell of a blind woman who was given the task of directing a candy sale in aid of a Sunday School. She did very little of the work, but brought to the task her personal enthusiasm, and organizing ability, which, together with the active support of all who helped, resulted in a very successful project.

Mrs. Bending further stated that this complete co-operation can be achieved only when blind and sighted alike reach a closer understanding of the other's viewpoint. Through its service program, The Canadian National Institute for the Blind is constantly striving to assist sightless Canadians in their effort to take their rightful place in home and community. Through its member clubs, The Canadian Council of the Blind constantly seeks to encourage blind people to develop a social and recreational life and to become more acutely conscious of the problems of their fellow blind.

"Each year, during White Cane Week, these two national organizations, join forces to tell their seeing friends about the co-operative success of the blind, and to develop better understanding of their problems. The 1953 slogan "I Would Help You" might well be a permanent one. It reminds the blind that they must not always be the recipients of kindness and, at the same time, expresses appreciation to the public for past courtesies and consideration."

CHOKES ON TEETH

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A house painter was taken to hospital after his false teeth lodged in his throat in a tavern yesterday. A waitress, Mrs. Elsie Smith, said she saw Albert Tate choke and turn blue in the face. He threw his head back and she spotted his upper plate lodged in his throat. Mrs. Smith said she pulled out the plate. Tate was in good condition in hospital.

Miss M. Bishop Energetic Pres. White Cane Club

Miss Margaret Bishop, president of the White Cane Club, was born in Gananoque, and at an early age attended sight saving classes. A magnifying glass and books with large print were used in her studies.

In December 1949, she was registered with the Canadian Institute for the Blind. The district home teacher then began to teach her Braille writing, typing and other handicrafts. In 1950 she went to Toronto for training in canteen management, after which she came to Belleville and now is employed at the Belleville General Hospital.

Since coming to Belleville Miss Bishop has been a member of the White Cane Club, and has joined in the various activities, and now she has been awarded the presidency of the club for 1953.

This month the White Cane Club of Belleville is celebrating its third anniversary. The club was formed to provide a few social and recreational activities for the Blind of Belleville and district.

A regular monthly meeting at the Y.M.C.A. is held where they discuss coming events and other business. The meeting is presided over by the capable president, Miss Margaret Bishop. Usually entertainment is provided by talented persons who have been invited to the club by the program convener, Clarence Morris. The ladies of the Kinette Club of Belleville serve refreshments at each meeting.

At the present time the main function of the club is bowling, which is enjoyed one evening a week. Similar to other bowling leagues trophies are awarded.

Other highlights of the year are the annual summer picnic at which competitive games are played, etc., and the Christmas dinner provided by the Rotary Club of Belleville.

The topic of interest to the Blind of this district at present is the new Service Centre that is to be built at Kingston, Ont., which will provide better facilities, to rehabilitate the blind of Quinte and St. Lawrence districts.

Council Approves Building Permit For Boxing Club

TRENTON (Special) — At a special meeting of council last night the Jack Zigman Boxing Club was granted a permit to renovate premises on Beninck street for club headquarters. A petition signed by 25 people had held up the permit for some time and council only gave approval with the provision that certain conditions be met by the boxing club. All children must leave the premises by 8 p.m.; liability insurance must be carried by the club covering all members; a member of the Trenton Recreation commission must sit on the boxing club committee.

The club plans to start renovating immediately. Close to $8,000 will be spent on the building. The opening is scheduled for April.

The plans call for installation of complete equipment for training, a sparing ring, speedbags, weights for exercising, skipping ropes, television, snack bar and locker space.

Boys from Trenton and the district will be eligible to join at a small fee.

Masonic Reception

A reception in honor of Rt. Worshipful Brother Jerald W. Anderson of Belleville, district deputy Grand Master was held at the Masonic Temple here last night. Toastmaster of the evening was Worshipful Brother W. H. Bradshaw. The toast to the Grand Lodge of Canada in the Province of Ontario was proposed by Very Worshipful Brother V. P. Carswell. Right Worshipful Brother W. J. Andison, responded. A toast to the guests was proposed by Worshipful Brother D. McMaster and responded to by Rev. Brother S. E. Larman, district chaplain.

Thanks to the ladies was proposed by Worshipful Brother Harry Sager.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry R. Cory, 29 Deloraine Avenue, Toronto, are celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary today. Mr. Cory was mayor of Trenton, for years. He is in the financial business in Toronto.

Eastbound C.N.R. trains were slowed through here early today while block signals were under repair. The Montreal passenger trains were delayed ten minutes on a slow order passing the upper station.

An official of the Trent Valley Hockey League announced yesterday that the league playing schedule will wind up this week and on Sunday the executive will draw up the playoff schedule.

POLICE BLOTTER

To win a case of beer at a raffle and then be charged by police for having it in his possession was the experience last night of a local resident. While he was carrying the beer to his car parked nearby he was spotted by police and was later charged.

Police were called to quell several family disturbances during the night, while three young men were apprehended for causing a disturbance at a local restaurant.

City dog catcher Charles Thorn was called to shoot a cat which had suffered serious injury to its face apparently as result of an accident. The cat had hidden itself in an inaccessible spot and the dog catcher used a .22 rifle to put the animal out of its misery.

UNDUE ANXIETY

In the last few days quite a few Canadians have been set to wondering about a new war situation having been created as a result of the recently stated Eisenhower policy in respect to Formosa and American aid to Chiang's Chinese Nationalists.

This feeling of anxiety has been heightened by a rash of speculation and comment in political circles both in the United States and in Great Britain which does not come from authentic government spokesmen either in Washington or London.

The more alarming statements have come from some would-be military strategists in the U.S. and Labor opposition circles in Britain who are primarily interested in embarrassing the Churchill government. And from the Canadian standpoint the prospects of a new danger developing have not been allayed in the professed concern felt in Ottawa over a situation which even the British Foreign Office viewed rather calmly.

Mr. Anthony Eden expressed the official view of the Churchill government when he emphasized in the House of Commons that the Eisenhower policy freeing Formosa from neutrality and permitting the Chinese Nationalists to undertake independent action against the Chinese mainland did not represent any aggressive designs on the part of the United States nor could it be regarded as any "enlargment" of the war in Korea. Nothing has changed since that statement was made.

There have been, of course, many speculative reports about what the United States might do, or what some feel that it intends to do to assist Chiang in carrying the war more directly against the Chinese Reds.

Last week the opinion was expressed in this column that the new policy was not an alarming change in the situation because of the fact that the Nationalists have not been restricted by the so-called neutrality for some time past. This week, the veteran Canadian Press correspondent in Korea, Bill Boss, is back home again, and in the course of CBC interview Monday night said he had reported from Formosa last March that the Nationalists were raiding the Chinese mainland It was such reports as these we had in mind in pointing out that actually no change in the situation was indicated by the Eisenhower statement.

Boss states quite frankly that the freeing of Formosa from neutrality has simply "made the situation honest." Britain has known, he said, that neutrality was not being enforced, and has been able "to accept the fiction that 'pirates' have been intercepting her shipping in these waters knowing well that they were Nationalists."

It would be quite a different matter of course if the United States should undertake a blockade of the Chinese mainland. But we can rest assured that no action of this kind is likely without consultation with Britain and other UN allies. And the situation would be a good deal less confused for Canadians if our own External Affairs Department were to put a more realistic interpretation of the Korean war on the record.

For all that we are merely committed to the defence of Korea under the United Nations the fact is that we are at war with the Red Chinese. And while the UN action against the Chinese Reds is confined to Korea it is also a fact that the Chinese Reds themselves have enlarged the war in the East. President Eisenhower summed it up when he said: "—it is clearly part of the same calculated assault that the aggressor is simultaneously pressing in Indo-China and Malaya . . ."

When Canadians realize that there is no way in which we can rationally limit our thinking to Korea in our very real war against the Reds, we recognize that our position has not changed one iota since the Eisenhower statement on Formosa. And we cannot believe that Mr. Pearson seriously believes that it has, either .

A PLACE FOR COMPETITION

It is refreshing to see that the one room country school house is still considered worthy of respectable mention in a discussion of education problems, and particularly so when the reference is made by the Ontario Minister of Education.

Hon. W. J. Dunlop might have been suspected of suiting his words to his audience when he told a convention of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture recently "that this class of school has produced some of the greatest thinkers of our generation." We say that Mr. Dunlop might have been suspect, but for the fact that he is a veteran educationist who knows whereof he speaks and has made no apology for his "old-fashioned" notions about schooling since he became head of the Department of Education little more than a year ago.

Pupils get a chance to think in the one room country schools, says Dr. Dunlop. When the teacher is devoting attention to one grade, the pupils of the other have their chance to think for themselves. It is under these conditions, on their own, that students do their best work, learn the value and the results of study.

"Let the children compete and try to get to the head of their classes. It is good for them," says the Minister of Education. These are views that find little favor with those who have had the most to do with designing the formula for education in the schools of this province in recent years. The notion has been sponsored that competition in classrooms is a bad thing. It is claimed that a system of competition develops superiority or inferiority complexes which may handicap the student in adult life. And with these claims there has been a whole range of new teaching attitudes which have left many parents skeptical and annoyed.

Dr. Dunlop can be assured that he has quite a few supporters when he states: "Competition is the life and inspiration of us all. We're going to keep it in the school." And that support is made doubly sure when it comes from a Minister of Education who took over his job with the declaration a year ago that the time had come in this province when our schools get along with fewer frills and more attention to the old-fashioned virtues of the three R's in classroom instruction.

"For every thing you have missed, you have gained something else; and for every thing you gain, you lose something."—Emerson.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

As far as telephone switchboards are concerned, there are two kinds of business. In one, you get the man you want without delay. Or his secretary. In the other, you might as well try to wangle your way into Buckingham Palace. And the funny part of it is, those businesses that really are not of much importance to the world are those in which the personnel, particularly the Upper level, are sequestered and faithfully shrouded by the gal at the switchboard.

Yesterday, I made two calls in succession. One was to a book publishing house. It really isn't a publishing house, the vast bulk of its business is merely importing books published in the United States and Britain. But, oh, how grand and remote must be its management! The enquiry I had to make was sufficiently involved as to require a reasonable statement of it. Not knowing any of the names of the grandees, I merely asked for the manager. The switchboard girl froze me in my tracks. What was the nature of my business? I explained it to her. There was a considerable silence. Then another girl came on the phone and asked me to repeat the particulars. I do so, asking if she were the manager's secretary. No, she was not. And in a couple of minutes, it was obvious that she was not competent to give me the information I needed. I then requested that if I could not venture to approach the manager, could I please speak to perhaps a mere assistant manager, or maybe the sales manager or his deputy? This was obviously sheer presumption: for a third girl came on — not a girl, but a lady of some intellectual standing, for she quizzed me most shrewdly and legalistically as to what I wanted. Since she could not supply the information, I was finally admitted to the telephonic presence of the manager's secretary. And when I bellowed, she promptly put me onto her boss. And though obviously startled at this intrusion, he gave me my information immediately and gladly. For it was to his profit.

The other call was to the president of one of the biggest retail stores in North America. I got him first crack.

JUST FOLKS

LIFE'S RICHEST ASSET

Of all the various forms of wealth
The richest asset known is health,

Who has it to the world can say:
"I am equipped for come what may."

Yet, differing from bonds and stocks,
Health can't be kept in vault or box.

But, like them (as so many do)
Health can be rashly squandered, too,

And, paying folly's bitter cost,
Is little valued till it's lost.

A tip: health pays no dividends
After the strength to earn them ends.

In Spending a Day at Home

(New York Times)

There is a virus, or perhaps just the common cold, which every now and again permits the head of the house to spend a day at home. It could even be that contemplation of the type of work on which he would be engaged that day permits this stay at home. No matter. The virus or the cold or the whatever is nothing that a good breakfast, taken immediately after the decision to remain at home, will not cure. By 9 o'clock, propped up by pillows in his bed the head of the house feels fine. There is a newspaper to be studied, a novel to be read, and there also is a complacent assurance that at suitable intervals someone will bring him fruit juices, tea or bouillon. The outlook, in short, is splendid. The outlook is so cheerful, indeed, that he decides almost at once to enter into the routine activities of the house, giving untold aid through the excellence of his advice. Many routine things are done in not the easiest way, as he can see at once, and about many more there is great room for improvement. This is not meddling, although late in the afternoon they are inclined to call it that; this is just considerate co-operation.

First off he hears downstairs the sounds of sweeping. This is a good sound, a soothing sound to one lying in bed. Ever wishing to be helpful, however, he throws off lassitude long enough to call down that he had noticed the cushions of the sofa needed cleaning and the bric-a-bric on the mantle needed dusting. As an afterthought, he suggests that perhaps the windows could stand washing, since the smoke in a winter closed room clouds them quickly. Unless she particularly wants to do it now, the cellar he will clean himself as soon as he is able to be up and about again. Satisfied with the assistance he has given, the head of the house returns to his book, not noticing that from the pace of the broom the cleaner seems to be in something of a fury. But he has forgotten something, another message is called down. Had anyone noticed the dog hairs on the living room chair, and did no one beside himself try to train the dog to lie on the floor? The broom beat goes faster.

Later in the morning, and still anxious to be of help, he takes time out from his reading in order to assist in planning the meals. This begins with a casual question about the day's proper luncheon for an invalid. When the menu is reported to him he revises it slightly, substituting heavier items for those which quite clearly would leave a man famished. From the day's luncheon it is a natural step to go on and review the evening's dinner, and from there to the offering of excellent suggestions for all the rest of the meals for the week. It is only during a day at home that the head of the house can find time to recall some of those dishes which once were most pleasing, and to suggest various experiments to remove meals from the commonplace. It is true, perhaps, that as he offers up his suggestions the cook sits with a glassy, set stare, but cooks always have been noted for a certain degree of stubbornness and lack of initiative. The head of the house feels pleased at having been a service.

By early afternoon, the virus having spent itself the invalid feels strong enough to get up and wander around a bit. He is not strong enough to shave or to clean the cellar, but is quite able to give the best of advice. Sometimes, late in the afternoon, much of this seems to be deeply resented. It appears only logical to assume that if the slipcovers are in need of dry cleaning this fact should be pointed out to the responsible authorities. It seems only logical, too, to suggest those few changes in furniture arrangements which will make the living room far more comfortable. And just before dinner, when the cook is in the kitchen, it not only is logical but also is friendly to join her there and, seated comfortably, aid in the cooking. A little thyme will help season one dish, a little vinegar in the water will help another. Home for the day, however, the head of the house had best not let his cup of tea lie unattended on the kitchen table. There are too many things that might be dropped into it, and, at the end of this day, not the things customarily used for seasoning.

Lone Ranger's Twenty Years

(Newsweek Magazine)

The Lone Ranger rides Silver into their third radio decade this week. The masked savior of the West has been shouting "Hi Yo Silver" since Jan. 30, 1933; and since 1949 has been vanquishing the same outlaws on TV.

George W. Trendle, the 68-year-old Detroit businessman who created the Lone Ranger, has parlayed his idea into many lucrative sidelines (comic books, records, and 60 items of merchandise) over the years, but he has steadfastly maintained the character of his range-riding brain child. According to a friend of Trendle: "The Lone Ranger does not cough or make a move without Trendle putting it in the script or okaying it." In 1933 Tresdle decided that he "intended to give the youngsters a great deal of action and excitement without arousing unwholesome desires and instincts,' and he also wanted to "teach patriotism, tolerance, fairness and a sympathetic understanding of fellow men and their rights and privileges." To make sure that his hero would corrupt no children, Trendle has set up a list of laws for his writers. Among the rules:

"The Lone Ranger believes that our sacred American heritage provides that every individual has the right to worship God as he desires."

"The Lone Ranger never makes love on radio, television, in movies, or in cartoons." (Other characters in the Ranger's ensemble are allowed romance, but it is "clean.")

"He is a man who can fight great odds, yet take time to [illegible] a bird with a broken wing."

"The Lone Ranger never smokes, never uses profanity, and never uses intoxicating beverages."

"The Lone Ranger at all times uses precise speech, without slang or dialect. His grammar must be pure. He must make proper use of 'who' and 'whom, 'shall' and 'will,' and 'I' and 'me,' etc."

"The Lone Ranger never shoots to kill. When he has to use guns, he aims to maim as painlessly as possible."

"Play down gambling and drinking scenes as far as possible, and keep the Lone Ranger out of saloons. When this cannot be avoided, try to make the saloon a cafe —and deal with waiters and food instead of bartenders and liquor."

The rules have worked. The oldest Western on the air, the Lone Ranger still tops the ratings of any other holstered hero on radio or TV. And 52 per cent of the audience is composed of adults.

Acadian Pioneers

(Ottawa Citizen)

A new memorial at Pubnico near Yarmouth, N.S., a reminder that European settlement in the Maritimes had begun as early as colonization in the St. Lawrence Valley. Though development of the two French regions was closely parallel, the Acadians might claim to have been the pioneers. But now that Newfoundland is a province of Canada some of its islanders may be able to show descent from settlers in the 16th century British hamlets, making French-speaking Canadians comparative newcomers.

The Tadoussac trading post was established in 1599, and Champlain founded Quebec in 1608, but no oxen drew plows through the soil of the St. Lawrence Valley until after 1625. Meantime Champlain, with de Monts and Poutrincourt, had built the abitation at Port Royal in 1605, and there in the great dining hall the Order of Good Cheer held banquets that the dramatist Lescarbot compared favorably to those of Paris. Port Royal soon fell to Argall's New England raiders. But Charles de la Tour kept his post at Cape Sable, and French colonists began farming the rich lands of the Annapolis Basin.

Acadia survived the vicissitudes of war, and in 1651 Sieur Phillippe d'Entremont founded Pubnico, which became a barony. One of his numerous descendants, the late H. Leander d'Entremont, raised the first monument at Centre East Pubnico in 1930. The new memorial brings the Acadian story up to date, for the local branch of the Canadian Legion [illegible] placed on it a plaque bearing the names of Acadians who died in two world wars.

After their expulsion from Nova Scotia in the middle of the 18th century, many Acadians returned from exile in far places, though others remained in Louisiana. Their descendants today are a large element in the populations of Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, and especially New Brunswick. As a permanent colony, the Acadians probably took root a little earlier than did settlement in the trading empire of the St Lawrence.

Personal Health Talks

LATEST REMEDY FOR H.B.P.

It has been months, maybe a year, since the last query about the use of garlic or a garlic derivative of some sort as a remedy for high blood pressure. No doubt just a plain coincidence. Repetition of a yarn about it in some publication will probably revive interest in the remedy and sell a lot of garlic pills.

Among the projects upon which a county heart association is spending $90,000 (contributions) are these studies:

1. Effect of lack of oxygen in development of heart failure.

2. Value of a new drug (named in the newspaper report) in treatment of high blood pressure.

Well, here we go again. It seems as though I'm always carping.

The heart fund campaign has become one of the innumerable annual drives for contributions from the public. As you would imagine, I haven't contributed a red cent to the fund and it is not likely that I shall contribute. I know other projects where I feel the money does more good, projects to which I can hand the money directly, without advice, direction or approval of any agency.

All this money the heart association collects to spend on projects may, indeed I hope it does enable doctors to acquire new knowledge and greater skill in the prevention and treatment of heart disease. But in my browsing in current medical literature and my hasty glances at some of the voluminous propaganda distributed by the heart association I have not found convincing evidence that the money is doing so.

Take these two projects just mentioned, for example. I have always regarded lack of oxygen and heart failure as synonymous. That is, lack of oxygen is heart failure or at any rate heart failure is lack of oxygen. Oh, well, let it go—the more one tries to distinguish between them the more confusing its becomes.

So far as the new drug for treatment of high blood pressure is concerned, a grant for such study may enable some doctor or protege to prepare a neat paper for publication, but we must remember high blood pressure occurs as a symptom of numerous conditions and it is as absurd to imagine any particular medicine, new or old, would improve, correct or cure it as it would be to imagine this or that medicine improves, corrects or cures high temperature, rapid pulse, shortness of breath, cough or weakness regardless of what ails the patient.

If what I say here offends anybody I'll be sorry—sorry anybody can take offence, but glad I said it, glad for your sake.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

Too Much Vitamin C?

Have drank a glassful of orange juice for two years, and sometimes I drink prune and grapefruit juice the same day. Can one get an overdose of vitamin C from taking too much orange juice? (Miss H. C.)

Answer—No. If I liked fruit juices I'd drink all I wanted.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

IGNORANT OF WEAKNESS

I was interested in Edward R. Murrow's analysis of the attitude of the English people during the dark days when their small island was being bombed almost to destruction. He stated in his published book "This I Believe" that, "in part it was ignorance of their own weakness" that held them firm.

Perhaps it is because so many of us do not recognize our own weaknesses that we go on and on in a divine belief that assures us final triumph in whatever we engage. Certain it is that a secret, hidden power often absolves us of all ignorance of our weaknesses when many an emergency in life arrives. Thus is heroism demonstrated!

I meditated upon my first trip across the Great Salt Lake, in Utah, upon a railroad bridge. It was constructed by E. H. Harriman, who was told by his engineers that it could not be done, on account of the quicksand that made supports impossible. But Harriman answered: "Go ahead and build it anyway!" So it was done. Great men are usually ignorant as to their weaknesses. That's why they do so many "impossible" things.

There are some people who spend so much time thinking about their weaknesses, and meditating upon them, that they become utter failures. Other people are quite given to the discovering of weaknesses in us, but if we can only remain ignorant of them we are apt gradually to overcome them, or pass them unknowingly into oblivion!

In an emergency people have risen to do things they never dreamed as possible, largely because they were ignorant of their weaknesses. When we go to a Doctor he listens to us and makes notes on what we tell him, but he tells us little. He keeps us in ignorance so as to build confidence in us, without worry.

People have lived to ripe old age without knowing anything about a faulty organ that might have taken them away years before had they only known. More times than we realize ignorance has proved to be a blessing!

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

SIGNIFICANCE IN THE TENSES

In the Book of Revelations, the song of the angels is that the kingdoms of this world "have become the Kingdoms of our God and His Christ." Note the tense used—"have become."

We talk very often about the coming of the kingdom of God. The Bible teaches that it is already here. It is established. To be sure it is only a beachhead. Jesus referred to it as leaven, as a mustard seed, as good wheat among the tares, as a field containing all manner of good and bad growth. But the point is that it is already established. Jesus Christ came into the world chiefly for three purposes—first, to make possible the forgiveness of our sins; second, to teach us how to live; and third, to establish the kingdom. He died crying out, "It is finished." What did he mean by this? He meant that the things he had come to do had been completely and divinely accomplished; and one of these things was the establishing of the kingdom of God.

The Bible does ot teach that this kingdom will continue to grow until at last we have perfection upon the earth. The unmistakable Scripture message is, that at some time in world history a cataclysmic change will take place, and what has begun here and has been growing through the ages will be consummated with heavenly glory.

The Kingdom is here—the kingdom in its final and complete glory is still to come.

Weddings

WINSTANLEY—SPENCER

A quiet wedding was solemnized on Tuesday, February 10, at 7:00 p.m., at the parsonage of Tabernacle United Church, Belleville, by the Rev. R. A. Rowley, pastor of the church, when Reta M. Spencer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Huffman, Belleville, was united in marriage to John R. Winstanley, of Belleville.

Mrs. H. L. Outingdyke attended the bride, while Mr. Outingdyke attended the bridegroom.

AUSTIN—DANFORD

St. John's Anglican Church, Madoc, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Monday, February 9, at 12:30 p.m., when Ruth Gwendoline Danford, of Madoc, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel William Danford, became the bride of Gerald Austin, of Springbrook, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Austin. The Rev. T. H. Good, rector of the church, officiated before a lovely background of gladioli and chrysanthemums, interspersed with ferns.

Mr. Ronald Robertson rendered the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. A. Adams, who sang "Because", and during the signing of the register, "I'll Walk Beside You".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her bridal gown of ivory satin and white Chantilly lace. She wore a fingertip veil accented with pearls and carried a nosegay of roses and 'mums.

Miss Marguerite Danford, of Toronto, sister of the bride, was the only attendant, wearing an attractive gown of shot mauve taffeta and carrying a nosegay of mixed flowers.

Mr. Maurice Austin, of Belleville, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, while Mr. Douglas Danford, brother of the bride, and Mr. Barry McCann, acted as ushers.

Following the reception, which was held in the parish hall of the church, where the bride's mother, wearing navy Ottoman cord with corsage of red roses, received the guests, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was gowned in navy crepe with white accessories and corsage of red roses, the young couple, left for a wedding trip to Montreal and Niagara Falls. For travelling, the bride chose a winter green suit with corsage of daffodils. Mr. and Mrs. Austin will reside at 147 North Vidal Street, Sarnia, Ontario.

Out-of-town guests were present from Belleville, Peterborough, Toronto, Springbrook, Ivanhoe, Sarnia, Buffalo and Norwood.

Letters from Mexico

By Arnold Meyers

Hotel Oasis, Tehuantepec,
January 7, 1953.

Dear Mother and Dad:

So much of importance has happened since last I wrote from Puebla that I scarcely know where to begin. Much of it concerns the people that I have met. I am writing this letter by candlelight as the lights of this place are apparently not very dependable.

While in Puebla I met a man and his wife and son who were travelling to Vera Cruz from the States. This man, a short, fat fellow, came up to me in the hotel lobby and said, "Say, didn't I see you at the Pyramids and at Cholula and some other place; may I ask where you are from?" So we made ourselves known to each other.

This man had been staying at the Hotel Arronto as I had, and said he —nearly froze to death—shook so in bed that the whole bed rattled—that's the truth!" Well, for a fact, Puebla, for two days, was cold. I wore my winter underwear to bed and had four spreads on the bed. I want no more of Puebla!

Tremendous Drops

The ride to Oaxaca was simply terrific. It beats, by far, anything I have thus far experienced. Fred Dorin wants to go over this road, if he really wants experience. Many of th sheer cliffs are colored red, green or yellow and the drops are tremendous.

Oaxaca is a wonderful city. Its people are so mild mannered and kind. Many Americans stay here for months and one may see some of them at almost any time out in front of the main hotel which has an open air restaurant arranged so that one may sit and eat in the sun, or in the shade, as the temperature demands.

The climate in Oaxaca is very nice on the whole. It is, of course, cool up to nine o'clock in the morning, but gets hot after that. The nights are not particularly cold. Altitude is just over 5,000 feet. Had a nice hotel for same old price, $10, but eating was cheaper.

Last Sunday I set out to go to Mitla—by bus —and on arriving at the village noticed a well-groomed, gentlemanly young man getting off the bus. He turned as I walked up and greeted me with a smile, saying, "Hello, are you doing it this way, too?" "Yes," I replied, and we decided to go along to view the ruins together. This was a most fortunate meeting because it was destined to play a vital role in my enjoyment of Oaxaca and Tehuantepec.

Year's Tour

This fellow is from England and is on a year's tour of Mexico, Central America and South America with all expenses paid by the British government. It is a travelling scholarship. Lucky fellow! He has a year's leave of absence from his job in the British Department of Foreign Trade, and is touring these countries with an object of industry on export trade. He is writing a report on same and permits me to read a part of it.

Martin Ham is a graduate of Cambridge and speaks Spanish fluently, as well as Italian and French. I would say that he is a born linguist. He would often buy a newspaper and read extracts of it to me. Reminds me so much of John, in his speech. He was a great help to me many a time when I did not know the words.

Sees Puppet Show

We roamed around all over Oaxaca and I might venture to say that we did the place up like it has never been done before. The point is that he suggested things that I alone, would never have imagined. For instance, we went to see a puppet show which was in four acts and was quite good.

Night time in Oaxaca is just like a midway — children's rides going; games of chance in progress, like our bingo; music everywhere; everyone liking it and enjoying themselves. Everyone is trying to sell something, it seems. You shake your head so much that you wonder if you will do it in your dreams.

Certain vendadores (sellers) make a kind of crisp flat pastry which tastes very nice and this is sold on a plate. It is the custom on festive occasions after eating the pastry, to smash the plate on the pavement. On this night of January 6th—the Mexican Christmas—and the anniversary of the visit of the three kings—there was more broken crockery all over the street than one could imagine. Every few minutes you hear a crash! There goes another plate!

Christmas Parade

After dark a parade formed, led by Oaxaco's fine band and the main feature of the parade was a large float depicting Joseph and Mary, the Christ child and angels and the adoring kings. All these were young children and the whole effect most beautiful.

On all such occasions, they set off fireworks, skyrockets and Roman candles. We went through just about every church in the city and took time exposures in color in several. It is curious how many things we had in common. Each of us had two cameras; each carried a handbag or sack; each wore glasses.

In Oaxaca, Martin was able to talk to the minister of agriculture for Oaxaca state and he very kindly arranged to take us on a tour of an "Yido" or collective farm. These farms represent Mexico's furtherest advance in agriculture which still leaves much to be desired.

Collective Farming

In this collective farming picture, each man works,—but does not own personally,—about one and one-third acres of land. From this small amount, together with a few hens, and in some cases, pigs and cows, he makes his entire living, such as it is.

Most of them now use steel plows, drawn by oxen, although I noticed some using a wooden plow. There is no attempt made to roll the land—result, huge lumps of sun-baked clay which are wasted. There is no rotation of crops as yet, but the minister of agriculture is trying to get them to do this, which is an uphill job, so backward are the peasants.

It is interesting to note that this man attended Upper Canada College and won two prizes there in 1910. He likes Canada very much and wished that we each would inform our Embassies that all Canadian and British visitors to his "Yido" (pronounced ek-ee-do) would be welcomed with the utmost pleasure.

They have cleaned up their dairy, but on the other hand, the cows are milked and fed only about 30 feet both from the dairy and the main eating place on a verandah where we were offered "refrescos" and a plate of Mexican tomatoes with cheese and avocados. I was afraid to look. You can imagine the flies. Will tell you about this episode later.

Quinte Skating, Tennis Club Completes Plans For Ice Carnival

The regular meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Quinte Skating and Tennis Club was held Tuesday. Mrs. F. C. Miller, president, presided.

Plans were completed for the Valentine tea to be held at the Masonic Temple this month.

During the afternoon of the tea, the winning tickets will be drawn on the Royal Doulton figurine, "Blithe Morning".

Late in March, the Auxiliary will have a rummage sale at the Armouries.

Excitement rules supreme at the skating club where members, from tiny tots to seniors, are practising diligently for their numbers in the ice show to be held at the Arena at the end of the month.

Club Activities

THE FOUR M'S GROUP

Thursday evening, the "Four M's" group on the Ivanhoe charge held its meeting in Beulah United Church, with the president, Mr. Albert Twiddy, presiding.

Mrs. Harry Mayo conducted the worship service with Mrs. Vene Hagerman presiding at the piano. Mr. Twiddy read the Scripture, after which readings were given by Mrs. Mayo, a composition of her own, entitled "Our Church"; Mrs. Harold Holden and Mrs. A. Twiddy. A trio by the Rev. J. Tyson, Ernest Broadworth and J. B. Hagerman, was also enjoyed.

Mr. Tyson reported that he was getting a handbook which he considered would be quite helpful in the arranging of programs.

Mrs. Barnard had charge of the program period which consisted of readings by Ernest Holland; Wayne Barnard and Mrs. Barnard. The trio also favored with another selection, after which Mr. George Wood conducted a quiz game.

The next meeting will be held at Salem on February 20.

Refreshments were served following the close of the meeting.

THE PEE-JAY PALS

The Pee-Jay Pals of Bethel-Zion, have been having work meetings at Maple Leaf School and in the homes of Mrs. Clifford Ray, Mrs. Dick Cranston and Mrs. Roy Sills for their unit, "Sleeping Garments".

The girls recently made the covers for their record books. It was decided that each member would dress a paper doll in her own pyjama material to decorate her record book.

At this same meeting shell hemming, a scalloped finish, and faggoting, were learned.

All the pyjamas are now finished even to buttons and button-holes. The club work and the fellowship, found in working together, were greatly enjoyed by all the girls in this unit "Sleeping Garments".

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"I'm scarred for life," she wails —"and for what?"

A few weeks ago, a letter in this column told of a woman who believed herself in love with a close friend's husband. She and this man had been having secret meetings, and were at the point where, apparently, they were ready to divorce their respective mates and marry each other.

Apropos of this letter, I have heard from a number of women commenting on the situation and offering advice. All of them were of the opinion that the wife should remain with her own husband, and in more than one case this opinion grew out of the individual woman's own similar experience.

"From time immemorial, married women have been falling for that business of other men loving them, and I guess they will until the end of time. I should know. I was the well-known sap.

My best friend's husband and I were practically thrown at each other by the fact that we worked together at the same place. Result: he and I came to the sudden conclusion that we weren't either understood or appreciated by our respetcive mates. Little things that happened in the home to irritate me were magnified by me and my gallant boy friend gave me sympathy, and eventually we found ourselves declaring undying love for one another.

"Matters went on like this for over a year, clandestine meetings, etc., and then came the climax. My gallant Don told me he could not tolerate living with his wife any longer; that he was disgusted with the way she didn't take care of the house, and the children weren't being looked after properly. He compared her ways to mine, envying a lovely home I kept, and how happy I made my children, and kept saying what he wouldn't give for family life like mine.

"Please don't laugh, Miss Fairfax, but I swallowed it, bait, hook, line and sinker. I made the big decision, and the night I told gallant Don that I couldn't stand being separated from him any longer and that I was going to leave my husband because I couldn't stand living with him any more, I felt as though I had the world in my hands and could guide my own destiny in it. That night I dreamed of the new and wonderful life I was going to have.

"Well, Miss Fairfax, that same night gallant Don rushed home to his wife after leaving me, and on his bended knees cried and told her all about our affair, even telling her my name and every minute detail of our relationship. He begged her to forgive him and to give him a chance to prove that he would be a better husband and father if she would only take him back.

"She did, whether for the children's sake or because she loved him I don't know. But I do know what a price I have paid for allowing myself ever to forget that I was one man's wife and a mother. My husband hasn't any respect for me now, and my children are old enough to know the whole story, and I die a thousand deaths whenever they look at me.

"For over a year, I foolishly allowed myself to believe that I meant everything to my friend's husband. Then, when the pay-off came, I found out just how phony it all was. Now I know that men will fool around if they have the chance, but when it comes to a showdown, they want the decent, honest things that count in life—their wives, their children, and their homes.

"Friends who knew what I was doing warned me that I was playing with fire and would get burnt, but I scoffed. Now I'm scarred for life—and for what? Can you answer that?"

I wouldn't think of spoiling the effect of this letter by even trying to answer this question. It speaks so forcefully to all other women who may be "playing with fire" that it should be allowed to stand alone.

Special-Purpose Menu

Mary J. calls this her Television Meal. You can hold your plate in your hand, cut the meat with your fork, watch television and talk all at the same time. Believe me, she can do it too. And besides, you get an extra dividend: a wonderful pot of soup leftover for the next day—but don't forget or spurn the half parsnip. That last is a specific.

DIRECTIONS

MARY J.'S POTTED MEAT

(With soup dividend)

Two lbs. lean beef from upper shank, 1 lb. lean shoulder pork. Put on to cook in large pot with water at least five inches over surface of meat. Add 1 cut up onion, 1-4 of a turnip cut in tiny dice, 3 or 4 big stalks celery with leaves on, cut up; 3 or 4 carrots cut into tiny dice, 1-4 cup parsley, 1-2 parsnip cut into tiny dice. Now salting and peppering this is quite an experience for you add them and as you add you taste. Mary says you taste so much and add so much that your tongue is blistered for a week. (Her own words.) Anyway it needs lots of salt and pepper. Simmer all morning. If you really have it at simmering point it's all the better if you do it for 8 hours. Lift out the meat with the pancake shovel and on a large plate pull the meat into shreds with 2 forks. Strain out 2 cups of the liquid from the pot. Soak 1 tablespoon gelatin in 1-4 cup cold water, then dissolve it in the 2 cups hot liquid. Pour this over the meat. Pour into two molds to set and chill. Chill the left over soup, and then skim off fat. Add a little more water and heat for next day's lunch or supper. The sweetness of the parsnip is the secret of the success of this soup.

SCALLOPED POTATOES

Have ready a buttered casserole. Wash, pare and slice 6 potatoes—but as you pare slice them into casserole. When 2 are sliced have ready 1 1-2 tablespoons flour mixed with 1 teaspoon salt and 1-4 teaspoon pepper. Sprinkle 1-3 of this over first layer. Dot each layer with butter, using 2 tablespoons in all. Repeat 3 times. Pour in milk just to cover. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. until very tender and browned. (To make scalloped potatoes into a 1-course main dish add 6 sliced wieners—using 2 for each layer.)

LIME JELLY RING

Prepare a lime jelly dessert as directed on package, but use 2-3 cup less hot water. Add 2 tablespoons vinegar or lemon juice. Chill and when partially set add 1-2 cup each cottage cheese, wafer-thin cucumber and well-drained fresh grapefruit. Chill until set in ring mold. Unmold on large chop or salad plate. Serve mayonnaise in centre. Garnish with shredded lettuce and radish slices.

A popular variation of the above salad is to use lemon jelly dessert and 1 1-2 cups grated raw carrot and 1 1-4 cups drained canned pineapple instead of cottage cheese, cucumber and grapefruit. Never use fresh pineapple in a jellied mixture, for it won't jell.

PINEAPPLE BAVARIAN

Two tablespoons gelatin, 1-2 cup cold water, 1 20-oz. tin shredded pineapple, 1-2 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1-2 pint cream. Soak gelatin in cold water five minutes. Heat pineapple, add sugar, lemon juice and when boiling remove from heat, add soaked gelatin, stir until dissolved. Chill until it just begins to thicken. Stir, then fold in cream which has been whipped. Turn into bowl to chill and set. Serve in stemmed glasses topped with cherry.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. C. BEECKMAN

A shower to welcome a little girl to be adopted

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A friend of mine, who has no children, is adopting a 4-year-old child. The little girl has practically no clothes or toys to bring with her to her new home. I would like to know if it would be proper to give her a shower. Of course, she will have to buy so many things for this little girl, and will have to furnish a room for her. Also it seems to me fair to give a shower for her, as she has attended so many baby showers for her friends, given so many shower gifts.—B. F.

I think it is a wonderful plan . . . and certainly it would be proper . . . to give a shower to celebrate the arrival of this little girl into the hearts and home of your friends! You and a group of your friend's other intimate friends might buy a gaily-painted (pink for a little girl!) chest of drawers, and perhaps fill some of the drawers with little-girl clothes and accessories. Or of course each friend may bring an individual present.

The problem of names for mother-in-law and father-in-law

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have just become a mother-in-law. The only seeming problem is the proper mode of address for the parents-in-law. What is really customary and in good taste? Any advice you will give us (for this includes the other side of the families, too) will be deeply appreciated.—L. H.

This is a question that depends so much on the personalities and personal reactions of those concerned that it is practically impossible for an outsider to give a definite answer. Each family must work out for itself the title or name to be given to in-laws. If, for example, you and the other in-laws concerned are on the formal conservative side, you and they may wish to be called "Mrs. Hall," "Mr. Hall", at least until a more personal name is evolved. Or if you all have more or less an informal, contemporary feeling, you may prefer to be called by first names or by a long-used nickname. There's also the old-fashioned form sometimes chosen —"Mother Hall" and "Father Hall."

Usually a daughter-in-law or a son-in-law doesn't wish to use "Mother" and "Father" for parents-in-law, but instead use names which mean mother and father . . .for example "Dad", or "Mother Sara". The arrival of children in the family usually solves the name-problem if it isn't solved before: there's the endearing "Nanny" or "Granny", or sometimes an engaging pronunciation (really mis-pronounciation) of the name or title, or of a loving nickname.

"Miss" before little girl's name on an envelope

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When I address a greeting-card . . .for example, a birthday card or an Easter card or Christmas card. . . to a very little girl, say of 3 or 4 or 5 years of age, how should I address the envelope?—C.

RAISE SUNKEN TUG

PORT DOVER (CP)—Sinking of a Port Dover fishing fleet tug, the J. H. Misner, was caused by water flowing through a broken pipe in the bottom of the craft, H. H. Misner, Port Dover, said Sunday night. The tug, which capsized in 14 feet of water against a harbor dock Saturday, was raised that night. Mr. Misner said damage to the $20,000 vessel was slight.

Short-Lived Rebellion Put Down in Prison

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — A short-lived rebellion was put down at the state prison Monday night, and five guards seized by convicts as hostages were released unharmed.

Warden Virgil J. O'Malley said no prison property was damaged during the five-hour disturbance which broke out at 6:30 p. m. as the guards entered the segregation cellblock to serve the convicts their evening meal.

O'Malley said the hostages were seized to back up convict demands for changes in prison rules.

Doors to the 15 segregation cells were supposed to have been locked, but when the guards entered the corridor, the doors were suddenly flung open and the guards seized.

One of the prisoners used a knife; filed down from a heavy wire, to threaten the unarmed guards. Then they were pushed into a cell and held there.

The convicts in the segregation section of the cellblock then released five prisoners in the adjoining isolation section. Ten other convicts in isolation refused to join the rebellion and remained in their cells.

Present Demands

The prisoners called O'Malley to the cell door and presented their demands:

1. Extension of their exercise period from the present 2½ hours to three hours.

2. Regular sentences for time required in the segregation cells.

O'Malley said the prisoners thought they were placed in segregation for indefinite periods for violation of prison rules. He explained the time had been specified but the convicts had not been notified. He told each of the prisoners how long they would have to remain in segregation — ranging from two to seven months — and took the other demand under consideration.

After that the convicts released the guards and permitted themselves to be locked up.

The convicts in segregation are among the most hardened of the prison's 1,500 convicts. All have been placed there, or in isolation — an even stiffer punishment — for continued violation of prison rules.

CHATHAM (CP)—Robert McCullough, 24, injured in a highway accident Wednesday which claimed two lives, died in hospital Saturday. The accident occurred near St. Joachim, about 20 miles west of here, when a car in which McCullough and three other men were riding collided with a truck driven by Glenwood McGehan, 35, of Windsor, Wilfrid St. Jean, 37, and Omer Gagnier, 48, both of Tilbury, were the other victims.

FIRE GUTS SYNAGOGUE

WELLAND (CP)—Fire gutted the synagogue here Sunday, causing an estimated $15,000 damage. Firemen said they believed a cigaret butt thrown into garbage after a congregational supper started the fire. The Saturday night supper was held to raise funds for a new synagogue. The fire soon swept through the single-storey frame and stucco building.

RHEUMATIC PAIN
Can Be Costly!

"This winter I had to quit work because of rheumatic pain," writes Mr. T. Glofcheskie, Wilno, Ont. "I became fearful of being laid up as on a previous occasion with rheumatic pain. My pain became increasingly severe and spread from hip to ankle. Out of bed, the leg felt cold as though in cold water, so I stayed in bed. A friend persuaded me to take T-R-C's and I'm glad I did. In a short while I was relieved of my pain and was soon on the job again."

New Municipal Grant System Will Be Main Issue

TORONTO (CP)—A new municipal grant system and the Tor- be the two main issues facing members of the Ontario legislature, which opens Thursday.

A record $119,000,000 was given in grants last year and if there is any money left over from the budget, opposition members and Premier Frost's supporters will likely press for increased municipal aid.

It is considered unlikely that there will be much change in education grants, but some special grants can be expected in health. Most of them are expected to be in the form of unconditional ones to replace the conditional police and fire grants.

The government will go ahead with legislation on the metropolitan problem. It is silent on the proposed metropolitan council which may develop from the Cumming report, although it is expected that any such council will be elective from the start.

Premier Frost may set a record with his budget. It is unlikely that any taxes will be increased and equally unlikely that any will be decreased appreciably.

Other possible legislation includes a plan by the department of education to assist parents financially in the education of backward children and a change by the highways department in the minimum age for drivers.

The Pharmacy Act will be thoroughly overhauled and some move is expected to overcome the shortage of beds in mental hospitals. There may be some amendments and revision in child welfare legislation.

From the point of view of agricultural interests, it will probably be a quiet session, although farmers are expected to continue to fight against oil substitutes in dairy products.

TREATY TALKS BOG DOWN

LONDON (CP)—Hopes for early conclusion of a peace treaty with Austria faded Monday night when the four-power deputy ministers adjourned their talks without fixing a date for another meeting. The talks were resumed here Friday after a lapse of two years. However, they bogged down on an old dispute — Russia's insistence that Britain, the United States and France completely withdraw their shortened eight-point treaty draft.

CHILDREN DIE IN FIRE

MONTREAL (CP)—Two children died Monday night and their mother was taken to hospital suffering from burns and shock when fire destroyed their home in suburban Ville Jacques Cartier. Dead are Monique DeMarest, 4, and her sister Louise, 2. It was not known what caused the fire in the one-storey frame building.

Orders Cancelled For 246,800 Army Neckties

OTTAWA (CP)—The defence department cancelled orders for 246,800 neckties after questions were asked in the Commons about the numbers being ordered, a government document indicated Monday.

The document was a beefy series of replies by government departments about the number of neckties ordered in the two years ended Dec. 31, 1952. It was tabled for George Hees (PC—Toronto Broadview).

It showed that the defence department was by far the biggest purchaser with roughly 1,100,000 ties ordered for current and potential mobilization use.

It also showed that two huge orders placed April 25, 1952, were later drastically slashed by that department. The question of the number of neckties and other clothing items being ordered became an issue about that time in the House and the defence expenditures committee.

An order for 100,800 ties placed April 25 was cut to 36,000 Sept. 2 and then cancelled altogether Oct. 16.

Another order for 213,000 placed the same day was slashed to 67,000 Aug. 6.

FLOOD AID PILES UP

The supplies will be flown to Holland. The shipment includes mattresses, sheets, pillows, pillowcases, shoes and infants and children's clothing.

RAWDON

Crepe Paper Art Of Flower Making Demonstrated at W.I.

RAWDON.— Mrs. Jack Sager was hostess on Thursday afternoon for the February meeting of River Valley Women's Institute. There were over 30 women in attendance and several children.

Mrs. Ed. Heasman presided for the opening and business. Mrs. J. L. Donohoe gave her financial report. The three euchre parties and dance netted the institute over $66 and the share of seats for the school was $71.53 which has been paid.

Messages of thanks for cards were read and books displayed on health and citizenship.

Letters were read from Miss Eileen Ness re "Garden Clubs", and also inviting the members to attend "Achievement Day" in Stirling on Saturday afternoon, February 21st.

The magazine subscription to the C.W.W., will be renewed and Mrs. Jack Sager was appointed to bring some interesting items from the book to the meetings.

"The Penny Round Up", for mental health, sponsored by Federated W.I., is in charge of Mrs. John Kane and Mrs. Allah McDonell.

Each director will canvass her concession for the "Build for the Blind" campaign under the direction of Reeve Harry Morrow, of Sidney township.

A letter was read from district secretary re "Canada Day" on August 21, at Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto. The delegation will be admitted by ticket and ten members from River Valley W.I. would like to attend this A.C.C.W pageant and program.

Activities Lineup

The lineup of activities for February are: euchre party this week; crokinole party next week, sponsored by Mr. and Mrs. Glen Bush ad Mr. and Mrs. Harry Vandervoort.

The third week, program and pie social sponsored by Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bush and the Chard family. All public school children will be admitted free to this event.

Plans were made for some quilting with Mrs. Roy Bush and Mrs. Ross Bush as hostesses.

The conveners for the program were Mrs. Ralph Utman and Mrs. Bob Philp and the former presided. Mrs. Ross Bush read a humorous poem entitled "Popping Corn", and Cheryl Utman sang, "Sunny the Bunny".

Artificial Flowers

Mrs. F. Clare, Oak Lake, displayed bouquets of carnations, roses, sprigs of apple blossoms, cascade 'mums, tea roses, all made from crepe paper and looking real. This is an interesting hobby and gives a great deal of enjoyment although it is somewhat expensive with today's prices of materials.

Mrs. Clare made a carnation and a rose and explained the various steps to the completion of the whole. She displayed plain and duplex crepe paper, wire, paste, patterns, books of pictures and details, price lists, and said she would be willing to assist any person who was interested in the hobby. She also demonstrated flowers for floor vases, sprays of English ivy and novel ideas of making small vases and flowers for table decorations at banquets.

Mrs. Reg. Coombes voiced thanks to Mrs. Clare for her interesting demonstration.

Mrs. Roy Bush introduced the district president, Mrs. George Burkitt, of Uniondale. The hour was late as Mrs. Burkitt had attended another meeting that same afternoon, so she confined her address to purely business matters which needed attention before the executive in March.

She outlined "Canada Day" in August, and said additional hostess pins may be ordered for new members if desired. The officers' conference at Guelph will be on "Health and Resolutions". She explained in a recent vote for "Spoons for Club Girls".

Each branch is asked to make their choice which they would prefer "box lunch or dinner", for district annual.

Program books for the district were advocated with more time spent in making good program plans in which education is stressed and the needs of the community assessed in order that all meetings would be of interest

The W.I. members were urged to study Canada, the work of the United Nations and other worthwhile items.

References were made to the fall "Home and Country," to the quilt competition; W.I. booth at Winter fair, various bus trips of interest and Mrs. Burkitt will gladly pay another visit and give the official report.

Thanks Tendered

The president voiced thanks for her timely address.

Refreshments of sandwiches, pickles, Valentine layer cakes, date squares and tea, were served by Mrs. Ross Bush, Mrs. Morley Richardson, Mrs. Glenn Morrow, Mrs. Gerald Brooks, Mrs. Percy Utman, Mrs. J. L. Donohoe, the hostess and others.

Mrs. Fred McDonell voiced thanks for hospitality and program.

The next meeting will be held on March 5, at the home of Mrs. Claude Tucker. The program will be in charge of Mrs. Percy MacMullen and Mrs. Roy Irven. The guest speaker will be the board director, Mrs. Ernest Irwin, of Campbellford.

Junior Jumble

(News of Interest to Hastings 4-H and Junior Farmer Clubs)

By J. ALLEN FRANCIS

This will introduce "Junior Jumble", a weekly release, for the Hastings office of the Ontario Department of Agriculture on 4-H and Junior Farmer activity in Hastings County.

As an introduction, let us summarize the clubs carrying on junior work in the county. First, we will start with the older age group, the Hastings County Junior Farmer Association. The age group for Junior Farmer members is generally 16 to 30. This organization is affiliated with the Ontario Junior Farmers' Association, and has, making up its membership, six local Junior Farmer Associations, and five Junior Institutes.

The county group has a membership of over 400. In addition to organized county projects, the Junior Farmer members have projects in their local clubs. The local clubs are the Madoc Junior Farmer Club, Madoc Junior Institute, Hungerford Junior Farmer Club, Hungerford Junior Institute, Tyendinaga Junior Farmer Club, Thurlow Junior Farmer Club, Thurlow Junior Institute, Sidney Junior Farmer Club, Sidney Jr. Institute, Rawdon Junior Farmer Club, and Rawdon Junior Institute.

Club Motto

Another group is the 4-H Clubs sponsored by the Ontario and Canada Department of Agriculture, and a local sponsoring organized under the direction of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. The name 4-H is relatively new in connection with Hastings County Boys' and Girls' Clubs. Last year the Canadian Council on Boys' and Girls' Clubs adopted the name 4-H to be used for club work.

The Council, now known as the Canadian Council on 4-H Clubs acts as an organizing group for all 4-H Clubs in Canada. The name 4-H originated in the United States and is now used by several countries for boys' and girls' clubs. The emblem is a green four leaf clover, with an "H" on each leaf standing for the development of the Head, Heart, Hands and Health.

Many Clubs Active

Last year Hastings had thirteen 4-H clubs; six calf clubs, one swine club, two grain clubs, two forestry clubs, one potato club, and one tractor maintenance club with an enrolment of 177 members. To become a 4-H club member, a farm boy or girl must be in the age group of twelve to twenty, inclusive.

Assisting in the 4-H club work is the Hastings 4-H Club Leaders' Association, a group of men who act as leaders of the club and assist in carrying out 4-H Club work.

The Girls' Homemaking Clubs in Hastings County had an enrolment of 149 girls, in 1952 clubs. In these clubs the girls have garden, food, and clothing projects. The Homemaking Clubs are organized under the direction of the Women's Institute Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

During the next few weeks, several of the 4-H clubs will be organizing. The South Hastings Swine Club is scheduled to be organized on Wednesday, February 11, at a meeting in the Agricultural Office, Stirling. The North Hastings Forestry Club organization meeting is called for Wednesday, February 11. The North Hastings Potato Club is for February 17. Both North Hastings Clubs will be organized through the Bancroft high school, with the Students' Council as the sponsoring organization.

We hope this column will help you keep in touch with Junior work in the county, when we report to you in further "Jumbles."

Reds Release Priest After Begging Him To Stay in China

A Hungarian Jesuit from Shanghai, Rev. Joseph Szafko, is seen following his arrival at Vancouver aboard the Danish freighter Marten Bakke. He is joining a house of his order in Montreal, following release from Communists. A brilliant scientist, who had been head of the astronomical observatory in Shanghai, when the Reds came, Father Szafko told of the seven months confined to his room within the conservatory where he was forced to teach his new masters how to use the scientific apparatus. "They tried to make me a Communist spy and begged me to stay in China," related the middle-age priest, "arguing I was a man without a country now that Hungary is in Communist hands and I can no longer return." When persuasion methods failed, Father Szafko received Red indoctrination for 16 hours a day, but his teachers soon found "me a poor student." — Central Press Canadian.

26-Hour Ordeal On Rock Told By B.C. Pilot

VANCOUVER (CP) — Capt. James Siddle, a northern B. C. pilot, told Tuesday of a 26-hour ordeal on a rock on the shores of the Pacific.

He was the sole survivor of seven men aboard a B. C. Central Airways plane forced down by storm in Fraser Reach, 40 miles north of here, Jan. 26.

Siddle swan ashore, reaching an isolated rock through icy waters. He was the last man to leave the plane.

It was a frustrating vigil. Twenty-one ships sailed by the freezing pilot. He shouted, but stormy winds dimmed his voice.

At times the icy tide threatened to engulf him after his 220-yard swim from his sinking plane.

Pilot and passengers had huddled on the tail section of the overturned plane for more than two hours before striking out for shore. The passengers died in the ice-cold water.

"I could see the others ahead of me for a while and shouted to them but the noise of the waves drowned out my voice," he said.

Daylight saw a high tide sweep over his rocky perch and the cold waters reached up to his thighs. He had to endure this for two long bone-chilling hours before the tide receded.

He was rescued by a fishboat and later brought to hospital here suffering from frost-bite and pneumonia. He returned to his home Tuesday.

Agreement Reached

OTTAWA (CP)—Settlement of a dispute between the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen (Ind.) and the two major railways was announced Tuesday by the labor department.

The announcement said agreement had been reached after the establishment of two federal conciliation boards but that details of the settlement were not yet available.

On Jan. 29, the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the railways settled a dispute over wages and working hours in which the union had threatened a strike for Feb. 2. The cabinet intervened directly in that fight.

Main demand of the BLFE was for a general wage increase of $2.80 a day. The BRT settled for a 12-per-cent increase.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop lit an exter long cigar with a gold band on it, and ma said, William, what would you do if a woman at a bridge game sneered at the slowness of your play?

I'd give her a supercilious glance and concentrate on my cards, serene in the nolledge that my game does not happen to be slow, pop said, and ma said, Well neither is mine, and Blantch Hipple isn't going to go scott free after making any sutch remark. I play a thawtful game, not a scatterbrane game like Blantch's, here a card and there a card and the devil take the hinemost. I'm perfectly furious at her, ma said.

But my dear, where is your filosophy? pop said. As long as you know justice is on your side, just give the woman a superior smile and calmly pursue the even tenner of your way, he said, and ma said, Now William, it's easy for you to talk, smoking away in the 7th heaven of cloudy delite, but suppose I suddenly informed you that your cigar smelt like the remnants of last week's overcooked cabbidge ,where would your filosophy be then?

Ordinarily it would be rite on tap, but I paid 35 cents for this cigar, so you've chosen an unfortunate illustration, pop said, and ma said, And so did Blantch Hipple when she insulted the speed of my bridge, and the next time the game is at her house, I'm going to be unable to play and she can just go to the bother of finding a substitoot. And I'm glad you think I'm justified, William, she said.

I'm glad you think I think whatever you think I think, and now let my cigar alone, pop said.

Which she did.

Canadian Nuns Tell of Horror Treatment by Reds

Having survived two years of Communist "brainwashing," near starvation and prison hard labor, two Quebec missionary nursing nuns arrived at Vancouver after six weeks crossing the Pacific on the Danish freighter Martin Bakke. Sister St. Alphonse du Dedempteur, right, nee Antoinette Couvrette, of Ste. Dorothee near Montreal, and Sister Marie Germaine, left, nee G. Gravel of St. Prosper, near Three Rivers, having gone through more at the hands of the new China bosses than any Canadians previously expelled, told a shocking story of the Mao Tse-Tung war on Christians. Soon, they said, there will not be a Christian missionary left in the country. Many have died in prison and some are too ill to be released.

Also aboard the Martin Bakke were Imelda Laperriere, left, Sister St. Germain of Pont Rouge, Que., and Sister St. Jean Baptist, right, a native of Woonsocket, R.I., who had been expelled by the Reds. Like her three Canadian sisters, she was a member of the missionary sisters of the Immaculate Conception, whose mother house is in Montreal. Sister Marie Germaine had spent a year in Hong Kong recovering from torture at the hands of Red-roused mobs in Canton. She had been sentenced to five years in prison along with Sister St. Alphonse after being convicted by a "people's court" of murdering 2,000 infants and burying them alive. They spent a year in various prisons before the public trial, broadcast through Red China in March of 1951, and thereafter were put in the Canton house of correction, where the brain-washing went on until Dec. 26, 1952, when they were unexpectedly released. —Central Press Canadian Photos.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two years of high living ended Monday for 36-year-old Roland DesRochers of Montreal who admitted 80 cat burglar thefts from Vancouver homes. His loot was valued at $40,000.

He was sentenced to 10 years in prison after police informed the court of the history of the "cat man."

His second-storey work was not confined to Vancouver. He spent a holiday in Hollywood where he robbed five homes, visited Victoria—one home robbed—and later returned to Montreal where, he said, he is wanted for burglary and bail jumping.

He told police all the goods he stole here were shipped to Montreal where his wife and seven-year-old daughter live.

DesRochers came here in February, 1951.

"I had plenty of money and lived well," he told police. "I had a big car and spent a lot of money on liquor and pleasure."

It was the car that got him into trouble. He parked it in a no-parking area—a $2 offence. The car was impounded. Police found a revolver and later located burglary loot in his room.

All Nationalities in Tangier Live in Harmony, Co-operation

Believes Yearly Increase Will End Unemployment

Seen addressing the Ontario Federation of Labor (CIO-CCL) at Windsor, CIO President Walter Reuther told members that adoption by industry of the guaranteed annual wage will wipe out unemployment which, he explained, is a product of the industrial revolution which saw workers, who had been kept by the year by their feudal lords, being paid by the hour or by piece rates when industrialism ushered out feudalism. Warning the 1929 collapse came as a result of "a 16-cylinder production machine feeding a Model-T distribution machine," the labor leader said this jet-propelled age needed a jet-propelled distribution scheme. "The people haven't the money to buy the things we have the brains to make," he clarified. Only full production with adequate distribution to all in the world will avoid a repetition of last depression. — Central Press Canadian.

By HENRY BUCKLEY

TANGIER, North Africa, (Reuters)—Tangier is a city of tolerance where over 75,000 Moslem Moroccan Jews, 30,000 Spaniards and 10,000 other nationalities and religions live together in friendly co-operation.

Any store accepts either Spanish pesetas or French francs.

People begin a conversation in French and end it in Spanish.

Tangier long has been a tolerant home for Moroccan nationalists seeking shelter from the French or Spanish protectorates, although lately the Tangier authorities have clamped down a little on the use of this international city as a base for clandestine activities in other countries.

One morning paper, "La Depeche," is published in French and the other, "Espana," is in Spanish.

It is a friendly happy city where crime is limited and racial friction rare. An exception, the incident last April in which several Moroccans were shot during a demonstration, is attributed to poor handling by the local police.

Makes Voice Heard

Tangier makes its voice heard all over the world as the most radio-saturated place known where over 60 transmitters send out their messages to the world.

From the tall steel masts of the Voice of America relay station the story of the free world is told daily to those behind the Iron Curtain.

Commercial radio companies have big relay centres here and three local transmitters broadcast in Spanish, French and Arabic.

To see Tangier at its best, one must go through the labrynth of tiny passageways of the old city where no transport but a not-too-fat donkey can penetrate, then up the hill past the Kasbah to a Moorish cafe perched on the hilltop with a superb view over Tangier and the straits, and with the lion-like rock of Gibraltar in the far corner.

For homesick foreigners there is a real American bar, a British pub and a German beer hall.

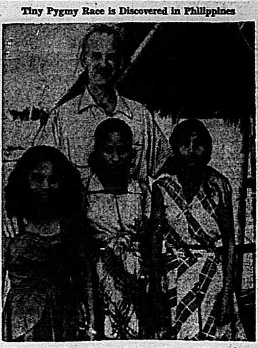
Tiny Pygmy Race is Discovered in Philippines



Deep in the Zambales mountains, northwest of Manila, a small pygmy tribe called the Abenlens bear a link to their Malayan ancestors. Some 10,000 years ago their forbears crossed the land bridge that linked the Pacific islands. Today they remain in isolation in the forest regions of the northwest of Luzon island, where Dr. Tage U. H. Ellinger, zoology professor at the University of the Philippines, found them with the help of one of his students, who had spotted them while hiding out in that region during the Japanese invasion of the Philippines. The first scientist to visit this miniature race, Dr. Ellinger, seen above with three pygmy sisters, found them entirely different from the Negritos who surround them in the mountains, not only in appearance, but in customs and their way of life. More remarkable, perhaps, is the fact that although these people speak the Negrito dialect, they have a language all their own. Having escaped the attention of ethnologists up until now, the tiny race will prove a great source of information in the study of the migration and the link between the peoples of the Pacific islands. — Central Press Canadian.

Housing May Reach Peacetime Building Mark

—Winters

WINNIPEG (CP) — Resources Minister Winters indicates that the housing construction this year may reach the high levels that preceded the Korean war.

He said in an address given before the Winnipeg Real Estate Board that the number of houses started between 1948 and 1950 averaged 91,200 annually.

The outbreak of the Korean war in June, 1950, diverted Canada's resources into defence with the result that in 1951 new housing starts dropped to about 68,600. However, by the last half of 1952, the construction rate was higher than the 1950 rate.

"There is good reason to believe this buoyancy in new housing starts well may continue into 1953. Labor and materials are available, mortgage financing is in reasonably good supply and there appears a strong effective demand from prospective home owners and renters."

Some municipalities had difficulty providing land serviced with water, sewers, roads and schools for a large volume of new housing. He said this difficulty can be eased by taking advantage of section 35 of the National Housing Act.

"Section 35 provides that the federal and provincial governments may finance the servicing of raw land thereby relieving the minicipality faced, with rapid expansion of having to enter the money markets to secure the sums required to finance the installation of services."

Abbott May Ask P.M. for Another Cabinet Post

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Abbott plans to ask Prime Minister St. Laurent for a new cabinet post.

The 53-year-old Montreal lawyer, who for six years has handled the country's purse strings, feels be is growing "stale" in his current job. He wants a change of cabinet scenery.

The budget he will bring down next week, he has told friends, will be his last one. There has been similar talk of him quitting in the last two or three years, but this time it is definite.

His budget now scheduled for February 19 will be his seventh major money-raising task, in addition to small "baby" budgets—and that, he feels, is enough.

He would like to be shifted into the secretary of state or the justice departments and feels he would be capable of handling these portfolios because of his legal training.

But one thing he's sure of — he has told friends he wouldn't take back the defence portfolio—"not for a million dollars." Mr. Abbott was defence minister in 1945.

Merger Marks Network Tussle For Leadership

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP) — Hotter competition for leadership among the networks, with radio listeners and television viewers the beneficiaries, is expected to result from a merger of the American Broadcasting Company and United Paramount Theatres Inc.

Officials of the two firms, to be merged as American Broadcasting — Paramount Theatres Inc., made it clear today they will seek to chaleinge the audience leadership of the Columbia Broadcasting System and the National Broadcasting Company.

The merger, to be effected through an exchange of stock, was given final approval Monday by the Federal Communications Commission in Washington after months of hearings and deliberations. Stockholders of both corporations had approved plans for the merger in July 1951.

United Paramount operates 710 movie theatres and one television station, while ABC owns five standard adn five frequency modulation (FM) radio stations adn five TV stations. It provides network program service to 76 TV affiliates and more than 350 affiliated radio stations.

The first major wedding of TV and movie interests, the merger is expected to provide ABC with the working capital to put on big shows with name stars and put up a stronger fight for radio and TV audience leadership.

Gord. Howe Will Be Shooting For 200th Goal, And 40th Of Season Tonight

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

TRUE OR FALSE

Whether the Kingston Goodyears' near-brilliant performance against the Glen Boys here Monday night is a case of the "new broom" or Coach Carr-Harris' reported iron hand of discipline will have a lasting effect, should get some sort of test in Kingston tonight when the Glens take on the Goodies in their last scheduled clash of the season.

Reports from the Limestone City have it that Carr-Harris laid down the law in no uncertain terms, and those who did not want to play figurative ball knew what they could do. None did it, apparently. Instead, it seems the Harris ultimatum bore exceptional fruit, but whether it's a single picking or seasonal, Q.E.D. Tonight should produce some idea.

The Glens' defeat met with alarm up around Peterborough way. A defeat for the Goodies would have given the Petes a much better chance to cop a spot in the playoff lineup but as things happened the Petes are now five points behind both the Glens and the Goodies with four games to play.

The Petes have but a slim chance to get in the charmed circle. If the Glens win tonight and the Petes can knock off the Goodies in each of their two games and take the other from Stouffville, a somewhat Herculean task, they are in.

And we still are of the opinion that anything can happen in this unpredictable game of hockey, and likely will before the troops line their sights on playoff targets.

NON-BELIEVER

A staunch Peterborough fan spent some coin of the realm in a long-distance phone call to this department yesterday morning. You could almost feel his jaw drop when he was told the score.

"Say," he bellowed, after swallowing a large lump of disappointment, "whatinell are youse guys down there trying to do to us guys up here? Trying to give us the brush-off? Huccome Orillia mopped the rink with the Goodyears Saturday night and last night they clobber youse guys 8-4. Answer that, bub."

We informed the Kawartha Kid that Kingston came up with a brilliant performance under the new boss-man, that they garnished the workout with a few of the better breaks and won themselves a hockey game.

"That," said the K.K., "is so much balderdash, hogwash and the old malarkey, not to mention six or seven brands of fertilizer. In other words, bub, that is for the boids."

We tut-tutted that idea, but the K.K. refused to be convinced. He then went off on another tack, but this being the hockey season, it would not be nice to relate what he said about a certain popular summer pastime, and its relation to Kingston.

In any event tonight's brawl in Kingston should grease the skids into a playoff berth for either the Glens or Goodies. It is an important tilt despite the somewhat precarious position of the Petes, and neither squad is taking any chances of being nipped by one of those pesky "mathematical upsets" that do occur in sport not infrequently.

PROUD RECORD!

That rolls up the junior Hawks' hockey ball of yarn as far as the schedule goes, and now they can sit by the sidelines and gird their loins for what might a tough crusade down the playoff trail. They dropped a 7-4 decision to the Peterborough Triple Links here last night in the final game of the schedule, but despite the loss they racked up a splendid seasonal record. The win was doubly welcomed in Peterborough ranks for it cinched a playoff spot for the Links.

The Hawks can be proud of their season's work. They dropped but six decisions and including four-point games which counted double, won themselves 24 victories. Not a bad feat in any man's league.

But schedule records and whatnots mean as much as the seventh button on a shirt as far as the playoffs are concerned. It's a new league, fellas, and what happened in the season's play can be classified as hockey bygones except for the record.

The other teams of the group wind up schedule play this week and in all probability the playoffs will start on Monday or Tuesday. It should develop into a tough struggle and taking up the 'limb-bum' role again, it should be the Kingston Vics and the Hawks for the playoff payoffs. But stranger things have happened. If, however, the finals do rest on the shoulders of the Hawks and Vics "you-'uns" will see one of the "battlingest" junior series ever played on either ice surface.

THE CHAMPS!

The Belleville Moiras are the Bay of Quinte Intermediate Basketball League champions for 1953. They rallied strongly in the second half of their third game of the best-of-three finals against the Trenton RCAF "Blues" last night and snatched the victory from the hard-fighting boys in blue. The Moiras were underdogs going into the second half but a spirited rally brought them the nod by a close five points. According to the Moiras' management the team meets the winners of the Kingston-Brockville series for the eastern Ontario title.

FLASH!

A late report this morning said Kingston defeated Lindsay 4-1 in their final junior game of the season. This leaves the standing: Hawks 48; Kingston 37; Lindsay 34; Peterborough 30. The young Petes have a game with Cobourg which should create a two-way tie for third place. Kingston has a game with Oshawa which will not affect the standing.

Youngest Player in History To Accomplish Scoring Feat; May Break Richard's Record

By MEL SUFRIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP)—Gordie Howe, a National Hockey League veteran and established great at the tender age of 24, will be shooting for his 200th goal and the 40th this season when Detroit Red Wings play New York Rangers here tonight.

The ace Detroit right-winger may have some difficulty—he's scored only once in four games on the small Madison Square Garden ice surface and against the persistent checking of Ed Kullman so far this season.

When he does get the inevitable No. 200, he will be the 25th player in NHL history to do it. Seven, including Elmer Lach of Montreal and Howe's linemate, Ted Lindsay, who got their 200th goals this season, are still active. Others are Maurice (Rocket) Richard of Montreal, Bill Mosienko of Chicago, Milt Schmidt and Woody Dumart of Boston and Max Bentley of Toronto.

Before He's 25

But what will set Howe's feat off is that he will have accomplished it before his 25th birthday. The native of Floral, Sask., becomes 25 next March 31. He is certainly the youngest player to hit the 200-mark and with many seasons before him, barring the unforeseen, he may yet do much to alter hockey's record book.

He already has the record for total points in a season—86 set in 1950-51 and equalled last season. With 19 games to go, he will break Richard's record of 50 goals in a season at his present pace.

Howe, of course, has 70 games in which to break the Richard 50-game mark. But the advantage of the longer season may be partly offset by the fact that competition is supposed to be tougher today than in the lean war years of 1944-45 when the Rocket set his mark.

Happy Day, Toronto assistant manager, has suggested that if "Howe had the fire to go all out at all times maybe he'd get 400 goals." Richard now has the all-time record total of 341.

Howe frowns at talk that he isn't giving all he's got.

"I always go all out as much as I can," he says. "Maybe I sometimes look lazy, but I'm told that's because I take longer strides than other players. All I know is that I give everything I've got and I'm just as tired as the other fellows after the game."

As for chances of eventually scoring 400 and catching up with Richard, Howe is less than modest. "I've said that if he gave me 50 of his goals and quit now, I'd have a chance of overtaking him."

Since breaking into the NHL at 18, Howe has averaged just less than .5 goals a game. Richard's average for 11 seasons is almost .6. However, while Richard now is obviously on the way down at 31, Howe is still improving.

Golf and semi-pro baseball in the off-season at Saskatoon help keep him in shape and despite removal of cartileges from both legs, he feels he is in great condition with plenty of top-calibre hockey left.

Hap Day's remark about Howe lacking fire adds emphasis to his further comment that Gordie is "better than anybody I've ever seen; better than Richard, Bill Cook, Charlie Conacher or (Howie) Morenz."

Howe's place among the greats is still to be settled. For the present there are some who disagree with Day.

One is Frank Boucher, general manager of the Rangers, who says "certainly it is right to say he is one of the best ever. But I wouldn't like to go so far as to say he is the best."

Boucher considers Cook, former Ranger linemate who now coaches the Blues, Dit Clapper, the former Boston star, and Richard as three players who rank with Howe as the top right-wingers of recent hockey history.

Cook himself agrees 100 per cent with Day, however.

"I've never seen anyone better as a right-wing player," says the New York coach, who considers Howe superbly equipped "defensively, offensively and mentally."

Edmonton Star Hailed As Scoring King

By LORNE BRUCE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON (CP)—Rookie Norm Ullman looks like a sure thing to win the Western Canadian Junior Hockey League scoring race this season.

It won't be anything new for the chunky 17-year-old centre of Edmonton Oil Kings. The quiet-spoken lad has been top point-getter in every league he has played in and every team he has played with has won at least a provincial title.

Ullman, who pivots junior veterans Jerry Prince and Ray Kinasewich, is a grade XI student at St. Joseph's high school. Ullman is eligible for three more seasons in the junior division.

Already Oil Kings have cinched first place in the league's regular schedule. In their last game against Regina, sure of second, they whipped the Pats 7-0.

Ullman, born at Provost, Alta., began playing in organized hockey with Edmonton Maple Leaf bantams. In the 1948-49 season he played in 16 games and rattled in 56 points on 24 goals and 32 assists.

The next season he was with Maple Leaf bantams again and in 17 games earned 66 points on 29 goals and 37 assists. That was the season he scored 17 points in one playoff game, getting eight goals and nine assists as Maple Leafs won 33-0.

In the 1950-51 season he moved up to the Maple Leaf midgets and continued his prolific scoring with 38 goals and 50 assists for 88 points in 24 gasmes.

In 1951-52 he played for Maple Leaf juveniles and in 29 games scored 93 points.

This year he graduated to the Oil Kings. After a start that would be called slow for him, Norm began finding the range as the season progressed and took over the league leadership after centre Gord Vejprava was sold by Crow's Nest Coalers to Cleveland Barons.

Now five feet, nine inches tall, Ullman carries his 170 pounds effortlessly on the ice.

In Oil Kings' 35 games this season Ullman has scored 29 goals and 42 assists. Linemate Prince is second with 38 goals and 25 assists.

Oil Kings have one more scheduled game to play this season.

Kid Gavilan Solid 12-5 Favorite To Retain Title in Tonight's Fight

By JACK HAND

CHICAGO (AP)—A wave of TV-inspired support backs college-bred Chuck Davey in his welter title bid tonight but cash-on-the-line realists make champion Kid Gavilan a solid 12-to-5 favorite to hold his 147-pound title.

This is the fight that TV made. Davey, a handsome 26-year-old Michigan State grad, has wowed them on living room screens. His southpaw style, dazzling speed and convincing performances against Chico Vejar and Rocky Graziano moved him up past other more experienced contenders.

That is why the living-room fans, who will catch this 15-round bout at 10 p.m. EST, are shocked by the odds making Davey an underdog. They have seen Davey and most were convinced . There will be no radio broadcast.

Tremendous Interest

The fight has excited tremendous interest. About 20,000 fans are expected to desert their free seat at the fireside to pay $25 for a ringside spot. There is a rematch contract calling for a return bout within 90 days if Davey wins, customary protection for a champion.

There are sharp contrasts between the 27-year-old champion and challenger in Gavilan's fifth defence of the crown he won from Johnny Bratton May 18, 1951. Davey is a scrawny, fragile-appearing lad with a fast-receding hair-line. He flicks punches in a pestering manner from a southpaw stance-right leg and right hand extended.

Gavilan is sleek with wiry black hair and a semi-flat nose. He snorts as he rushes to action with lightning flurries. A veteran of 105 fights, he has been knocked down only once—by Ike Williams in Feb. 27, 1948, when Ike was a murderous puncher.

In figuring the possibilities of this match, it must be considered that Gavilan already has proved four times that he can go 15 rounds. Davey never has been past the 10th.

The pick here is Gavilan, probably on a technical knockout about the 11th round.

Belleville Service Darts League

Identical scores featured the weekly session of the Belleville Service Darts League with one game being left unplayed.

The 9th Anti Tank Regiment, Mail Carriers and Hasty Pees scored 7-4 victories over the ANAFS, Corbins and CNR while the game between the Big "A" Co. and Brewers did not materialize.

The league-leading Belleville Black Hawks wound up their regular junior "B" league season last night by dropping a 7-4 decision to Peterborough Triple Links before a sparse crowd at the local arena.

Lack of experienced second line strength wrote the story of defeat for the Hawks, playing their second game in two nights. All even with the visitors at 4-4 going into the third period, they simply ran out of legs as the Links pumped home three goals to wrap up the contest.

The Hawks jumped into an early lead, Jacklin clicking in close on a pass play with Doug Hull and Ron Halstead. Doris tied it up, taking Kearns' pass in the clear and dangling it to beat Bobby Green who, incidentally, was the star of the show.

The Hawks tied it with 1 second to go in the period, tallying on a screen shot from the blue line. Pete Green drew an assist on the play.

Play in the second period speeded up, both teams managing breakaways but being unable to beat either netminder. McCracken finally sent the Links ahead again on a rush with Sullivan. He tucked the puck under a falling Green and it was 4-3.

Jacklin gave out with what proved to be the last Hawk gasp when he took relays from Therrien and Archie Stocco and walked right in to fool Delahaye.

The penalty parade started in earnest for the Hawks as the third period opened. (Of the 15 dished out, Belleville collected 11). Doris tipped in Sullivan's drive from the blue line to put the Links ahead 5-4 and for keeps.

Coyle made it 6-4, racing in to catch the short corner with a high drive after taking McCracken's pass. McCracken came back to set up Kearns and that pesky youngster deked Green to end the scoring.

The Hawks had one consolation —they came out of the game without suffering any injuries.

"Just their pride," Manager Bill Cook explained, lighting up a 25-cent cigar.

Redmen Appear Cinch For Senior Playoffs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Brantford Redmen, fighting hard to make the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series playoffs, appear to be a cinch for fourth place and a berth in the seven-team loop's post season play.

Defeating Chatham Maroons 3-1 Tuesday night, they put five full points between themselves and the fifth-place Maroons. Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen are seven points ahead in third place.

At North Bay, the Trappers shaded first-place Sudbury Wolves 4-3 in a tight Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A southern group thriller.

Goose Gosselin fired the winning North Bay goal with less than four minutes to go. Bill Dwyer, Chick Cecchini and Alf Guarda scored the other Trapper markers while Len Speck, Yacker Flynn and Rolly McLenahan came through with Sudbury's scoring.

Hockey Junior Indian Chief

EDMONTON (CP)—The beat of tom-toms and the sound of Indian dancers filled the Edmonton Gardens Tuesday night when Fred Sasakamoose, high-scoring forward for Moose Jaw Canucks in the Western Junior Hockey League, was inducted into the Cree tribe from nearby Hobbema.

Chief Red Wing gave Sasakamoose the name "Chief Running Deer" and presented him with an Indian bonnet.

Sasakamoose is the only full-blooded Indian playing western junior hockey. But it was Edmonton Oil Kings who went on the warpath following the ceremony to defeat the Canucks 5-1.

Giants' Star Under Arrest

NEW YORK (AP) — Henry Thompson, 27-year-old New York Giants outfielder and third-baseman who allegedly was struck on the head with a baseball bat by a taxicab driver Jan. 31, was arrested Tuesday on a charge of felonious assault.

The arrest was on a counter-complaint of cab driver William Winfrey who is free on his own cognizance on a felonious assault charge.

The charges grew out of a collision between an auto driven by Thompson and Winfrey's cab in Harlem.

Kiner Spurns Salary Cut Of 25 Per Cent

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The real salary battle of the spring season is about to begin. It pits Ralph Kiner, the home run slugger of Pittsburgh Pirates, against baseball's David Harum, Branch Rickey.

The Pittsburgh general manager has asked Kiner to take a 25-per-cent cut — all that baseball law allows — from his $90,000 salary last season. Rickey sent his son, Branch Jr., here in advance to break the news to Kiner and see what could be done.

Apparently Kiner made it plain he was willing to take a modest cut — say 10 per cent — but he was emphatic in saying he wasn't ready for a 25-per-cent slash that would reduce his salary to $67,500.

There is a temporary stalemate in the negotiations. Rickey has tried to peddle Kiner to other clubs but he wants young players who can help the club he is lining up for his new manager, Fred Haney, who bossed Hollywood in the Pacific Coast league for several years.

"We aren't exactly trying to deal Kiner," said Rickey Tuesday night. "Some other clubs are trying to get him. Four or five clubs have made us propositions. If it was cash we wanted, the deal would have been completed some time ago.

"We'd trade Ralph only if the pirates would be helped by the addition of other players. By that I mean more and better players than we have been offered so far."

Baseball Club Fined $10

OTTAWA (CP) — A six-month court case ended Tuesday when a general sessions of the peace jury convicted Ottawa Athletics of the International Baseball League of conducting a lottery last Aug. 12. The club was fined $10.

The charge arose from a "pot of gold" drawing at an Ottawa-Montreal game when Myrna Lumsden, Ottawa high school girl, won $383.65 when her ticket was drawn and she was able to carry away that amount in nickels.

E. J. Houston, counsel for the club, commenting on the verdict and asking for non-punitive sentence, told Judge J. P. Madden that the financially-shaky club "may not be playing here after this season . . . and this verdict, plus other factors, might be the deciding point.'

Passing sentence, Jugde Madden said "there is no purpose to be served in this case by imposing a heavy penalty."

Canucks Blank Cougars 7-0

Vancouver Canucks moved within two points of first-place Saskatoon and Seattle Bombers gained a third-place tie with Calgary Stampeders in Western Hockey League games Tuesday night.

International Middleweight Moguls Meet in Effort to Unmesh Muddle

PARIS (AP)—Gilbert Benaim, czar of French boxing promoters, will leave for New York by plane tonight to add a French voice to the international argument over the middleweight championship of the world.

Benaim wants to make certain France's Charles Humez is not shut out of the muddled middleweight picture. Benaim says he plans to sit down in New York Friday with British promoter Jack Solomons and Jim Norris, president of the International Boxing Club, to try to bring order out of the present chaos.

J. Onslow Fane, chairman of the British Boxing Board of Control who is due in New York Monday, also is expected to meet with the promoters, along with Robert K. Christenberry, chairman of the New York state athletic commission, and possibly officials of the National Boxing Association.

New York and NBA officials have set up an 11-man "tournament" to determine a successor to the throne vacated by Sugar Ray Robinson. But the plan has run into several snags. Solomons said Tuesday he wants a title bout for his man, Randy Turpin, former titleholder who split two bouts with Robinson, in London during the June Coronation week.

He wasn't overly keen on the proposal of Sid Flaherty, manager of one of the top American contenders, Carl Olson of San Francisco, that Turpin and Olson meet in a two-fight "series." This called for one bout in San Francisco next month and a second one in London in June.

AT THE BELLE—William Holden and Alexis Smith are teamed together in the suspense filled story "The Turning Point." Both attractions play for the last times today at the Belle Theatre.

Moiras Edge Trenton Flyers 37-32 To Take Quinte Basketball Crown

By ED. MacDONALD

The joint was rocking last night as the Belleville Moiras downed the Trenton Flyers 37-32 to cop the Quinte Intermediate "B" Basketball crown. There wasn't a dull moment in the Collegiate gym as both teams pulled out all stops in this 'crooshal' tussle.

While the Moiras outscored the Trents, they by no means outfought them. It was a rousing 'do' all the way and a real thriller for the enthusiastic fans.

Sheer aggressiveness put the RCAF crew into an early lead, which they held throughout the first half. At intermission they were on top of an 18-16 count, but fell before Belleville pressure in the final canto. Several of the players on both sides showed a tendency to rough it up as they were caught up in the spirit of the battle. Ed McClay of the Belles and Mac McLeod of the Trents were the chief offenders and at one point threatened to start a real old fashioned 'Hey Rube'. Both players were watched closely by the opposition, but still managed to head the scoring for their respective teams. McClay potted 10 points, six of which were on free throws and McLeod netted 11, 3 of which were free throws. The number of free throws illustrates how these two were fouled continually in an effort to keep them from swishing the cords in their accustomed manner.

Close Checking

Both aggregations served up a close checking man-to-man game and as neither team was using the fast break, the score was held down.

Bill Muirhead rang the bell for eight Belleville markers in addition to putting up a solid defensive game. Lou Dousett, John Hayman, John Batchelor and Doug Soules the other Belleville marksmen.

It was the McLeods again for the Trents with Mac McLeod potting 11, and Fred McLeod 10 on behalf of the Blues. Ed O'Hara failed to break into the scoring but was a tower of strength defensively for the airmen.

The win advances the Moiras into the Ontario playdowns and their first opponents will be the winners of the Kingston Brockville series. The home and home total points series opens at the Collegiate gym on Wednesday, February 18. Keep that date open as the Belles are 'up' and will provide many a thrill for the hoopla fans who turn out.

Lineups:

Belleville Moiras: Fitzpatrick, Lockyer, Batchelor (4), Muirhead (8), Massey, Dousett (6), Hayman (5), Soules (4), Garrow, McClay (10), Pappas.

Trenton Flyers; Watson (2), Andrews, Hernden, O'Hara, F. McLeod (10), Baxter, Blythe, Campbell, M. McLeod (11), Lahay (7), Wade (2).

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes, and find what your outlook is according to the stars.

FOR THURSDAY, FEB. 12, 1953

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—General auspicious day, yet there will be moments of concern for the outcome of tasks, perhaps some serious doubts. Strengthen your faith and will.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Consider another's anxieties where you can, and help materially, but not when it would harm your own well-being or take time from vital obligations. Spread good cheer.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—If you can prove your point, then do it forthwith, having no qualms or misgivings. But remember, "silence is golden" should be more often observed.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Be careful of the truth, a most important factor to good and successful living. And listen to advice, though you may not accept it all.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—Where you can alleviate another's stress, pitch in and see how fine you will feel and truly achieve. Similar to Taurus rays.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Details in planning, remembering niceties of home life and aiding children and the discouraged are tops in your horoscope. Aim to do your very best.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Honesty, foresight, understanding are among your gifts when you are living up to your finer self, and this day calls for these assets. Forward, with Libra!

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Be mindful of the little things, sometimes overlooked or thought less important than they really are. Maintain Scorpio's true level.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Don't try to do everything at once; and don't let things slip, either. That famous happy-medium, please!

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Observing thoughtfully, deciding judiciously are musts. Held all wise suggestions, but be not gullible.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Immoderation likely to be bothersome now. But be your philosophical self. Have a mind for the lighter side, too. Good cheer!

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Be selective but not snobbish serene without overdoing solemnity; be most careful in all things. A good day for good deeds.

YOU BORN TODAY: a combination of accomplishments and delays, of much and varied talent. Aquarius understands needs, recognizes opportunity. Once you believe in your ability, you can do great things. Especially fitted for literary, music, scientific, medicine, mechanics; the unusual. Birthdate of Abraham Lincoln, great U.S. Pres.; John L. Lewis, labor leader extraordinary.

MORE PAKISTAN FOOD

KARACHI (CP)—Land which formerly produced jute now will be used to grow more food for the populous area of East Pakistan. Decision followed a government order to reduce jute acreage owing to a carry-over of jute production. Officials expressed hope East Pakistan might wipe out its food deficit in about two years.

Sent to Trial On Murder Count

KITCHENER (CP) — Mr. and Mrs. Henry William Paepcke of nearby Elmira Tuesday were committed for trial on a charge of murdering their daughter, Glenis, 3.

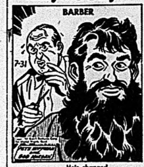
At the preliminary hearing the court was told that a post-mortem, following the child's death Jan. 27, revealed about 75 bruises on her body. Cause of death was a brain haemorrhage.

Witnesses said Mrs. Paepcke told them that the child had fallen from the toilet. They testified they had seen the little girl bearing bruises previous to her death and had often seen the mother spank her.

Paepcke's statement made to police officers was entered as evidence, but was not read in court.

Magistrate J. R. H. Kirkpatrick said that in it Paepcke had admitted spanking the child with a belt the day previous to her death.

Why We Say--



. . . He's changed

The barber actually got his name from trimming beards, since "barba" is Latin for beard. When men began to get their hair cut instead of their beards, the barber shifted to this job without changing his name.

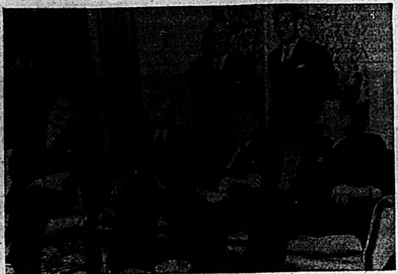
GOODWILL MISSION

KARACHI (AP) — A 12-man Egyptian military goodwill mission arrived Monday amid forecasts that fresh moves are under way to strengthen Pakistan's already close ties of friendship with the Middle East. The mission will make a 16-day tour of Pakistan.

A Lighter Moment in Career of the Diplomat



At the Japanese embassy in Washington, D.C., Japan's ambassador to the U.S., Eikichi Araki, feted the Japanese ambassador to Great Britain, Scunichi Matsumoto, seated at left, during which time the two diplomats discussed the forthcoming trip of Crown Prince Akihito of Japan to the U.S. and to the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II in London. Others attending the luncheon include Sir Roger Makin, seated second from left, Britain's ambassador to the U.S.; the host; Hume Wrong, the Canadian ambassador to the U.S., and in the rear Sado Iguchi, Japan's ambassador to Canada, and Shin-i-Chi Kamimura, Japanese minister. — Central Press Canadian.

Assemblies

The assembly of January 28 was presented by T-10-B. It consisted of musical numbers presented by the musicians of the school. Garnet Sills started with a piano solo followed by Gord Babbitt who sang "Friend of Mine." Doug Asseltine gave a saxophone solo "Them There Eyes," and was accompanied at the piano by Mr. Templer. A film "North to Hudson Bay" in technicolor served as an intermission before Joan Wood rounded the program off with a solo accompanied by Marion Sills at the piano.

Miss Martinson presented the junior and senior track and field awards to Donna Ray and Violet Coulter.

The Assembly of February 4, was presented by C-12-A and C-12-B. This was one of the most humorous assemblies of the year and everyone left in high spirits. The students of the Commercial Department were "skit" minded and presented five very funny plays. The one that took the cake was the baby contest. The boys of Commercial made perfect babies and were dressed appropriately. It is a shame that the Itchy and Scratchy twins were not entered in the C.N.E. baby contest. They are sure winners for the "booby prize."

Mr. Freeman Burrows, on behalf of the Belleville Yacht Club, presented prizes to Lois Armstrong, Ruth Watson, and Terry Cliffton for posters they made to advertise the colored film, "Commodore Braidwood's World Cruise."

Brotherhood Week February 15-22

Brotherhood Week was founded to promote better understanding among men of different creeds, races and classes. In Canada, a week has been set aside to unite all in better fellowship. For one week we study the differences, discuss ways of minimizing the causes, and blotting out the prejudice caused by creed and race.

One of the most powerful forces against prejudice is education. In Canada we are fortunate to have high standards of education, free to all. In our school, programs have been planned by forms in their different classes. Forums among class members, speakers and our assembly will be planned to emphasize fellowship.

Social

Everyone went home happy and without his or her money which was promised to non-dancers. The dance of January 30 put a terrific topping to Blind Week. Our own school orchestra, The Night Owls, in better playing form than ever, generously donated their time and energy for charity (and our enjoyment). The members of the service clubs throughout the school kept the would-be wallflowers on their toes by dancing with everyone they could. The dance was very successfully crowded. We all thought this was a sensational way to raise money.

Twirp Season

Don't be surprised if some of the girls now have rounded shoulders or humped backs. They were received from carrying their beaux' books. Now that the week is finally over, with the dance putting on the final touches, the boys can go back to their old tasks (as if they carried the girls' books anyway). Proceeds of the dance are going to the flood victims in Europe.

"The Inspectors are Coming!!"

Orders were passed. Fresh haircuts, shiny faces, wash behind your ears. Mind your manners. All in one breath, warning us of that one great dread, Inspectors. Five of them all at once and for two whole weeks, imagine the nervous breakdowns and teachers acting as nervous as Grade IX students on their first day at school. Being late for classes will be unheard of and talking in the corridors——?

We must all remember the poor inspectors who are coming are as human as the rest of us, and we will all be safe when they leave, with all out ears, noses, and arms intact.

I. C. B.

Blind week was very successful in proving we can reach our objective and showing that school spirit is not lacking.

The Hi-Y proved themselves victors in both basketball and volleyball games. The girls' Hi-Y played the Keyettes a slap-happy game of basketball winning 22-3. The boys' volleyball game was a closer match, 5-4 in favor of the Hi-Y. Much is to be desired in the style of some of the boys.

How many knew the rules?

Glee Club

The Glee Club bagged pounds upon pounds of candy for their candy sale which was all gone in less than fifteen minutes Wednesday at noon.

Bill's Belles were highly entertaining with what they didn't know about the Charleston on Thursday. This was part of the entertainment provided by the Key club.

To end the week the Inter Club Blind Dance was held.

NOT ENOUGH HOUSES

TORONTO (CP)—An estimated 500,000 Canadians still are without adequate housing, W. H. Grisenthwaite, president of the National House Builders Association, said Monday. Speaking to the National Concrete Products Association Annual convention, he said that even if housing production is increased to 130,000 units a year by 1955, there still will be insufficient housing.

SPOTS TIMBER WOLVES

STOUFVILLE, Ont. (CP)—A game warden walking through the bush on a farm two miles from here Sunday came upon six timber wolves which had killed a deer. Harry Meighan said they held their ground, spitting and snarling, then backed away and disappeared across swamp into the bush. It is the first time timber wolves have been reported in this district 20 miles northeast of Toronto.

RESTORE TRADEMARKS

BUENOS AIRES. (AP) — President Juan Peron today announced his government will restore to former German owners 1,365 trademarks seized by Argentina as enemy property in 1945. More than 2,500 trademarks were seized from German firms after Argentina declared war on the Axis powers in 1945.

SLEPT 7 YEARS IN TRAMS

CHICAGO (AP)—A 73-year-old woman revealed Tuesday she has spent the nights of the last seven years sleeping on Chicago streetcars because "a trolley's goot a rooming house beat a mile for comfort—and it's cheaper." Mrs. Anna Cox told the story from a hospital bed, where she is recovering from a broken leg suffered in a traffic accident Jan. 16.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was reeding her book called Modern Child Reering by Dr. Amos Kronkheim, and she said to pop, This is a very intristing chapter, William, it's called Suppressions Make Inhibitions.

Maybe they do at that, pop said, and ma said, Dr. Kronkheim is very decided on that point. For instance he points to the fact that in France the children are allowed to have a little wine pored into their drinking water, and what is the result? she said.

They reel off to bed like good childern, pop said, and ma said, Not at all, they become so accustomed to the taist of wine that there's no reason for them to clammer for it in later life, and the naturel result is, you never see Frenchmen drinking to excess.

That's so, it may go to their livers, but not to their heads, pop said, and ma said, The same with tobacco. Dr. Kronkheim allowed his young childern to take a few puffs on his pipe as soon as they showed the slightest curiosity, and as a result they voluntarily dropped the subject indefinitely, she said.

I'm not sure it's sutch a good idea to encourage flerting with temtation, pop said, and I said, You dont have to worry about me, pop. I taisted wine once, and I dont even want any more, and if I want to werk up a quick ambition to leave a room, all I have to do is just take a smell at one of your pipes, I said.

There, you see, William, ma said. The mere atmosphere of freedom is enough to keep him from wanting what isn't good for him, she said, and pop said, By gollies, you could be rite.

Sure, pop, I'll be sattisfied if you just let me spend about a munth drinking coffee instead of milk and staying up as late as I feel like at nite, so I'll get them both out of my sistem, I said.

Being the quick end of the subject.

MURDER CHARGE REMAND

KITCHENER (CP) — Kenneth Wiles, 21, charged with murder in the shooting Jan. 27 of Marie Huras, 17, was remanded Monday until Wednesday. Preliminary hearing was postponed when defence counsel A. W. Boos was unable to attend.

Second Man On The Ticket

By Edwin Lanham

Melvin Fisher grunted and gave Ginny Perkins a meaning look. "I'll be going now," he said. "See you in the morning."

"Yes," he said, "in the morning."

"I'll give you a lift, Roy," John said. "If you're ready to go,"

"Coming," I said.

Miss Hattie called from upstairs "Ginny, will you take this please."

Ginny went up to meet her great-aunt, and returned with the 75 cents. She said as she gave it to me, "What strange alchemy did you use to win Miss Hattie over?"

"Someday I'll tell you the whole story," I said. "I can't now." I edged toward the door, and she followed me.

"Yes," she said, "you're unpredictable, barging in at midnight to claim your reading lamp.

"Ginny, I barged in to see you."

"I wonder," she said.

I looked into her bright, observant eyes. We were standing close together and I smelled her perfume. Her blond hair brushed against my cheek. I caught her suddenly and kissed her hard.

She moved back, whispered, "Good night."

"Good night, honey," I said. I heaved a great sigh, and went down to the car.

"Now what?" said John Mills.

"Drive around the block," I suggested. "Stop under that same sycamore tree."

We went around the block and he stopped the car under the sycamore and turned off the lights. An instant later two dark figures emerged from the bushes. I had the door open, and Lucy and the Governor jumped in. The Governor said tensely, "Get going, Johnny."

John Mills turned onto the highway and the car moved swiftly westward. A low cloudbank hid the stars and lightning flashed up ahead. John Mills said casually, "Looks like we might have rain. We need rain around here."

We approached the lights of the city, filmed by rain, and John turned off onto a black-top road to the airport. The storm was at its height when he drove up to the administration building and stopped.

"You people wait here," he said, "I'll go in and take a look."

We sat silent in the rain. I had been thinking, and I said over my shoulder, "I guess we can depend on Ginny to keep her mouth shut. We don't have to worry about her."

Lucy Strawn drew in a deep breath. "Roy, do you mean to say she knows?"

"Yes, I guess she knows," I said. "But she wouldn't tell, Lucy."

"Oh, wouldn't she!" Lucy cried.

"No," I said lamely. "She told me she wouldn't tell if Miss Hattie didn't, and we know Miss Hattie won't."

John Mills threw the car door open and leaned in. Rain dripped from the brim of his hat and his weary eyes looked like hollows in his head.

"No flights tonight, Willie," he said. "The only way you can get back is by boat."

CHAPTER XX

John Mills moved his solid shoulders expressively. "You've got to wait for this kind of storm to blow itself out of wind, Governor."

"Then how about trains??" I asked.

"I don't like to take a train," Governor Warburton said. "Somebody might spot me on a long train trip."

"Governor," I said, "you'll get there all right. Don't worry about it."

"Sure," John Mills said. "We'll get you there, Willie."

He parked the car at the station and I went with him to inquire about trains. The bulletin board showed that nearly every train was marked late.

John Mills returned with a timetable. "I see there's a train at eight in the morning to Atlanta and he can change there to get a Birmingham train. Let's see, gets to Atlanta at 4 p.m., if it's on time." He moved his finger back along the column of type. "Yep, that's the best he can do. Then he can get a train out of there and, let's see—he can make Birmingham at 8.45. Roy, what time is the speech?"

"Eight o'clock," I said dismally. "We can't make it."

The Governor put his nose close to the glass, looking at the storm. I switched on the radio and tuned in a news program. We heard a voice saying: "The Weather Bureau sees no immediate letup in the storm which is lashing the East Coast with full gale force from Hatteras south to Jacksonville."

"Willie," John Mills said, "I think what we all need is a little sleep. Maybe I'd better run you all back to my house and we'll wait out the storm."

The Governor shook his head. I think I ought to stick close to the airport, John, and wait for a break.'

"Maybe so," John said. "Well, suppose we see if we can stay at the hotel."

"No hotel," the Governor said. "Night clerks have sharp eyes."

John shrugged and rested his elbows on the steering wheel "Then I reckon here we sit."

Lucy said softly, "On the way in, I noticed an auto court."

The Governor swung around. "Why, yes, John, don't you think we could make it in one of those without being recognized?"

"In this storm, I believe we could," John said.

"Let's see what we can do."

"Okay," John started the car again, and back to the street. He knew where to go. On the highway just outside town, in a grove of trees, was a cluster of green and white cabins, linked by a circular dirt road. The office was part of a small general store facing on the highway. I got out in the rain and knocked, while John sounded the horn.

At last a light went on upstairs. An old man came to view, wearing a tattered bathrobe. He peered at me through the glass, then opened the door a little.

"Got any cabins?" I asked.

"How many?"

"Three men and a young lady. We'll need two cabins."

"Okay. I got two. That will come to $3 apiece."

I opened my wallet and brought out a $10 bill and a five. He took the bills and said, "Three bucks more."

"You said $3 apiece. That makes $12."

"Six beds," he said. "I charge by the beds. If you don't want the cabins, say so.'

I paid him $3 more. He gave me two keys and said, "Nine and 10."

I hurried back to the car and told John the numbers of the cabins. The headlights picked up No. 9 first, and I got out and opened the door of a garage shed adjoining the cabin. John drove in, and we entered the cabin through a door opening from the garage.

Governor Warburton produced a big grin, like a man without a care. "Fit for a Cabinet meeting." he said, and looked at the three iron beds, the washbasin with its rivulets of rust.

Lucy said, "Got a match, Roy?"

I found a match and offered her a cigaret, but she shook her head and knelt by the gas stove. She struck the match and turned on the gas, and we watched the match burn slowly out. Lucy looked up unhappily at me and said, "No gas!"

"He stuck us $18 for these two cabins," I said. "I'm going to see to it we get some heat."

I went out by the garage and splashed through the puddles to the office. I knocked hard, and at last the old man came groping down the stairs.

"We need heat," I said. "The gas doesn't turn on."

He rubbed his chin and said, "Sorry, we're out of gas. Feller was going to come out and fill my tank today, but he didn't show up."

I looked at his pale, crafty eyes, and shrugged. We could not go to a hotel, but not for the reason he thought. As I started out again, I noticed a wall telephone and made a mental note of the number.

I went to the garage and tried the radio again. The report was the same; no indication of diminution of the gale.

Back in the cabin, I gave the news with a shake of my head and said, "Governor, I think we'd better send Bill Evers a telegram."

"Saying what, Roy?"

UK Agrees To Removal Of Suez Troops

Anglo-Egyptian Pact Also Covers Future Of Sudan

See Step Toward Gaining Naguib's Aid in Defence

CAIRO (AP) — Britain and Egypt today signed an agreement covering the future of Sudan, and Premier Mohammed Naguib's office said evacuation of British troops from the Suez canal has been agreed upon in principle.

These are the two issues that have been separating Britain and Egypt. Solution of both could go a long way toward enlisting Egypt in the proposed Middle East defence command being framed by the West.

The Sudan is a 1,000,000-square-mile area which Britain and Egypt have been running jointly since 1899. The agreement gives the 8,000,000 Sudanese the right to decide their ultimate future within three years. They could decide to join Egypt, join the British Commonwealth or set up an independent state. Early elections for a parliament are planned under supervision of a Briton, an Indian, an American, and two Sudanese.

As for the Suez canal zone, Naguib, in common with the preceding Egyptian government, has demanded withdrawal of all British troops. A political adviser to Naguib, in asserting today that removal of the troops has been agreed upon in principle, said only technical details remain to be worked out. These, of course, might bring stumbling blocks.

The Sudan agreement was signed by Naguib and Sir Ralph Stevenson, the British ambassador. Both expressed the wish to start discussions immediately on the Suez question, an Egyptian informant said.

In London, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden hailed the Sudan agreement as "a reasonable settlement of this question which has long bedeviled our relations with Egypt." Here in Cairo, Stevenson expressed belief the agreement "opens a new era in the greater mutual confidence between our two countries."

Braves Fearful Sitting Bull's Spirit Wanders

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The Sioux Indians want the skull of their renowned chief, Sitting Bull, returned by the Smithsonian Institute in Washington.

A Portland lawyer said today he has been commissioned to help the Sioux get the skull back so they can properly inter it. That, he quoted the Indians as saying, would permit the chief's "valiant spirit to gain rest in the happy hunting grounds, rather than wander aimlessly."

The Sioux want the skull returned to the Standing Rock agency in North Dakota.

Malan Decides To Seek Vote On Race Issues

CAPETOWN (Reuters)—Prime Minister Daniel Malan today announced that a general election will be held in South Africa April 15.

He said the House of Assembly will be dissolved March 4. Nominations for the election will be filed March 18.

Malan's Nationalist party at present holds 86 seats in the house. The United Party, led by Jacob Strauss, which comprises the opposition, has 64 seats. The South African Labor party has six seats and three are allocated to representatives of Africans.

The opposition has attacked the government for its racial policy almost continually since it came to power in May, 1948. The color problem is expected to be the main platform of both parties in what Strauss has described as the most vital election in South Africa's history.

The government recently introduced two bills to counter the racial defiance campaign and observers here believed these were introduced to split the opposition front for the election.

One bill seeks to impose a form of martial law and the other provides drastic penalties for participating in a campaign against any law.

Malan won the 1948 election partly on his apartheid program of social separation between whites and non-whites.

One of the promises of apartheid —to take the Cape colored voters off the common electoral roll—was over-ruled by the courts which said it was in conflict with the constitution.

The prime minister has indicated that this will be taken to "a higher appeal" in the forthcoming general elections. He will once again ask the electorate for a mandate on this issue so that it will be possible for him to implement apartheid.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: An intense disturbance moved into southwestern Ontario Wednesday evening, accompanied by rain occasional freezing rain, snow and strong easterly winds. By early this morning the disturbance was centred just south of Lake Ontario and moving rapidly eastward. In its wake brisk northwest winds will bring slightly colder weather to Ontario today and Friday with slowly clearing skies on Friday.

Fighting Dwindles To Small Raids, Patrol Clashes

SEOUL (AP)—Fighting dwindled to small raids and patrol clashes on the Korean battle front today as the warmest weather of the year carried into a second day.

The temperature climbed well into the 40s across the 155-mile battle-line. Rain swept the western sector.

Six B-29s hammered a storage point six miles south of Pyongyang on the main supply route to Haeju. The bombers dumped 60 tons of bombs on 65 single-storey buildings and several supply stacks.

Planes from the British carrier Glory attacked targets over the entire Haeju peninsula. Pilots reported more than 16 buildings destroyed.

Snow, Rain and Sleet Storm Causes Many Accidents and Heavy Damage

TORONTO (CP) — For six hours Wednesday night snow, rain and sleet swept across southwestern Ontario, causing scores of accidents and thousands of dollars property damage.

The storm, which started in Missouri, centred just south of Lake Ontario early today and was moving rapidly eastward. Behind it, brisk northwest winds brought slightly colder weather and clear skies were forecast for Friday.

Pushed by a 30-mile-an-hour wind, Wednesday night's storm brought traffic to a standstill in many centres, disrupted telephone communications in one town and halted police service in another.

Toronto reported 19 accidents during the six-hour period, and 16 persons were injured, none seriously. One woman died after shovelling snow.

Guelph had a "mild" sleet storm while the Chatham area got off lightly with fog and rain.

Three inches of snow fell in the Kingston-Peterborough area and brought traffic to a standstill.

The Barrie - Orillia area was hardest hit with a foot of snow falling there between 7 p. m. and midnight. Ontario provincial police at Barrie called their cars in and officers sat out the storm unable to answer calls.

KITCHENER YOUTH WILL BE TRIED ON MURDER COUNT

New Evidence Given At Preliminary Hearing

KITCHENER (CP) — Kenneth Wiles, 21, will be tried at the Supreme Court assizes beginning Feb. 23 for murder in the rifle-slaying of his fiancee, Marie Huras 17.

He was committed at a four-hour preliminary hearing Wednesday after a sawed-off, .22-calibre rifle was introduced as evidence.

The girl died Jan. 27 in a Toronto hospital of a bullet wound in the head.

Police said Wiles, a Kitchener carpenter, told them the rifle was resting between them with the butt on the floor of his car. He was quoted as saying that it discharged as he backed up and drove along a rough road to take the girl to work.

Constable Peter Davison testified that Wiles called him over at 6:30 a. m. and said "there had been an accident." The girl in the car was wounded, the officer said He accompanied them to the hospital.

Fired From Gun

Professor Joslyn Rogers, Toronto medico-legal expert, said the cartridge found in Wiles' car was fired from the sawed-off gun and powder burns on the girl's kerchief could not be reproduced with a complete rifle.

Tests showed that powder marks from the sawed-off gun at a two-inch range appeared almost identical with those on the kerchief, Professor Rogers testified.

He also said the course of the bullet was from ear to ear, a course he did not believe it would have taken with the rifle resting on the floor in the position described.

Found Rifle Near Home

William Balgy of Kitchener said he found a .22-calibre rifle near the girl's home on the morning of the shooting. The butt and the barrel were both sawed off.

Police later found parts of a barrel and gun butt in Wiles' garage and home. Professor Rogers said the parts matched the sawed-off gun found near the girl's home.

Ewan Cameron, Kitchener's deputy police chief, said Wiles told him Marie Huras had returned an engagement ring after a quarrel the Sunday before the shooting, but added that Wiles said she had given the ring back on previous occasions and they had "made up."

Armored Shorts Worn in Korea

WESTERN FRONT, Korea (AP) —The 8th army today issued armored shorts to a frontline infantry division. If they prove practical they may become standard equipment.

The shorts, made of 12 layers of basket-weave nylon, weigh four pounds.

They are tacked to the armored vests which have been in use in Korea for a year. The shorts offer the same protection to the hip area which the vest gives the stomach, chest and back.

Russia Breaks Diplomatic Relations With Israel Over Bombing of Red Legation

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW (AP) —The Soviet Union broke off diplomatic relations with Israel Wednesday night. The eight adults and one child at the Israeli legation here began packing at once to leave Moscow.

The Russians acted, a government note to Israel said, because mentnote to Israel said, because of the bomb explosion Monday at the Soviet legation in Tel Aviv, Israel's capital.

The note, which Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky handed to Israel's minister here, Samuel Elia shev, accused Israeli government leaders of inciting hostile action against the Soviet Union.

Recall Envoy

The Soviet government, the note concluded, "recalls the envoy of the Soviet Union and personnel of the Soviet legation (at Tel Aviv), . . . breaks off relations with the Israeli government . . . states that the further stay in Moscow of the Israeli legation is impossible, and demands that the personnel of the legation leave the Soviet Union without delay."

The note turned aside subsequent explanations and apologies by the Israeli government and accused it of falsehoods, double dealing, and a "systematic fanning of hatred and enmity toward the Soviet Union and an incitement to hostile actions against the Soviet Union."

Israeli police were accused of conniving in the bombing.

In Tel Aviv, circles close to the Israeli foreign office speculated that all eastern-bloc states would follow the Soviet lead and break off relations with Israel, except perhaps Bulgaria. That satellite was viewed as a prospective custodian for Russian interests, which include large real estate holdings formerly belonging to the Russian Orthodox Church and recently transferred to Soviet jurisdiction. Tel Aviv sources also speculated that Switzerland or Argentina would be asked to take over Israel's interests in the Soviet Un-

In Retaliation

The bombing apparently was in retaliation for the recent anti-Zionist campaign in Moscow in connection with charges against nine doctors—some of them Jewish—accused of plotting against top Soviet leaders. The Soviet press followed the charges with severe attacks on Zionism in general and Israeli officials in particular.

The Russian people were first told of the bomb attack by the Moscow radio last night. The broadcast, and widespread publication in the press of the Kremlin's note, aroused immediate indignation among the Russians against Israeli leaders.

Ends Relations of 5 Years

The note charged that the bomb explosion was "evidence of the absence in Israel of elementary conditions for the normal diplomatic activity of the representatives of the Soviet Union."

The break ended almost five years of diplomatic relations between the two countries. Russia, on May 17, 1948, was the third country to recognize the then two-day-old Jewish state.

The Russians stressed in their severe note that the Israeli mission should clear out "immediately." But they did not set a deadline.

Eliashev, the former chief of the east European division of the Israeli foreign ministry, was summoned last night by telephone to the Soviet foreign ministry, just around the corner from his office. He was taken directly to Vishinsky. As soon as Eliashev was seated, the foreign minister read the note through to him and then handed it across his desk.

Russian Note Harsh

The Russian note said it was an "indisputable fact" that representatives of the Israeli government had taken part "in a systematic fanning of hatred and enmity toward the Soviet Union and an incitement to hostile actions."

Israel's apologies, the note continued, "are a falsehood aimed at covering up the tracks of the crime committed against the Soviet Union and at evading the responsibility the Israeli government bears for the crime."

Northern England and Wales Take Brunt of Storm, Snow Piled 12 Feet High in Places

LONDON (CP) — A blizzard raged over northern England and Wales today for the third successive day, cutting off more villages and bringing the worst traffic pile-up in years. The blizzard also hit the continent hard.

In the north of England, hundreds of cars and trucks lay buried under snow. At least 40 main highways and 200 secondary roads were blocked by snowdrifts up to 12 feet deep.

Snow plows battled to cut a path through drifts before the wind piled up more snow. Farm workers struggled thigh-deep in drifts to rescue their sheep.

Watchers along the battered east coast looked for any signs that the North Sea was preparing to go on another rampage. The water level of the Thames and several other rivers rose during the morning, but not dangerously.

Hastily-repaired sea walls along the coast held solidly during the night. An excessively high tide is expected tonight, and 24,000 British service men and volunteers worked to bolster the levees still more.

Faces Major Test

Last night Canvey Island, worst hit area in last week's east coast floods, faced its first major test since the disaster — the gale-whipped high tide.

For four tense hours servicemen and flood patrols stood by in an icy gale as the tide rose. Three feet from the top of the sea wall it halted, then fell back.

The few remaining islanders, who slept with their boots on, were out early helping servicemen strengthen the sea defences in readiness for the next challenge later today.

Twelve-foot waves broke over the seawall early today at Sutton-on-the-sea, in the already-hard-hit Lincolnshire area, and water flowed ankle deep down the main street.

Wall Holds Fast

The sandbagged wall held [illegible] however, and police said there was no immediate cause for alarm.

The BBC began sending out hourly bulletins as the new cycle of high tides started.

Officials hoped constant attention to the radio would prevent a recurrence of last week's disaster, in which more than 300 residents of the southeast coast died when freak high water caught them unawares.

Buckingham Palace announced today that the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh will make separate tours of the east-coast flooded areas Friday.

The Queen will spend three hours motoring through Essex and Kent, two of the worst-hit counties, while the Duke will make a seven-hour inspection trip of sea walls running north from the mouth of the River Thames.

Princess Margaret Has Touch of 'Flu

LONDON (AP) — Princess Margaret, who has been suffering from a gastric chill, was up and about today, Buckingham Palace announced.

Her condition is satisfactory, but the Princess is still confined to her apartments, the palace said.

GREATEST THREAT TO WORLD PEACE REMOVED IN '52

--Pearson

Minister Launches Foreign-Policy Debate

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Pearson says the greatest threat to world peace has been removed because the "temtation to easy and victorious aggression" in Western Europe vanished in 1952.

He says, too, that a world war could spring out of new military or economic measures in the Far East designed to end or shorten the Korean conflict.

His first reference was to the threat of Russian aggression. His second was obviously to the possibility that the U. S. will take new steps against Red China. Both were made in the Commons Wednesday in launching a foreign-policy debate.

"It is very natural," he said, "to desire to hit the aggressor in new places and with new weapons but it is also wise to realize that he may also hit us somewhere else and with new weapons in consequence."

Canada was fighting Red China solely because China was an aggressor in Korea. She was not interested in getting involved in Chinese civil war.

Star Defends Brazen Role

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Marilyn Monroe has an answer to criticism of her realistic movie role as a brazen babe:

"I just did the best I could. The part called for a tramp, I couldn't play it like an ingenue."

Her studio, 20th Century-Fox, said there have been complaints, "but not any unusual number and absolutely none from organizations."

This replied to the trade paper Variety report yesterday that complaints from women and women's organizations were "pouring in" to the studio, deploring the effect of the Monroe character in the film "Niagara" on children, husbands and sweethearts.

Ontario Dutch Family Loses Nine Relatives

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Mrs. William Groonewege who, with her husband and three children, lives on a farm at nearby Vineland, has learned of the death of nine relatives in the floods in Holland.

Two complete families were wiped out when dykes broke on the island of Tholen and water poured into the village of Stevenisse. Two aunts and uncles and their children were drowned. The Grooneweges came to Canada last summer.

Censor's Book Accuses MacArthur Of Most Serious Security Break

FORT MEADE, Md. (AP)—A censor's uncensored book on Korea accused Gen. MacArthur of "a most serious security break which proved costly in casualties," an army court martial was told today.

The book, "Korean Tales," by Lt.-Col. Melvin Voorhees, former chief censor for the United States 8th Army in Korea, also said that:

1. MacArthur, in a report to Congress," offered contradictory testimony either because he was badly misinformed or toyed with the truth."

2. A number of accredited correspondents were charged by name with serious offences ranging from cowardice to treasonable acts.

These objections to the book were outlined by Brig.-Gen. Frank Dorn, army deputy chief of information, in a letter read at Voorhees' trial on charges of evading censorship and disobeying a command to submit his book for army clearance.

Dorn's letter mentioned the allegation that MacArthur personally "was guilty of a most serious security break which proved costly in casualties sustained by United Nations forces, in an effort to obtain newspaper publicity."

Throne Speech Promises Larger Highway Program

Municipal Affairs Will Be Chief Concern of Session

TORONTO (CP) — The 1953 session of the Ontario legislature will devote much of its time to municipal affairs, it was indicated today in the speech from the throne read at the session opening by Lieutenant-Governor Louis Breithaupt.

The 800-word speech, one of the briefest in years, forecast important measures aimed at strengthening the autonomy and powers of municipal governments. It indicated that provincial grants to municipalities, totalling $120,000,000 last year, will continue at a high level.

In its forecast of government legislation the speech said "most important legislation" will be introduced dealing with the complex structure of municipal government in the greater Toronto area.

The speech said legislation dealing with the greater Toronto municipal tangle will have the purpose of co-ordinating the essential services of the 13 municipalities involved.

"This metropolitan area, one of the greatest in Canada," the speech said, "urgently requires the means and the power by which problems affecting the life and being of well over a million people may be dealt with."

The government already has the report of a royal commission on the question which recommended a metropolitan council with exclusive jurisdiction over the principal services of all the municipalities.

Measures will also be put forth to preserve archaeological and historical sites found within the province. This move followed removal of relics from recent historical finds.

Archaeologists were concerned that a discovery on Manitoulin Island believed 7,000 years old and others on the north shore of Georgian Bay might be spoiled or looted.

U.K. Paper Fears Trade Privileges For Japanese

LONDON (AP) — The Daily Express says today the admission of Japan to the general agreement on tariffs and trade at the current session in Geneva would mean "disaster to Britain."

"Mark this," says the Express, which follows an independent, imperialist editorial line, "if Japan becomes a member of GATT it will mean that Britain will be powerless to protect herself against Japanese goods.

"She will have to stand by and watch her home and colonial markets flooded with the produce of cheap Japanese labor. She will be unable to raise even a penny tariff against them . . .

"There is one way out.

"It is for Britain to get out of GATT herself. And to restore to British hands a right which should never, never have been abandoned. The right to protect her own trade and our own people by the erection of whatever preferences are necessary."

Noisy Parrot Is Silent As Trial Witness

ESSEN, Germany (AP)—A parrot was brought into court here yesterday as a witness. But he refused to talk.

The court was hearing a suit in which a landlord demands that his tenant who owns the parrot get rid of the bird. The landlord claims the parrot disturbs his sleep with his raucous voice.

When the parrot refused to sound off in court the landlord accused the tenant of switching birds. So the court decided to postpone the trial and meanwhile to post a watch over the apartment to check on the parrot's noisemaking activities.

Chiang Kai-Shek Under Fire By Senator Ellender

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Allen Ellender (Dem. La.) today urged the Eisenhower administration to consider asking the Chinese Nationalists to get rid of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek as their leader.

The Louisiana senator said in an interview the answer to the search for peace may well lie in "weaning the Chinese on the mainland away from Russia" and in finding a Chinese leader "more popular than Chiang," now head of the Nationalist government on Formosa.

Report Arthur Godfrey In Line for Air Job

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House was asked Wednesday whether there was any substance to rumors that Arthur Godfrey, the radio and TV entertainer, might be appointed undersecretary of the Air Force. Press Secretary James Hagerty replied. "When we have appointments to announce we will announce them." Godfrey left last week on a tour of overseas air bases with Lt.-Gen. Curtis Lemay of the Air Force strategic bombing command. He is a naval reserve officer.

HIGH QUALITY ANTENNA NEEDED SAYS SPEAKER

The necessity of a high quality antenna if the best possible short wave reception is to be obtained was stressed to members of the Quinte Amateur Radio Club at their regular monthly meeting held last night at the RCEME headquarters. Guest speaker was Eddie Warburton, an amateur radio enthusiast from Oshawa. His topic was high frequency antenna and towers.

When it comes to practising what he preaches, Mr. Warburton goes the limit. His home-made antenna points 90 feet into the air. The speaker also gave a spring pep talk on amateur radio.

The speaker was introduced by Gene Hitchon with thanks being expressed by Bill Barrie.

Attempt Made To Blow Safe At Oil Office

What appeared to be an attempt to blow the safe at the Trinidad Leaseholds office at their wholesale warehouse on South Front street was reported l: . evening to city police.

Police reported that a hole had been drilled into the door of the safe but apparently the would-be safe crackers gave it up either as a bad job or were scared away before they could accomplish their end. Police said entry to the office had been gained through a window.

The attempt was made early in the evening and was discovered by one of the company drivers who was late in completing his day's run.

This morning the management at the Cities Service Oil Company reported that a window in their warehouse had been broken. Police were unable to determine if entry to the premises had been gained. Nothing was reported missing.

Had the intruders at the Trinidad Leaseholds been successful in opening the safe their efforts would have been for nothing. The management said that no cash was kept in the safe.

Last November the Trinidad Leaseholds office safe was blown with $1,040 being taken. Three men were convicted of the offense and are now serving time. Micky Metrunitz, 40 and Walter Johnson, 40, both of Toronto, were given four years in Kingston penitentiary, while Robt. Knudsen, 24, was given 18 months in the reformatory.

Utilities to Seek Interpretation Of Assessment Act

The Belleville Public Utilities will seek an interpretation of the assessment act which was revised in 1952 to allow municipalities to tax public utilities.

Decision to ask the Supreme Court for an interpretation of the act was made at this week's meeting of the utilities commission on recommendation of Mayor A. M. Haig. The recommendation saw unanimous approval of the members.

Mayor A. M. Haig made a note of the motion by the utilities commission at yesterday's special meeting of council. He said the meaning of the act was not entirely clear and that he was satisfied the city would not want to collect any money from the utilities to which it was not entitled.

All Requested To Assist Blind At Any Time

"What would you think if suddenly it were 'Lights Out' for you?—It could happen, you know. A car coming over a hill collides with another—maybe yours—and it could mean permanent loss of sight for you. Accidents in the home, at play, or in industry—all of these are hazards with which we have to contend, and you could be the victim," stated J. Arthur MacNaughton, chairman of the Manitoba Division of the C.C.B. "To make citizens more conscious of these matters, the Canadian Council of the Blind and The Canadian National Institute for the Blind have been sponsoring White Cane Week since 1946."

Blindness, as defined by the Federal Government, is roughly 10 per cent of normal vision or less. Thus, you may often meet a person carrying a white cane, who has some sight. In practically all parts of Canada, it is illegal for anyone to carry a white cane, unless he is registered with the C.N.I.B. Therefore, you may rest assured that any person so doing, if not totally blind, is seriously visually handicapped.

"We feel" continued Mr. MacNaughton, "that if people could understand better their blind neighbors, they would find it much easier to offer assistance. Your fellow-citizens who uses a white cane will probably be no different from you, except for his loss of sight. He will think the same thoughts, enjoy the same books and attend the same concerts—blindness knows no race, color, creed or class distinction."

To offer assistance in traffic Mr. MacNaughton suggested: "Let the blind person take your arm. He will follow you and be guided by your movements. Always cross with the traffic lights at the intersection. If you are a motorist, do not try to direct the blind pedestrian by blowing your horn. He has no way of knowing whether your action is intended for him, or some one else.

Mr. MacNaughton also suggested you address your blind friend directly, rather than through his escort. For instance, "Will you have sugar in your tea, Mr. Jones," rather than "Will Mr. Jones have sugar in his tea?" Sometimes assistance generously offered to a blind person has been rather rudely rejected. A blind person travelling alone, is under a nervous strain, and this nervous tension sometimes causes unintentional rudeness. If you are a victim of such rudeness, practise the virtue of foregiveness, and remember that the majority of those who carry the white cane do appreciate your many acts of kindness.

When you think of Canada's blind, never forget that blindness is no respector of persons—"It Could Be You."

Thomas Bata Warns Rotary Club Canada Not Removed from Cold War

Campbellford—Thomas Bata, president of the Bata Shoe Company of Canada, was guest speaker at the luncheon meeting of the Campbellford Rotary Club this week.

"Are we winning the cold war?" was the basis of the talk Mr. Bata gave, and in it he said that the Canadian people may feel that the cold war with communism is far removed. This, however, was not the case. If we lose the cold war we will be sure to be in a hot one, shortly.

"The cold war is being carried out on five fronts, the speaker declared. These are Europe, the Middle East, the Far East, the Pacific and the home front. He discussed the first three.

Tries to Enslave

"In Europe the democratic team is making progress toward winning. The most dangerous time was immediately after the war when Russian prestige was at a peak, and the democracies were anxious to demobilize. Russia then made a grand attempt to enslave the world through the good opinion we had fostered with our own propaganda in her favor, when she was an ally. The communists soon showed their colors by sabotaging all the democratic efforts in Europe, at the same time grabbing everything they could lay their hands on.

"In the Middle East there is a similar danger. Although Persia and some of the other countries of this division are not in favor of the west, they, being Molsem and basically religious, they do not welcome communism either. In Japan there appears to be a definite friendliness to the U.S.A. and a dislike for Russia and China.

"The Far East, with about 380 million population comprising Pakistan, Java and Indo-China, is an important area to the western democracies. India now embraces most of the Hindus and Pakistan most of the Molsem people, these having separated recently. The problem of re-establishing nearly seven million refugees in these two countries was a major issue. Most of the credit for the successful re-organization of these two countries is due to the excellent system of civil service initiated under the British regime.

"The people of India appear to be no longer friendly with the communist interest, and are now looking to the west for aid."

Cold War Slowly Winning

According to the speaker, the cold war is being won slowly, but the democracies need more support in every land. "We must show other countries that the democracies are ready to stand with them and are willing and able to protect them," he said. "The strengthening of the democratic armed forces is of prime importance."

Mr. Bata showed films of one of the Bata plants in India where 8,000 persons are employed. President F. G. DeCarrol thanked the speaker.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Prices slipped slightly in active forenoon stock market trading today as interest increased in speculative mining

Gunnar, leader of the uranium issues, dropped 40 cents in active trading and was followed by losses in Chimo, Radiore and Villbona. Other uranium-interested companies gained, including Ankeno, Graham Bousquet, New Delhi and Nesbitt-Labine.

Steel, manufacturing companies and constructions showed weaker in the industrial list while banks and utilities gained. Most price changes were small and interest was confined to a fairly narrow list of issues.

Higher-priced base metals gained and a 40-cent gain in Steep Rock led others higher.

Ontario Against Toll Highways Millar Tells Good Roads Group; Urges Traffic Safety Spending

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario municipalities should spend on accident prevention two per cent of the amount they devote to road construction, J. D. Millar, deputy minister of highways, said Wednesday.

One of several speakers at the annual convention of the Ontario Good Roads Association, Mr. Millar estimated that a community could save two lives by investing $2,000 in a safety campaign.

"Accident prevention must become as much a part of highway expenditures as the construction of bridges or the laying of pavement," he said, reporting that the auto death toll in Ontario was more than 1,000 in 1952, a record high.

More Dual Lanes

Mr. Millar said Ontario is opposed to toll roads, proposed at the convention earlier in the week. The province now had 230 miles of dual-lane controlled access highways, more than any state in the U. S. not relying on the toll system.

In a night address, Highways Minister Doucett spoke on immigration and said there is no room in Canada for groups who will perpetuate age-long feuds of Europe. This country needs the "right kind of immigration" and he urged transfer of large sections of the British economy to Canada.

Agriculture Minister Thomas suggested there was still a place for the scenic secondary roads where people could drive more slowly, enjoy the scenery and live a lot longer.

The City Engineers' Association suggested a study of means to make a more equitable distribution of funds derived from gasoline taxes and licence fees. At the same time, Wellington county delegates sought a 75-per-cent contribution from the province in county road building. The province now contributes 50 per cent.

James Gaw of Leeds and Grenville was elected president. A. Boyer of Prescott and Russell and Edgar Drew of Lennox and Addington are the new vice-presidents.

Public Hearing on Zoning By-Law Held at City Hall

Close to 50 interested taxpayers turned up at the city hall this morning as the public hearing in connection with the city's application for approval of its new zoning by-law was opened by two members of the Ontario Municipal Board. Board members sitting at the hearing were R. L. Kennedy as acting chairman and William Greenwood.

City Solicitor R. A. Pringle introduced the zoning by-law designating the various "use districts" and then read the provisions applicable to the districts. Ratepayers were invited to voice any opposition to any of the provisions.

John T. Ransom, local land surveyor, pointed out that this was the first time the by-law had been presented in an intelligent form and noted there were numerous objections to certain clauses and that amendments should be in order to conform with conditions in the section of the city already built up.

Clause Deleted

When an objection was noted to a clause, which would not permit construction of unattached side garages connected by a breezeway, the clause was deleted when it was pointed out this was a popular type of construction. One Parkwood Heights resident said if the clause stood he would be unable to have a garage.

The by-law as originally written would also prevent mutual driveways. This was amended to allow joint driveways providing they were located four feet on each lot.

Eliminate Commercial Area

The elimination of a proposed commercial area in Parkwood Heights was agreed upon following objection of a considerable number of residents in this area who were in attendance. Kenneth R. Ross, local solicitor, spoke for the dissenting residents.

"If the people in this area do not want a commercial area, the city is not trying to force it on them," City Solicitor Pringle observed.

Arthur Cody, Hastings Drive, objected to Dundas Street, east of the old county home being designated as a class "B" residential area.

J. T. Ransom and L. Maraskas took a different view, noting they had purchased lots on Dundas Street, which were supposed to be unrestricted. They pointed out the area was in use other than for Class "A" residential purposes.

Another group of five householders owning property on Dundas Street between Albert and Charles objected to their entire area being classed as a commercial zone, while Mr. Ransom claimed the south side of West Moira Street between Front and Coleman should be changed back to Class B residential use.

Too Cramped Claim

He said the area was too cramped for a commercial area and as West Moira Street had been made a through highway artery there was a traffic problem to consider.

Municipal Board members disapproved of being asked to change zoning areas. Minor changes in the by-law could be dealt with, they said, but when changes of major importance were contemplated the matter should be referred to council.

"The board cannot be asked to make radical changes in zoning," Mr. Kennedy pointed out. "Such a matter cannot be considered by the board until it is placed before council.

The morning session ended on this note with proceedings being adjourned until afternoon.

Norman Whiteman Observes His 93rd Birthday

The last of a pioneer family's 10 children, Norman Whiteman today is celebrating his 93rd birthday at his home in Lonsdale.

His mind still as active as it ever was, Mr. Whiteman now is forced to spent most of the time, except in summer, in his comfortable home where he lives with Mrs. Pearl McRae, a cousin, and Mrs. Dora Nightingale. Both Mrs. McRae and Mrs. Nightingale are widows.

Mr. Whiteman, who has lived all his life in Lonsdale, spent practically all his working years as a blacksmith. His wife has been dead for 31 years. His only son and daughter also have passed on.

What does the venerable do for amusement? Well, Mrs. McRae told the Ontario Intelligencer, he likes to sit and smoke his pipe. Furthermore, she says, he is an excellent conversationalist on a wide variety of subjects. This despite the fact that his eyes now are not good enough to permit him to read and his hearing has deteriorated to the point where he no longer enjoys listening to the radio.

Although he is the only living member of a line—his last living sister died between Christmas and New Years — Mr. Whiteman is not lonely. He gets up at 8 o'clock in the morning and thoroughly enjoys his day before retiring about 7.30 p.m.

As for appetite, Mrs. McRae states he still eats as heartily as though he had finished a day of forging horseshoes and iron tires for spring wagons.

Visitors have been dropping in all day to pay their respects to the old gentleman. He had as guests for lunch Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Diamond, of Belleville, and Mr. and Mrs. William Haight, of Lonsdale.

Forty Families Send $800 For Flood Relief

CAMPBELLFORD — Forty families of new Canadians in this district have sent a cheque for $800 to the Dutch ambassador in Ottawa for flood relief in Holland.

The 40 families, all recent immigrants from Holland, donated all the $800 themselves. The cheque was mailed today.

Included in the group of families are some in Campbellford and surrounding district, some from Hastings, and some from Stirling.

They have banded together to call themselves the Dutch Christian Immigration Society, and it is in the society's name that the cheque was sent.

Society president Peter de Bruin said he hopes at least a further $200 will be raised among Dutch immigrants in the district. The Campbellford Rotary Club, through President F. G. Decarroll, has promised help in a canvass of the district, since many of the new Canadians cannot speak English well, and since many do not know the people of their district.

THRONE SPEECH

The province's highway construction program would be expanded further to meet the needs of the growing number of automobile owners — there now were upwards of 1,250,000 motor vehicle registrations in the province. Construction of modern highways was vital as a safety measure.

Expansion of the province had accelerated the public works program. Pressing need for office space to carry on provincial business made further expansion essential.

The speech said close study is being given to the "orderly marketing" of farm products. A sound program of conservation was being pursued and would be enlarged.

Every preparation had been made to go ahead with development of the International Rapids section of the St. Lawrence river, and work would begin at an early date if international complications were overcome.

An interim report would be tabled on a study of provincial-municipal relations. The speech said the report's findings may be presented to the federal government for a study of federal-provincial fiscal relationships.

A revised Companies Act would be introduced. The act was sent to a committee last year and it had completed its study.

Other new legislation planned included a safety measure permitting the inspection of elevators and other lifting devices.

Amendments and revisions would be submitted on the Pharmacy Act, the Mining Act, the Travelling Shows Act and the Public Halls Act.

Other legislative changes forecast, but on which no details were given, dealt with assessment, public health, forest fire prevention, schools, planning, unemployment relief, homes for the aged, jurors, insurance, agricultural societies, rural telephone systems and workmen's compensation.

Sun Life Again Holds Top Canadian Record For '52 New Business

$545 Millions Sold; Total Insurance in Force Now Over $5 Billions; Policyholders' Dividends $22 Millions During 1953 — Upped by $2 Millions

With $545 million of new business secured during 1952, the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada continues to hold the record for another year, topping all Canadian life companies over the same period. Total Sun Life insurance now in force amounts to more than $5 billions, marking yet another milestone in the progress of Canada's leading life company. George W. Bourke, President, in presenting Sun Life's 82nd Annual Report, announced that policyholders' dividends during 1953 will amount to $22 millions, up two millions from last year.

Stating that the objective of the business of life insurance was to make available its services to as many people as possible, Mr. Bourke emphasized that the Sun Life is playing a leading role in this purpose. Last year, new Sun Life business amounted to $545,581,000 as compared with the 1951 figure of $461,776,000, an increase of 18%. The Sun Life of Canada operates in nearly 30 countries throughout the world, but the major part of this new life insurance was secured in Canada, United States and Great Britain. Group insurance included in the new business total amounted to $165,487,000, an increase of $71 millions over 1951. The importance of Group life insurance, said Mr. Bourke, is being increasingly recognized as a valuable social factor by responsible industrial and business leaders who are finding that well-rounded insurance and retirement programmes help both to secure and to retain valuable employees and promote sound staff relations in both large and small organizations.

At the end of 1952, total Sun Life insurance in force stood at $5,222,947,000, an increase of $421,431,000 — nearly 9% over the amount at the end of the previous year. Group insurance in force, included in this amount, has now reached $1,493,501,000, an increase of 19%. Annuity payments which the Company has undertaken to provide immediately or in the future, through individual contracts or group pension plans, amount to $117,833,000 per annum. The number of policies and group certificates now in force is 1,912,000.

BENEFIT PAYMENTS

Mr. Bourke referred to life insurance as the most popular and effective method of permanent saving, because it provides an immediate estate in the event of death, and also assures financial security when working years are over. The payments made to Sun Life policyholders and beneficiaries during 1952 amounted to $118,618,000, or $467,000 for each working day of the year. Of this amount, $81,632,000 was paid to living policyholders, and $36,986,000 to the beneficiaries of deceased policyholders. The total amount of benefits paid by the Sun Life since the first policy was issued in 1871 has now reached $2,604,604,000.

ASSETS AND INVESTMENTS

Total assets of the Company at the end of the year under review were $1,742,876,000, an increase of $76,850,000 over 1951. These new funds were invested in many public and private enterprises, but principally in industrial and public utility bonds, and in mortgages. The increase in bond investment and mortgages amounted to $43,252,000 and $23,666,000 respectively. It is interesting to note that Sun Life investments include 40,000 home mortgages for a total sum of $166,000,000, an average of $4,150 per home. Thus, the Company is playing a prominent part in helping to provide homes for persons of modest means. The interest rate earned during the year was—3.84% as compared to 3.70% in the previous year. This increase, commented Mr. Bourke, was important since any permanent improvement in the interest rate makes additional earnings available for dividend distribution, thereby reducing the cost of life insurance to the policyholder.

The total surplus and contingency reserve now amounts to $113,697,000.

LIFE INSURANCE A NATIONAL ASSET

Mr. Bourke mentioned that in all countries where the Sun Life operates, and more particularly in Canada, United States and Great Britain, men and women were providing increasingly for their own and family security. This meant protection and peace of mind for more and more people. It also meant more money saved and invested in national projects; more jobs and goods for more people. In Canada alone more than five million policyholders are saving through life insurance, for whom the nation's life insurance fund of more than $5 billions represents a provision for death, retirement and other benefits. The fund is also the country's largest single reservoir of long-term investment resources for use in developing the nation's waterways, highways, railroads, public utilities, home building, hospitals, schools, and other branches of Canadian social and business life.

A copy of the Sun Life's complete 1952 Annual Report to Policyholders, including the President's review of the year, is being sent to each policyholder, or may be obtained from K. C. Dalrymple, C.L.U., Branch Manager, 402 Water Street, Peterborough.

CANADA'S NEW IRON AGE

Iron is one of the oldest, commonest, and most useful metals known to man. In its precious rivals, gold and silver, mankind has found the stuff of romance and riches and enduring glamor since time immemorial. But down through the centuries iron has been an ugly duckling ore.

It is a strange and fascinating story that reveals all this being changed in Canada today. By virtue of its intrinsic usefulness alone in the contemporary industrial scheme of things, iron is putting its precious rivals in the shade In a new iron age it emerges to dominate the mining development scene along with such spectacular resources as oil and uranium.

In this new chapter of Canadian mining history, Belleville is destined to have an assured place, if not on extravagant one, by reason of the iron development by Bethlehem Steel in our very backyard at Marmora. Modest in comparison with other new iron projects it is nevertheless a long-term, multi-million dollar undetaking. But how stupendous the new iron age becomes in the Canadian economy is revealed in a statement a few days ago in the Port Arthur News-Chronicle.

"Some imagination would be required," says the lakehead newspaper, "to visualize the situation if all the gold mines in Canada were located within 150 miles of Port Arthur. It would be a great sensation. But it is true that within that distance of this city is ore worth more than all that of the gold mines in the country."

The reference is, of course, to Steep Rock iron.

There is a known 500 million tons down to 1,000 feet in the Steep Rock range, the paper adds, and mining can go a lot deeper than that. The reliable mining periodical, The Northern Miner, we note, is more optimistic than the News-Chronicle. Steep Rock may prove to be in excess of a billion tons, The Northern Miner states.

But the significant thing is that the grade or value per ton of Steep Rock's iron is as high or higher than that of the north's profitable gold mines, with standard grade iron ore this year bringing $9.75 per ton

The Northern Miner describes the Steep Rock story as an instance of how money won from a successful mining venture seems to have the happy faculty of finding its way back into industry. Steep Rock had its beginning in Little Long Lac, "a good little gold mine whose end is now near." Luckily, it adds, the late Joseph Errington, who made a fortune out of the gold mine, was possessed of the true mining spirit. Rather than retire in his new-found wealth, he plowed it back into the ground to write the beginning of Steep Rock, an operation that will continue for decades.

Everyone had known that there was iron in the Steep Rock area, says the mining paper. Old government reports went so far as to say it lay under the lake, but no one seemed particularly interested. Then in the mid-thirties, Julian Cross, who had just sold a nickel property to Inco for a fancy price, approached Mr. Errington, who then controlled the Sudbury Diamond Drilling Co. Putting up their own funds, the pair launched a drilling program.

Holes in that country cost a lot of money. The first series got nothing. But the two backers were not quitters. They put down more holes. These clicked. Even then, many in the Canadian mining fraternity scoffed. Iron mining in this country was a little-regarded infant. Actually the drill that found the ore was set up on crown land, ground that wasn't even staked. Subsequently, some 7,000 acre were located at leisure. No one interfered. There was simply no interest in iron ore.

From this initial success, says The Miner, the development of Steep Rock has been a long and costly struggle. What seemed insurmountable difficulties were tackled and beaten. The determined discoverers have not lived to see the fruits of their efforts but Steep Rock is by common consent destined to become one of Canada's great mining operations.

And Steep Rock is only one of the new and spectacular stories of Canada's new iron age now in the making.

DIPLOMATIC PROBLEM

The trials and anxieties of diplomats are not solely due to the perplexing considerations which arise out of cold war crises. Sir Archibald Nye, British High Commissioner in Ottawa, tells the story of a disturbing situation which arose in the embassy household.

Seven-year-old daughter Harriet is being instructed in reading, writing, and Canadian idiom, at the capital's very proper school for girls, Elmwood. Sir Archibald and Lady Nye had noticed her use of language which was, to say the least, undiplomatic in tone and phraseology. Fearful that the easy slang might take a lasting hold on their impressionable daughter, Father decided he should have a talk with her

"Harriet," he said, "one day we will go back to England, and then your school friends there might not understand you if you have got into the habit of talking like your Canadian friends. So I want you to remember only to use this school talk at school here, and to talk in our home here just like you used to talk in England."

Fully co-operative, Harriet replied: "Okay, Pop."

Truth is tough. It will not break, like a bubble, at a touch; nay, you may kick it about all day, like a football, and it will be round and full at evening.

—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

I believe absence is a great element of charm.

LINCOLN

Though he had heard them shout and sing
And shared their labors, too,
It seemed to him so strange a thing
That men could evil do.

He knew the ways of men, for he
Had known both weak and strong.
He thought the proud should clearly see
The line 'twixt right and wrong.

Were Lincoln here with us today
(And would that it could be)
"Fight on for Liberty," he'd say,
"Till all mankind is free."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The chief function of music is beauty. There are those who disagree with that statement.

The chief function of a flower garden, as far as most of us are concerned, is beauty. But among gardeners there is a little constituency of fanciers who know that in many plants there are juices and extracts that can do all sorts of things to us. They know that the poppy gives opium; quinine and cascara come from certain bushes; that chives, for all their pretty little purple blossoms, hop up an omelette something wonderful. To them, a garden is not for beauty. They want garlic, thyme and dill, basil, rosemary and sweet marjoram out of it.

In music, we have herbalists and Indian medicine men who can discover in music all the strangest things, if you only shred up, cook, pulverize and otherwise treat the beauty of music in accordance with the rites of alchemy, necromancy and a little snake-oil voodoo.

Those who like a garden full of flavor have no way of pushing their tastes onto the rest of us who like our food untinkered. They support only a few little restaurants up side streets. But those who like music all spiced and garlicky support those night clubs and other institutions which employ most profitably the musicians who provide that specialized sort of musical cookery. They make the records. And lo, we have got garlic all over the air, in our homes, in the juke boxes.

It would be good if we could confine this complaint to jazz and other popular music. But there are gourmets and gourmets. We can listen to an intellectual of music explaining that in this or that passage, Beethoven was expressing his profound rejection of the French Revolution, or Chopin was uttering his despair of spiritual redemption. If this is so, they were cooking with catnip as far as I am concerned.

If it isn't just plain beautiful, take it away and put it back on the steam table to await some customer who likes his paprika.

Learn Gaelic Or Pay Up

(Manchester Guardian)

Only Ireland, surely, could have thought up the notion of charging extra for not teaching a subject (writes an Englishman who lives there). I learned of it from a Belfast man whose son is a pupil at a well-known Church of Ireland school near Dublin. He mentioned that the fees were somewhat below those of equivalent, English schools, but added: "Of course, I have to pay a bit more than most do, so he won't have to waste his time learning Gaelic." The explanation of the paradox is that in the Republic schools receive a government grant for each pupil learning Irish. At this particular school the language is not compulsory but parents who do not want their children to learn it must pay the equivalent of the grant in the fee.

Sherwood Forest

(National Geographic)

The merrie men of England's Sherwood Forest now wear olive drab instead of Lincoln green, and if armor is again heard clanking through Robin Hood's greenwood glades it will be worn not by mail-clad knights but by mighty tanks.

Ever since World War II days, the storied Nottinghamshire forest has been used for military purposes, first as a depot for war supplies and more recently for quieter military activities.

New British War Office plans indicate that the rumble of tanks on manoeuvres may soon sound in forest areas that once knew only the soft whir of arrows aimed at the King's deer.

One of a number of forests retained by the King in medieval times for wood and for sport, Sherwood once covered most of the rolling western part of Nottinghamshire and stretched even into Derbyshire. Although it included heaths, pasture and even hamlets, its forested areas were vast. Penalties for felling its trees and killing its deer were severe.

But Sherwood's scenic sweep of wooded wilderness that one imagines when reading of Robin Hood's adventures, has dwindled over the centuries. Now, though an area some 20 miles designated as Sherwood Forest, comparatively less is actual forest. Coal mining has encroached upon it, and railroads rim its borders.

Most of the woodland that provided oak for England's navy and beams for St. Paul's Cathedral was cleared by the 18th century, when the old Crown rights to the forest and its pestiferous deer became obsolete. The fencing of land for agricultural use spelled the end of the forest as generations had known it, and the last part slipped ship in 1806.

The bulk of Sherwood's remaining forested land has been preserved in several huge estates that now compose much of the northern part of the area. These estates, called the Dukeries because several dukes made their homes there, include Welbeck Abbey, Clumber, Thoresby, Worksop and Rufford Abbey. Welbeck, seat of the Duke of Portland, is the only one still owned by a Duke. It is now being used as an army college for officer training.

Letter Writing Is Lost Art

(Halifax Chronicle-Herald)

Great letter-writing, like great conversation, demands personality. Although the letter has frequently been used as a literary device, the exemplars of the art are those which are essentially personal. Madame de Sevigny, Walpole, Byron and the Carlyles are a few of those to whom the letter was an expression of personality, far removed from the curt and impersonal note which serves as a letter today. Or, among the great of the present century, the letters of Gertrude Bell stand out with all their intimate mixture of personal details and individual reactions to the complicated texture of Mesopotamian politics, while the curiously self-conscious sentimentalism of the Shaw-Terry correspondence throws a revealing sidelight on the characters of two towering personalities.

We still breed characters, but they seem to be shy of committing themselves to paper. We need more men who can say with St. Paul, "See how large a letter I have written to you with mine own hand."

Letter to the Editor

Fish Game Assoc. Replies to Criticism

Editor
Ontario Intelligencer.

"Re Councillor wanting to re-open ice fishing in North" as appearing in your paper on January 24th 1953.

It is noted Wm. Davis, Reeve of Bangor, brought the matter to the attention of County Council, later supported by Ex-Warden Rollins, Wollaston, also Reeve Sprackett, Tudor and Cashel and finalized by Ex-Warden Rollins' recommendation. Reeve Rollins added he had a feeling the department was not all to blame in the matter. "It is just possible the Fish and Game Association of Belleville is partly responsible for the regulations."

May we explain the ideals and functions of the Belleville and District Fish and Game Association. This association was formed for the sole purpose of helping to protect our great heritage namely, forest fish and game.

In the past each reeve was given a membership ticket gratis. This was done with no thought of monetary return, our sole objective being co-operation, so that the generations of tomorrow, would have continuity of our forest, fish and game. To this end we have worked and have had the fullest co-operation from the department in carrying out a vigorous program of re-stocking.

Our club was started in 1934 by fourteen members, our first re-stocking program was fifteen lakes and streams. In 1952 eighty-five lakes and streams were re-stocked, mostly on Crown lands, fishing privileges being available to every one. To this end much credit is due Dr. Blakslee, Charlie Bishop, Capt. Bottum, Fred Croft, Joe Shortt, W. A. McMurray and many, many others. We have reason to believe the closing of these areas was done by requests to the department from the northern municipalities, who were then aware of the value of the tourist trade to North Hastings. "You can't have cake and eat it too." Today's request is not in the interest of the tourist trade.

Reeve Rollins is either groping around in the dark, or has never taken time to acquaint himself with the functions of the association.

In the first place the association has not or never will make a direct recommendation to the department. There are 165 separate associations throughout Ontario, one or two members from each association is chosen each year to make up the Federation of Anglers and Hunters.

The parent association of federation is financed by a percentage taken from each local club according to their membership. It is to this federation that local clubs make the recommendations and no other.

As a member of long standing and president of the local association for the past three years, no such recommendation regarding ice fishing was ever made to the federation.

I trust Mr. Editor this clarification will have desired results before any irreparable damage is done.

Bruce H. Smith, President,
Belleville and District Fish and Game Protective Association.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

PROGRESS

Two items on the same page of the local paper recently were concerned with the swimming of the English Channel and an increase in air freight service across the Atlantic Ocean. Depending on the speed of the swimmer and the plane, both these trips take roughly the same time, a matter of hours, though the difference is so great: 21 miles as compared with something like 3500.

Five centuries ago it was virtually impossible for man to cross the ocean at all. When the first crossings were finally made they required months. As ships improved the time required shrank to weeks and then to days, and finally, with the airplane, to a matter of hours.

But the swimming of the English Channel is just about as hard and long a task as it ever was. Man's scientific progress has changed the world, all right, but man himself is still the same old human being that he was when Columbus first started across the ocean, and even long before that.

Man still has the same sort of bones and blood and muscles, the same sort of fears and desires and needs. The atom bomb and the jet plane haven't done away with the need for moral law and religious faith, the importance of integrity, self-sacrifice, and love.

The state of the world, in fact, shows that we need these virtues more than ever.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

THERE IS HOPE

Now when there is still time to do something about it you young folks are not interested in the process of physical degeneration. You old folks begin to take an interest in the subject only when it is a little late to reverse the process—change it to regeneration. The best you can hope to do when you finally admit the old gray mare ain't, etc. is to retard the cold gradations of decay.

Mind you, the degeneration I discuss here as a health teacher is physical and has no moral implication. It is precisely the "cold gradations of decay" which every individual who lives long enough must envisage.

I have cited in earlier pieces Webster's definition of physical degeneration, which, in my opinion, is not as good as Stedman's (medical dictionary): "A retrogressive pathological change in cells or tissues in consequence of which the functioning power is lost and the living substance become converted into an inert mass."

Still, as it seems to me, Stedman used one wrong word in his definition. It would be nearer the truth to say the functioning power is impaired. When functioning power is lost you're dead, aren't you?

In the state which doctors call cardio-vascular degeneration (heart and artery troubles), the functioning power of the arteries is certainly not what it used to be, but just as certainly it is not lost.

Thanks for the somersaults I have rolled the past few decades and the movements of the Last Brady Symphony I have practised on my metabolism I can still run up the studio stairway two steps at a time carrying 25 pounds of mail or printed material under my arm and feel only a bit dizzy for a moment from the strain. This moderate strain I believe is good for my heart and arteries. Of course I may come a cropper some fine day, but I have enjoyed living, haven't I?

A few old timers, I hope, will remember my predecessor, who used to point heavenward and assure prospects that "There is hope!"

"Retrogressive pathological change" is vague even to the medical student, and has little or no meaning to the layman. We might say instead that the functioning cells which are constantly wearing out, dying, being removed and replaced by new cells, up to the age of 35 or so, begin to be replaced by scar tissue, fibrous tissue, fatty material, calcareous material, the non-functioning inert mass mentioned in Stedman's definition of degeneration.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

Chewing Tobacco

Husband has coronary insufficiency. Doctor told him he must give up smoking. He has, but instead he now chews tobacco. I say this is just as bad but he says it is not. (Mrs. C. H.)

Answer—In my opinion your husband is right, but still I say a tobacco chewer ought to be restricted to the barnyard or maybe the woodshed. Perhaps I should explain that I believe the carbon monoxide in tobacco smoke is the harmful factor, not the nicotine in tobacco.

Tic Douloureux

Injections of concentrated B viatmins have given my wife prolonged relief from tic douloureux. Trichlorethylene inhalations proved ineffective in her case. (W. M.)

Answer—Thank you. In many cases twenty drops of trichlorethylene (which your physician must prescribe) on a piece of gauze may be inhaled three or four times a day, with great relief.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

WORDS

A single word or a combination of words may be both significant and insignificant, depending upon the occasion or the manner in which they are employed. Issuing forth from the heart, words have become immortal— as exampled by those in Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, od in the 23rd Psalm of David.

All through history words have been written and uttered that have changed the course of human events. The encouragement that words give to us, when coming from a friend, or a wise mind, mean more than anything material, because they find their resting place in the heart.

The poet uses words as the painter does his colors and brushes—to give a picture with his words. He sees color, atmosphere, beauty, in his completed lines. Simple words mean more and live longest. They take less room in the mind. They are least misunderstood, if ever. With a few words Napoleon inspired an entire army. In the darkest days of the British Empire the words of Winston Churchill echoed around the world.

Words are but the lengthened shadows of those who have used them, many of them becoming immortal! Christopher Morley once wrote of the clustered words of Logan Pearsall Smith, as "these ineffably dainty little paragraphs of gilded whim, these rainbow nuggets of wistful inquiry, these sparkles of wit." Mere words—but, oh, so much more.

In the reading of my books, whenever some line pops up, like a newly opened flower in the sunshine, I mark it so that later I can turn to it and be reminded of the joy that once was inspired living anew its pleasurable ecstasy of expression.

Great thoughts, embellished in words, live forever! Like those embodied in the Golden Rule, or the Sermon on the Mount. Words are but tools, but they have fashioned the literature of the world, and painted the picure of history for us all to engage upon. Words are life!

Mystery Of Thin Tops

(Ottawa Evening Citizen)

Researchers in the employ of an American manufacturer of hair cosmetics have discovered that human hair, having a breaking strength of about 6,000 to 7,000 pounds per square inch is about half as sturdy as iron. It is a good deal more elastic, being capable of almost as much stretch (20 per cent) as a rubber band.

And the researchers have ascertained that the average diameter of the very finest hair is about two one-thousandths of an inch, and that average growth is about half inch in a month. On young heads, it grows a bit faster than on old ones.

But why hair falls out of male heads or why it turns gray as one's years advance, the researchers cannot tell. And these are about the only questions that arouse any curiosity in most people. The spirit of scientific inquiry? Vanity, saith the preacher, all is vanity.

Validity of Permit to Erect Service Station Discussed At Special Council Meeting

Whether or not Moxam and Wood, local service station operators, have a valid permit to erect a body and fender repair shop at the corner of Victoria and Lingham streets, was a moot question under discussion at a special meeting of city council held Wednesday.

The meeting was held specifically to deal with an application for a permit to erect the building in what would be a restricted zone under the terms of the city's new zoning by-law now up for approval by the Ontario Municipal Board.

Last fall a permit was granted to Moxam and Wood for the erection of the building. Then the permit was rescinded by council.

As the matter stands city solicitors Pringle and Graham state in their opinion the building permit is no longer effective and if the new by-law is approved by the Municipal Board, Moxam and Wood could not force the city to grant them a permit.

On the other hand Moxam and Wood claim that once having granted a building permit, it is not within the powers of a municipality to recall it.

Will Present Case

And there the matter was left, although Mr. Moxam said he would present his case before the Ontario Municipal Board today when its members were scheduled to sit on the matter of the city's application for approval of their new zoning by-law.

In speaking to council on the matter Mr. Moxam reviewed action to date, the permit being originally refused, then issued on direction from the city solicitor and finally being rescinded. He said that he had thought he had a valid permit and had gone ahead with plans and purchases of materials only to have his permit rescinded.

He said he had received legal advice on the matter and it was his understanding that once a building permit was issued by a municipality it could not be rescinded.

Objects to Property

Asked why he did not built a house on the property, Mr. Moxam replied that he declined to do this in view of the "junk yard" appearance on a neighboring property owned by Mr. Sam Wannamaker. "The appearance of Mr. Wannamaker's yard was objected to strenuously by neighbors but he refused to do anything about the matter," Mr. Moxam said.

"It was because of the appearance of the neighboring property that he had decided to build a body and fender shop on his lot," he said.

A petition from taxpayers in the neighborhood objecting to construction of the shop was read in council but Mr. Moxam countered by naming a resident in the immediate neighborhood, who had no objection. "In fact", he said, "they approved of the shop's construction as it would tend. to block the objectional view."

Mayor Haig noted the whole purpose of the proposed zoning by-law was to protect property owners. "Two wrongs do not make one right," he observed. "Once the by-law is breached there would be no protection for that area."

The mayor felt that an unprejudiced body could more competently deal with the matter and suggested that Mr. Moxam appear Thursday and present his case before the Municipal Board.

1938 By-law Discussed

The validity of the city's building by-law passed back in 1938 which restricted the area in question was brought up for discussion.

"We have had various opinions and have been told that our by-law was no good but we have had no court ruling saying so," noted Alderman Argue.

Alderman Tice pointed out that the 1938 by-law had been amended on several occasions to permit construction of certain buildings. This indicated that the by-law was good. He said council showed its intention by introducing their six months' restrictive by-law until their new zoning by-law was drawn.

Alderman Keegan asked Mr. Moxam if he would be willing to forego appearance before the municipal board with the understanding that he meet later with a board of adjustment to discuss his case. Mr. Keegan said he was anxious that nothing intervene to hold up approval of the by-law. "We want protection for the citizens now," he said.

Mr. Moxam agreed that the zoning by-law was a good thing but claimed he had a building permit and had paid out money for plans and materials to construct his shop.

Man May Spend Rest of Life In Penitentiary

WINDSOR Ont. (CP)—A man sentenced Wednesday to two years and six months for robbery with violence may spend the rest of his life in prison.

Charles Cross, 42, was sentenced to life imprisonment in 1930 after being found guilty of murder. He was freed in 1948 but the agreement under which he was released said he would "forfeit his licence to be at large in Canada" if convicted on another offence.

Cross was charged jointly with Fred McKinnon, 22, who was sentenced to two years less a day in reformatory.

Cross was sentenced to death in 1930 after being convicted of the robbery-killing of a gas station attendant. The sentence was later reduced to life imprisonment. Eighteen years later he was released on the ticket of leave.

'Work and Play Among Eskimos' Superbly Shown at Canadian Club

"Work and Play Among the Eskimos," as presented Tuesday evening at the Women's Canadian Club meeting in Queen Victoria School by Mr. Douglas Wilkinson, author and National Film director, was one of the outstanding meetings of the season.

Told by sound and color films, the unusual scenery and gripping story of Eskimo family life which centred around an Eskimo lad, one, "Aryotee", his birth, babyhood, boyhood and adolescence, his marriage, and beginning life with his family, held the attention of a keenly interested assembly from the first crimson shafts of the rising sun to the going down of the same in that "land of the long day."

Mr. Wilkinson, who was introduced by the president of the club, Mrs. E. Hickey, voiced his appreciation and pleasure at having the privilege of coming to Belleville, as it afforded him an opportunity of seeing his own country as well as other lands.

Further Study

After spending six years in the northland, living in the Eskimo camps, he felt that what he had so far learned of the Eskimo and his way of life, with its philosophy was quite insufficient. In order to learn more, he intends, accompanied by Mrs. Wilkinson, who had been his helper during the other years spent there, to return in April of this year, for further study so that he might make more films, thus bringing the Eskimo nearer to his neighbors at the south.

The Eskimo is a Canadian, an intelligent human being who loves his land; his whole being is wrapped up in the sea for it is from the sea he obtains his living. He is primitive—his way of life is back hundreds of years. To know the Eskimo, it is necessary to know something of the Arctic, and how it looks to the Eskimo.

Each group of Eskimos has its own dialect; though there is a basic language which enables those of separated districts to speak several dialects. They are the only people who can exist in the Arctic. By nature they are kind, hospitable, and honest; somewhat religious, and in some places attend church, which is either Anglican, to which three-quarters belong, or Roman Catholic, to which the remaining one-quarter bear allegiance. They do not call themselves, 'Eskimos', but by the name of 'Inocks'.

Death—a Door

Death to them has no terrors; they consider it as the opening of a door to something much better. If an Eskimo becomes ill and there is no hope of recovery, he does not, like his white brother, hang on to life with tenacity; instead he believes it is better to die now than to wait say two or three weeks; so he dies.

They possess no stable government as there are no leaders; also they are continually on the move. When one place of habitation becomes untenable due to melting snows, they move to better locations where food is more easily obtained. They receive the family allowance, which, as long as they remain in one locality, is a boon to them. But sometimes it is several months before they receive it, since their moving takes some delay for the government to catch up with them. The young babies are fed pablum, and thrive on it; they also are fed at the breast till the third and fourth year. Pablum and other food stuffs are obtained through the exchange of furs.

"Aryotee"

The first film dealt in particular with one family which Mr. Wilkinson knew personally and comprised the father, mother, two young daughters, and the old grandmother who had no little say in the management of the home. The film showed the interior of the igloo; its oil jet fire; the platform where they slept and sat; the day of the great event—the arrival of the long-looked-for son to carry on the father's work; the hunting of the seal; polar bears, fishing and harpooning the whale as these meats formed the staple diet.

The little son, named "Aryotee" by the grandmother, was a fine, sturdy little fellow. For months he thrived with no covering but his brown skin. Then when the mother decided he was old enough to go out, he was adjusted to her back, next to her warm body, and carried that way. Later, when he began to look about, a hood of skin was used for him. If he became too warm, the mother pulled him out till he cooled off, then inserted him again beneath the fur garment.

Clothes of Fur

As he progressed from babyhood to boyhood his clothes were of two sections; the inner one had the fur inside, while the outer one had the fur outside. All clothing, shoes, mitts, both for him and for the others of the family were made by the women, who made the hides soft and pliable by manipulating them with their teeth, and using an instrument to rub the skin side soft. He was taught the art of building the igloo; the art of setting traps under the snow; and when a full grown youth, a wife was found for him, the daughter of his father's friend, with the marriage solemnized in the church. He learned the use of the sleigh and the dog team of huskies, and all needful things for the life he lived, as did the girl who became his bride; that of sewing, cooking.

The second film showed the homes of other Eskimos, with camps in summer and in winter. Igloos in winter, and tents in summer; the hunting of the seals with the hunter approaching sheltered from sight by means of a white square shield, which he kept in front of him to hide his approach. When within shooting distance, he held the shield on the ice, raising the rifle above its edge.

The hunting of the whales was done by the use of kayaks, and with harpoons having ivory tipped barbs which were hurled at the whales as they came up for air. A most skilful feat.

"The Eskimos of the eastern coast are smaller in stature than those of the western. When the Eskimo meets our advanced life, it is almost impossible for him to go back to the former. Today, they have the white man's rifle, outboard motor, and now his food. The one great scourge is that of tuberculosis, the causes of which are being studied with a view to the cure."

Beautiful Colors

From a scenic viewpoint, the films were beautiful in color, showing the vast, snowy wastes; rocky cliffs, melting mountain streams eating their way to the sea; wheeling masses of the snow birds around their lofty nesting places on the rocks, and the white-vested terns, as well as the early flowers of spring, with their pink clusters reminding of the pink African violet; while other flowers looked like tufts of white wool waving in the breeze.

There was a rising sun with its gold-red shafts; the midnight sun with its blazing, six radiating beams; the coming of the long night when little work was done; the fine huskies straining at their long leashes drawing the freighted sleigh across the icy expanse. All were lovely, leaving with the audience unforgettable pictures of that "Land of the Long Day."

Several social studies students from the various schools, including those of Albert College had been invited to share in the pleasures of this educational meeting.

Appreciative thanks were tendered Mr. Wilkinson, on behalf of the club members, by Mrs. W. A. Campbell, as well as by the president, who added her best wishes for his coming trip into the north land. Mrs. Hickey also voiced appreciation to Mr. Ward, of Peterborough for his fine manipulation of the projector; to Mr. E. Fairman, principal of the school, for his kindness in the use of his school for the evening.

Representative CGIT Foxboro Youth Visit City's Churches

During National Christian Youth Week, four car-loads of Foxboro youth representing C.G.I.T., Explorers, and Cub Scouts with Rev. and Mrs. H. W. Giffin visited five of the Belleville centres of worship.

The first stop was at Holloway Street United Church. The children were conducted through the Sunday School department, the vestry and then into the church proper. The outstanding features of this type of church were pointed out and special interest was the original brass key of the church encased in glass.

Christ Church was the second stop made and there Canon J. B. Creeggan gave a most interesting and informative talk on worship in the Anglican Church commencing from the time of infancy and baptism. The significance of the altar was emphasized in detail and the architecture of the church explained.

Visits Synagogue

The third visit was to the Synagogue. Here Rabbi Cutziner dwelt upon the origin of the Old Testament, the writings of Moses and the Ten Commandments. He pointed out the Jewish form of worship and showed the interested group the scroll containing the first five books of the Bible written in Hebrew.

St. Michael's Roman Catholic Church was next visited. The group was received by Father J. J. Buckley, who conducted the group on a tour of the church, outlining the steps and significance of the Roman Catholic faith. Dean Garvin welcomed the delegation.

The last worship centre visited was Bridge Street United Church. The young visitors were met by the minister, Rev. Duncan McTavish. Commencing at the ground floor, the Sunday School department and the recent extensive alterations were shown. In the church, Mr. McTavish answered questions and gave a brief address on worship, the meaning of symbolism and preaching.

Queen Mother And Princess Back in London

LONDON (CP)—Queen Mother Elizabeth and Princess Margaret, back in London after a stay at Sandringham, are supervising final alterations to Clarence House, first London home of the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh.

The house is being fitted as two separate flats. The rooms on the second floor, formerly day-and-night nurseries for Prince Charles and Princess Anne, will probably be occupied by Princess Margaret. The Queen Mother, it is said, will use the ground floor.

The Queen Mother now spends most of her spare time at Clarence House, studying plans and color schemes for interior decoration. It is said that little escapes her, and plans must be carired out to her specifications.

May Move in March

No date has been set for the move from Buckingham Palace, which may be in March. One big delay has been caused by removal of downstairs panelling presented to the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh as a wedding present. This has been stored.

Keen interest is taken by both Princess Margaret and her mother in the fitting of the kitchens. The Queen moved most of her up-to-date kitchen equipment from Clarence House to Buckingham Palace to establish the first kitchen attached to the royal apartments—one that could perhaps rival that presented to Countess Alexander, wife of Britain's defence minister, by the women of Canada.

It has been reported that both the Queen and Queen Mary have expressed a desire to see Lady Alexander's Canadian kitchen.

'Robert' and 'Dawn' Head List Of Popular Names for Infants

Recently a survey was conducted in London, England, by a member of the "Times" staff in an effort to ascertain what names were favorite with parents for new-born infants. The newspaperman patiently checked all birth announcements for a period of a year and came up with "Ann" as being favored for girls and "John" appearing most frequently as a name for the boy.

The idea went over, resulting in many other papers following suit. strangely enough, the names, John and Ann, did not appear as the favorites in Canadian cities. Many places had more than one favorite, making it difficult to say what names were the most popular. However, no Canadian reporter cared to search the birth announcements for a full year and most took only a week, broke it down, to make their survey.

A search of the birth announcements published in the Ontario Intelligencer for the month of January, 1952 revealet the name Thomas appearing twice, the only name which did appear more than once. Such a survey did not show any one name for girls being more popular.

A further survey into names published in January 1953 told an entirely different story. A name which in the past has been considered uncommon, easily outdistanced any other name of baby girls. The name "Dawn." This name appeared four times. "Patricia and Elizabeth" (sometimes called Betty) were tied for second place, each appearing three times. "Robert" was listed three times for boys against second-place "Edward," listed twice.

Faithfulness in Small Things, Talk Heard At Parish Guild

The February meeting of Christ Church Parish Guild was held on Tuesday, with a large attendance. The new president, Mrs. Cleo Colling, presided. Splendid reports were given and plans were made for catering for a "Spring Tea" in May.

Mrs. Hickey introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Varco, who based her talk on the 25th chapter of Matthew, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these, My brethren, ye have done it unto Me." Mrs. Varco stressed that there should be faithfulness and willingness in doing the small things that come day by day, and illustrated this by a legend of a knight of old, who won his shield by doing what seemed to him at the time, of little importance.

Mrs. Wonnacott graciously thanked the speaker.

Mrs. Ling and her committee served tea.

BETHEL-ZION W.M.S.

The regular meeting of the Bethel-Zion W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Richard Cranston with an attendance of 24 ladies and three children.

The president, Mrs. Earle Sayers, opened the meeting.

The Rev. E. J. Kersey conducted the installation of officers for the coming year.

The roll call was answered by members paying their dues. Several items of business were discussed. A quilting to be held at Maple Leaf school also some sewing to be done for supply work.

Mrs. Gordon Foster took the devotional part of the meeting. Scripture readings were given by Mrs. R. Jenkins and Mrs. Clarence Ketcheson. Mrs. Ralph Sills gave two chapters of the study book on "Africa".

Mrs. Floyd Ray and Mrs. Gordon Foster favored with a duet. Mrs. Harry Ketcheson gave a New Year's message.

After the meeting closed refreshments were served by the hostess and her helpers and a social half hour followed.

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The problem of indicating complicated relationships in engagement announcement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have a problem about the wording of the announcement of my engagement to be sent to the newspapers. There is certainly a difference of opinion about the wording—so please set us all straight! When I was a very young girl, my parents were divorced, and I lived with my mother. Shortly after, my beloved mother died, and I went to live with my mother's sister and her husband, to both of whom I am deeply devoted and deeply indebted. (I emphasize this because I am most anxious to have their names 'featured' in the announcement, if this is correct.) My father has re-married—must I mention his present wife? My fiance is from a distant city, his parents are living, and he is a "Jr." Thank you for any suggestions as to the correct way to bring in all this data in the announcement.—Helen.

This would be the correct form, incorporating all the data, and also the emphasis you wish to give to your aunt and uncle:

"Mr. and Mrs. David Browne, of 111 Park Place, announce the engagement of their niece, Miss Helen Clark, to Mr. Courtney Graham, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Courtney Graham, of Columbus, Ohio. Miss Clark is the daughter of Mrs. Browne's late sister, Mrs. Robinson Clark and Mr. Jonathan Clark."

Note 1: The form of your mother's name, correct for a divorcee (that is, her maiden surname prefixed to her ex-husband's surname) indicates that your mother was divorced from your father at the time of her death.

Note 2: It is not at all necessary, of course, to mention your father's present wife. (Do I hear your sigh of relief? As I judge by your 'must'!)

Note 3: After the name and relationship-data, given above, you would probably want to add information as to schools, perhaps colleges, present positions, and so forth.

Good idea for minimum expense . . . a dessert-and-coffee bridal shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In our group of friends a hostess very often gives a dessert-bridge; that is, we all have our luncheon, except dessert, at home, then go to the hostess' house, have dessert and coffee, and then play bridge. I am wondering if it would be proper for me to carry out the same general idea in giving a bridal shower I'd like to give rather soon for a friend of mine. I must give the shower on a very small budget, and I thought this would make it possible—that is, to invite the girls to dessert and coffee, then have the shower, and, if there is time, play bridge or canasta.—Harriet W.

Yes, an excellent idea, and entirely proper. Or, if you prefer, and also for a small expense, you may give the afternoon shower followed by a very simple tea-menu (tea and/or coffee, small sandwiches, cookies or small cakes, omitting the sandwiches if you wish to). Generally at a shower, particularly a bridal shower where there usually is much thrilling romantic news to talk over, there is more chatting than bridge-playing. . .so don't be too insistent about the game playing.

Love—It's Wonderful On Valentine's Day

By Mary Moore

Queen of Hearts Tarts would be a natural for Valentine's Day Parties but how many of us have or can find any heart-shaped tart tins. Not I!

But I think I have something for you that will be popular with you and your crowd of young people in love: Marzipan Strawberries. They are easy to make too.

A mound of these luscious-looking confections in the centre of a large glass plate with a wide border of pale shortbreads around it is a sight to behold and a delight to taste.

You can make ham sandwiches for a starter and a filler, and use the Pink Lemonade (below) as a beverage and there's your party, all done up pink.

MARZIPAN STRAWBERRIES

(About 70 or 80 strawberries)

To one can sweetened condensed milk add 1 lb. dessicated cocoanut. (Buy the dessicated cocoanut in 4 4-oz. packages. You will be tempted to buy 1 1-lb. package but there is a quicker turnover of the 4-oz. packages so it is fresher cocoanut.) Also add 1 tablespoon fruit sugar, 1-4 lb. very finely chopped blanched almonds and 1 1-2 packages of strawberry jelly dessert. (Buy 3 packages—these are usually about 3 for 29c. You need 1-2 package to roll shaped "strawberries" in—but you may use extra so have the third package on hand.) Add 1 teaspoon each vanilla and red coloring. Mix. Chill in refrigerator for 1-2 or 1 hour to make handling easy. Take up a teaspoonful into bare hand and roll into a ball. Flatten the top and pull out a point at the bottom to shape like a strawberry. Roll in the leftover 1-2 package strawberry jelly dessert to give a pebbled coating like a natural strawberry. For the hull or top leaf make Green Icing: 1 cup icing sugar, 1-8 cup butter (2 tablespoons), 1-2 teaspoon vanilla, 1 tablespoon cream, enough green coloring to mark dark green. Fill your icing tube with this. Holding each strawberry in your hand, shape a round leaf at top of it, and if you the adept at this you can drag it away quickly to leave a tag end for a stem. Let these dry at room temperature then store in refrigerator to chill and harden until time to serve. A couple of dozen of these arranged daintily in a box make a welcome gift—especially to English folk who have a soft spot in their hearts for marzipan candies.

VALENTINE PINK PUNCH

(For 12)

One can lemon juice concentrate, 1 cup strained cranberry juice, 1 small bottle gingerale. (If desired a few scoops of lemonade sherbet may be added to make this real posh.) Follow directions on can of lemon juice concentrate to make this up to 4 cups of lemonade. Add cranberry juice. Chill. Just before serving time add the ginger ale, 1 tray of ice cubes and mix. Float scoops of lemonade sherbet on top of it in punch bowl if desired.

If you want to make your own lemon sherbet (and it is easy) here's that recipe too.

LEMON SHERBET

One 1 lb. tin evaporated milk, chilled and undiluted, 1 can frozen lemon juice concentrate undiluted and sugar to taste—it should be a little oversweet before freezing for some of the sweet taste is lost when frozen. Turn refrigerator to coldest setting. Whip the chilled evaporated milk until stiff, standing bowl in larger bowl containing ice. Slowly add the concentrated lemon juice, blending thoroughly. Add sugar to taste. Pour into freezing tray and freeze hard—stirring twice as it freezes.

While Valentine's Day only last 24 hours I hope it is not a one-day love affair in your house.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

You can't keep a fire burning without fuel

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a 33-year-old wife, married about 13 years, and have three children. My trouble is that my husband and I never seem to have anything to talk about and he never takes me out. He gets home at night about half past eight, and even though I have made his favorite dishes, he never tells me if he likes the dinner or not. He eats without talking, then gets up from the table and goes up to bed.

I want your advice.—Mrs. S. C.

Dear Mrs. S. C.:

There are certain essentials that must be present if a husband and wife are to be the kind of congenial companions who always have a lot to talk about together.

One is, they must have lots of mutual friends. Another is, they must have many common interests; and a third is that each of them must have activities of their own which provide conversational material to interest the other.

Have you made it a point to try to develop your social life so that you and your husband can look forward to one or two evenings a week when you can have an interesting time with friends? I doubt very much if anything like that has been done, since you tell me your husband gets up from the dinner table and goes to bed. Of course I realize that he gets home late from work, and that by the time he has eaten his dinner he is perhaps too tired for any social activity most nights in the week, but how about Saturday or Sunday evenings?

Couldn't you plan something that would interest him for one of these nights each week? Or couldn't you ask some friends that you both like to come to dinner one evening a week, and then have a pleasant time afterward, perhaps playing cards or doing something else that would be fun?

Are you so tied down at home that you can't take up something in the community that would provide you with new things to think about and talk about to your husband at dinner? Could you find some club in your city that your husband might enjoy and where you could both make new friends? Or encourage him to join a men's bowling club, or something of the sort?

The whole point is, that if a husband and wife have nothing but the children and household matters to discuss when they are together, it's no wonder that they run out of conversation very soon. It's like expecting to keep a fire burning, when you have no fuel. Think this over and see if you can't adopt some of the ideas I have suggested.

The teens are the time for lots of friends

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Last month a boy with whom I was going steady went into the navy. At first I didn't go out with any other boy, but then one who didn't know I had been going steady with Bob asked me for a date and I went out with him. Now I like him even better than Bob, but I don't want to hurt Bob's feelings. How can I tell Bob in a letter that I don't want to go with him any more?—T. L. B.

Dear T.L.B.:

You don't tell me how old you are, but I suspect you are in your early teens and therefore likely to find yourself enthusiastic about one boy after another for some years to come.

So the best thing for you to do is to write Bob that you have decided it is wiser for you not to go steady with any boy just now, and that you want to feel free to go out with whoever you like. Tell him you certainly want to keep him for a friend, and that you will keep on writing him letters to give him all the news of what is going on at home. Say that you want to hear from him, too. Then just write him nice friendly letters tell him him what you and your friends are doing, but avoid anything sentimental.

If you will handle things that way, I think you'll find everything will come out all right.

Fitness replied: "Just guilty, that's all."

Tasty Pancake Recipes For Shrove Tuesday

Next Tuesday marks another milestone in that fine old custom —"Pancake Day". It is observed in the United Kingdon, Canada and the United States, and has survived for centuries in the Old Land.

Part of modern day observation calls for generous servings of savory pancakes and this is made easy by the prepared mixes which are on sale at all grocery stores.

Pancakes are best loved when topped with butter and maple syrup. However, there are numerous variations which have proved successful. Among these are the following: Bacon strip pancakes: place 2 half strips of cooked bacon on griddle for each pancake. Cover with pancake batter and bake to a golden brown.

Cheese Pancakes: Fold one-half cup grated Canadian cheese into one recipe of pancake batter. Corn Pancakes: fold 1 cup of drained whole kernel corn into one recipe of pancake batter. For Sausage Pancakes cook one-half pound of pork sausage meat. Drain and fold into one recipe of pancake batter.

For sauces and toppings other than maple or corn syrup try banana fluff: Mash two fully ripe bananas until soft and of a smooth consistency. Fold in one-quarter cup confectioners' sugar and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Beat one-half cup of chilled evaporated milk until stiff. Fold in bananas. Serve immediately on pancakes.

Cherry Sauce: Add 1 package of frozen cherries or one No. 2 can cherries to 1 cup corn syrup. Simmer about five minutes. Serve hot on pancakes.

International Players, Kingston About to Begin Sixth Year

By JOHN PATERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—The International Players, a hardy stock company in this historic eastern Ontario city, are nonchalant about the way they break theatrical records and rules.

With a record 1952 season of 46 consecutive weeks behind it, the company, operated by Arthur Sutherland of Kingston and Drew Thompson of Ottawa and Toronto, is about to begin its sixth year.

The company policy, adopted during a dark moment in 1949, continues to be "pay what you like." The audience, admitted free at the door, is asked to demonstrate its appreciation when the collection plate is passed.

Hectic at Times

Sutherland, the tall, husky business manager, admits the system is a bit hectic.

"We play two acts, then we have the collection plate passed by several attractive girls. We'll never get wealthy at it and often it's either feast or famine. But it's a living and we're doing what we like best, working in theatre."

Thompson, co-partner, has played in about 400 of the company's 800 performances since it was founded in 1948 by Sutherland. Thompson, born in Ottawa and a graduate of the University of Toronto, played a season of stock in Vancouver and then toured most of Western Canada with the Everyman Theatre of Vancouver before returning east.

Sutherland, born in Kingston was graduated in 1937 from the American Academy of Dramatic Art, New York, and played in various United States stock companies. He also made some movie shorts before joining the U.S. Army and serving overseas.

After the war he decided to form a stock company in Kingston. The first 11-week season of summer theatre, with admission by ticket in the normal manner, was successful. But in the third week of their second year business came to a standstill.

"Things were a bit desperate," he said.

"I had promised the actors a full season and so we decided to start this collection plan. At first our collections ranged from a dime to a dollar but things have picked up. The audiences like us and we have had to move to the Memorial Hall which holds 650 people.

Add Gananoque

"We added nearby Gananoque to our schedule and, in 1950 we started to play dates in the Toronto district.

"We've used more than 200 actors from all parts of Canada and even a few from the United States. We've done 150 plays, from George Bernard Shaw's 'Arms and the Man'—our worst flop—to 'Tobacco Road,' our biggest hit.

"We staged the world premiere of 'Fortune My Foe' by Robertson Davies of Peterborough, Ont., and it was a big success."

Despite their experience the partners are quick to admit they still can't tell for sure what audiences will like.

Their playing season has lengthened from the original 11 weeks until in 1951 they played 27 weeks in Kingston and Gananoque and another 17 weeks in Toronto. In 1952 the season extended from February until Christmas.

The 1953 season began Feb. 9 when they produced the annual Queen's University revue. Next week, the International Players will be open for business.

CHARGE TWO ATTACKS

Steamed Puddings

The English are famous for their suet puddings or at least they were before the austerity program. However, most people on this continent serve somewhat lighter types of desserts. The average Canadian homemaker would rather make puddings which do not require long hours of steaming. There are any number of steamed puddings which take only a half hour to one hour to cook and they are bound to be greeted with delight on chilly February days.

When making a steamed pudding there are few things to keep in mind. The home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture in Ottawa state that pudding molds should not be filled more than two-thirds full. This gives the pudding room to rise. If the mold has no lid, it can be covered with waxed or parchment paper and the paper tied in place. This keeps the steam from condensing on the surface of the pudding. After all no one enjoys eating a steamed pudding that has a soggy top.

It is important to be sure that there is always a good supply of steam while the pudding is cooking. A regular steamer is best but a good one can be improvised by placing a wire sieve or a collander in a saucepan. If a collander or a sieve which fits into a saucepan is not available, the pudding may be placed on an inverted heat-proof saucer, small pie-plate or even on a jar ring. An inch or so of boiling water should then be poured into the saucepan. The saucepan used as a steamer must have a tightly fitting lid or it will boil dry. If water has to be added during the cooking period it is important that it is boiling so that there will be a steady flow of steam.

There are some steamed puddings that are as light as a feathed such as the Snowball pudding. It is made with a regular white butter cake batter using three egg whites but instead of baking it as a cake it is placed in individual greased molds and steamed for just half an hour. Served with a fruit sauce this pudding is reall delicious.

This light Snowball Pudding needs comparatively short steaming—just half an hour but pudding with suet and large quantities of fruit must be steamed for a much longer time. Here is where a pressure saucepan is a boon for it cuts down the steaming time to about one-third. In most manufacturers' directions for using pressure saucepans it is stated that the pudding should be steamed for a short time without pressure. This gives the pudding a good chance to rise and the cooking is completed at fifteen pounds pressure.

A steamed pudding should always be served with a sauce. There are a host of delicious sauces that can be used but the applesauce cheese sauce they suggest is very good and certainly is easy to make. All that has to be done is to combine a twenty-ounce tin of applesauce with half of a four-ounce package of cream cheese. After the applesauce and cheese are thoroughly blended the sauce is chilled until is is ready to use. This amount is sufficient for eight servings.

Another easy sauce to make is foamy fruit sauce. It is made by beating an egg white until it is stiff but not dry and then gradually beating in two tablespoons of sugar and a pinch of salt. Continue beating until the mixture hold a peak. This is just the same as an ordinary pie meringue. Then fold into the meringue a half cup of any type of mashed canned fruit. If the fruit is very sweet add a little lemon juice. Chill the sauce until it is ready to be used. It can be colorful too if it is made with canned cherries or plums.

Pancake Is King on Shrove Tuesday

Next Tuesday we celebrate Shrove Tuesday, the last great Christian Festival before Easter. It's "Fastelavn" in Copenhagen, "Vastenavond" in Brussels, "Sirna Sedmitza" in Bulgaria and is known by a host of other names in as many countries round the globe. Perhaps the Spanish best express it in their "Carnival", or possibly the Italians in their "Martedi Grasso", better known as the Mardi Gras of New Orleans, Mexico and Latin America. Wherever it is, the day is a happy holiday feast, with the appetizing pancake as its king.

Throughout the English-speaking world, from England to Australia, we call it Shrove Tuesday (Pancake Day). . . . ,the day when feasts of syrup -smothered pancakes make many a table groan.

Actually, the real credit for the delightful invention of pancakes should go to our stone age ancestors. They started it all with a simple mixture of ground wheat and corn roasted on hot stones. The result, however, would certainly not be recognizable in the fluffy, golden-brown pancakes of today, with their many tempting variations.

Favorite For Centuries

But even way back in the early Roman times, pancakes were good and everybody loved them . . . .ate them for breakfast, lunch and supper. When, following ancient Biblical custom, the church declared that no meat could be eaten during the 40 week-days preceding Easter, pancakes became even more popular during the Lenten season as a substitute for meat.

Immediately preceding a 40-day fasting period, it isn't so surprising that Pancake Day soon became the year's biggest excuse for merrymaking and holiday feasting. Between Shrove Sunday (somebody originally named it Quinquagesima Sunday, a name which, for some reason, never did become popular) and the last day before Lent, anything can happen—and often does.

In old England, at the little village of Olney, Bucks, a Pancake Day race has been staged every year since 1445. Housewives race from the village pump to the church, flipping their pancakes on the way. The winner gets a traditional kiss from the verger.

At Westminster School in London, Pancake Day is eagerly awaited each year. At 11:00 a.m., the headmaster solemnly emerges from the school kitchen, followed by a cook bearing a large pancake. The pancake is thrown into a crowd of waiting boys, who fight for possession, and the lad who emerges with the largest piece wins a sum of money from the school funds.

Mardi Gras Celebrated

In Paris, Rome, New Orleans and Rio de Janiero they have their Mardi Gras, that fantastic day of days (and sometimes weeks) when the masquerade combines with the dance, the wedding and the feast to create a spectacular festival of fabulous fame. In Toledo it's bull-fights and weddings, an unusual combination for an unusual day, and in Berlin the famous Guild Dances or Fastnachtsspiel Plays, with floats and pancakes, eggs and pretzels.

Pancake parties herald the coming of Spring. They are often held along the lines of an indoor weiner roast, with pancakes and weiners, games and dancing, and with everybody dressed in everyday clothes, or costume if preferred.

Highway Expenditures to Be Same as Last Year Doucett Tells Good Roads Assoc.

TORONTO (CP) — Highways Minister Doucett said today the time is approaching when the subject of taxation must be regarded on the basis of what the public can afford, rather than what it would like to have.

In a speech prepared for delivery at the annual meeting of the Ontario Good Roads Association, Mr. Doucett said people aren't anxious either for new forms of taxation or for increases in the present scale of taxation.

"All sorts of public - financed schemes are being advanced," he said, "but the immediate question is, are we willing to pay for them? All our governments have reasonably buoyant revenues at this time, but there is no certainty this state of affairs will always be with us. We must look at the whole subject from the basis of what we can sensibly and reasonably afford."

Same as Last Year

Mr. Doucett said highway expenditures in 1953 will be about the same as last year, totalling $100,000,000. This will include about [illegible]00,000 in municipal highway subsidies.

Construction this year will include completion of the Sault Ste. Marie-North Bay link of No. 17. About 40 miles still must be paved.

Work will continue on No. 2A, a dual - lane controlled - access road from Toronto east to Newcastle. Mr. Doucett said this road will be extended east to Port Hope, a 13-mile stretch, as soon as finances permit.

He said the major portion of work on an "interceptor" road beginning near Malton airport and by-passing Toronto to the north will be finished this year.

He said construction is being pushed ahead in the north on the trans-Canada highway, with work in progress in Sudbury, Blind River, Fort William, Kenora, and Bancroft divisions. The link between Atikokan, near the Steep Rock iron ore development, and the trans-Canada highway is progressing.

Mr. Doucett said important, long-range plans are being made in preparation for the St. Lawrence seaway development.

248 Miles Resurfaced

Reviewing last year's work, Mr. Doucett said 248 miles of old paving were resurfaced, hot mix paving was applied to 406 miles of previously unpaved roads, 250 miles of roads were graded, mulch treatment was applied to 357 miles, and prime dust layer was placed on 1,320 miles.

Work on the trans-Canada highway so far has totalled 255 miles of grading, 108 miles of hot mix paving and construction of 14 bridges.

Mr. Doucett said the drive to cut down traffic offences will continue at a steady pace. Last year 20,000 drivers' permits were suspended.

"Just as we eliminate wooden structures from our highways, so I think we can eliminate, by legislation and law enforcement, that dangerous minority of our drivers who have wooden heads," he said.

W. H. Lougheed Given High Post

TORONTO (CP) — William H. Lougheed Tuesday was appointed deputy commissioner of the Ontario provincial police, succeeding E. V. McNeill, the new commissioner.

Deputy Commissioner Lougheed moved up from chief inspector and head of the criminal investigation branch. On the force 35 years, he has worked on some of Ontario's biggest murder cases.

Mr. Lougheed was formerly an inspector at headquarters in Belleville and is well-known in the district.

Burlington Lift Worst Obstacle Roads' Men Told

TORONTO (CP) — Lack of co-operation for 25 years between federal and provincial governments is the reason why the Burlington lift bridge is at present the worst bottleneck in Canada and possibly as bad as any in North America, Thomas J. Mahony of Hamilton said Tuesday.

He said at the annual convention of the Ontario Good Roads Association that Col. J. R. B. Jones, chief engineer for the Canadian Army, considered the present bridge a dangerous obstacle to possible emergency military traffic.

The association's secretary-treasurer said that in 1951 the federal government received $144,000,000 in sales and excise tax from motor vehicles. The 3,600 square-mile metropolitan area of Hamilton, Toronto, Niagara Falls, Kitchener and Brantford contained half the province's 4,800,000 residents, Mr. Mahony said, yet no action has been taken to permit free flow of traffic across the Burlington canal in the heart of this area.

Urges Commission

Mr. Mahony called for a permanent, non-political commission to administer roads construction programs. He said present highways administration lacks continuity because of the impermanence in office of political parties.

Highways Minister Doucett said at the convention that automobile drivers and owners will not be compelled to have insurance. Such a measure as compulsory insurance gives no protection against the uninsured motorist non-resident in Ontario, he said.

"It gives no protection in hit-run cases," Mr. Doucett said. "It would double the cost of insurance and a heavy additional burden would be placed on careful and competent drivers."

The Ontario fund for paying unsatisfied legal judgments arising from motor accidents has disbursed $3,141,000 to accident victims since it was established, he said. Last year 20,000 drivers' permits were suspended.

President J. L. Shearer said research into highway construction, maintainance, design, financing and safety engineering should continue. More interest was needed at the township and county level and there was an increasing need for the integration of municipal roads with the provincial highways system.

Dr. Norman McLeod, Imperial Oil technologist, advised municipalities to investigate what effect a centre line has on traffic accident incidence.

Surveys in the United States, he said, showed that 56 per cent of motorists tend to drive at least partly on the wrong side of the road if there is no centre line, but when such a line is there only 12 per cent drive on the wrong side.

Gales Threaten Renewed Floods

LONDON (CP) — Gales today threatened new floods around North sea coastal areas, while heavy snows snarled up other sections of Britain and northern Europe.

Renewed winds along Britain's east coast spurred thousands of troops and volunteers sand-bagging the big gaps torn in south-eastern sea walls by the disastrous floods of 11 days ago. They raced against the threat of high spring tides expected Friday.

Six-foot-deep snowdrifts blocked roads and marooned isolated villages in northern England and southern Wales.

In Belgium, also a victim of last week's flood, several rivers swollen by rain and thaws burst their banks.

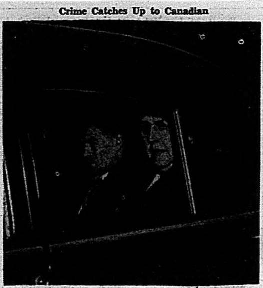
Crime Catches Up to Canadian



One of two Canadians charged in killing of a jeweller in Buffalo, N.Y., 28-year-old Maurice "Digger" O'Dell is seen, centre, arriving in Buffalo, where he has been indicted along with Walter F. Griffen, 26, on charges of first-degree robbery and murder. The victim, 45-year-old Donald F. Hurd, was shot in the chest during a daring daylight hold-up of his shop that netted more than $30,000 in jewels for three men, one is still being sought both in the U.S. and Canada, on Dec. 9. Mrs. Hurd testified at an extradition hearing in Hamilton, Ont., where two men were captured on Dec. 11, that O'Dell fired the fatal shot. The Ontario supreme court on Jan. 17 ordered the men extradited after the request cleared through Albany, Washington and Ottawa. — Central Press Canadian.

RAWDON

Africa Prepares 'World Day of Prayer' Service

Rawdon—"The World Day of Prayer" will be held as usual the first Friday in Lent. The service this year has been prepared through the co-operation of African Christians based on the theme, "Walk as Children of Light."

It is a tribute to missions in general that Africa, once known as the "dark continent" has been able to prepare such a world-wide service.

This service has increased in scope each year and last year the offerings received were $5,000 more than in the previous year. These offerings are used to provide Christian literature all over the world whenever the need is greatest.

In Africa a special drum call is used to assemble the people for worship and this will call people to the service of 1953. A portion of of "God's Candlelights" written by Mabel Shaw, and an excerpt by a Bantu Christian will carry messages from Africa to those who are assembled.

Short History

Miss Muriel L. McMurrick last year prepared a short history of the World Day of Prayer in Canada based on "Pathways Through Time." This was a tribute to the work of the late Miss Bessie MacMurchy who was the capable treasurer of the Women's Inter-Church Council of Canada for 22 years, which was first known as "The Inter-Board Committee of Women's Missionary Societies.

The first Interdenominational Day of Prayer for women was held in Canada on the first Friday in Lent in 1920. In 1922 the women of Canada and the United States joined their forces to promote prayer and receive offerings for Christian literature to be distributed throughout the world.

In Canada last year 2,388 large groups met besides all the small gatherings in sick rooms and at family meals. In 1939 a radio broadcast the day previous was a new venture and it has steadily grown to be most worthwhile. There have been 170,000 copies of the service printed and they should be treasured as it has been prepared and adopted with utmost care and study and contains inspirational material.

For several years the World Day of Prayer observance was limited to members of missionary societies, however, after the Second World War, the organization stressed that this service was meant to unite all Christian women and in 1946 they chose the new name of "Women's Inter-Church Council of Canada."

To Unite Women of Canada

The main objective is to unite the women of Canada in every effort to bring in the Kingdom of God in their own country and throughout the world.

Many women have served through the years and while "The Lord gave the word," a great host of women have helped to publish the glad tidings.

One of the leaders urged that everyone try to recapture the simple faith of children as they walk and work together through 1953.

he service for Rawdon United Circuit will be held at Wellman's United Church on Friday afternoon, and all the women are invited to attend.

BABY'S COLDS
Help Nature To Fight Them Off

Medical Science denies there is any such thing as a cure for colds—only Nature herself can do it. So when baby's sniffles, or stuffy breathing warn you of a cold's presence—cooperate at once with Nature.

See that baby is kept warm, gets plenty of sleep and take extra care that the bowels are thoroughly cleared of harmful wastes. To do this without upsetting baby's whole system and further weakening it, try Baby's Own Tablets. Mild, yet act promptly in getting rid of irritating materials that make baby restless and feverish.

One Nova Scotia Mother says: "My baby of 28 months caught a nasty cold so I tried Baby's Own Tablets and she threw this cold off quicker than ever before. I certainly am for Baby's Own Tablets from now on." Equally good for restlessness and peevishness resulting from irregularity at teething time, for constipation, digestive upsets and other minor infant troubles. Get a package today at drugstores.

Officials Oppose New Racetrack As Traffic Block

TORONTO (CP) — Police and municipal officials expressed the view today that the new racetrack to be built on the same artery that carries traffic to nearby Malton airport would result in a tremendous traffic snarl during its 60-day racing season.

The track, to be constructed by the Ontario Jockey Club within three years, will be built on 400 acres west of Highway 27 and five miles north of the Queen Elizabeth Way.

The track would be the biggest in North America. It would accommodate 60,000 persons and some 3,000 cars.

Nearby Weston announced its council will bring an appeal against the track before the Ontario municipal board Feb. 18.

The main road to the proposed track now carries traffic and freight to Malton airport, and some 5,000 cars belonging to workers at the A. V. Roe plant, also at Malton.

HISTORIC BRIDGE

GUELPH, Ont. (CP)—Suggestion that the famous old covered bridge at West Montrose, 15 miles west of here, be kept intact and converted into a district museum was made at a meeting of old-timers here. It is believed the only covered bridge remaining in Ontario but is scheduled to be torn down as a danger to traffic.

Secretary Reports to President on Fact-Finding Tour of Western Europe

Summary of their recent fact-finding tour of Western Europe is given to President Eisenhower by U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, left, and Mutual Secretary Director, Harold Stassen at White House in Washington. Mr. Dulles reports he is "encouraged" at the progress being made toward a unified European defence against Communism. "I believe," the secretary was directly quoted, "our trip made clear the interest which the American Congress and people attach to this project which, of course, originated in Europe and must in the final analysis be acted on by the Europeans." This was his main conclusion in reporting on the trip made to sound out for the president the degree of progress made in West Europe in recent months.—Central Press Canadian.

Motor Show Will Feature Many Attractions

TORONTO. — Canada's first National Motor Show in 14 years opens this week.

The doors of the Automotive Building at Exhibition Park open to the public at 7 o'clock, Friday night. The opening ceremonies, with Hon. Louis O. Breithaupt, Lieutenant Governor, officiating, take place at 9.

Most of the nearly 200 vehicles being displayed by 14 exhibiting companies will be passenger cars. A number of trucks of varying sizes will also be exhibited along with two buses and one or two jeeps.

The antique car display will include some 30 automobiles dating back as far as 1896. Mostly pre-World War I models, the display will be the largest of its kind ever assembled in Canada. The Duster and Goggle Club of Toronto, the Edison Museum at Dearborn, Mich., several of the exhibitors and a few private owners are contributing to the exhibit.

From the woman's point of view an interesting feature will be the "Wheel of Fashion", first high-style fashion show of 1953 in the country. Outstanding Canadian designs, originals from New York and Paris—clothes that range in price up to a $20,000 Labrador mink—will be modelled under the direction of Rosemary Boxer, noted Canadian fashion authority. Fashion show music will be provided by a 15-piece orchestra under Denny Vaughan and will feature two pianos and songs by the modern vocal group, "Terry and the Macs", of TV and radio.

In addition to the twice-a-day fashion show there will be a three-times-a-day stage performance featuring the famous Andrews Sisters, Denny Vaughan, his piano and orchestra. A specially designed stage has been built for these performances.

Trade Minister Makes Bitter Attack in Commons on Pres. Of Dominion Sugar Company

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Howe, a notably blunt man, used a broadax in the Commons Wednesday in an attack on W. J. McGregor, president of the Canada and Dominion Sugar Company, and on his firm.

In as tough a diatribe against an individual as veteran House observers have heard in many years, Mr. Howe roughed up the Chatham industrialist off and on for a half hour after accusing him and his company of steaming up a "pressure campaign" to have the government stop import of Cuban refined sugar into Canada.

The minister tackled Mr. McGregor—admitting his intention to "really do a job on him"—as he announced that Cuba has agreed to modify refined sugar shipments in the interests of the sugar-beet industry of Canada.

Back from a Latin-American sales tour, Mr. Howe assured the Commons—which had been debating the problems of the Canadian beet industry—that no Cuban refined product would go directly into Western Ontario or the Prairie provinces.

Arrangement Made on Tour

He made this arrangement with the Cuban trade during his 20,000-mile southern trip. Mr. Howe did not report on other aspects of his five-week tour but was expected to give members a general report later.

J. W. Murphy (PC—Lambton West) who Tuesday night launched the Commons debate on Cuban sugar imports, issued a statement outside the house welcoming Mr. Howe's assurances of no more Cuban exports directly into Canada's sugar-producing areas.

He added, however, that "how Mr. Howe proposes to make this effective is another matter upon which further clarification will be welcome."

The minister entered the debate after members from beet-growing areas complained that the beet industry was being hit by imports of Cuban refined sugar and urged the government to take action.

Called Pressure Campaign

He turned on the sugar company head on the ground that any trade restrictions should be put into effect by negotiation between countries rather than by imposition by the importing country. Mr. McGregor, he said, had asked him last fall that Canada put a quota on Cuban refined sugar.

Later, he said, Mr. McGregor and his company circularized the beet-growing industry to take part in a "pressure campaign on the government to bring about legislation to stop the import of Cuban refined sugar."

"I am happy to say," Mr. Howe declared, "that the rest of the industry, being men of integrity, refused to have anything to do with that campaign. . . .

"However, Canada and Dominion Sugar Company then started the most aggressive pressure campaign that I have ever known of in my 17 years as a member of this house."

This included, Mr. Howe said, cables to himself in various South American countries.

Repeated Phrases Claim

"It happens that Mr. MacGregor is a man with a limited vocabulary, and he repeated certain phrases," the minister said. "Those phrases are all in his cables.

"In the meantime, the offices received telegrams and letters, obviously all written by Mr. McGregor or his staff, and signed by parish priests, by organizations of growers, by individuals and by various other people. . . ."

Turning to Mr. Murphy's speech Tuesday night, Mr. Howe remarked:

"I notice that the same old phrases that appeared in these statements and in the letters turned up frequently in his speech."

To Cubans who had been disturbed by Mr. Murphy's earlier speeches, he said, he had explained that the Lambton West member "was simply a politician looking for the votes of the sugar growers and that they were not to take his remarks seriously."

Called Reputable Firm

Dealing with the Canada and Dominion Company itself, Mr. Howe said it is a reputable concern and its affairs are efficiently conducted. If its recommendations were "designed to benefit primarily the company itself," fault should not necessarily be found with that.

But Mr. Howe said he is informed—though not on authenticated information—that the company in 1952 had the highest gross profits in its history. This profit had not been shared by the beet growers, who took a cut in their returns.

"I am afraid this company has not learned about equality of sacrifice," he added.

Mr. Howe suggested that sugar-beet growers "might ask the refiners for a little share of the extra gravy that is being withheld at the expense of the Canadian consumer."

"I had planned," he added, "to really do a job on my friend, Mr. McGregor, in return for the loss of sleep he caused me on my trip. . . .

"One threat he made does not cause me very much concern. . . It was a threat that, unless Cuban refined sugar was shut out of Canada, he would close the refineries.

"I would assume that Mr. McGregor has shareholders and a board of directors and that, just about the time he would start closing the refineries, the board of directors would decide to get a new head man."

Claims No Respect

In reply to a later question on whether shutting off imports of Cuban refined would send up the consumer price of sugar in Canada, Mr. Howe said:

"It would put the refineries in the position of charging anything they liked for refined sugar and, while I have a great respect for the industry as a whole, I have no respect at all for the president of the Canada and Dominion Sugar Company."

Mr. Howe indicated that the reduction in shipments of refined sugar from Cuba depend on Canadian refiners halting what he termed "some exceedingly bad buying practices" in taking Cuban raw sugar. He said he is meeting the refiners later this week.

The minister called these practices "stupid" but did not elaborate.

Will be Protected

"Assuming that remedial action is taken with regard to these buying practices which have discriminated definitely against the Cuban exporters," he said, "I think I can assure. . . that no Cuban refined sugar will be shipped into Western Ontario or into the three Prairie Provinces.

"It may be that, if the (Canadian) refiners are still considered to be taking too wide a margin, refined sugar will go to Newfoundland, which was always a market for Cuban refined sugar. It may go into the Maritime Provinces.

"All I am saying is that refined sugar will not be shipped directly from Cuba into the beet-growing markets."

Mr. Howe said the main cause of complaint in the sugar-beet industry was not the "relatively small" Cuban imports but a fall in world sugar prices. The beet industry could not continue to receive scarcity prices when world prices were at more normal levels.

If import restrictions were to be put into effect, Mr. Howe said, the people of Canada generally would have to pay for them in higher prices and in loss of export markets.

Complaints Lodged on 2 Sore Points in Relations Between United States and Canada

By ALAN DONNELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government has lodged complaints with the new United States administration on two sore points in relations between the two countries.

The friction spots were U. S. restrictions on dairy product imports and U. S. delay in naming a partner for Canada in the power phase of the $750,000,000 St. Lawrence navigation-power project.

Transport Minister Chevrier, in a speech Wednesday to the Chamber of Commerce at Port Arthur, said Canada is becoming "somewhat impatient" at the delay of the U. S. federal power commission in deciding on the New York state power authority's application to undertake the St. Lawrence power project.

External Affairs Minister Pearson said in the Commons that power commission discussions "must not delay any longer the whole project."

And in a 450-word note delivered at Washington, the Canadian government expressed "serious concern" at the "infringement" of trade agreements involved in the import restrictions on dairy products. A copy of the note was tabled in the Commons by Mr. Pearson.

Mr. Chevrier said that after five months, the U. S. power commission's hearing of the New York state application had been adjourned, with indications it will be some time yet before a decision is reached.

Canada is committed to building the $300,000,000 navigation works alone. The Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission will share construction of the power facilities with whatever U. S. agency is approved in Washington. It is generally believed that New York state will do the job.

Mr. Chevrier said: "We are naturally becoming somewhat impatient at the delays in this matter which to us is of vital concern.

"Will there be no end to these delays? Why should it be necessary undetermined period? Why cannot we expect an early decision on the New York state application?

"These are questions to which Canadians would like an answer, and I believe no one can complain about our desire to have one."

Mr. Pearson said Americans have not been co-operating with Canada on the seaway "at the pace we feel the requirements of the situation demand."

Canada hoped the FPC decision would come soon and was "disappointed" it had not already been reached.

The two countries had solved many joint problems together, Mr. Pearson said. "Surely they will be able to solve this one, and soon."

The Canadian note on U. S. Dairy import barriers said the restrictions had infringed the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade signed by the U. S and were a departure from accepted principles of commercial policy.

Such departure, it said, "can hardly fail to weaken the force of those principles and to damage seriously the development of world trade on a constructive basis."

The note was the third — and the sharpest — protest by Canada against the dairy restrictions.

The first followed the placing of ceilings on U. S. imports of oils, fats, cheese and other dairy products in June, 1951. The restrictions were eased slightly last June when import quotas were raised 15 per cent.

But Canada and other dairy exporting countries were further angered when the restrictions were expanded last December by the inclusion of dried milk products.

Not all Wednesday's words about the United States were critical.

Mr. Pearson said the government was glad to hear President Eisenhower's statement to Congress on the need for lowering trade and tariff barriers, and hoped the U. S. would act soon to implement "rational trading policies."

Mr. Chevrier's Port Arthur speech was a follow-up to a memorandum the Canadian government sent to the U. S. administration recently, suggesting that there be no further delays in a start on the seaway, which has had new impetus in the last year after long congressional failure to implement a Canada-United States 1941 treaty calling for a joint job.

President Refuses to Spare Rosenbergs from Sentence To Death for Atomic Spying

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower has refused to spare the lives of the Rosenbergs, whose controversial death sentences for atomic spying he termed just punishment for a crime which "could very well result in the death of many, many thousands of innocent citizens."

A lawyer for the husband and wife said he would carry a new appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court, which on two previous occasions has refused to review the case. The Court seldom changes its mind in such circumstances.

The Rosenbergs — Julius, 34, and Ethel, 36 — received the word that the President had turned down their appeal in the death cell block at New York's Sing Sing prison. They had no comment. They have insisted they are innocent.

Electrocution Delayed

Their electrocution, originally set for Jan. 24, had been delayed by Trial Judge Irving R. Kaufman while the presidential appeal was pending. The judge's stay expires four days hence; he will then fix a new date for the death sentence to be carried out.

If it is, the Rosenbergs will be the first American civilians to pay with their lives for the crime of espionage against the U. S.

That fact has figured largely in the world-wide propaganda campaign, sparked by Communists, to save them.

Some non - Communists, too, thought the death sentence was too severe. Among these: Scientists Albert Einstein and Dr. Harold C. Urey, both of whom contributed to early work on the atomic bomb.

Most of these appeals for clemency were directed to Harry Truman, who did not get around to a decision because the justice department was still studying the case, before he yielded the presidency to Eisenhower Jan. 20.

No New Evidence

Eisenhower said there was no new evidence and no mitigating circumstances which would justify changing the sentence.

"I have determined that it is my duty, in the interest of the people of the United States, not to set aside the verdict of their representatives."

The Rosenbergs were sentenced on April 5, 1951. Martin Sobell, 35, tried with them, was sentenced to 30 years in prison. David Greenglass, Mrs. Rosenberg's brother, also got 30 years after furnishing key testimony.

Greenglass testified the Rosenbergs persuaded him to turn over wartime atomic bomb secrets, for relay to a Russian official in New York, which he learned while stationed at the Los Alamos, N.M., A-bomb centre in 1944.

ACT PROCLAIMED

TORONTO (CP) — The Crown Timber Act was proclaimed Wednesday. Passed at the 1952 spring session of the legislature, proclamation was delayed to prepare regulations needed to implement the act, which combines eight former acts.

Aided Japanese, U.S. Sergeant Guilty of Treason

NEW YORK (AP) — Former army Sgt. John David Provoo today faced a sentence that could be anything from five years in prison to death for treason while a prisoner of the Japanese during the Second World War.

A federal jury Wednesday night found him guilty of four overt acts of treason. It was unable to agree on three other treason allegations.

Sentencing was scheduled for next Tuesday.

Provoo, 35, was convicted on one charge that he was at least partly responsible for the death of a fellow prisoner of war, Capt. Burton C. Thomson of Swea City, Ia. Thomson was executed on Corregidor in 1942 after Provoo, in favor with the prison camp commanders, reported him as unco-operative and anti-Japanese.

The jury also found Provoo guilty of offering his services to the Japanese and of making two radio broadcasts from Tokyo during the war.

The jury returned the verdict after 13 hours and 45 minutes of deliberation. The trial started Oct. 27.

Provoo, a native American, quit his job in a San Francisco bank before the Second World War and went to Japan, where he studied Buddhism and the Japanese language. After returning to the United States, he enlisted in the army and was sent to the Philippines.

GREATEST THREAT

The debate was expected to continue today.

Press Farther North

Mr. Pearson envisaged the day when Canada and the U. S. will be pressing farther and farther into the Canadian north to man defence ramparts because scientific advances will steadily increase the speed with which an enemy could strike at them.

He struck out critics of NATO and said it is NATO's growing strength and "steady progress" which more than anything else has eliminated "the temptation to easy and victorious aggression in Western Europe, that temptation which is the greatest threat to peace when totalitarian governmens are around."

But, he cautioned, the threat of Russian imperialism still remains and the west should not allow itself to be lulled "into a false sense of security and complacency." The buildup must go on.

Without referring specifically to reports that the U. S. might take action against Red China, Mr. Pearson dealt at length with the Far Eastern situation.

"The effort to end the Korean War must not stop and I am sure will not stop.

Outlines Korean Policy

"The guiding principle of Canadian policy in Korea is to continue to do everything possible to limit the present hostilities to the Korean peninsula and to take advantage of any opportunity for an earlier settlement of these hostilities by peaceful negotiation. . .

"Our general attitude in the UN assembly or elsewhere is to support proposals designed to facilitate an armistice agreement, and to oppose those which in our judgment would impede such an armistice.

"We consider that the purpose of the UN in Korea remains the defeat of aggression there and does not include intervention in the civil war in China. So long as Chinese troops act as aggressors in Korea they must be opposed, and that aggression, if possible, defeated. This does not mean that we who oppose them, by so doing, are committed to the overthrow by force of the government now in effective control of the mainland of China. . .

High Degree of Unity Needed

"Another point. . .is that we believe it is essential that Western and Asian democracies should maintain in this matter the highest possible degree of unity of purpose and action. We do not believe, accordingly, that the Western powers should press for measures at the United Nations or elsewhere, measures military or economic, which would certainly not be supported and indeed might be actively opposed by important non-Communist Asian states and which without such support would be less effective in ending the Korean war than in extending it."

The recent Commonwealth economic conference did not result in any "narrow group aiming to improve its position at the expense of or without the consideration of others." It was realized that any action must be broader than the Commonwealth itself.

The effectiveness of the conference could not be finally judged their own measure and until discussions were held with the U.S. and other non - Commonwealth countries.

Guns Salute First Anniversary of Queen's Accession to the Throne

Honoring first anniversary of Queen Elizabeth's accession to throne, 62 guns, lining banks of River Thames, roar out in salute, fired by "A" Battery, 1st Regiment Royal Horse Artillery. Guns also boomed in Hyde Park and flags flew all over Britain to celebrate the event. But the Queen neither saw nor heard the salutes, for she was at Sandringham in Norfolk, where her father, King George VI, died one year ago. She was making the most of the final days of a long holiday, before her return to London and coronation duties this year. There were indications also that she was thinking more of her father than of the anniversary of her reign, and she made it another day of dedication.— Central Press Canadian.

Publisher Paid Glowing Tribute By Paul Martin

PETERBOROUGH (CP) —Health Minister Martin said Wednesday night Canadian sense of values demonstrates its soundness in picking Robertson Davies, publisher of the Peterborough Examiner, as the city's "Citizen of the Year."

Mr. Martin spoke at a dinner given by B'nai B'rith lodge in honor of the Peterborough author and playwright.

"Robertson Davies, as a patron of our great national amateur theatre movement, the Dominion drama festival, as a skilful and sensitive director, and as a first-ranking playwright, has brought new vitality to the stage in Canada," Mr. Martin said.

"Canada of today has a story for the generations to come if only our poets and singers and artists and dramatists can somehow tell it enduringly.'

He said Mr. Davies interprets Canada for what it is, as "men and women with the essential dignities, yearnings and shortcomings of human beings who have been born, nurtured and reborn in the brotherhood of man."

"Our ambition, our honest and open aim is quite simple—to be ourselves without hypocrisy, without fanfare, without any snivelling, humble pretense to be anything but what we are.

"As long as we can find and honor as 'Citizen of the Year' a man of humor and wit and humanity, it is evident that our sense of the values of our citizenship is still sound."

Document Shows $135,000 Spent Without Authority

OTTAWA (CP)—The Army works detachment in Ottawa spent $135,000 to renovate a house in 1952 without first getting authority to do so, according to an official document now in the hands of members of the Commons defence committee. The project was later approved.

The document is a summary of reports by the defence department's auditors about breaches of various rules by detachments of the army work services in the years 1950, 1951 and 1952.

Itisbound to provoke a new battle in the committee because opposition members want to see the auditors' reports themselves and not simply abridged summaries prepared by the defence department.

The opposition members asked for the reports as a sequel to the Currie report which described "a general breakdown" in the works services and said "warnings" by the department auditors about various short comings were not followed up with adequate action.

The summary says the Ottawa works detachment expended $135,000 "in excess of authorizations for the project on file." It doesn't give the total cost of the renovation of a home called Wallis House to make it into No. 13 Personnel Depot.

The Army's comments—they are given in all cases—were that "this involved renovation of a building which, as the work proceeded, was found progressively to involve more extensive repairs than could be ascertained at the start. The entire project was subsequently approved."

The document is packed with instances of stores being issued, work being started, materials being obtained, all without advance authorization, of failures to carry out stocktaking and of original estimates of costs being exceeded without permission.

There also are various examples of "splitting." This system is used to break, say, a $15,000 job down into three parts of $5,000 each to avoid obtaining approval for the over-all job from higher up in the military hierarchy.

The document contains army statements that the big majority of shortcomings have been corrected, that "splitting will cease," that shortage of skilled staff is the explanation, that necessary changes have been put into effect.

In Kingston in 1951, the works detachment spent $2,394 on a job supposed to cost $1,200, the document said. The Army said it is impossible to check every job after completion during the peak months but that steps are being taken to do what is possible.

In Kingston in 1951, three Army refrigerators were being used by individuals. The Army said rent has been recovered for them and that all refrigerators now are in order.

Second Man On The Ticket

By Edwin Lanham

"Telling him to telephone us here," I said. "There's a telephone out front and I took the number. I'll wire him to call that number and ask for the man in cabin nine."

"That's cryptic enough to give poor Bill the blind staggers," the Governor said, and gave me a keen glance. "You don't think we're going to make the grade, do you, Roy?"

"I was just out in that storm, Governor," I said. "No, I don't."

CHAPTER XXI

Dawn unveiled herself like a woman in a frigid bathroom, and was showered by the tempest.

"I don't know what to do," the Governor said. "I don't see how I'm going to explain my presence here in a third-class tourist court when I ought to be in Birmingham." He shrugged. "Roy, when Bill calls I guess we'd better have him issue a story that I'm deathly ill, or something like that. That I'm aboard the train, too ill to see anyone."

"That means no speech," I said. "That means no Hydetown reception. But I guess it's the only way out, Governor."

"Willie, why don't you come back with me to Hydetown?" John Mills suggested. "Put out a story that you dropped into the old home town as a surprise, a day ahead of schedule."

"And passed up my Birmingham speech for that?" the Governor said, and shook his head. "That won't hold water, John."

"Can't the local radio station pipe your speech to Birmingham, Willie? You got radio time anyhow, haven't you?"

The Governor groaned. "National radio time Eight to 8.30."

"Then you can make your speech from Hydetown, Willie."

"There has to be an explanation that will satisfy Clyde McDonald," the Governor said. "That's as tough as explaining a night out to your wife."

I sat up straight. "Governor, where is your wife?"

He looked surprised. "Why Roy, she stopped off for a rest. You know that."

"Yes, but where is she?"

"She's due in Hydetown a day ahead of Warburton Day."

I jumped to my feet. "I've got it, Governor, I've got it!"

They both looked at me without much hope. I said, "John, you know a doctor you can trust?"

"Sure," John said. "Doc Arnold."

"Then he's our man," I said.

"Our man for what, Roy?" the Governor asked.

"John and I will meet Ruth when she gets off the train," I said. "She was exposed to the gale. She's got double pneumonia. We rush her to John's house and call Dr. Arnold in. We stick her in an oxygen tent. We tip off the reporters that you're rushing to her bedside, then John drives over here and picks you up and you dash to the hushed house, give the boys a pale, tired smile, and hurry in to stand by your stricken spouse."

"It's a wonderful idea," Lucy said. She had joined us a minute before.

"Then we can arrange for you to make that Birmingham speech by radio from John's house," I said. "It will be heart interest stuff, too. The Governor leaves his wife's bedside to meet his campaign obligations."

"It might do," the Governor said. "Roy, I think it will have to do. I can't say I like it. I'll feel like a charlatan, but I don't see any other avenue. Yes, that's our program. We'll do it."

I looked at my watch; it was past 7 o'clock. "Take us a long time to get there in this storm," I said. "John, we'd better start."

"Okay, Roy," John said. "Willie, you stick tight here. Don't even put your nose out."

"How about that telephone call from Bill?" the Governor asked. "Someone will have to take that call, and I'm the only man in cabin nine."

"I'll send Bill another telegram," I said. "I'll have him call John's house in Hydetown."

"Yes, good," the Governor said.

"So we're set, I said. "Except for one thing. Except Ruth had better be on that train!"

"She'll be on it," said John Mills. "There's a women's committee to meet her at the depot. My wife is chairman of it."

I groaned. "She'll probably get off looking healthy as a horse."

John frowned. "That's a fact. See here, Roy. I could put you aboard that train next stop up the line. If we hurry we can make it. But we've sure got to hurry. It's 30 miles beyond Hydetown."

We started for the door, but Lucy Strawn cried, "Hey, you can't leave me here. You can't leave the Governor checked in at an auto court with a girl, even if she is his secretary." She grinned at Governor Warburton. "Particularly if she's his secretary, I guess."

The Governor nodded. "That's right, Lucy, you'd better go along. I'll sit it out here." He put out his hand. "Roy, that was quick thinking. Good work and good luck."

In that gale John Mills couldn't drive faster than 30 miles an hour. I computed the distance. Forty miles to Hydetown, another 30 miles to the town where I was to board the train. Seventy miles at 30 miles an hour was well over two hours, and it was already 8 o'clock. The train was due at that town at 9.25 according to John's recollection. That left us considerably less than two hours for the trip.

"John, we'll never make it at this rate," I said.

"Can't go any faster, Roy. Can't see."

"Maybe Roy had better drive," Lucy suggested.

John pulled to the side of the road and I took the wheel. I was as cautious a man as he, but I was younger and my reflexes were more elastic, so that I pushed the car up to 45 and was probably averaging 40. It was a strain, trying to see the road through the rain, and to hold the car on it against the mighty wind.

As we entered Hydetown, John pulled out his watch and said, "Five to 2, Roy."

"That leaves us 30 minutes," I said. "And 30 miles to go."

"We won't make it," John said glumly.

I put on the brakes and made an abrupt, skidding turn. "I'll drop you off here at the station, John, and you can wait. Lucy and I will go on."

CHAPTER XXII

John Mills had the door open and jumped before the car came to a stop at the station. He slammed the door and I turned the car and raced back to the highway.

As we raced on through the storm Lucy glanced frequently at her watch, and told me the time. At 9:10 we had 20 miles to go. The road crossed railroad tracks and continued parallel to them. At last Lucy said, "Twenty-five past, Roy."

"Yes," I said, "No train yet, though."

"How much farther?"

"Eight miles, I figure."

It was a long eight miles, and as we entered the outskirts of the town Lucy told me it was 20 minutes to 10. But her voice had brightened. "Roy, the train must be late!"

I swung off a side street that looked as if it might take us to the railroad station. It did. I stopped with a squeaking of brakes, threw the door open, and we ran to the station.

"Train's late," I said. "We've got time to spare."

"I wish we'd known that on the road." She sat down beside me, blew out her breath, and stretched out her feet. Her stockings were soaked to the knees.

"Lucy, you drive a car, don't you?"

"Yes, but I don't have a driver's licence with me."

"Neither do I," I said. "You'd better get going."

"Where?"

"Back to Hydetown," I said. "Drive the car back and go straight to the depot. You might get there before the train.'

"Not a chance," she said. "Not the way I'm going to drive."

"Anyhow, get going."

"Yes, sir," she said. "I'm on my way." She smiled at me, patted my shoulder, and whispered, "Roy, you're a good man in the pinches." Then she was gone.

I lighted a cigarette and went out to the platform. I was too keyed up to remain sitting in the waiting room, and I found the shelter of an ell, secure from the wind where I smoked my cigarette and watched the storm and waited for the train. It was, in the end, nearly 40 minutes late, and it was just past 11 o'clock when I swung aboard.

At the third drawing room I tried, a woman's voice called, "Who is it?"

"Ruth," I cried. "Is that you?"

Ruth Warburton opened the door. She was a slim, chic woman with clear grey eyes and a pleasant, rather maternal smile. "Roy Mason, what are you doing here?"

"You look terrible," I said. "Did you get caught in the storm?"

"I got a little damp, but——"

"We'll have a doctor waiting in Hydetown," I said. "Ruth, sit down. You got caught in that gale. You've got double pneumonia."

Ruth took it calmly, saying, "I suppose there's some deep significance in all this?"

I told her the story. She listened with a little pucker in her eyebrows, and when I had finished she chuckled and said "I've done plenty for that man, but this is tops."

"He's worth it, Ruth," I said.

She gave me a look. "You bet he's worth it." She moved to the mirror. "I'd better get ready. First, off comes the make-up." She scrounged her cheeks with tissue, removed her make-up and lipstick. She turned for my inspection. "How's that?"

"Better," I said.

"I'll try a trace of eyebrow pencil," she said, and I watched faint circles form under her eyes. She turned again to me, looking haggard. "Better?"

"Good," I said. "Got a muffler?"

"I have a scarf."

"Wrap it around your throat. When we get off the train fetch up a hacking cough."

She practised one. "Like that?"

"Like that?" I said.

I took off my wet shoes and put my feet up against the heat register. They were dry by the time we reached Hydetown, and by then I had my shoes on again.

The train moved slowly into the station. I had a glimpse of soaked yellow shingles and steamy windows, and then close against the wall of the station I saw a clusteretaoi er?yeatol sa saw the clustering umbrellas and raincoats of the reception committee. Among the women was Ginny Perkins in a transparent, hooded raincoat.

"Now is your big scene, Ruth," I said. "Lean on me."

I helped Ruth Warburton along the passage to the vestibule. The train stopped and the porter put down the yellow steps in the rain. The committee drew near, and Ginny Perkins stepped forward and said in a clear, rehearsed voice, "Welcome home to Hydetown, Mrs. Warburton."

I went down the steps ahead of Ruth, and Ginny's eyes opened wide. "Why, Roy Mason!" she said. "You jack-in-the-box!"

"Get an ambulance," I said.

"An ambulance?"

"Mrs. Warburton has a fever of 104," I said. "It looks like pneumonia. She was caught in the big storm last night." I stood on the bottom step and raised my voice. "Ladies, Mrs. Warburton is extremely ill. I'm afraid we must dispense with the ceremonies."

I held out my hands to Ruth and she chose that moment for a cough that echoed in the rain. It was an achievement.

A plump, graying lady wearing a slicker and a transparent covering over a feathered hat moved forward and called, "Ruth, you must remember me. I'm Agnes Mills. My husband is here and we'll rush you straight to our house."

We had Ruth between us, and we went quickly across to the cindered ground where cars were nosed up to a white iron railing. John Mills had picked up Ruth's two suitcases, and as he overtook us I said loudly, "I've already notified the Governor, Mr. Mills. I sent a wire."

Criticism Cuts Short Belgian King's Vacation

Minority Govt. In B.C. Wants To be Defeated

VICTORIA (CP)—A political paradox has arisen in the British Columbia legislature.

The minority Social Credit government, which took office last summer, wants to be defeated on the floor of the House. The three opposition parties want to keep Social Credit in power—for the time being at least.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett apparently believes his party now could win a provincial general election in a breeze and increase its strength in the 48-member House.

He has taunted the opposition time and again to move an amendment to the address in reply to the throne speech. This would mean a vote of non-confidence in the government which, if passed, would in turn cause the fall of the government.

When CCF Opposition Leader Harold Winch opened the throne speech debate last week, Mr. Bennett kept interrupting with remarks like "if you don't like the government, ask for an election" or "take it to the people."

Mr. Winch replied: "You should know by now that I have been in this House long enough (21 years) not to be baited."

Mr. Bennett threw the same interjections at Liberal Leader E. T. Kenney, who replied: "I'm not going to do your dirty work for you."

Progressive Conservative Leader George Miller, like the other opposition chiefs, said this week his group will support the government "as long as you behave yourselves."

None of the three opposition leaders moved a non-confidence motion. They said British Columbians are fed up with elections and want to see their business done.

Present standing in the Legislature: Social Credit 19, CCF 18, Liberals 6, Progressive Conservatives 2, Labor 1, vacant 2.

Kid Gavilan Retains Welter Title By Scoring TKO In Tenth Over Davey

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Long Long Ago

It may be coincidental, but 39 years ago practically to the night, a Kingston hockey team absorbed a 17-5 shellacking, if that is any consolation to the Goodyears.

Michael J. Rodden, Kingston sports scrivener, played on the Kingston Frontenacs club at that time, in between hockey chores for the Queen's U. seniors.

On this particular occassion the Frontenacs journeyed to Peterborough, and by the time the smoke had cleared, emerged on the short end of the big score.

Michael and one named "Shawnee" Reid played defence for the Frontenacs and scored all five of their goals. One of the wingers on the Petes' club was a colored chap named Kelly who had the speed of a Morenz, the shot of a Babe Dye, the shooting eye of a King's Prize winner, and the trickiness of a Frank Nighbor.

In fact this colored phenom blazed in eleven of the Petes' 17 markers, all from a difficult angle on his wing. After the mercury-heeled Louis of the ice-lanes had chalked up his ninth goal in a row, the Frontenacs goalie was long on intestinal fortitude, short on insurance, and had a healthy regard for his eyesight, not to mention other parts of his anatomy, coolly sidestepped the blazing puck whenever Kelly pulled the trigger.

What to do about it? Michael J. solved the problem, when he switched defence positions with Reid. Came the colored streak down his wing, puck glued to stick, and as Michael J. puts it "by judicious application of the torso, Kelly asumed a horizontal position." After that it was a case of "Has anybody here seen Kelly?"

NOT IN PICTON?

And like the present, hockey referees had their troubles back around the turn of the century.

"Them were the days" when the boys played "seven-a-side", substitutes were scarcer than above-the-table salaries, and if you lost a flock of molars, a rib or two, developed a team of charley horses, and yelled "Ma", you were adjudged the current-day model of a panty-waist.

Fred Waghorne, Toronto's grand old gentleman of hockey, major and minor, recalls the day he officiated in junior battles down this way.

It was back in 1907 or thereabouts when Picton and Belleville boasted two of the best junior squads between Toronto and Montreal. Fred was sent here by the OHA to officiate.

"They made it plenty hot for me in Belleville that night," recalls Mr. Waghorne. "They advised me not to stay at the Hotel Quinte and it's just as well I didn't. That night the hotel burned down."

Belleville won the game and the Picton fans, a large crowd of them, didn't hand Fred the key to the Prince Edward county town. In fact they offered him free transportation back to Toronto via tar, feathers and a rail.

Came another game between the squads, this time in Picton. Undaunted, Fred came down to officiate and on his arrival in Picton was accosted by a fan, the late Wellington Boulter.

Early that evening there came a knock at Fred's door in the hotel. There stod Mr. Boulter. He entered, and said,

"Are you going to referee this game tonight, Waghorne?"

"That's right," smiled Fred.

Boulter, Fred said, thereupon produced the biggest six-shooter he had ever seen.

"This is the way we handle referees like you down here," Boulter said.

A bit alarmed, Waghorne said, "See here, you'd better let me have that cannon. It's liable to go off and blow the town into Lake Ontario."

"Guess you're right," grunted Boulter as he handed over the minature 88 mm. "But you get the general idea."

Belleville won that game, but Fred was not molested, and tucked away another item in his large collection of hockey memories.

Champion Clamors for Shot At Middleweight Crown After Badly Outclassing TV Hero

By JERRY LISKA

The killer from Cuba blasted the Davey invincibility myth Wednesday night before a Chicago Stadium crowd of 17,450 which paid a record welter bout gross gate of $275,454. Gavilan weighed 146½, Davey 147.

"It's now middleweights for me," said the jaunty Gavilan, unmarked in his 10th-round TKO triumph. "I want to take on Turpin or Olson. Either one after this tournament business."

He was referring to the elimination tournament proposed to screen some 11 contenders for Sugar Ray Robinson's vacated 160-pound title.

Gasping for Breath

"Let Turpin or Olsen find out who is champion and then I fight that guy," said Gavilan, who already has licked five of the middleweights trying to elbow into the title picture.

Davey, gasping desperately for breath, was unable to come out for the 10th round. Gavilan had felled him four times—once in the third and three times in the brutal ninth.

This match—or mis-match as ring experts contended since it first was announced—was a cruel awakening to the legions of TV fans mesmerized by Davey's cute southpaw style that has riddled two washed-up former champions, Ike Williams and Rocky Graziano, and earned him a crack at the title.

Making Battle of It

Yet, on points, Davey was making a battle of it. This was because Gavilan let the blonde gamester get off the hook in the third round and then fooled around by switching southpaw himself in the fifth and part of the sixth rounds.

Gavilan conceded after the fight that he knew he could put Davey away any time after the third. Even fighting as a left-hander, Gavilan was accorded no worse than a draw in the fifth and sixth and one official even gave him both rounds.

It was Davey's trainer, Issy Kline, who prevented Chuck from coming out for the 10th round. Davey wanted to.

"I had the doctor, Irving Slott of the Illinois athletic commission look at Chuck," said Kline. "He was gasping for breath from a punch to the Adam's apple. He suggested we call it quits. I'd have done it anyway. If Davey went out for that 10th, he'd have been killed."

Came in Eighth

The beginning of the end came in the eighth when Gavilan opened a gash on Davey's right cheekbone. Davey came out fighting in the ninth. He started exchanging punches with the Kid and thereby signed his own death warrant.

A jolting right floored Davey for a count of nine. Gavilan smashed a left hook that floored Davey again for nine.

Gavilan moved in for the kill. His right-hand punches to Davey's head sent him reeling through the ropes and nearly out of the ring. He sprawled on the ring apron and might have slipped off, but photographers held up their arms for protection and steadied Davey for the instant he needed to regain balance.

Davey staggered to his feet at the count of nine just before the bell ended the round. But it was obvious that between-rounds ministrations would be of little or no help.

Gavilan, even if he slayed the TV goose that laid the golden egg, collected approximately $85,000 for his 40 per cent slice of the announced net gate of $211,415. Davey got 20 per cent, or about $42,500.

Hornets Move Into First-Place With Cleveland

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pittsburgh Hornets moved back into a first-place American Hockey League tie with the idle Cleveland Barons Wednesday night, walloping the fifth-place Syracuse Chiefs 6-2.

The smallest St. Louis crowd in AHL history—1,458 fans—saw the fourth place Flyers edge the tail-end Buffalo Bisons 2-1.

Pittsburgh and Cleveland, who have been fighting neck-and-neck for the leadership for a good part of the season, have 58 points apiece 11 more than their nearest rival, Hershey Bears.

Danny Lewicki and Bob Sabourin paced Pittsburgh's attack against the Chiefs with two goals apiece. Bob Solinger and Ray Timgren scored the other Hornet markers. Don Ashbee and Harry Pidhirny tallied for Syracuse.

St. Louis goalie Ralph (Red) Almas put on a terrific one-man show in the Flyers victory over the Bisons.

Knocked down by a shot off the stick of Buffalo's Calum Mackay late in the second period, Almas recovered to protect the St. Louis cage with 57 stops.

Guyle Fielder and Buddy Boone scored for the Flyers and Gordon Pennell for Buffalo.

Kingston Goodyears Gain Top Rung in Eastern Group By Downing Belleville 6-5

Kingston — Kingston Goodyears gained a firmer clutch on third place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior "B" group race and vaulted to the top rung in the Eastern section when they shaded Belleville Glen Roys 6 to 5 last night in the Community Memorial Centre. The points gained provided reasonable assurance that the locals will participate in the playoffs whereas the reverse left the Bells in a position where they could be overhauled by the Peterborough Petes.

More than 2,500 spectators witnessed a tensely waged duel and a thrilling climax when the desperate visitors staged a rally in the final period and scored twice in cutting a three-goal lead to one. During the final minute, Coach "Red" Doran replaced goalkeeper "Tony" Parisi, but second later brought him back again. Then Al Deluca drew a penalty for roughing Doran at 19.33. On the next Belleville rush Bob Londry took Doran, a non-puckcarrier, out of the play and when Doran verbally assailed the officials he was handed a minor and a match misconduct sentence.

Penalties incurred did the Belleville cause no good. They served seven minors, a misconduct and a match misconduct whereas the Carr-Harrismen abided by the rules so diligently that they drew only four minor sentences. No less than half of Goodyears' goals were registered when the Belles were singing the penitent blues. The Glens on the other hand, capitalized only once when the locals were below full strength.

Although Goodyears were not as dominant as they had been in Belleville last Monday when they racked up an 8 to 4 triumph they did play heads up hockey in thwarting the peppery invaders. Two goals scored on passouts or shots from behind the Kingston net kept the Glens in the running but barring those mishaps Goodyears excelled defensively. They played positional hockey consistently and were superbly directed by Coach Johnny Carr-Harris.

Drew First Penalty

Early in the fray Vern Goyer drew the first penalty for tripping Don Murray near the goal crease and while he was away Walter Gerow, aided by Jack White and Bob Londry, scored at 2.48. The Glens, however, were not perturbed and when Goyer returned they waged even warfare and were finally rewarded when at 5.35, "Nobber" Day scored after he had rounded the net. DeGray and Desjardins each was credited with an assist.

Deluca broke that deadlock at 6.18 after he had trapped the puck in the centre zone and had flashed around Belleville's right defenceman. Deluca one of the most spectacular figures in the game, almost clicked again a minute later but was stopped when Sammy Mulholland fouled him. Mulholland drew a penalty and while he was serving time Jack White widened the lead, George MacGregor and Ken Partis each drew an assist. "Red" Jones was chased for cross checking Partis at 9:48.

Goyer broke into the clear in the centre zone but was tripped by Ken Johnson at the goal mouth. Johnson was penalized and Johnny Myke was elected to serve the same. The visitors protested, apparently claiming that a penalty shot should have been awarded. Joe Watts drew a penalty for charging at 10:58. During the remainder of the session play was wide open but the goalkeepers kept their citadels clear of flying rubber.

Ordered Off Bench

By request of the visitors' referee Maurice Walsh ordered manager Harold Langabeer to vacate the Goodyear bench before play was resumed, so Harold, who hails from Belleville, retired to the press box and watched proceedings from that vantage point. Goodyears clung tenaciously to their three-goal lead and then lengthened it to four when Partis scored at 9:20 after taking a pass from Gerow, who had intercepted the puck near the blue line after Goyer had batted it aimlessly.

Myke was penalized at 10:01 and 32 second later Doran scored after taking a pass from Bastedo. Doran was penalized shortly after that attack. "Red" Jones followed him to the sin bin and when he hit the side boards with his stick, a misconduct sentence was added by referee Jim Crombie. McDonald joined his erring mates for kicking at and upsetting Bob Londry.

Parisi, assailed heavily, made three consecutive stops seconds apart but was left helpless, when MacGregor made an end-to-end dash, weaved his way brilliantly between the defencemen and drove the puck into the webbing. Later Bob Londry broke up a dangerous Belleville attack in front of the Kingston net. At 19;15 Mulholland who had taken a pass from Goyer, used a Houdini touch in beating Johnson on an angle shot, and at 3:10 in the last period Mulholland tested this shooting wizardry again but hit the outside post. Goodyears forced the issue during the next two minutes and Murray scored at 5:54 after White, Clint, Tinkess and Stan Stewart had been turned back in quick succession by Parisi.

Placed in Doubt

The Bells were just as weary at that stage as were the locals and play became a bit ragged before Brian Mulvihill, aided by Wardhaugh, broke through for a counter at 8:37. Fast play followed but exhaustion was apparent during the last five minutes. "Red" Jones, with Doran the engineer, hit the webbing at 18:34 and placed the outcome in doubt but strategy failed the visitors and when Doran was banished and led away by Goyer, Belleville's last desperate hopes vanished. The teams:

Belleville: Goal Parisi; defence Goyer and Green; centre Wardhaugh; wings Mulvihill and MacDonald. Alternates Semark, Day, Doran, Jones, DeGray, Mulholland, Bastedo and Desjardins.

Barrie Flyers Are Not Winning The Key Games

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Barrie Flyers aren't winning the key games in their stretch drive for first place in the Ontario Hockey Association junior A series. The league-leading Toronto Marlboros on the other hand are coming through in the clutches.

Wednesday night, the Dukes got a three-point edge on Barrie by defeating fifth-place Galt Black Hawks 6-4 while the runner-up Flyers bowed 7-3 before Toronto St. Michael's, third in the nine-team loop.

Montreal Canadiens, Quebec Junior Amateur Hockey Association leaders, suffered their first defeat on the road by taking a 3-2 loss from Oshawa Generals of the OHA.

Gerry James and Louis Bendo led Marlboros' attack with two goals each. Parker Macdonald and Tom McCarthy netted the others. Jim McBurney, the league's top scorer, tallied three times for Galt. Mario Chischini scored once.

Murray Costello paced St. Mike's with three goals. The remainder went to Ed Plata, Bill Dineen, Jim Logan and Butch Ratchford. Tiny Tony Poeta notched both Galt counters.

Harry Sindon, Don McIntosh, Roger Maisonneuve, Bob Attersley and Bobby Mader divided Oshawa's scoring. Brian Mackay and Claude Vinet came through with Montreal's markers.

No games are scheduled in junior play tonight. Friday Marlboros go to Kitchener, Quebec Citadelles play at Guelph, Montreal Canadiens at Barrie and Windsor at St. Catharines.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—The dog show has come to the garden and gone without our having sought expert advice on a problem which threatens to leave lasting scars on one of the best bred pooches on Long Island.

What we had in mind to ask was whether a dog which is happy and well adjusted to begin with should be taught such tricks as fetching the morning paper off the lawn while all this labor unrest is going on.

The dog which is in danger of becoming unhinged is a cairn terrier, not much bigger than a breakfast-food box. He's young and surprisingly bright—or was until this thing happened to him.

Well, a couple months ago a younger member of the family spent the better part of a Saturday teaching this bundle of nervous energy to tear out and bring in the paper. Once he got it through his head, you never saw a mutt more pleased with himself.

He was waiting at the door from first light on for someone to let him out so that he could demonstrate anew the one gift he had, and on snowy mornings he received an extra pat that set him up for the day.

It shows, probably, how a dog should never get too satisfied with himself. One morning there was no paper. Full of vim, our canine prodigy gave the yard a thorough frisking and returned a crushed dog. He was assured there was nothing for which he could be fouled, but he still crept into the most isolated corner he could find and whined softly through breakfast.

What had happened, it developed, was that the newspaper delivery union had gone out on strike.

As paperless day followed paperless day, the nerves of our pup became steadily more ragged. He insisted upon looking, and each morning his tail was dragging a little lower when he finally gave up.

Sport in Brief

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Jockey Club has set Coronation day, Tuesday, June 2, for the running of the classic Queen's Plate at Woodbine Park. Usually the race has been held on the Saturday nearest May 24.

The announcement was made Wednesday at a meeting of OJC shareholders. The Plate Trial will be run Saturday, May 23.

E. P. Taylor and Col. K. R. Marshall, who was re-elected president, both said that traffic criticism of the new track to be built on No. 27 highway is premature.

Mr. Taylor said improvements in the highways will be made before the track is opened.

Directors re-elected were: Allen Case, E. P. Taylor, R. S. McLaughlin, J. E. Smallman, J. Frowde Seagram, L. M. McCarthy, George C. Hendrie, J. M. Macintosh, Charles Burns, F. A. Sherman, and Harry J. Carmichael.

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Baltimore Colts indicated Wednesday Billy Vessels is available as trade bait to the highest bidder—if the price in players is right.

The flashy Oklahoma halfback, Heisman Trophy winner, was Baltimore's first draft choice, but he has decided he would rather play with Edmonton in the estern Canada Football League.

"I've made up my mind. I'm going to sign with Edmonton Saturday," Vessels announced at his campus dormitory in Norman, Okla.

"It's not that I don't want to play with Baltimore," he commented. "It's just that I think playing with Edmonton will be better for me in the long run."

Colts President Don Kellett said he would consider offers for the 185-pound gridder from other National Football League clubs in the near future. A couple of clubs already have put out feelers, he said.

"We don't want cash," Kellett said. "We want some top flight players in exchange if we trade Vessels."

According to Kellett, Vessels chose Edmonton over Baltimore because of the Canadian city's tie-in with oil fields.

HALIFAX (CP)—Al Millar is probably the first hockey player who was ever acquitted of an assault charge because he bats left-handed.

The goaltender of Charlottetown Islanders of the Maritime Major Hockey League, charged with hitting a woman spectator with his stick during a game, was freed Wednesday because of testimony that he swung the stick from his right shoulder.

Magistrate R. E. Inglis, in reviewing the case, said prosecution witnesses testified that Millar swung his stick from the right shoulder and hit Mrs. Lola Hanna, sitting with her husband in a rink-side seat.

"Yet the accused is left-handed," he said. "His natural swing is from the left side. . . and the natural swing is what I have to consider."

THESSALON, Ont. (CP)—Bill Phillips, who played for the old Montreal Maroons of the National Hockey League 25 years ago, can still keep up with the new generation.

Tuesday night Phillips, now 52, scored three goals for Thessalon Eagles in a 9-8 overtime victory against Sault Ste. Marie junior Canucks in a Sault-Algoma Hockey League game.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jimmy Phelan, a famous name in football on both sides of the border, said Wednesday he will be "delighted, if I am invited" to coach the Vancouver football club.

He told club treasurer Bill Ralston he will be in Vancouver Tuesday for "talks" with club directors who will meet today to consider several applications for the job.

Former Notre Dame quarterback, Phelan coached University of Washington Huskies for 12 years and took them to the Rose Bowl in 1938.

His last job was with the Dallas Texans professional team which folded in mid-season last fall from lack of support.

EDMONTON (CP) — Halfback Rollie Miles has signed a 1953 contract with Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

Eskimo officials announced Wednesday that Miles signed up for his third season with the western champions. He is the first player signed for 1953.

The Edmonton club, which is looking for a coach, announced that Darrell Royal, former Oklahoma University quarterback and coach at Mississippi State College since 1945, will arrive Saturday to talk with club officials.

Brantford Redmen Make Playoffs In Overtime Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Brantford Redmen can relax.

They made fourth place in the Ontario Hockey Association senior A series Wednesday night with a 6-5 overtime decision over Sarnia Sailors and made sure of a spot in playoffs starting next week.

Owen Sound Mercurys strengthened their chances of copping top spot in the seven-team circuit by holding the runner-up Stratford Indians to a 3-3 deadlock. With three more league games scheduled, Mercs hold a five-point edge.

In the Northern Ontario Hockey Association senior A southern group, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Greyhounds tightened their grip on second place with a 5-2 victory over Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Indians.

Sam Kennedy, Bill Dinning, Walt Hnatiuk, Bill Shill, Don Oberholtzer and Bill Simpell took care of Brantford's scoring. Harry O'Connor notched two for the Sailors and Ollie Haddon, Nick Federonick and Alf Lewsey got one apiece.

Pat Wilson scored twice for Stratford and Lloyd Ferguson collected the third. Harry Kazarian, Jerry Reid and Art Hayward scored for the Mercurys.

No games are scheduled in the OHA tonight. Sarnia is at Stratford Friday while Chatham plays host to Kitchener. In the NOHA, Sudbury Wolves play at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., tonight.

Kingston Rink In Curling Final

TORONTO (CP)—The 16th annual Ontario curling championship is being played here today with eight divisional championship rinks in action.

Dr. R. Clarke of Peterborough last year's Ontario champion, is back again with only one change in his rink. His opponent in the 1952 final, J. G. W. Sands of Kingston, returns with his quartet intact.

Other contestants are H. A. Haight of Hamilton Thistles, S. H. Smithers of Galt, Peter Gilbert of Chatham, Dr. A. C. Baillie of Orillia, T. F. Beattie of Toronto Granites and Frank Smith of Owen Sound.

Appointed Coach

KITCHENER (CP) — Walter (Punch) Scherer said Wednesday he has been appointed coach of the fourth-place Brantford Redmen of the Ontario Hockey Association senior A series.

Scherer, former business manager and coach of the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, said he would handle the Redmen during games. Bill Dinning, playing coach, would coach at practices.

Detroit Stretches Lead in N.H.L. To Five Points

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A double jinx held good in New York Wednesday night.

Detroit Red Wings, who lead the National Hockey League by five points, haven't won a game against the tail-end New Yorkers since Lorne (Gump) Worsley replaced the injured Chuck Rayner in the Ranger nets Jan. 7.

The best the defending league champions could do was a 2-2 tie before 8,469 fans. A third-period goal by Johnny Wilson gave the Red Wings the tie and ran Detroit's unbeaten string to eight.

The second jinx affected Gordie Howe, Detroit's star rightwinger and leading point-getter in the league. In the four previous meetings in New York this season, Gordie has been able to score only one goal, mostly due to the effective checking of Eddie Kullman.

Did Not Get 200th

The 24-year-old Howe was shooting for his 200th tally of his NHL career, which began when he was 18, and his 40th of the year. The best he could do was garner an assist on a goal by linemate Ted Lindsay. It was Howe's 72nd point of the season and Lindsay's 53rd.

Nick Mickoski got New York's first goal on his own rebound. Kullman and defenceman Leo Reise received assists.

Paul Ronty, passed to Wally Hergesheimer, who scored his 22nd goal of the season for New York's second tally.

Tonight Detroit moves to Boston where a victory for the Bruins would put them in a fourth-place tie with Toronto Maple Leafs.

In the only other game tonight, second-place Montreal Canadiens try for a two-point gain on Detroit at the expense of the third-place Black Hawks in Chicago.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You may be a clever player who thinks to himself: "Gimme the cards and I'll know what to do withem." But you are never a good bridge partner unless your fundamentals are sound.

Take unto yourself the north hand containing these cards:

NORTH

♠Q 10 7 4 2
♥9 7 6
♣5 4 3

You partner in south opens with a bid of two diamonds. If you do not know the basic responses and why you will get him in trouble before the deal is over. He will misunderstand what you have.

The opener of two in a suit says he insists on going to a game of some kind. This means he is not at all worried about what you may have as help for game. At least, not at the moment.

He may not yet know what is the best trump for your pair, or if it is best for your pair to end in no-trump. But, he has plenty of time to get this information before game is reached.

What, then, is he most concerned with at the beginning? He wants to know in a hurry if there is a slam in the pair or chance for a slam. If so, he need not fear that the bidding will get too high.

An immediate response of two no-trump (known as a denial) denies having a sure trick. Having thus warned him first that that he should not count on you for a sure trick, he will abandon slam ideas.

From there on, you and he will exchange information in a normal manner to decide the best game contract for your pair. Unless he can still make a slam after knowing you have no sure trick.

If he then bids three in anything, you can come in with a bid to show your spade suit. Having warned him that you have no sure trick he will not be misled into going too high.

Unless you know these basic ideas you might respond with a bid in spade at once. If so, he will probably carry it to a slam or go too high in the hopes of making a slam. Keep it clean.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The man with the biggest headache in Hollywood is a genial German-American named Henry Koster.

Until a week ago, Koster looked with satisfaction toward his next directing assignment, "The Robe," a $4,000,000 epic.

Then the storm broke. His studio, 20th Century-Fox, announced it would make no more flat-screen pictures. It was converting to the huge, curved-screen cinemascope. The first film under the new-dimensional method would be "The Robe."

Koster seemed harrassed but happy after hearing the news.

"Before this happened, I was too content," he admitted. "I thought I knew exactly how to make a picture—what lenses to use, how to place the actors, when to use a closeup . . . Now I'm a pioneer. It's good for me."

He showed off his new finder, through which he peers to envision movie scenes. It was much broader than the usual proportions of a movie screen.

"That's how it will look," he said.

"Cinemascope will mean this—you can have a line of dancing rockettes on the screen and see each face as if in a closeup."

He added that the script of "The Robe" hasn't been changed, but some of the sets have. They must be built wider and lower, to accommodate the wide-angle lens.

"The Robe" will hit the king-size screens in October, when 20th Fox hopes that several thousand theatres in the United States will be so equipped. Then we'll find out whether Hollywood's revolution will succeed.

The studio is virtually staking its future that big-screen movies will be a success. Said Vice-President Al Lichtman: "We predict that this will be the shot in the arm that the movie industry needs. We feel that within a couple of years thousands of theatres in this country and throughout the world will be equipped for cinemascope."

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Lex Barker says movie actors should be married.

The screen's Tarzan, recently divorced by actress Arlene Dahl, hasn't lost his enthusiasm for marriage as an institution.

"Marriage is wonderful," he said. "It's the only way for an actor to live. Otherwise he can become a bum.

"I've seen it happen to friends of mine. They start playing the romantic field, and pretty soon they're up to their elbows in women. That's all they can think about. Their work is bound to suffer.

"But the married actor has something to work for. He is more happy and secure; he knows the comfort of coming home to someone who cares for him."

Barker admitted others must take a dim view of marriage in Hollywood.

"It's too easy to get a divorce in California," he commented. "The grounds can be trivial or even laughable. Such as complaining about having martinis before dinner." (This was part of Miss Dahl's testimony against him.) "No wonder people think marriage is taken too lightly in Hollywood."

Along career lines, Barker disclosed that he is through bellowing in the jungle unless Tarzan's boss, Sol Lesser, comes up with a better deal for future films.

"I've gone as far as I can with the Tarzan films," he remarked. "The only incentive to make any more of them is to get better money for doing them. So far that hasn't been forthcoming."

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself in his private chair, and ma said, William, it's very sweet and patient of you to sit there without a complaining werd when you are really suffering comparative torture.

If you are alluding to a slitely pained look on my face, it's meerly because I am rapidly approaching the end of this cigar, and it's my 2nd cigar this evening, and I've been reflecting on what a sap I am for holding myself down to 2 cigars just because the docter thinks he knows more about me than I know myself, pop said ,and ma said, Now William, that has nuthing to do with it You know very well our old window hangings clash with the new slip covers on the ferniture, and they've been depressing your esthetic sense ever since e made the change, she said.

Yee gods, I didn't know it showed on me, pop said, and ma said, Nuthing affects the mental senses more than color harmony. I was reeding about a famous ballarina who absilutely cant make a graceful motion if the drapes on the stage dont harmonize with her costume.

Maybe we better not give a dance in this room, pop said, and ma said, Now dont try to pass it off litely for any reasons of false economy. I think a restful gray shade would just do it. What do you think, William? she said.

I think a restful gray shade would just do it, pop said. In fact I'm feeling better alreddy, he said, and ma said, I knew those curtains were weighing you down. I'm glad we both agree on the color, she said.

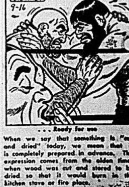
I'm happy too, pop said, and he got in back of the sporting page and ma started to hum happy to herself.

Chooses Edmonton

All-American halfback Billy Vessels, 21, of Oklahoma, says he will sign a contract with Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Interprovincial Union although Baltimore Colts of the professional National League are said to be still after him. Vessels, voted the outstanding player in the United States college ranks last season, said he would take a job with a Canadian oil company during the off-season. (CP Photo.)

Why We Say--

"CUT AND DRIED"



. . . Ready for use

When we say that something is "cut and dried" today, we mean that it is completely prepared in advance. The expression comes from the olden times when wood was cut and stored to be dried so that it would burn in the kitchen stove or fire place.

"SNOWMAN" A MYTH

CALCUTTA, India (Reuters)—Indian mountaineer Karma Paul said recently that the "abominable snowman" of the Himalayas was a myth and that footprints seen were those of high-altitude bears called "sokpa" by the local people. Paul is here to enlist support for a proposed all-India expedition to Mount Everest.

CCF Govt. Gives Package Policy For Automobiles

REGINA (CP)—Saskatchewan's CCF government has brought out a new government automobile insurance "package policy" that sells for $1.50 a year less than one previously sold but raises the "collision deductible" from $25 to $50.

The new policy announced Monday combines all types of insurance at a flat rate of $16 a year. But when motorists smash their fenders they must pay the first $50 of the repair bill instead of $25 formerly. The policy includes $50,000 public liability protection.

Motorists who want $25 deductible protection can have it for an extra $9. For the added fee, they also get public liability coverage of $100,000.

These policies supplement the basic $100-deductible compulsory policy, the premium on which recently was raised from $10 annually to $20 for late-model cars. The compulsory policy limits public liability coverage to $20,000.

The basic $100 deductible is compulsory. The additional protection in the "package policy" is optional.

The package policy includes practically everything to give complete coverage such as fire, theft, public liability, collision and other protection.

Provincial Treasurer Clarence Fines, minister in charge of the government insurance office, said the new $16 "package policy" will appeal to many motorists who find the $100 deductible feature of the compulsory policy too much to assume but are able to foot repair bills up to $50.

The new package policies will be issued for passenger cars and farm trucks of any size.

In addition to the compulsory insurance and the optional "package" plans the Saskatchewan driver's licence fee includes $2 for insurance. This recently was increased from $1.

Accordingly, maximum protection under government insurance plans costs $47 for a late-model car—$20 basic, $25 for the "extended package" and $2 assessed in the driver's licence fee.

Little Benny's Note Book

Tonite was pop's reguler bowling nite, and after supper he said to ma, I've got kind of a notion that I dont quite feel like werking up the energy to bowl tonite.

Do you meen you've got those shooting panes in your back again? ma said, and pop said, Well, it would be an exaggeration to call them shooting panes, but in all fairness I can say they are stationary twinges. So I think an ounce of discretion may be werth 2 days in bed, he said.

Well naturelly, for land sakes, ma said. You dont have to be a mental genius to tell yourself that. It simply stands to reason, and when a thing stands to reason as plane as the nose on your face, it's just common sense to act accordingly, she said, and pop said, By gollies I believe you're rite, my idea, and the whole course of histery would probably back you up. For instance, when Columbus decided to set sail and find out where the other half lived, the geographers of his time showed him that it stood to reason his ships would fall off the edge of the erth, but Columbus sailed across the ocean blue, and now his name is a household werd on 2 continents, pop said.

Do you have to go back to the year one for example, for land sakes? ma said, and pop said, Not at all, I'll take a modern instance. Joe Stalin knows it stands to reason that he can lick the whole capialist werld if he says his prayers to Carl Marks every nite. So he's trying it, and look what's going to happen to foxy old Joe any year now. So the moral is, when in doubt, go bowling. That stands to reason, my dear, he said.

The result being he got his hat and coat and went out while ma was still trying to argew him out of it.

In Poor Health For Years—Tells of Relief

Suffered 3 Years — Stomach Troubles, Headaches and Rheumatic Pain. "Feel Like Different Person Since Taking Syntona," Says This Man.

MR. THOMAS SEARSTON

In every section of this city and vicinity grateful men and women tell how Syntona has helped to build up rundown systems and relieve common disorders of the stomach, kidneys, liver or bowels. Syntona helps cleanse the system of excess acids and poisonous waste matter and promotes better assimilation of food, for increased strength and energy.

Results such as those experienced by Mr. Thomas Searston, 49 Allan Street, Hamilton, Ontario, are quite commonplace and hundreds of people have given public statements so that others may know of its merits.

"For three years I suffered with stomach disorders," said Mr. Searston. "I would have indigestion, gas, cramps and a heavy, bloated feeling after eating even the lightest foods. My entire system became rundown so that my nerves were all on edge and I would get throbbing headaches. Rheumatic pains in my legs, arms, back and joints had become so bad it was difficult for me to do my work.

"Although I had tried many different medicines and treatments without benefits, I heard of Syntona and I decided to see what it would do for me. After finishing the first bottle I could see that I was feeling better, so I continued taking it and actually I am now feeling like a different person. My food is digesting well now for the first time in many months; nerves are calmed down and I am free of headache. I have no muscular cramps or pain, appetite is improved and I am getting more sound, restful sleep at night."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville by Dolan the Druggist.

Japanese Bride is "Introduced" to Canada

Everything is new and strange to Mrs. Ken Beeds as she is shown around Edmonton by her new husband, Pte. Beeds, following their arrival from Japan. The fourth Japanese bride of a Canadian soldier to arrive in this country, Teruko met her husband in a tea shop in Kure, where he was stationed with the 2nd Battalion Princess Pats. Following stopover in Edmonton, the young couple departed for their home at Lloydminster, Sask. — Central Press Canadian.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was eating her grapefruit diet with her hat on, on account of having to go downtown for diffrent reasons, saying, to pop, William, if I wear my diamond ring downtown today and it gets stolen, I'll never forgive myself.

Will you forgive the crook that steels it? pop said, and ma said, I had the most vivid dreem about an astrologer. I dreemed I was on the verge of going downtown, just as I am at this moment, and this astrologer with his proverbial peeked hat appeered out of nowhere and gave me a cofidential message from the stars. He warned me my diamond ring would be stolen if I wear it downtown. I'm a ferm beleever in dreems, you know that, William. But the point is, is there anything to astrology? she said.

Well, I beleeve it's an excepted fact that if the munth and date of your berthday add up to 14, your possessions are in danger when the planet Beelzebub is in juxtaposition with the left ear of the big bear, and that happens to be today, pop said. Now let me see, what date were you born? he said, and ma said, William Potts can you ask me that question with a strate face after the scene I made the last time you forgot my berthday?

Naturelly I know, my dear, pop said. It has a 7 in it, and it's one of the warmer munths, he said, and ma said, William you've forgotten my berthday again as compleetely as though you had married a stranger. William, I'm going to delibritly wear my diamond ring downtown. I'll wear my glove all day as a slite concession, but the responsibility will be intirely yours if that ring is stolen, she said.

Which it wasn't.

The Air Transport Association announced that the regularly scheduled domestic airlines did not have a single passenger fatality in the 12 months just ended. A few hours later the Association of American Railroads announced that not a single passenger fatality resulted from train accidents during 1952.

Retroactive Pay To Last April For Railroaders

Indication Comes in New C.P.R. Financial Statement

MONTREAL (CP) — Retroactive pay increases of 12 per cent for trainmen, whose threatened strike was called off late last mouth, will date back to April 1, 1952, it was indicated Thursday night in a revised financial statement by the Canadian Pacific Railway.

No official announcement has been made of the retroactive date. It was one of the questions to be decided by negotiation, along with certain changes in working conditions.

The CPR revised its 1952 statement on the basis of April 1 as the retroactive date. The same date applies to retroactive pay for firemen and engineers and Sept. 1 is the date for dining car employees. Settlements with these groups were reached before the strike threat of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

For all these groups, the revised financial statement indicates the increased pay will be $1,892,000. This figure is the difference beween the previously-announced net earnings for 1952 and the revised statement.

Increases for employees in the non-organized workers were included in the original financial statement made public Jan. 28.

Presumably the retroactive date will be the same for CNR members of the BRT. Both companies acted jointly in negotiations with the BRT.

In the CPR's revised financial statement net earnings for 1952 are shown as $28,930,780 instead of $30,822,780 as announced Jan. 28. Net earnings in 1951 were $26,812,832.

Working expenses now are shown as $428,878,189 instead of $426,986,189. Working expenses in 1951 were $402,098,807.

1,500 Killed By Earthquake Says Report

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) —Reports reaching the Iranian government today estimated that about 1,500 persons were killed Thursday as an earthquake virtually wiped out the village of Torroud, in northeast Iran.

Fifteen truckloads of soldiers and 16 army jeeps loaded with blankets, medical supplies and food were sent to the distressed area.

There reports indicated that there were no more than 50 survivors at the most in the village, approximately 90 miles from Shahrud.

The quake apparently cocurred at noon Thursday. At that time a slight tremor was felt in Tehran but no damage was reported.

Chinese Gunboats Blockade Red Deep-Water Port

By GRAHAM JENKINS

HONG KONG (reuters)—Four Chinese Nationalist gunboats have blockaded Communist China's deep-water port of Amoy, merchant seamen arriving here reported today.

"It is impossible for even a British ship to enter the harbor," they said.

The seamen said at least one British-registered freighter had been turned back to Hong Kong with a cargo of fertilizer.

Before President Eisenhower deneutralized Formosa earlier this month, Nationalists had stationed one Navy gunboat outside Amoy, they said. Since then, three more gunboats have been based at Nationalist-held Quemoy Island only 25 miles east of Amoy.

Few Try to Enter

Reliable mercantile sources said few ships try to enter Amoy. The port mainly used now for shipping along the South China coast is Swatow, 135 miles south of Amoy and that much further away from Nationalist bases.

Meantime, British-registered ships here continued clearing port for the Chinese coasts. Three were cleared today for Canton.

British shipping sources said Nationalist gunboats had not yet attempted to interfere with their freighters from Britain or Hong Kong carrying cargoes direct to China ports. They anticipated trouble, however, for ships which, after delivering their cargoes, carry Communist shipments on time charters up and down the China coast. Nationalist "sea guerrillas"—as opposed to regular naval forces—have already been in operation against the Communists. They sank a Communist motorboat and captured two others last Sunday, according to Taipeh reports.

Ceilings Lifted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States government Thursday lifted price ceilings from poultry, eggs, soaps, gasoline, crude oil and all rubber products.

Altogether thousands of items in 18 major commodity and service groups were decontrolled in the Eisenhower administration's second big move within a week to restore free markets.

Milk was kept under ceilings in a decision that reversed earlier reported intentions to free it from controls.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO. (CP) — Synopsis: Snowflurries fell over most of the province Thursday night as an aftermath of the storm which swept across Southern Ontario early in the day. Occasional snowflurries will persist in most regions today and tonight, with slowly clearing skies on Saturday as slightly cooler air moves into the province.

23 Romanians, Oil Expert Guilty of Spying

VIENNA (AP) — A military court in Red-ruled Romania rendered spy and treason convictions Thursda ynight against 23 Romanian oil experts and a former cabinet minister accused of slowing down production consigned to Russia. The formal charges were high treason and spying for western powers.

The finance minister of pre-Communist days in Romania and five of the oil men were sentenced to life in prison or life at hard labor in camps. The verdicts and sentences were announced on Bucharest radio.

The group was alleged to have deliberately slowed down development of Romania's post-war oil industry, now devoting 95 per cent of output to Russia.

Several of the accused told the court they delivered information to members of the British embassy.

Alexander Alexandrini, pro-Communist minister of finance, is among the three sentenced to life in labor camp.

Men Lean to Sentimental Side In Showing Love on Valentine's Day

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

This Valentine's Day, Canadian women seem to think love's funny.

It's the men who lean to the sentimental side.

A Canadian Press survey today found men still proving their love is true with stacks of satin hearts and lacy Valentines. But women favored comic cards which mock the great emotion.

Tempers were better this year in Nova Scotia and Newfoundland where there was a drop in sales of sour cards, popular in other years. Prince Edward Island was parsimonious toward Valentines and inexpensive cards sold well ahead of luxury items.

In Toronto and Quebec, some amorous men spent from $2.50 to $7.50 for a new-type satin heart bearing a piece of costume jewelry.

But in most places sellers were the comic and comic-mushy types. A particular hit was the "squeeze-me" or animated card.

Sales were almost equally divided between men and women, proving that in Canada love largely is requited.

Heart-shaped sweets for shapely sweethearts brought crowds to candy stores. Some manufacturers kept teen-aged needs in mind and sold heart-shaped boxes especially priced for young lovers.

As usual, flower sales were small until the last day when men preferring such tributes made their purchases. Most flowers sold were red.

A handful of shy men, and more of the sophisticated, bought lingerie for their valentines, but the majority of such buyers were middle-aged and married.

Some of the most smitten, and the affluent, still bought jewelry and the poets once again wrote private verse for whispering in "shell-pink ears."

ALSATIAN,GERMAN TO PAY PENALTY FOR WAR CRIMES

Eighteen Given Long Terms in Prison

BORDEAUX, France (AP) — A French military court, trying 21 former soldiers of Hitler's Elite (S. S.) Guard for the wartime massacre of 642 Oradour-Sur-Glane villagers, today sentenced one German and one Alsatian to death.

Winding up one of France's most disputed recent judicial cases, the seven-man tribunal also:

Sentenced 13 Alsatians and five Germans to prison terms ranging from five to 12 years.

Acquitted one German, Erwin Dagenhardt.

Sentenced to death in absentia 25 other former members of the S. S. Das Reich division.

Alsatian Georges-Rene Boos, 27, and German Karl Lentz, 38, were the two ex-sergeants handed death sentences.

The long-delayed trial aroused a burning national controversy, because it involved defendants from the disputed border province of Alsace, controlled by Germany from 1940 to the end of the Second World War but now part of France. Lawyers for the 12 Alsatian defendants who had been conscripted into theGerman Army argued for acquittal on grounds they had been forced to serve the Germans and should not be held responsible for their actions.

While Alsatians called for clemency, relatives of those slain in the murderous sack of Oradour-Sur-Glane in June, 1944, demanded revenge.

Only six townspeople survived the Oradour-Sur-Glane carnage, in which the German commander shot down all the men in sight, herded the women and children into the village church, slew them there and then burned the village. The action was in reprisal against the French underground.

Gordon Graydon Wants to Know About Pole

OTTAWA (CP)—Gordon Graydon (PC-Peel) said in the Commons Thursday that the government should give information about a mysterious Pole who became a naturalized Canadian, returned to Poland and then got expense payments from the Canadian government while attempting to return to this country.

Mr. Graydon said the payments are mentioned in the annual report of auditor-general Watson Sellar. His passage back to Poland was paid by the Polish government. Then he applied for a Polish exit visa to return to Canada and the Canadian government paid his hotel, meals and other expenses while he waited in Warsaw.

The payments had continued even after the Polish government refused the exit visa.

The matter was one that should be investigated by the House external afafirs committee.

House Hears CCF Warning U.S. Stiffer Asian Policy Dangerous, May Lead to War

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons heard a CCF suggestion Thursday that the United States' new, stiffer Asian policy was dangerous and could lead to a third world war.

It came from Angus MacInnis, acting CCF leader, as spokesmen for parties in opposition expressed views about Canada's foreign policy. They agreed on only one thing — Canada should never hesitate to speak out in the councils of the world.

Members of the Progressive Conservative and Social Credit parties saw nothing alarming in the stiffer U. S. policy as signalled by President Eisenhower's removal of the 7th fleet from neutralizing Formosa.

In fact Solon Low, Social Credit leader, said it might be followed with a blockade of the Red Chinese coast to halt the flow of war material to the Reds. He said there must be a change in policy to terminate the "debacle" of Korea.

Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative foreign affairs specialist, suggested a firm U. S. policy more likely would bring peace than one of "hesitation and appeasement."

Canada had been "informed" but not "consulted" about the new U. S. move. If there was room for criticism because of this, it pinpointed the need for Canada's entry into an over-all Pacific defence pact.

Rodney Adamson (PC - York West) strongly supported the U.S. Formosan action and also suggested a blockade of the Red China coast. Of the Formosa move, he said it is a step in the direction of leading from strength, the only thing the Russians understand.

Howard Green (PC-Vancouver Quadra) also urged a Pacific pact. It was time that "the Canadian government demanded a full voice in Pacific affairs."

Mr. MacInnis said the danger in the new U. S. action "is not the probability that this will extend the Korean war but that it is only the first in a series of decisions that will bring world war three." Canada "should say in a firm voice that cannot be mistaken that we won't be bound by this or any other order taken without consultation with us."

Claims Political Dangers

There were political dangers in giving aid to Gen. Chiang Kai-shek whom he described as a "corrupt, reactionary remnant of old Asia." Asiatics in non-Communist countries now so vital would not be pleased with any move to help the general and his Nationalist forces on Formosa regain power in China.

"We have a major responsibility to exert the strongest pressure to prevent U. S. steps that bring us any closer to war," Mr. MacInnis said.

Without Punch Line Sir Roger Explains Punch Humor to U.S.

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP) —Rawther jolly time at the Library of Congress Thursday.

A display of British humor, as distilled from the pages of Punch, the British funny magazine, opened and the British ambassador, and a large group of Britons, dropped around to help everyone get the point.

Verner W. Clapp, acting librarian, set the pace with this story:

Fellow asked the editor of Punch: "Why is Punch losing its wit?"

Editor: "Oh, it isn't losing it. It never had it."

Laughter.

"Good, excellent," said an English accent on my right.

Sir Roger Makins, the ambassador, was introduced. He said Punch is as "British as roast beef, when there is any. In fact, it's the rib of that roast."

Sir Roger pointed to the differences in national humor. He recalled that Bill Nye, the humorist, made two trips to Britain. On the second trip Nye found Britons had just started laughing at jokes he made on the first trip.

The ambassador said the Scots laugh indefinitely at the same joke.

Indeed, he said, he agreed with someone who said: "The Scots laugh immoderately at stated intervals."

"Very good, excellent," said the English accent.

But, Sir Roger said, as long as we understand each other's jokes we don't have to worry too much about the rest of our relationships. He then gave a sample of American humor.

A fellow climbs into a cab here in Washington. On the way down Pennsylvania avenue he notices a motto on the Archives Building, "the past is prelude." He asks the cabbie what it means.

"That's government language," says the hackie, "for 'you ain't seen nothing yet!'"

British humor, the ambassador said, is more ironical, more restrained, more given to understatement. He suggested sending American humor abroad on a trip similar to Punch's in the hopes of cross-fertilization.

Sir Roger said everyone could see he hadn't been able to resist an attempt to be funny in his remarks. But, he said, "I'm going to close my remarks without what you Americans call a 'punch' line."

"Very good, very excellent," said the English accent.

Carried away with it all, a photographer came up and told me he was glad they were serving sherry so no one could accuse him of being punch drunk.

$100,000 Fire Loss at Soo, Seven Forced Out

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—A $100,000 fire forced seven persons, one in a wheel chair, to the street early today when it swept a three-storey apartment building on Queen street, this Northern Ontario's city's main thoroughfare.

Third-floor quarters of the Knights of Columbus were gutted and a wall of the building collapsed before the blaze was brought under control.

Police and passersby roused second-floor residents. They carried an elderly woman out in a wheel chair.

Firemen said they believe the blaze originated in a stair-well. A meeting of the Elks Club was adjourned in the K. of C. hall two hours before the fire began.

SHELVE FLUORINE PLAN

GALT (CP)—The board of health has temporarily shelved any fluoridation program for Galt.

Dr. J. B. Smith, medical officer of health, Wednesday night gave the city's good dental health record as the reason for the cancellation. He said Galt's water supply has some fluorine in it, though it does not measure up to standards recommended by the Canadian Medical Association and the Canadian Dental Association.

Brought to Court On a Stretcher To Testify

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Norman Quinlan, 37, wife of one of three men charged in connection with the Nov. 12 attempt by two masked men to rob a bank, was brought to court Thursday on a stretcher to testify on her husband's behalf.

The case is expected to go to the Supreme Court jury today.

Evidence in the four-day trial was completed when Norman Quinlan, 41, testified he had no knowledge of the contents of a "hide-away" compartment in his home.

Mrs. Quinlan, recovering from an operation, corroborated her husband's testimony. She was brought to court in an ambulance.

Quinlan, Arthur McKay, 24, Windsor, and Robert Woods, 27, alias Sidney Clewes Toronto, were charged with attempted robbery two days after two men wearing rubber masks fled empty-handed from a branch of the Bank of Commerce.

THREE UNLUCKY FRIDAYS

TORONTO. (CP)— If you're superstitious, take it easy today. It's Friday, the 13th, the first so-called bad luck day since June 13, which was the only Friday-the-13th in 1952. But there's three in 1953—today and in March and November.

EXPLOSION HURLS BODIES 250 FEET: TWELVE KILLED

California Blast Jars Area 20 Miles Away

RICHMOND, Cal. (AP)—Twelve men were killed Thursday in an explosion at the Hercules Powder Company. Bodies and parts of bodies were hurtled as far as 250 feet.

The blast occurred after a fire broke out in an explosive-mixing building of the company. As workers hurried to fight the fire, an explosion reduced the brick building to rubble.

The explosion threw bricks from the building 700 feet. It shook four Bay area counties. It even got a reaction on the University of California seismograph at Berkeley, 12 miles to the south. San Francisco, 20 miles away, was jolted.

Mixing Dynamite

Only two men were in the 25-by 50-foot brick building used for mixing "dope"—liquid ingredients of dynamite. They presumably touched off the plant fire whistle which brought workers running. Then came the blast which "almost knocked our heads off," said workers farthest from the scene.

Those closer didn't live.

Eugene D. Hatfield, Hercules employment supervisor, said:

"We probably will never know the cause of the blast."

The federal bureau of investigation is investigating the possibility of sabotage.

Narrow Escape

Construction workers moving dirt only 150 feet from the explosion escaped injury.

John Mountjoy saw a small flame at the building, then "a little explosion, like a tank of gas going off."

He and three other men leaped into the scoop of a bulldozer Mountjoy was operating. Seconds later the big blast came.

Plant manager Clifford T. Butler estimated damage of $50,000.

The Hercules plant has been hit by other explosions. Last March 26, one man was killed in an explosion in a press house on the black powder line. Two others died when the nitro-glycerine building blew up in June, 1948. A similar blast in 1944 also killed two men.

3 Airmen Die In Gander Crash

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—A Carswell-based U.S. B-36 bomber crashed and burned 16 miles from Goose Bay, Labrador, just before midnight Thursday night.

Three crew members were killed, six suffered major injuries and eight others were slightly injured, Carswell air force base, officials said here today.

The giant bomber, returning from a flight to England, was making a scheduled stop en route to Carswell.

First reports from Goose Bay indicated the bomber was preparing to land when the accident occurred.

STRATFORD. (CP) — Reuben Henry Norman, 25-year-old Camp Borden paratrooper, today was committed for trial on a charge of murder in the shooting of a 17-year-old girl here Feb. 2.

Worried Sioux Unable to Find Remains of Chief Sitting Bull

WASHINGTON (AP)—The great white fathers in Washington Thursday sent word to the worried Sioux Indians that they can't return Sitting Bull's skull for a very good reason — they haven't got it.

The Smithsonian Institution has one of the world's largest collection of skeletons, but Dr. T. Dale Stewart said he's sure Sitting Bull isn't among them.

The whole thing came up when the Sioux Indians, through a Portland, Ore., lawyer, announced they were petitioning the Smithsonian to send back Sitting Bull's skull. A. W. O'Connell said the Indians figure only a proper resting place would permit his "valiant spirit to gain rest in the happy hunting grounds, rather than wander aimlessly."

Stewart, curator of physical anthropology for the Smithsonian, said his records show Sitting Bull was buried in Fort Yates, N. D., and that the grave has been a tourist attraction for years.

Sitting Bull, the prominent son of Jumping Bull, once was one of the leading Indian menaces to the United States government. His refusal to return to his reservation in 1876 led to the campaign in which Gen. George A. Custer made his famous losing last stand.

And it was the threat of an Indian uprising later, in 1890, that caused the government to decide to arrest Sitting Bull in an attempt to squash it. Sitting Bull was surprised, captured and then killed when his followers tried to rescue him.

Relentless Tide Rolls Up Against Britain, Holland

Critical Period Threatens More Destruction, Lives

LONDON (AP) — A relentless tide thundered against hastily-plugged gaps in the sea walls of Britain, The Netherlands and Belgium today threatening a new loss of life and property.

On both shores of the North Sea the battle to hold back the waves reached a new critical phase. This fight, against the greatest tides of the month, will continue until Thursday.

Britain, aided by nine countries, got a sandbag airlift under way. Millions of bags were loaded into planes and ships to strengthen the battered levees on England's east coast.

British, Dutch and Belgian service men and volunteers fought at a new tempo to hold back the sea. As new weaknesses appeared in the walls, fresh crews rushed up to bolster the defence.

Britain, The Netherlands and Belgium counted more than 2,000 dead from the storms and floods that swept against their shores from Jan. 31 to Feb. 2. All three countries are better equipped now to prevent more loss of life.

Not only have coastal areas been evacuated in many places, but elaborate warning systems are in operation. The 750 persons still remaining on hard hit Canvey Island and in the Thames estuary were assured they would get two hours against the sea fails.

The wind dropped over the North Sea, but numbing cold was a new enemy for the workers on the dikes. A blizzard continued over much of northern Europe.

Spring tides, pulled by the moon, will reach their peak Monday afternoon. If no new gales whip up the waters the three countries hope to get safely by this period. By the end of next week these giant February tides will have begun to recede.

The Queen toured Kent and Essex today encouraging workers and refugees. Her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, flew over England's east coast, making several stops to inspect the sea walls.

Britain is winning the sea battle thus far. The walls are standing up to the pounding in the danger areas of Kent, Essex, Norfolk Suffolk, Yorkshire and Lincolnshire.

France, Belgium, Switzerland, Italy, Norway, West Germany, Portugal, Denmark and the United States are rushing sandbags to Britain. They have offered to send 5,00,000. Nearby countries are sending the bigs in ships, the others by plane.

A non-stop bag airlift, instituted by the RAF transport command, began at dawn. Officers gave this operation top priority, cancelling training and programs and other commitments.

Sir David Maxwell Fyfe told the House of Comons:

"The new defences so far have been standing up against the tides, but the real testing period is still to come."

Ice and snow continued to snarl road and rail traffic in northern England and Scotland.

Bitter weather gripped the continent. The French port of Le Havre had its third snowfall of the winter, the first time this has happened in 50 years. Snow fell as far as Marseille.

FUEL OIL DOWN

TORONTO (CP) — Prices of light fuel oils have been reduced in many parts of Ontario, Imperial Oil announced today. Prices fell one-half cent a gallon in Toronto, to lower the price of domestic furnace oil to 17.1 cents.

Plea of Mercy Made by Pope For Rosenbergs

VATICAN CITY (AP)—L'Osservatore Romano said today that the Pope has intervened in behalf of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, U. S. atomic spies sentenced to death.

The Vatican newspaper indicated that the Pontiff asked that their lives, if possible, be saved.

The newspaper said its statement was printed in reply to accusations in some newspapers—notably the Communist press—that the Pontiff had remained "impassive" to pleas directed to him to intervene in the case.

In Washington, President Eisenhower's press secretary, James C. Hagerty, said:

"All I can say is that neither the state department nor the White House received any notification on this subject."

Hagerty said he did not know whether the Truman administration had received a clemency appeal from the Vatican.

"It is well known" said L'Osservatore, "that His Holiness, even without being able to enter into the merits of cases,neverrefuses his interest when asked to save human life for superior motives of charity proper to his apostolic mission.

Thief Carried $14,691 Cash

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—A store guard told police he saw a man hide a tube of toothpaste in a racing form last night and walk out without paying for it. John Bowler, 50, was jailed on suspicion of robbery. In a cloth bag carried in his clothing, police found cash which Bowler said his betting system had netted him at Santa Anita racetrack since Feb. 3. It totalled $14,691.

CHINESE IN CITY TO OBSERVE NEW YEAR'S DAY

Believe it or not tomorrow, February 14th., is New Year's Day. That is, if you are of the Chinese race.

The day introduces the year 4650 for the Chinese and will usher in the "Year of the Snake." Last year was the "Year of the Dragon" and is claimed by Chinese to have left much unhappiness in its wake.

In the larger centres the Chinese will celebrate with the "Dance of the Dragon," but in Belleville and other smaller centres New Year's Day will pass quietly with private dinners and celebrations.

OVER-HEATED PIPES GIVEN AS CAUSE

Over-heated stove pipes were blamed for a small blaze which this morning caused up to $50 damage in the ceiling and partition at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. N. T. Vance, 362 Stokes Street. Firemen were called and soon had the blaze under control with a minimum of damage resulting.

Hunters Note Deer Decreased In 1952 Season

Conjecture over the deer situation in Southern Ontario continues to occupy many hunters. Under the auspices of the Renfrew Fish and Game Association, hunters in that area held an open meeting on January 28 to discuss the general situation. Hunter success last fall was slightly under 32 per cent for the Quinte District as a whole, a noticeable decrease from preceding seasons. A number of possible factors were discussed including predators, use of dogs, restrictions in number of hunters in certain districts, and shorter seasons. According to information obtained at deer-checking stations operated by fish and wildlife officers, there was a decrease evident in the one and half year age class, likely caused by fawn mortality during severe winter conditions in 1951-52. Main reason for the decreased hunters' success seems to be however, that deer were still scattered over their summer range, did not run to dogs, and were nowhere concentrated as they were in the fall of 1951.

New Zoning By-Law Necessary Municipal Board Rules When Changes Made at Hearing Here

Too many proposed amendments to the original draft caused the city's new zoning by-law to bog down yesterday when the application for its approval was before the Ontario Municipal Board at a special hearing held in the city hall council chambers.

After considering the original by-law and listening to the many suggested amendments along with proposals for zone changes, board members adjourned the hearing with instructions for council to iron out the wrinkles and draft a new by-law incorporating the amendments. The board would then set a date for another hearing to approve the by-law.

R. L. Kennedy, as acting chairman, pointed out it was not the duty of the Municipal Board to decide on drastic changes of zones. "Any zoning changes in a by-law should be passed by council and the planning committee before the Municipal Board was asked to approve," he said.

Many Changes

He pointed out that the zoning plan advertised in the local newspaper would be changed considerably by the suggested amendments.

He suggested council publicize the proposed amendments and after their approval by council and the planning committee, draft a new by-law. This should be done as soon as possible.

During the morning session the various amendments were read into the by-law with any opposition or suggestions from ratepayers being noted.

Then during the afternoon session the board listened to requests for permits to erect gasoline service stations in two areas designated by the new by-law as being strictly residential.

Robt. B. McCulloch, representing J. R. Langton, 24 North Front street, said his client had sold two lots on North Front street to the British American Oil Company which proposed to erect a service station. Application had been made to council for a building permit but this had been held up by council pending approval of their new zoning by-law.

Public Service Seen

Arguing in favor of the service station, Mr. McCulloch noted that North Front street was a main artery out of the city and a gasoline station on the west side of the street would be a service to the motoring public.

He pointed out the area was not strictly residential as there was a gasoline service station a short distance away across the street. There were also grocery stores, a funeral parlor, a church and a lumber company. To the west there was a decided commercial area.

He gave assurance that in event that North Front street required to be widened at some future date to provide for additional traffic the oil company would be glad to co-operate.

Opposing the service station and asking the zoning by-law to be approved in its present form was John Lennox who said he represented some 85 residents of the area. He said North Front street was and always had been a residential area.

He termed the present gasoline station at the corner of North Front and Moira streets a "hazard." A second service station would add to the congestion.

Both speakers had petitions from residents, one supporting and the other opposing the service station.

Douglas Moxam spoke in support of his application for permission to erect a service station at the corner of Victoria Ave. and Lingham St., this also being in a residential area.

He said he had applied for a permit last November. After some discussion by city officials the permit had been granted and then later rescinded. Acting on the strength of his permit he had proceeded with plans and had purchased building materials.

Not Board's Function

Municipal Board member, Wm. Greenwood, referred to what he said appeared to be an impression in Belleville that the function of the Municipal Board was to make changes in zoning by-laws. "This," he said, "the board was not at liberty to do if extensive changes were asked." He supported Mr. Kennedy in his statement there should be a completely new by-law written.

He said there could be no ruling with regard to the applications for service stations as there was actually no by-law.

In recommending that a new by-law be drafted incorporating the proposed amendments, Mr. Greenwood said that preparing a zoning by-law was a difficult thing to do. But as result of this meeting the future meetings between council and the planning board, eventually most of the difficulties would be ironed out.

"You can never hope to satisfy everybody," he pointed out.

Mr. Kennedy added that an entirely new by-law would be much more intelligible than to try and incorporate the many suggested amendments.

Car Insurance Costs Less Than In '37 Club Told

Automobile insurance by comparison, costs less today than it did 15 years ago, R. W. Harris of the All Canada Insurance Federation told members of the Belleville Y's Men's Club, here yesterday.

Speaking on behalf of more than 200-odd fire, automobile and casualty insurance companies in Canada, Mr. Harris said that insurance on an average-priced car in 1952 is actually 40 per cent less than it was in 1937.

"For example, 15 years ago full coverage on a car costing $835 was $5.16 per $100 insurance—today, the same car costs $2,246 and the rate on a family car is $3.10 per $100 insurance on an average," he said.

Mr. Harris said the insurance business had been successful in preventing out-of-line rate increases despite increases in the cost of cars of 100 per cent, a rise in the cost of repairs of 150-200 per cent and the greater number of accidents. The insurance business has slashed operating expenses and reduced profits to next to nothing, in order to keep automobile insurance rates reasonable, he said.

"To do so, however, many companies are taking a loss such as in British Columbia where last year automobile insurers paid out $110 in claims on every $100 worth of premiums collected. Actually, on a business-wide basis the companies suffered a 2 per cent loss last year on automobile insurance.

"While the driver can not control these cost of living increases, he can control the number of accidents," he said, "and when drivers collectively start driving more carefully, accidents—and consequently rates—may drop."

Some Perturbed At Not Observing Centennial Year

TRENTON — People in the street are talking about the way the proposed centennial celebration was mishandled. At the present time officials are not sure whether there will be an anniversary party or the idea will be shelved and forgotten.

Some merchants are very perturbed about the lack of interest shown by townfathers. One of them pointed out a decision by the Barrie council to advance $3,000 for assistance to the Barrie centennial committee. "I never saw so few civic-minded people as there are in Trenton," he commented. "This is a once in a lifetime opportunity and somebody has to throw a wrench in the works."

Some people are in favor of letting the Chamber of Commerce organize and run the celebration. Most people feel that the celebration would create a lot of new interest in the town and the money left behind by visitors would more than offset any loss that may be created by the sponsors.

There is a feeling in one official quarter that the centennial masterminds have missed the boat and the best that can happen now will be an uneventful anniversary attracting only local interest.

Lion John Patterson made the presentation.

Bags Six Goals

Trenton hockey fans will be getting their share of playoff hockey, since all six teams in the Trent Valley League south division, are to be incorporated in the playoff schedule. It looks like Carr's Admirals to finish in fourth place, which they hold by a comfortable margin now. Wednesday's 13-8 win over Frankford in Frankford helped the locals a lot. That night winger Maurice Jones pulled the hat trick twice, bagging six goals.

Successful Tea

A successful tea was held at Mrs. Harry B. Reid's home on McCann Street yesterday afternoon with 30 ladies attending. The proceeds amounting to $22 was donated to the Blind building campaign. Assisting Mrs. Reid were: Mrs. Earl Armstrong, Mrs. Ray Mitts, Mrs. Jack Bell and Mrs. Jack Sullivan, who poured tea. The Ladies' Auxiliary from the Trenton Baptist Church donated the food.

City Hall Auditorium, Scene Of Many Election Contests, Now Cut Up Into Offices

Scene of many a spirited election fight in former years, the city hall auditorium has now passed into the realm of forgotten things with the completion of renovations underway for the past few months.

Over the week-end the city hall assessing department will move into its new quarters on the second floor of the city hall, where the public auditorium at one time was situated. The old auditorium will then be completely taken up by the city engineering department, the assessing department, and offices for the recreational director and the local Chamber of Commerce.

First slice out of the city hall auditorium came in the early years of the last war when the hall was partitioned to provide accommodation for the National Selective Service. Later after other quarters for the Employment Service were secured the city engineering department moved into the vacated quarters.

Still later a corner of the stage section of the auditorium was partitioned off as quarters for the Chamber of Commerce.

Ceilings Lowered

Then, some months ago it was decided to move the assessing department upstairs and the entire ceiling of the old auditorium was lowered. Partitions were placed and the result provided private offices for the city engineer and members of the engineering department with separate quarters for the assessing department.

The centre of the old auditorium is now partitioned off as a drafting room, where engineers may work in quiet. Included is a small blue print room where blue prints can be made.

Partitions of the separate offices are done in plywood, some of which are fitted with frosted glass to better natural lighting.

This week new fluorescent lighting in both the engineering department and in the new assessing department is being placed by electricians.

General contractor for the renovations was Arthur Sills and son. Contract price was $5,455. Floor sanding and painting was a separate contract. The alterations were carried out under the direction of the city property committee with Alderman Wilbur Countryman as chairman.

POLICE BLOTTER

The C.P.R. crossing gate at the Pinnacle Street crossing was broken and a motorist's car was damaged to the extent of about $125 when the gate was lowered onto a passing car during last night's snowstorm.

Frank A. Smith, Burnham St., was driving on Pinnacle when the crossing gate was lowered. The gate came down across the windshield of his car.

Albert Broad, Grier Street, complained that his house had been entered, while the family was away. About $10 in silver was reported missing.

Dussek Factory To be Completed Early in Summer

Concrete evidence of the successful efforts of the Belleville Industrial Commission to bring new industry to Belleville is shown today as construction has already started on the new building of Dussek Brothers in the northeast section of the city.

The English firm decided to settle here after several conferences with the commission. These meetings covered a period of many months.

The building now under construction is of substantial masonry and will be served by a new road and a railway spur. Sewer and water services, as well as hydro lies into the new building, will also serve other parts of what is being laid out as an industrial area and is expected to develop into an extensive scheme.

Officials hope that the Dussek factory will be ready for occupancy by early summer when the superintendent will arrive from England to set up equipment and begin manufacturing.

The firm, established in 1850, produces such materials as putty, insulating oils for the manufacture of cables, lubricating oils, pitches for caulking battleships and other items. One of its more interesting developments was a watertight seal for ammunition floats which were towed behind landing craft used for the first time on D-Day during the Second World War.

The St. Lawrence Contracting Company Limited is in charge of construction. Architects were Watson and Wiegand.

SHIPS TO SAIL EARLY

SARNIA (CP)—One of the earliest openings of navigation on record was foreseen here Thursday by marine authorities in the wake of an unusually open winter. A heavy influx of crews returning to Imperial Oil tankers here following annual holidays came this week, said Capt. F. C. Smith, marine superintendent for the company fleet. All crews will have returned by the second week in March.

Two Transports In Difficulty On City Streets

Two highway transports passing through the city got into difficulty today as the big vehicles were negotiating street corners.

This morning an Argosy transport loaded with nine and a half tons of corrugated paper boxes for a local manufacturing plant was proceeding down South Foster and was turning onto Bay Street when the trailer jackknifed. The loaded trailer swung completely around and smashed a hydro pole.

Shortly after midnight a McCallum transport was making the turn at Front and Bridge streets when the front of the tractor was in collision with a southbound vehicle driven by Glen Eggleton, William Street. Damage to the car amounted to about $200.

No Precedent

"And, as he has mercifully done in similar cases, so, also in this had intervened to the extent permitted to him, considering there is a lack of all official relations with the competent governing authorities of the United States."

The Vatican newspaper did not indicate how or when the Pope had intervened.

Vatican sources said the statement by L'Osservatore was, however, a clear indication that the pontiff sought to save the lives of the two atomic spies, if that were possible.

L'Unita, official organ of the Italian Communist party, in a round-up of world reaction said today that the Christian Democrat Communist party of East Germany were concerned about the Rosenbergs. L'Unita then recalled that an East Germany request had been made at Christmas time to the Pope that he intervene.

Red Appeal

"Until now," said the Communist newspaper, "this has not happened and hopes are expressed that this silence will be broken before the lives of the two innocents are broken on the electric chair."

The Communist and pro-Communist press, meanwhile, made heavy propaganda use of President Eisenhower's refusal to commute the death sentence.

The Rosenbergs—Julius is 34 and Ethel is 36—are in the death cell block at Sing Sing prison, Ossining, N. Y.

Their electrocution, originally set for Jan. 24, had been delayed by New York trial Judge Irving R. Kaufman while the presidential appeal was pending. The Judge's stay expires Monday. He will then fix a new date for the death sentence to be carried out.

If it is, the Rosenbergs will be the first American civilians to pay with their lives for the crime of espionage against the U. S.

17 Million Dollar Plant Expansion Is Contemplated

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A $17,000,000 plant expansion program will be undertaken immediately in Windsor by the Chrysler Corporation of Canada, Limited, it was announced today.

E. C. Row, president and general manager, said the corporation will produce more than double its present output of passenger cars when the two-year expansion program is completed.

Mr. Row said during a press conference the company has made a "very comprehensive study" and its confidence in the future of Canada "demands an immediate expansion of our facilities."

"This expansion will take more than the usual time," Mr. Row said, "for we must replace our present loading and shipping facilities before we can undertake other construction for the additions to our passenger car plant."

Chrysler Corporation has spent about $12,000,000 on expansions here since the end of the second world war.

Chrysler of Canada opened operations here under the present name in 1925 with 181 employees. That year it produced 4,474units.

In 1951 some 74,823 units were produced.

Work on the new plan will begin as soon as the architectural plans are completed. First step will be removal of the present shipping and loading buildings on the west side of the sprawling plant.

St. Valentine Went to The Lions, But Love Didn't Go to The Dogs

Tomorrow is St. Valentine's Day.

On February 14th, the mail carriers blink their eyes, hitch overflowing bags to their shoulders and wonder why the zany that invented the idea didn't think of it seven weeks sooner so the heavy traffic could tie in with that of Christmas.

Tomorrow the teen-age stags (and not a few a lot older) who have been calf-eyeing the Marylin Munroes of their dreams all winter, bring their feelings to a head in tangible form.

They've been cluttering up the aisles and open spaces of bookshops and other love-symbol dispensaries for the past two weeks looking for "something in the way of a card" by which they can hint, infer, or come out openly with the statement that "you're the gal for me."

Who Started It?

Who started this from Peter-to-Post Office-to-Pamela double play lovestuff?

History has it that the day is named after a Christian martyr by the name of St. Valentine.

Some say it started in the days of the ancient Romans as a fad but when things got a trifle serious and a lot of the local lads and gals got married, some of the disappointed Benedicts promptly tossed Valentine to the lions.

Those ancients who are blamed for Roman noses, candles, husbands, baths and whatnot, plus a lot of skullduggery, did some good and their efforts reached far into the future, even to the present time.

They made slaves of their women, and it was not until fairly recently, that that order was changed.

They were an indolent lot. The only clocks they punched were those of the Britons and Gauls.

The boss of the union was one Nero who fiddled around while the home town was burning. His toga-togged trenchermen indulged in wild orgies and played around with Nero's nymphs after office hours.

The modern T.T.T.'s don't even wait until five o'clock.

They had plenty of time on their hands, gals were plentiful, married and otherwise, so Remus and Romulus developed a sort of Errol Flynn complex until the Valentine idea came along.

Nero, who did a lot of Roman in the gloamin', stopped fiddling around long enough to okay the notion.

So it came about that the Roman Ruby's, Ruth's, Rose's and Rita's scribbled their names on a scroll, parked them in a street-corner letter box and sat back to await results. The toga-togged swain came along, extracted a scroll and the gal whose named adorned it was "his'n" for the remainder of the year. And calendars being unknown those days, the year sometimes ended within a day or so.

This Was It!

The same beardless gladiator thought up a new one. He sat down, drew a picture depicting the state of his cardiac region and sent it to the current light o' love.

Unknown to him, a couple of merchants, probably related to Cassius, because of their "lean and hungry look" figured there was "gold in them thar heels". They called in a couple of legions and started mass production. You know the rest.

But history does not reveal what Roman invented the Valentine monstrosity that was so popular a few years back. These grotesquely-caricatured "insults" with an accompanying verse, perhaps originated with a rival of the fiddle-fumbling emperor. And the verse probably went this way:

> The harsh caterwaulings >   and screeches and such
> That emanate from your old >   bow,
> Can scarce be recorded as >   music, but much
> More resemble the croak of >   the crow.
> So Nero, my hero, why don't >   you get wise,
> And let this soak into >   your head,
> If our minds you would >   save, you bow-scraping
>   knave
> Just simply, and quickly — >   drop dead.

Was Popular

And this idea caught on. For years the butcher, the baker, the candlestick-maker, the plumber, in fact all walks of life were subjected to this form of greeting on St. Valentine's Day. Happily, the fad is almost outmoded.

Instead, greetings of the present day feature the sentimental side. There are cards for sweethearts, "Mom and Dad", husband and wife, not necessarily related, and primary-grade lovers.

Book shops and others have been ablaze for the past three weeks with "hearts and flowers" and other symbols that love is always new, even if frayed sometimes in spots. And pockets that in the main have not wholly emerged from the Christmas and New Year's holiday anaesthesia, have suffered a mild relapse.

But there is one consolation, there is still approximately 246 shopping days till Christmas. —G.H.C.

Appeals Sentence

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Grant Farnol, 31, convicted of attempted murder and sentenced two weeks ago to life imprisonment, has filed an appeal against the conviction and sentence, his lawyer, Ross S. Riddell, said Thursday.

Farnol was sentenced for attempting to murder Edgar Frendo a 36-year-old Detroit automotive engineer. Frendo suffered bullet wounds in the face, neck and arm following a shooting on a lonely road about 18 miles south of here.

A DIFFERENT APPROACH

A different approach, but a completely logical one to our mind, has been advanced in respect to the question of new school accommodation, by Dr. J. J. Talman, librarian of the University of Western Ontario.

It smacks a bit of heresy, perhaps, but Dr. Talman, speaking to the Middlesex Trustees and Ratepayers Association, has seriously challenged the value of compulsory education in 'teen age groups. In other words, he wonders whether our problem is not so much an imperative need for more classrooms as it is need for questioning the good sense of keeping so many in school.

Some thirty years ago, under the Adolescent School Attendance Act, provision was made for the compulsory school attendance of pupils up to 16, with attendance up to 18 under certain conditions. Prior to that time the compulsory age limit had been 14, with the additional provision that compulsion ceased when the child passed the entrance examination. Secondary school attendance was optional.

Dr. Talman holds the view that every boy and girl should have educational opportunities as long as he or she is eager and able to make use of them. At the same time he questions whether the opportunity should go beyond that.

In the last decade at least the evidence is that the secondary schools of this province, especially in academic classes, are overflowing with pupils. Many of them are continuing at school because they are compelled to attend until a specified age limit; many are just putting in time in congenial associations, and wasting energies. Habits of indolence and indifference have killed youthful instincts of initiative in many cases.

It is Dr Talman's thought that the time has arrived when the real worth of the present academic system should be examined in the light of the problem that is confronted by property owners in being obliged to provide classrooms and teachers without regard for the results the system is producing.

Many parents will, we believe, recognize that Dr. Talman has something. It is well and good that youngsters be required to obtain a minimum standard of education. It is wholly desirable that there be full opportunity for furthering studies whenever a student has some goal in mind. It is something less than common sense to continue on the assumption that the great majority of those leaving public school are destined to put in four or five years in secondary school come what may.

A MISUNDERSTOOD MAN

—And now, even Finance Minister Abbott has aligned himself with those Canadians — a great company of citizens, to be sure—who have been wondering just how many Abbott budgets they could stand. Or, is it that the Finance Minister is a somewhat misunderstood man?

All this time he has been marked down as a tax-gouging tyrant; a sadistic, surplus-hungry extortionist. Yet who knows but that he has been enduring in silence a "this-hurts-me-more" martyrdom in Spartan performance of stern and demanding duty in the woodshed, until at last he had begun to hate himself for it?

It could be that we have not understood.

At any rate, the word now is that when Mr. Abbott brings down another budget in the House of Commons next Thursday it will be his last. He has not come right out and said so in so many words, but he has let it be known that he is fed up with the unkind and unsympathetic role in which he has been cast these past six years.

Perhaps, after all, Mr Abbott has been the unjustly-judged and unappreciated servant of the people who is really a kindly and considerate man at heart. Yet it still seems to us that there have been times when his sense of responsibility for our welfare has carried him above and beyond the call of duty—in surplus measure, in fact.

However, it is only fair to reserve a final judgment until Thursday next.

HAVE ALREADY PAID

It has been intimated that Ottawa has no intention of asking Canadians at this time, at least, to pay a special licence for owning television receiving sets. At one time a $15 fee had been mooted.

It hasn't been stressed by the revenue officials in Ottawa but it appears that Canadian TV owners are already contributing generously, if not altogether willingly, to the federal treasury.

In 1952 Canadians paid out $84,000,000 for television sets. Manufacturers report that out of that amount the government took $16,000,000 as its share in the form of sales and excise taxes. At this rate of tax levy, the CBC can afford to go a considerable way in providing programs for Canadians before calling upon set owners for an extra fee.

Great opportunities come to all, but many do not know they have met them. The only preparation to take advantage of them is simple fidelity to what each duty brings.—A. E. Dunning.

JUST FOLKS

FOURTEEN

When I was in my teens I thought
The last great battle had been fought;
That men had mastered every feat
And left this old world made complete,
With all inventions fashioned, too,
And nothing left for me to do.
No thought unwritten I could pen—
But I was only fourteen then.

It seemed to be my dismal fate
To have arrived on earth too late.
Had not my birth been so delayed,
A better trap I might have made;
Or in the snows at Valley Forge
Shared freedom's cause with General George.
In history lived all famous men—
But I was only fourteen then.

I wonder if he thinks as I:
No goal ahead for him to try?
Or does he know, as soon he will,
Life has a post for him to fill,
A dream to cherish and pursue,
A task designed for him to do;
Fame waits for him along the way?
But he is just fourteen today.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

WHAT IS FAILURE?

There is often something magnificent, as exampled in what men designate as failure in a human being. Many years ago I had given to me the diary of Henri-Frederic Amiel. He looked upon himself as a failure, admitting it freely, yet before him constantly were the ideals and dreams which he refused to translate into action. His one literary gift to the world in this diary, which has given to him—fame!

Another character, about which I have been reading of late, is that of Paul Gauguin, the painter. They called him "the savage". Yet he gave up a prosperous business, a wife and five children, as well as friends, just to paint—a thing that possessed him, and so through the bitterest of poverty and disappointments, he painted. But few bought anything that he did. Only in death was his work adequately appreciated. The price of one painting, of today would have kept him alive and happily at work for the rest of his life!

What is this urge that keeps prodding the heart of a person to do the thing that lies deepest in the consciousness—that which alone satisfies, regardless of hunger, adverse criticism, or privation? Why are these crucifixions of the soul?

R. B. Cunninghame Graham once wrote this tribute to the failure: "For those," said he, "who have sunk still battling beneath the muddy waves of life, we keep our love, and that curiosity about their lives which makes their memories green when the cheap gold is dusted over, which once we gave success."

We are never a failure until we have failed ourselves! We are a success if we have listened to and answered the call of that voice within us that has told us to be the one we most want to be, and whereby we can best serve ourselves, God, and human kind. Nothing is so sordid as a success for mere gain, whether it be money, acclaim, or position. Self-betrayal alone is failure!

Tougher For The Zilches

(Vancouver Sun)

What's in a name? One answer comes from the Municipal League of Seattle. It quizzed election officials throughout the United States and found an emphatic opinion that candidates at the top of a long alphabetical ballot have an edge over their opponents.

The survey supports the rotation system already in effect in such states as Washington and Oregon. This system provides that each candidate shall head a certain number of ballots.

After that number has been printed, the list is changed to give priority to the candidate whose name is next in alphabetical order. And so on until the roster has been completed.

Islanders Talk by Whistling

(National Geographic Bulletin)

Across the steep volcanic mountainside of Gomera in the Canary Islands, men talk by whistling. Their strange language matches the prowess of the singing birds of the Canaries.

For centuries the people of Gomera have used one of the world's most unusual languages. Theirs is no ordinary whistling, but rather a clear, rippling sound much like the song of a nightingale. Using it, the islanders can communicate over distances of several miles.

Anthropologists studying the whistle language, have called it unique among man's ways of communication. They noted varying tones, rhythms and inflections, sometimes soft and melodious, sometimes sad, sometimes shrill and imperious. Yet no one knows how or when this human birdtalk began.

In the fifteenth century chronicle is found this explanation: "The country (Gomera Island) is inhabited by people who speak with their lips as if they were without tongues and it is said that a great prince for no fault of theirs had them put into exile and had their tongues cut out."

More probably the language arose because of the Canaries' crumpled topography. On Gomera, deep canyons or "barrancos" furrow the island from mountains to the sea. Across these steep-sided gorges, the earliest people must have found it easier to communicate by whistling than by shouting and a whistled code gradually evolved into a full and varied language.

The whistlers do have tongues, which they combine with lips and fingers to produce the sounds. Each has his own individual style. The whistled words and sentences traverse the precipitous valleys above the constant sighing of the trade winds. Near the shore, whistled conversation can override the roar of the surf smashing against lava cliffs.

It is a handy way of talking. Until recently Gomera herdsmen paid taxes only when they wished. Warning of a tax collector's arrival was whistled from one end of the island to the other. The unlucky official then found himself refused board and lodgings on dubious pretexts and often he returned empty-handed to the boat which brought him out.

Men talking like birds would seem to match the real song bird which originated on the Canary Islands. Strangely enough, the Canaries were not named for the birds, but the birds took the island's name, which can be traced to an extinct species of huge dogs found there by early explorers.

The Latin word for dog was "canis" and there is ample evidence that the Romans used it to designate the Atlantic isles. They were known also as the "Insulae Fortunatae," for early geographers considered them to be the "Isles of the Blest" of Greek mythology. Some thought them to be the last vestiges of the lost continent of Atlantis.

When the Spaniards conquered the islands from the aboriginal Guanche people of the fifteenth century, they heard the natives talking by whistling. Columbus landed at San Sebastian on Gomera on his way to the New World, and may have heard the people whistling.

Since then, the Guanche whistling language has been transformed into Castilian, the spoken language of the Spanish conquerors. Today Spanish inflections can be recognized in the whistled notes. The Guanches as a separate race have long since disappeared, but one of their most curious customs lives on.

More Memoirs Of Churchill

(London Observer)

While crossing the Atlantic, the Prime Minister has been working on his war memoirs. In New York, Mr. Churchill found that his various American publishers are all eager to discover when this last volume (already in proof, can be published.

Naturally, they want that to happen as soon as possible, while Mr. Churchill is Prime Minister. For the Prime Minister, the question of timing is less simple. His last volume is concerned with Operation Overlord — the Allied Invasion of Europe—and he is accordingly bound to discuss the conflicts of strategy between himself and the Americans.

It used to be clearly understood that Mr. Churchill would not publish volume six while in office. The election of Eisenhower to the United States presidency accentuates the problem.

Even so, Mr. Churchill seems to be going ahead. I am told that direct references to Eisenhower are not particularly startling; but it is also said that the book contains explosive material about the Anglo-American clash over Churchill's plan, after Yalta, to drive on into Berlin and Prague.

That clash involved Eisenhower, who opposed Churchill's plan. The Prime Minister faces a delicate decision.

Service Secrets

(London News Chronicle)

The Services must have their secrets. Life in uniform would, in truth, be wretched without them. Spies are everywhere, or so we are being conditioned to believe. But surely it was carrying security a shade too far when at a London depot the War Minister, the General Officer Commanding-in-Chief Eastern Command, and the Command's Senior Information Officer should all have been [illegible] scratching their heads over a [illegible] pon so hush-hush that no one knew what it was for.

The contraption in question was there for all to see. It is described as an elaborate four-ton vehicle marked "Army Mobile Information Unit," and it is equipped with four loud-speakers. The fact that it was in for repair suggests it had been subjected to strenuous exercise.

No one, of course, dared to let the cat out of the bag. But everybody is permitted to guess. Our own guess is that the van is a mechanized sergeant-major capable of saying "Hupp! to the entire British Army.

Question of Pull

(Fort William Times-Journal)

The green book issued by the Department of Finance reveals that the average lawyer pays more income taxes than the average dentist. That leads to the question, "What does the lawyer extract that the dentist doesn't."

Borrowing Bank's Ledger

(Financial Post)

When we first entered the publising business, printers considered it great fun to send new apprentices on utterly hopeless missions. They'd be told to go to another print shop and borrow a can of tartan ink, and so forth. When a rookie mechanic started to work in a garage or factory he usually spent his first day looking for "left-handed screwdrivers," or trying to borrow "sky hooks."

Such japes pale into insignificance in comparison with what happened recently in two bank branches in Toronto.

Now the most sacred of the most sacred of all bank possessions is its general ledger. That is something to be guarded with one's life.

On the first day of employment with branch bank A, a new junior clerk was told to go over to the branch of rival bank B and borrow its general ledger. That was equivalent to asking Finance Minister Abbott for a copy of the budget a week before he brought it down to the House.

The youth went to the other bank and asked for the loan of its general ledger. And, by golly, the young clerk to whom he spoke went and got the sacred book and handed it to him. For, by odd coincidence, it was his first day at that bank!

It would have made a lovely story had we been able to say that the junior from bank A returned bearing the ledger under his arm. But our informant says that an older employee at bank B grabbed it before it was too late.

Unbecoming A Banker

(Windsor Star)

Banks, even the staid British variety, are not so prim as once they were. If ever it was true that examiners moved in after a teller appeared in a clean shirt two days in a row, that time is long since past. But they still frown on garnish practice by staff or officials. Sir Bernard Docker, British industrialist, never seemed to catch the idea. Appointed director of one of Britain's conservative banks, he proceeded to attract public attention in a way that first shocked his associates, then prompted them to cut him loose.

It was bad enough when Sir Bernard bought his wife a gold-plated Daimler. What the depositors thought or what the management thought the depositors thought, can be imagined. But for a while nothing happened. Then Sir Bernard did it again.

He and his wife had what was described as an "unfortunate misunderstanding" with operators of a gaming casino in Monte Carlo. Now on directions from the top, the shareholders will be asked to depose the flamboyant knight.

The expanation: He has been attracting "too much publicity." Too much, that is, of the wrong kind of publicity. The old banking virtue of thrift rides uncomfortably in a gold-plated Daimler.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

SMOKING AND ANOXIA

From all I can learn about it, I believe that the ill effects of smoking are due to carbon monoxide in tobacco smoke and not to nicotine. Medical authorities of past and present may cling to the old nicotine theory, but they offer no precise scientific evidence to support it. No one has reported chemical determination of any significant quantity of nicotine in tobacco smoke. Incidentally, most medical authors confuse the effects of smoking with the effects of nicotine, or assume that they are identical. It is a commentary on "medical science" that medical authorities pad their textbooks with fanciful descriptions of the action of "nicotine" absorbed from tobacco smoke which is none or only an insignificant trace. The 0.9 per cent to 6.17 per cent of nicotine present in various kinds of tobacco is destroyed by combustion. And if nicotine were so poisonous as medical authorities insist it is—lethal dose for and adult is 8 grains and "death has been reporter from 65 mg. (1 grain)," according to Bastedo's Materia Medica, Phamacology and Therapeutics—a fellow who takes a sizable chew should turn up his toes in minutes. He doesn't, though. In fact he usually lives long enough to take several more overdoses of nicotine in the same way.

Precise chemical analyses of tobacco smoke show that each puff of cigaret, cigar or pipe smoke contains approximately 2 per cent cabon monoxide. That is, 2 parts of C-O in a hundred. Breathing air containing that much carbon monoxide will produce unpleasant or serious symptoms—tightness across forehead, possibly some headache, flushing of skin, throbbing in temples, dizziness, weakness, dimness of vision, nausea, collapse—reminiscent of the effects of that first smoke?

Of course the effects of the carbon monoxide in tobacco smoke are generally not so pronounced—each puff is greatly diluted by the air the smoker breathes between puffs. But the C-O is there and the symptoms ascribed to excessive smoking or smoking too fast are the symptoms of anoxia.

Childish Question: How long does it take to get the nicotine (or perhaps the alcohol) out of one's system?

Answer: From two hours to 10 or 15 hours.

How long it will take to repair the damage done by carbon monoxide or by alcohol, if the damage not irreparable, is the important question. Less than lethal doses of carbon monoxide several times a day or less than fatal doses of alcohol daily or at intervals may damage vital cells, tissues or organs so much that repair is impossible. The human machine is wonderfully efficient when properly used, but after all you can't expect it to continue functioning well if you abuse it.

Great diminution in the supply of oxygen to certain vital brain centres or cells, or cessation of the supply for a few seconds, may cripple the cells or centres permanently, or let them die. This is what happens in any case of carbon monoxide anoxia. It is the reason why I say growing children should not smoke. Few children attain full growth before the age of 22 to 25 years.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The United States Treasury has been publishing, over the past couple of years, a series of advertisements to promote the sale of national savings bonds. The feature of each of these ads has been the photographs of heroes of the American armed services who have been decorated with the Congressional Medal of Honor and other of the highest awards of bravery. Nearly all of these young men have been heroes of the Korean campaign, and many of them died in the performance of their heroic acts.

One characteristic of these photographs is most arresting. Few if any of the men portrayed looked even remotely like the conventional and accepted notion of what heroes look like. In our literature for centuries, and in our art, motion pictures and the stage in more recent generations, heroes have almost invariably been fine, handsome, bold young men, with challenging gaze and aggressive mouth and chin. One glance at a movie scene containing many men, and you could tell who the hero was, without hesitation.

But this gallery of true-to-life heroes, as presented by the U.S. treasury advertisements, confirms the impression arrived at by most us who have soldiered. Heroes seldom if ever are the assertive and so-called manly type. One by one, as the months went by, the treasury ads presented obviously shy, reserved young men; men with modest gaze and gentle expression; men with features delicate rather than bold. Several of them belonged to the Marines, than which a tougher and more demanding armed unit hardly exists. Yet the Marines presented in the gallery of heroes could not have been farther from the motion picture industry's conception of Marines. If anything could describe all these heroes in one word, it would be an old-fashioned and almost forgotten word: gentlemen.

Heroism is not an outward but an inward thing. It is not of the body, but of the mind and spirit.

Strength for the Day

TRUST AND EFFORT TOGETHER

An old adventure story tells of a man lost in a barren area. Suffering from thirst, he prayed for rain and crept into a small cave to sleep. During the night it rained, but although the unfortunate wanderer had several pans and dishes in his pack, he had forgotten to put them out; and so he lost the very blessing he sought.

Some people go through life in the same foolish way. They desire something, they hope earnestly for it, they even pray sincerely for it — but they never do anything about it. They want the water to drink, but they lack both the energy, and the faith to put out vessels to catch it when it rains.

Such are most of those people who scorn the power of prayer. They point out scoffingly that their own prayers have never been answered, when in reality they do not know whether the prayers would have been answered or not — they had not the faith to take the necessary action to make an answer possible.

Praying is like writing a cheque on God. Merely to write it is not enough. You must walk down to the bank with it, endorse it, and hand it in to the teller, confident that you will receive the money.

If the cheque was drawn for the right purpose, you will.

Dignified Solid Gentlemen Big Buyers Of Sweet, Sentimental Valentine Cards

The season of hearts and flowers, cupids and comics, sentimentality and expressions of adoration is upon us and to all intents and purposes it appears to be one of tremendous volume as far as Valentine greeting cards are concerned. Retailers, locally, are describing greater demands than in previous years for the cards.

And guess who is buying the majority of Valentines? It isn't the baby, it isn't the young son or daughter and surprisingly enough, it isn't the teenager. Merchants say, the dignified, solid gentleman is buying up the sentimental cards. Rating next on the list of top buyers is the teenager. From the time school closes at four in the afternoon until almost supper time, the stores overflow with these young adults.

The demand on all fronts is for the sentimental card. Men and women, boys and girls, all want to send expressions of everlasting love to someone special. Directly behind these comes the comic Valentine, not a great deal changed from the card of many years ago.

Vinegar Valentine

In the 1890's, what was once called the "Vinegar Valentine", made its appearance. The card was decorated with a cartoon of the physical qualities, of the person, who was to receive it, greatly exaggerated and below, a few unkind words inscribed in verse form. The following is taken from such a Valentine in the year 1890:

"All day, outrageous woman, you go from shop to shop,
And pester all the clerks, until from sheer fatigue they drop.
Your purchases are trifling, for your purse is very lean,
But your airs would be sufficient, for an empress or a queen.
A tiny spark of decency such conduct would prevent,
But decency's a thing for which you plainly have no bent."

Strangely enough, through the years, this type of card has survived. This week in a local store, reasonable facsimilies of the 1890 version were offered for sale. Consider the verse printed on the modern version:

Housewife:

"Your hubby eats at work all year,
So he aint bad looking,
But you look like a nightmare dear,
Cause you eat your own cooking."

Aside from all the sentimentality and vindictive greetings, are those which are likely to send the recipient off into gales of laughter. These are the comic Valentine of which there are quite a number on the market. The latest offering is the "squeeze me" card, constructed of strong pasteboard and in such a manner that the portrayed caricature makes some motion when the request to "squeeze" is complied with. For instance: the little dog and Pluto come to life, the hula dancer, wiggles, and the owl blinks.

Priced up to $2.50

Valentines, this year, range in price from five cents to $2.50. These latter, extravagantly decorated with all the frills, dedicated to either wife or sweetheart, are equipped with detachable handkerchiefs or a permanent, gold colored ornament to be pinned on the blouse or dress. Last season, the highest priced card sold for $5.00. There are none of these for sale this year.

Manufactured for the first time in 1840, Valentines were intended originally to be interchanged between sweethearts. Today, Valentines may be sent, suitably inscribed, from baby to godparents, including, uncles, aunts, 'in-laws, cousins, grandparents, etc.

Of course, there have been other methods of honoring the "all-important one" on Valentine Day. The offering of gifts is a common practice in this day and age. It is customary for the gentleman to present his lady love with a heart-shaped box of chocolates and some girls even receive engagements rings on Valentine's Day.

Another available commodity on Valentine Day will be heart-shaped pies, cakes and cookies.

Whatever way the public chooses to go about celebrating the day, whether they be young, old, middle age or teenage, it all boils down to the interchange of three little words, spoken many times, and which allegedly make the world go round.

British Freighter Rides Undamaged To Hong Kong

HONG KONG (Reuters) — The 3,539-ton British freighter Incharran today steamed undamaged toward Hong Kong after being chased and attacked in the Formosa strait by a tank-landing ship, believed here to have been a Chinese Nationalist vessel.

British naval authorities said the Incharran flashed a distress signal early today. Twenty-one minutes later she signalled that she had successfully evaded her attacker.

The Incharran was coming from a north China port.

Her position when fired on was 75 miles south of Wenchow, at the head of Wenchow bay about 175 miles south of Shanghai and 130 miles north of Taipeh, Formosa.

PLANE IN TROUBLE

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—Transport Minister Chevrier's DC3 aircraft carrying him and Frank Collins, transport department secretary, to Ottawa, developed engine trouble 30 minutes after taking off Wednesday night and was forced to return here. The minister, who had been a speaker at the 67th annual meeting of the Port Arthur chamber of commerce left for Ottawa by train early Thursday.

IT'S WORTHWHILE

It's worthwhile taking an interest in forest fire protection because fire losses cost everyone money. Last year Ontario's fire losses were the lowest in 30 years.

START NOW to train yourself and your family to prevent forest fires. 80% of them are caused by human carelessness. Understanding the danger and learning to combat it is a worthwhile job for every Canadian.

Friday 13th Has No Terrors For Newsman Born That Date

Superstitious folk who die 10,000 deaths whenever Friday the Thirteenth rolls around, are due for 30,000 demises in 1953.

Don't look now but today is one of the "unholy trio" that sends cold chills up and down the spines of those who believe in the black cat, salt-spilling, mirror-breaking capers and the twice seven years bad luck if they occur on such a date as that of today.

"But don't use up all your bad luck today. You have two more opportunities to do so, March 13th and November 13th. Both these dates fall on the day when fish is the popular food.

If you don't believe Friday 13th is a jinx, you're alright. If you do, stop worrying. It's a lot of hooey, balderdash and hogwash.

In A Rut

Here's an instance. The writer of this piece celebrates his birthday today. There are thirteen letters in his first name, second initial and Surname. He joined the army in World War One on August 13th, 1914. Went to France February 13th., 1915. Was wounded November 13th., 1916. Came back to Canada November 13th., 1917. Got a job as proof-reader at $13 bucks for the first thirteeen weeks.

He has been in the newspaper business 26 years which is twice thirteen, or double bad luck. There were exactly thirteen hairs on his pate by actual count at 1300 hours today. If the record keeps up there'll be none on Friday, March 13th.

He belongs, or did, to a "Thirteen Club," an organization composed of thirteen people whose birthdays occurred on Friday, 13th. Annually the 'Thirteens' gather, tossing alleged superstitions to the four winds. They break mirrors, toss salt-shakers all over the place, open umbrellas, fool around with black cats, throw their hats on the bed, and disdain to pick up purposely-placed pins.

They form a conga line and "truck on down" under several small ladders, and do practically everything supposed to invite bad luck.

Yep, he is married. You can put that on either side of the luck ledger, but if the little woman reads this, he is only kidding.

He has bought probably 13,000 tickets on automobiles, washers, outboard motors, bonds, $1,000 bills, tractors, peanut roasters, electric appliances, motor boats, trips to Florida, "dream houses," trailers, ducks, chickens, turkeys, fishing poles, hope-chests, watches, canned goods, and a lot of other articles used in the painless extraction racket.

What did he win? He once gave away a ticket on a yearling bull calf, and the only ticket he ever bocght that won.

But still his 'luck' held good. The next day the winner of the calf was bunted by the beastie, fell and broke a leg.

For all this the writer figures there is nothing to this "Friday the Thirteenth" or any other "thirteen" as far as bad luck goes.

In these days, what with taxes, war threats, high cost of living, worry, etc., he thinks he's just plain lucky to be alive.

Russians May Not Veto Pearson As UN Secretary

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Informed sources said Thursday that Russian officials have dropped informal hints recently that their United Nations delegation would not veto nomination of L. B. Pearson of Canada as UN secretary-general.

The hints are interpreted here as a possible indication the Russians are determined to get rid of Secretary-General Trygve Lie and will accept Canada's external affairs minister if his name is put forward by the Western powers.

However, it is recalled the Russians turned down Pearson when he was nominated for the post when the UN was formed.

Pearson, president of the general assembly which resumes its seventh session here Feb. 24, has said he will make no comment on the question of choosing a successor to Lie.

But it is considered highly unlikely that Pearson would refuse the top post in the world organization if it is offered by the big five powers—including Russia.

In effect it is the big five who choose the secretary-general, for any one of them—Britain, U.S., France, Nationalist China or Russia—could veto any nominee in the security council where the question is first handled.

The security councilafter making a decision passes it to the general assembly for ratification.

You can't go 'ALL-OUT' If you feel 'ALL-IN'

These days most people work under pressure, worry more, sleep less. This strain on body and brain makes physical fitness easier to lose—harder to regain. Today's tense living, lowered resistance, overwork, worry—any of these may affect normal kidney action. When kidneys get out of order, excess acids and wastes remain in the system. Then backache, disturbed rest, that "tired-out" heavy-headed feeling often follow. That's the time to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's stimulate the kidneys to normal action. Then you feel better—sleep better—work better. Ask for Dodd's Kidney Pills at any drug counter. 53

NEW clothes designed for resort and cruise wear are forecasts of what to expect for spring and summer. Prints appear in almost every collection, usually delicate rather than splashy in both design and color. Then, too, almost every dress has its own little coat, bolero or stole. Hannah Troy uses linen and silk for a charming ensemble. The cropped linen bolero is in olive green and is lined with the soft print done in the colors of the dress. A bow-caught scooped neckline, and a skirt that is a myriad of soft pleats are details of the frock.

Discourtesy of Women Is Heating up Cold War

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Men have always been used by women as stepping stones to security.

One of the things heating up the cold war between the sexes in America is the public discourtesy of women. More and more men are unwillingly becoming convinced that more and more women are downright impolite and badmannered.

The girls themselves look at it the other way. They claim male chivalry and gallantry are wilting like a tulip in a hurricane. Who's to blame? Naturally I am on the woman's side in this and any other argument (it's safer that way), but men do seem to have a point.

Toss Him a Bone

"If a dog carries a market basket home for a woman in his teeth, she will toss him a bone or give him a pat on the head," said one male critic. "But a man has no such inducement. A woman has no gratitude for any small favors he does for her. She takes them for granted.

"A man doesn't like to be taken for granted. I'll give you an example.

"The other day at lunch I saw a fur wrap drop to the floor from the back of a woman's chair. I went over, brushed it off, and handed it back to her. She took it, hung it again on the chair, and turned away without a word, a nod, or a smile.

"I guess she figured I had been put on earth years before just so I could grow up and run over and pick up the jacket for her at the exact moment. I had a wild urge to throw the jacket back on the floor and jump on it."

He said he didn't do this because he wasn't sure whether the other men in the restaurant would beat him up or break into admiring applause for his courage.

"You simply can't get women to wait their turn in line," one man said, "ordinary courtesy seems beyond their understanding Whatever they want is more important than what you want — and it has to be done right now. If men acted in public as women do, you'd have chaos — fist fights everywhere.

Passing Phase

There is some truth in this, of course overdrawn as it may be. I feel, however, that it is only a passing phase reflecting women's present insecurity. They aren't accustomed yet to having equal rights, and are unsure of their own power.

All they need is a little time—say a couple of centuries. By then they will realize they have the strength to push their own way without help through a revolving door. They will lose their fear that men are trying to get ahead of them.

Once they relax and regain self confidence in themselves women again will return the words "thank you" to their vocabulary.

"But I can't wait that long," objected one cynic to whom I explained my theory. "Why not just put women back on their old pedestal — at gunpoint if necessary—and then tip-toe away and leave them there?"

Foxboro United Ch. Holds 'Youth Mission'

A most successful children's mission was held last week at the Foxboro United Church under the direction of Mrs. H. W. Giffin. For the five nights an average of seventy-six attended from the village and surrounding areas representing each of the eight school grades. The mission was interdenominational.

An evening comprised of registration, various handicrafts, chorus singing, Scripture verse contest, object lessons in color and flannelgraph and the lesson. In the Scripture verse contest, girls versus boys, the boys proved to be the champions.

The co-operation and animation of the students throughout the mission was marked and much of the credit goes to those adults who supervised so capably. Mr. Clifford Wilson, Sunday School superintendent, and Mr. Stillman Gay, senior elder of the church, spoke briefly on "Personal Life With Christ."

The climax of the mission was reached when the student body attended as a group. A one-act play was presented entitled, "The Word of God," directed by Mrs. Giffin. The players were: Mrs. William Hodgen, Miss Getha Gorsline, Miss Lenore La Rue, Mr. Charles Demil, Master Billy Seymour and Kathy Huble.

Children's music was in charge of Miss Joan McCurdy.

The message of the evening service was primarily for youth entitled "Doers of the Word."

Fashion Flashes

A KNOCKOUT for resort wear and spring wear later, is a dress of dusty pink, heavy Italian silk, with a boxy jacket to match. The rounded neckline dress is fastened with brilliant buttons. The jacket collar is of pastel mink, no less.

A SURVEY of cruise and resort shops discloses many items good for either home or travel. Among such is a brace of separates fashioned of creamy white wool jersey. The top has a high, rounded, collarless neckline and push-up sleeves. Both top and easy skirt are striped and molded tthrough the middle by short and long rays of white satin braid.

A SPRING FEELING is easily induced by a pretty little flowered hat. Charming is a tiny winged cap made entirely of velvet pansies in their natural purple hues. A cluster of pansies is placed low at one side for an asymmetric effect, and there is a cloud of pinkish veiling.

Various interesting readings were given by the different members.

A duet "Under His Wings", was sung by Mrs. Johnston and Miss Bell. A Bible contest was also much enjoyed with Mrs. Allyn Finkle being the winner.

The March meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Earl Ketcheson, a sale of various articles will be held in aid of the flower fund, which does such a fine job of remembering the sick and shut-ins.

Mrs. Finkle gave a reading, "The Little Black Boy".

The offering amounted to $3.25.

The following lines brought the meeting to a close:

"If any little love of ours, could make one life the sweeter;
If any little care of ours, can make one step the surer;
If any little help can ease the burden of another,
God give us love and care and grace, to help along each other."

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

You'll be happier if you wait for marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For almost three years I have been going steady with a boy I have known for many more years than that. I am 16 and he is 18.

He enlisted in the navy, and now that he has gone away I feel lost. We hoped to be married on his next leave, but we want to be sure of our future first. I know we love each other enough to be happy together.

What really is bothering me is, if we asked our parents if we can be married and they refuse permission, should we take the matter into our own hands? We have been making plans for months now, and I only wish they could all come out right.—P. A. S.

Dear P.A.S.:

If you and this boy have known each other so long, and are so sure that you want to be married, then it seems, to me you should be able to wait in full confidence until you are old enough for marriage to be a natural and wise stop. It is a very poor idea for girls and boys in their teens to take on the heavy responsibilities of marriage, and since you are wise enough to say you want to be sure of your future, then you should also be wise enough to realize the advisability of waiting until the future becomes clearer as you grow older.

Of course you are lonesome for this boy, who has probably been your constant companion. But you won't be any less lonesome if you rush into marriage and he has to leave you immediately after it. In fact, you may find it even harder to be a lonely young wife who would doubtless feel that she must forego all normal social life with other young people while her husband is away.

If you really love each other as you believe you do, you will go on making your plans and looking forward to a happy future together, but, in the meantime, be content with things as they are. You are far more likely to be happy in the end.

To be Possessive soon ruins a friendship

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm in high school, and go with a boy who is in my class. We like each other, but there is another girl in our class who also likes him and who is continually trying to get his attention, and he seems to like this. I spoke to him about it and he said, "Of course I like her, she's nice, but you're different."

I don't mind his paying attention ot other girls, because who can go to high school and not speak and joke with their friends? But this hurts.

Shall I ignore him or her?—G. G.

Dear G.G.:

To ignore either your boy friend or your girl friend would make you look like a child with the sulks, and I'm sure you don't want that. And you're not going to make this boy like you any better by showing him that you object to his responding to the interest shown in him by another girl. You say you don't mind his paying attention to other girls, but you make it quite obvious that you mind very much indeed, and you're probably making it just as obvious to him as you make it in your letter to me.

There's nothing that can ruin a friendship between a boy and a girl quicker than for either one to make it plain that he or she considers the other their special property. Most people, whether young or old, don't like others to be too possessive about them. When this happens, it usually makes them very eager to get away.

Play it smart and mature by making no objections to anything your boy friend does, and have your own good times with other boys, and I think your difficulty will straighten out, if not by getting this boy's exclusive attention, then by finding that you can get along without it.

TRUCK KILLS BOY

COBOURG, Ont. (CP)—Allan Westbrook, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Westbrook, was killed Wednesday by a truck. The boy had been given a ride home from school in a trailer attached to a car and came out from behind the trailer into the path of the truck.

QUESTION:

. . .I discovered I have mislaid your recipes for Chocolate Marshmallow squares and cherry dream squares.—Mrs. T. A.

ANSWER:

CHOCOLATE MARSHMALLOW SQUARES

In top of double boiler over boiling water melt two squares (2 oz.) unsweetened chocolate and 1-3 cup shortening or butter; remove from heat and beat in 1 cup sugar, then 2 eggs; Sift together and stir into them 3-4 cup sifted flour, 1-2 teaspoon each salt and baking powder. Add 1-2 cup broken walnuts. Spread this in well-buttered square 8-inch pan. Bake until top has dull crust at 350 deg. Fahr.—about 30 minutes. Remove from oven. Cover with sliced marshmallows. This covering should not be more than 1-4inch thick. The marshmallows melt and spread a little. When cool spread with Chocolate Icing: Melt over hot water 1 tablespoon butter with 1 square unsweetened chocolate. Blend in 1 1-2 tablespoons warm water. Cool a little then stir and beat in 1 cup sifted icing sugar or enough to allow icing to spread easily. Chill, then cut into diamonds or squares with sharp knife.

CHERRY DREAM SQUARES

One-half cup shortening or butter, 1 cup sugar, 2 well-beaten eggs, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 1-2 cups sifted cake flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 egg white, 1 cup brown sugar firmly packed, 1-3 cup each chopped nuts and candied cherries. Work and cream the shortening or butter until light then add the white sugar slowly while creaming. Add eggs, vanilla, then flour, salt, and baking powder sifted together. Mix well and spread on buttered pan about 13x9-2 inches. Beat the eggs white until stiff then gradually add the brown sugar while beating until very stiff. Fold in nuts or cherries. (Cocoanut may be substituted for the nuts or cherries may be omitted and all nuts used.) Spread this over the mixture in pan and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 25 minutes. Remove from oven and cut into squares while warm.

LETTER:

I was very pleased to see your article on Beefsteak Pudding! and this is the weather for 'em, but here's my comment—"Where or where did the spuds and onions come into the picture? Down Devon and Somerset way where I come from nothing goes into the "puddin'" but salt and pepper and parsley. Here's the way we make it: Good steak and about 1-3 or more kidney—as desired. Cut up meat and roll each piece in mixture of flour, pepper and salt (I do this in a paper bag). Shake well so that all pieces are coated. Then into the suet-crust-lined basin and a generous sprinkling of parsley. Fill almost full with water and put top crust on. Steam or boil 6 to 8 hours. Incidentally the crust shodld not break when turned out onto the platter. My Mother was always displeased if it "busted" open. When cut there is a nice little river of rich brown gravy flowing around—but no onions or spuds please. . . having the onions or spuds in the recipe reminds me of Cornish Pasties which contain meat (steak cut up) and onion and potato (all raw) and put into pastry cases and baked in the oven. I enjoy your column every day and wish we had a whole page of your "homey" chats in plain language that we all understand—as we do every day.—Mrs. G. C.

ANSWER:

Hmmm. What do I do now? Up Buckinghamshire way where my father came from they add potatoes and onions and personally as a consequence I'm a potato and onion meat pudding woman. But I well know that river of rich brown gravy you talk about. Makes me want to chuck this typewriter right now and go to the kitchen and make some. Thanks Mrs. G. C.

LETTER:

Two weeks ago I was at a friend's house. . . talking about when I was young cooking beefsteak puddings. . . told her how I made them and wished I had some right then. But as I am 83 years old and on a diet I would have to do without. Well, on Tuesday morning January 13—two days after—I saw your piece in the paper. I was so pleased I had to write to you. To think after 60 years I could remember how to make the pudding! I told her just like your recipe, so I can tell Canadians it is sure worth making. They can make treacle or syrup puddings just like the meat puddings but to have a deep dish to turn the puddings out as when it is turned out and you break into it there is lots of syrup. I hope I have made this plain as I am not very good at writing as I am nearly 84.—A Native of Birmingham.

ANSWER:

Thanks so much, Native of Birmingham, for confirming my enthusiasm for Meat Puddings. I am so glad you were pleased. Your letter was delightful and thoughtful—and what's more I could read every word. I hope I can do half as well when I'm your age. Blessings on you.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Her runaway marriage annulled at 15. . .she shouldn't wear white wedding dress at her marriage now

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When I was fourteen years old I ran away from home and married a boy whom I had known a very short time, having met him at a dance. In three weeks I returned home, very sorry for what I had done, and my parents had the marriage annulled at once Now I am twenty-three, and am planning to marry a wonderful man whom I love dearly and of whom my family heartily approves. But I have a problem, and I need your help about the etiquette. I have told my fiance about my first marriage, but his family doesn't know about it, nor do any of his or my relatives or friends. Now, as we are planning our wedding, my fiance is most anxious that I wear a white wedding dress and white bridal veil, and last evening his mother mentioned this wish, too. Of course I would like to, very much indeed. But under the circumstances I've explained to you, would this be proper?—W. H. N.

Your ethics problem, my dear girl, is more important than your etiquette problem. Of course you didn't expect me to tell you that it would be "proper" for you to wear a white wedding dress and a bridal veil, dishonestly sailing under false colors. . . this would not be either proper or honest. However, I do wish I could persuade you for the sake of your own integrity and peace of mind, and for your future security, not to keep your previous marriage a secret from your fiance's family. Then those most concerned, your fiance and your and his family will know and will understand your honest decision not to wear a white wedding dress and white bridal veil. There are a world of lovely pastel ensembles becoming to you and "becoming", too, to your situation.

How to avoid using "and family" on envelope and card

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My girl friend insists that when addressing a greeting-card, say an Easter card or a Thanksgiving or Christmas card, to a family, it is correct to address it:

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brown and Family or:
Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brown and Children
or, for one daughter:
Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brown and Daughter

I maintain that for one daughter, we would write:

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brown
Miss Jean Brown

And also I believe that neither "and Family" nor "and Children" should be used, but I'm not sure what form should be used when there are several children. Will you tell us, please?—J. R.

You are right in your feeling that it's best form not to use a phrase like "and Family" that "lumps together" the members of a family. It's of course more complimentary for each member of a family to receive an individual salutation. If only one greeting card is to be sent to a family, it may be addressed to:

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brown
Miss Jean Brown
Mr. Arthur Brown

Or, as is very often done, the envelope is addressed to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brown, and on the card itself may be written: "Loving greetings to you both, and to Jean and Arthur." Or: "Our devoted love to you, and our fondest greetings too to Jean and Arthur."

BEAUTY

by HELEN JAMIESON

PREMATURE WRINKLES

It is to be expected that advancing years will bring wrinkles, yet many a gay old girl of seventy has a countenance that is smooth, free of creases. She has side-stepped the little accordion pleats by taking care of her health, keeping busy, having interesting work to do, never indulging in emotional sprees. Health of mind and body; that is the secret.

Premature wrinkles can be avoided. If you are in your forties, have discovered crinkles around your eyes and two little furrows between them, you had better sit down and take a survey of your living habits. You are not being fair to yourself.

Do you eat at regular hours and get all the various food elements that are necessary to keep your energy motors buzzing? Many women suffer from malnutrition and are not aware of the fact. If you are losing weight, take warning. Facial tissues will soften; the skin will fall into fine lines. And don't forget that wrinkles never blot themselves out. They keep digging in deeper and deeper. You must catch 'em young.

Do you get enough sleep? Some women with strong constitutions can sleep for four or five hours and hop out of bed looking as fresh as a daisy. There are others who need at least seven hours—eight or better. Unless they have them, they awaken unrefreshed, with complexion pale, eyes shadowed. Continued loss of sleep is a common cause of premature wrinkles. One should make every possible effort to hang onto the bloom of youth; it can't be done unless nature has a chance to make regular repairs, and these are accomplished during hours of slumber.

Are you a worrier? If so, you might as well cut down on the beauty overhead, not try to maintain youthful appearance. Worry interferes with circulation and nutrition. And what it will do to a woman's face is too painful to describe.

At the first sign of lines, plan a beautifying routine. Eat wisely, bathe daily, get plenty of sleep, drink a pint of milk a day, get some outdoor exercise and breathe deeply. Those are the basic rules.

At bedtime, after a thorough face-washing, a warm rinsing and a gentle drying, apply a heavy massage cream. Ordinary cleansing cream won't do, because it offers no resistance to pressure. Apply it first to the neck, then work upward and outward with smooth firm strokes of flattened fingers. Do light circles under the eyes. Press incipient frown lines upward with the thumb. Then pat and tap. Let the cream remain on overnight.

Fashion Flashes

THE TICKET to daytime resort doings, such as a country club luncheon, is a beautiful cashmere sweater blouse trailing its own scarf and teamed up with a mushroom-pleated silk chiffon skirt matched to the color of the scarf.

A NEW FAVORITE for late resort and early Spring wear is wool lace. It is well handled in a pale beige string dress, a simple, calf-length sheath, fitted through the waist but undefined there save for a shoestring of beige silk.

MIXTURES show up strongly in new fabrics. Something crisp, but soft-surfaced, is a mixture of silk surah and shantung. It is used for a new Spring dress — a softened sheath, with a low scoop neckline that has buttonholes through which a big pouf scarf is tied. Without a scarf, the dress takes a matching cardigan jacket.

THE FLORAL MOTIF is just right for mid-winter hats. A snug, head-fitting shell is fashioned of large flower petals in pale aqua blue, graded to white in an ombred effect, with a large single rose placed high at the back.

RESORT informal evenings, and smart home wear later on, mean a busy career for an ensemble made up of a slim, day-length, wraparound skirt of Chinese bleu and yellow satin brocade, topped with a pale yellow silk taffeta halter and worn with a yellow cashmere sweater embroidered in glitter beads.

HANDBAGS of alligator are doing better than ever, especially in the gift category. To the range of colors has been added a soft gray and also an off-white shade. Mostly the bags are softly draped, but some, of the more tailored variety, go in for outside pockets.

RIGHT IN THERE pitching is denim, again used for any but casual clothes. An advance spring or resort design is a charcoal gray denim coat dress glittering with jet set in scrolls of silky black braid.

A BIG ROUND of applause greeted a recent showing of hats from Paris, real beauties and practical. We liked especially a little rounded shell composed of silk jersey and edged with a wide band of matching black grosgrain ribbon. In front, where the edge is rounded back from the hairline, perch black feather swallows, seemingly just alighting. A billowy, black-dotted veil.

Israel Guards Departing Reds From Terrorists

TEL AVIV, Israel (CP) — Policemen armed with sub-machine-guns guarded the Soviet legation here today, while inside Russian officials were feverishly packing.

They are expected to depart as hastily as possible — probably within 24 hours — following Moscow's dramatic break-off of relations with Israel at midnight Wednesday night.

Shutters were tightly drawn on all legation windows—except for a few torn off in the Monday bomb explosion which Russia said was the immediate cause of the rupture.

A Tel Aviv magistrate ordered 16 young Israelis, taken into custody in a country-wide manhunt for the terrorists who set off the explosion, held 10 more days for further questioning. Most of the youths were connected with the local "Anti-Communist League" but all denied having anything to do with the crime.

Five other persons nabbed in the hunt are scheduled to appear before a magistrate in Jerusalem later today.

Israeli officials were not surprised at the break. It is generally felt that the Soviet Union has taken the first convenient pretext for a diplomatic rupture clearly indicated by recent Russian policy.

Informed sources suggest that Russia has doubted the full loyalty of the 2,500,000 Jews behind the Iron Curtain to the Communist regimes, and fear that the Soviet is about to launch a new and more violent campaign against Jews under Communist control.

No disturbances were reported today but last night 25 persons were injured when anti-Communist Israelis, wielding stones and fists, broke up a pro-Soviet rally protesting the bombing. Two of the injured were in serious condition.

CHARGE REDUCED

WOODSTOCK (CP)—Fred Clarke of Tillsonburg, charged with manslaughter following the traffic death of Horst Holler, 10, was sentenced Thursday to 12 months when convicted on the reduced charge of dangerous driving. The accident happened Oct. 23.

RAWDON

W. M. S. Holds Interesting Meeting

Rawdon—Mrs. John Holmes was the hostess for the February meeting of Mount Pleasant Rawdon Woman's Missionary Society on Wednesday. There were 12 members, seven visitors and several children in attendance. Miss Ruth Linn presided at the piano and the president, Mrs. Burton Sharpe, opened the meeting with a message on "Kindness."

The corresponding secretary read a letter of thanks and the president read a letter re "presbyterial vacancies." The Community Friendship secretary recorded calls made. The Supply secretary Mrs. Gordon Linn reported gift of one quilt to fire victims.

The World Day of Prayer service will be held Friday, February 20th at Wellman's United Church. The radio broadcast for the 19th was anounced.

Mrs. R. R. Bonsteel will be the March hostess with Mrs. Kenneth Weaver in charge of program.

The Stewardship secretary sent a message, "The Stewardship of Thankfulness", which was read, and the Citizenship secretary read a special message from "The Temperance Advocate" re funds to be made available for research and education.

Program

Mrs. Percy MacMullen presided over the program which she had arranged, and opened with "The Work of Missions" by John R. Mott. A special poem entitled "He Leadeth Me", by H. H. Barry and sent by Mrs. Arthur Andrews, Belleville, was read. Mrs. Sid Williams read a poem "Give a Thought to Africa", by H. K. Nyanbonga which appeared in the August Missionary Monthly.

Mrs. Roy Thrasher Synopsized chapter IV of the Study. Book, based on agriculture.

John H. Reisner executive secretary of Agricultural Missions claims that half of the world's people do not have a level of good consumption high enough to maintain normal health, allow for normal growth of children, nor furnish energy for normal work. 70 per cent of the people of the world live on the land. Primitive farming is carried on in Africa and more improvement is needed.

Allen Knight has been instrumental in educating the natives to use a disc plow and to cultivate soy beans. Christian missions have played an important part but more agricultural leadership is needed at once.

God's message of salvation is still the cornerstone in the building of character and right living, but the improvements in African village life by way of agriculture, education and health services have all been beneficial to the natives.

Service of Worship

A service of worship used last year at "school for leaders" at Ontario Ladies' College, Whitby, and at several of the autumn rallies in the Lindsay presbyterial was sent to Mr. MacMullen at Christmas. The service is entitled "The Transforming Friendship", and was prepared by Miss Constance Wager, who is now a missionary in Trinidad.

The various parts were taken as follows: Narrator, Mrs. Percy MacMullen; Naomi, Mrs. Will Potts; Orpah, Mrs. Ira David; Ruth, Mrs. Will McAdam; Soloist, Miss Ruth Linn who rendered "I've Found a Friend."

The service opened with the poem, "Friendship is a Chain of Gold," and gave several classic examples of friendship down through the ages. However, the beautiful story of Ruth and Naomi has been immortalized. Later this idyll of tenderness and devotion was unfolded and Ruth utters her lovely pledge of friendship. Thus it is that through human friendship a glimpse is had of what it means to have friendship with the living God.

Mrs. R. R. Bonsteel spoke briefly and suggested "an African night" program under the leadership of the Mission Band with the auxiliary assisting as outlined in the February Monthly.

SALE VOTE INVALID

SARNIA (CP)—Some 81 Indians of the Sarnia reserve voted Thursday night in favor of selling 320 acres of reserve land to the Imperial Oil Company for $230,000 but there weren't enough of them at the meeting to make the vote legal.

Under government regulations, least 50 per cent of the Sarnia band's membership of 191 must approve the sale before it can become valid. The vote fell 15 ballots short.

The Barrett and the navy transport George Clymer accompanied the stricken vessel toward Yokohama.

Contesting Will May Cost Son Third of Estate

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Dr. Edgar Randolph Parker, Jr., of Vancouver, only son of the late chain dentist, Dr. Painless Parker, failed Wednesday in an attempt to upset his father's will—and perhaps disinherited himself completely from an estate valued at more than $200,000.

The elder Parker's will, which split the estate evenly between his son and two daughters, carried a provision an heir who disputes it shall be disinherited.

But his son, a 41-year-old dentist, contested it anyway, saying his father had promised him half the estate. He charged his sisters, Mrs. Jane Hewson of Rolling Hills, Calif., and Mrs. Helen Korn of Gilroy, Calif., unduly influenced their father to win bigger shares.

Judge Timothy I. Fitzpatrick, who ruled the will valid, will be asked when the estate is distributed to decide if Parker's action actually disinherits him.

Defence Community Action Essential to Security Of Europe and U.S. Says Dulles

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Secretary John Foster Dulles says "there is a good chance" for formation of a European Defence Community, but he hopes that "concrete evidence" of progress will be forthcoming promptly.

Dulles, reporting on his recent trip to European capitals in a radio and television broadcast to the country Thursday night, cautioned that the alternatives to a European Defence Community are considered by President Eisenhower to be weak.

He said the security of Europe itself and in some degree the security of the United States against the power of Russia depend upon successful accomplishment of the undertaking.

Italy, France, West Germany, The Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg signed a treaty to create the EDC last May. Dulles said it was then expected that this treaty and related arrangements for tying it to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization would be ratified and made operative in six months. Actually, he noted, months have passed and ratification is still lacking.

This has been "disconcerting" to the U.S., Dulles said, because U.S. security plans are based upon eventual inclusion of German military strength in the Western European Defence system. That, he said, is what the EDC was designed to accomplish.

In the last seven years, he said, the U.S. has contributed $30,000,000,000 to Europe and stationed "tensof thousands of our armed forces" there because European security vitally affects U.S. security.

"But our effort will not permanently serve Europe, or ourselves, or humanity, unless it fits into a constructive program for European unity. Nothing that the U.S. can do will ever be enough to make Europe safe if it is divided into rival national camps.

"President Eisenhower himself said recently that he was impressed with the "feebleness" of alternatives to the European defence community."

Ten Escape After Car Plunges Into Lake Simcoe

SUTTON (CP) — Ten hockey enthusiasts escaped safely Wednesday night after their car plunged through the ice into 20 feet of water in Lake Simcoe.

They managed to get out of the old model touring car and crawl out on the ice. After they made their way to a nearby farmhouse, a doctor was called. He treated them for frost bites and exposure and ordered them to bed for 24 hours.

The 10 were all residents of Georgina Island, about a mile from the mainland in Lake Simcoe. They were: Carl Lance, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Trumble, Mrs. James York, 27, Dick Charles, 17, Lillian Bigcanoe, 20, Margery Blackbird, 15, Queenie Ashquake, 15, her 11-year-old sister, Clara and William Warren, 15.

They were hockey players and fans returning home from a game at this village some 50 miles northeast of Toronto. Lance, the driver, said he lost his way in a snow storm.

"There was no warning," he said. "One second we were on the top, the next under water. I felt the steering wheel bite into my stomach as the car hit the bottom of the lake."

Amnesia Victim Returns to Wife Living in Quebec

HALIFAX (CP)—Laurent Dube, the Quebec salesman who disappeared two years ago and turned up this week apparently suffering from amnesia, left Thursday for Quebec and the wife he says he can't remember.

The 32-year-old wax salesman, who found employment as a male nurse here two weeks after his battered car was found near a Shediac, N. B., bridge, was shocked and bewildered when informed Wednesday that he was already married.

He met a nurse here and has been courting her.

"My wife?" he asked. "Nobody told me I was married."

He was married 4½ years ago. The couple had no children.

Dube was believed dead until RCMP officials received a tip that a man answering his description was working in a hospital under the name of Paul Dupuis.

Fingerprints showed that Dupuis and Dube were the same person. But Dube said he could remember nothing beyond waking up in a Truro hotel two years ago with $38 and no identification in his pockets.

FLOOD FUND SWELLING

BRADFORD (CP)—The Holland Marsh branch of the Netherlands flood relief fund has raised more than $12,000. West Gwillimbury township council voted unanimously to contribute $500, while a dozen Bradford business men have contributed $1,300. Money-raising projects are under way throughout Simcoe county and committee chairman George Horlings said the $100,000 objective is assured.

Reserves Judgment

OTTAWA (CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada reserved judgment Thursday in an appeal against an Ontario Supreme Court decision awarding $770,000 to the Toronto Hospital for Sick Children under the will of the late John Ross Robertson.

Mr. Robertson was the founder of the Toronto Telegram. The $770,000 were resrves which were on the books of the newspaper when it was sold for $3,610,000. The hospital, residuary legatee under the Robertson will, gets the proceeds of the sale but also claims the $770,000 in reserves as part of the capital of the newspaper.

Mr. Robertson's descendants claimed the $770,000 should go to them because it represented part of the profits of the newspaper.

The Ontario Supreme Court awarded the Toronto hospital the money and the Robertson estate took an appeal to the Supreme Court.

Change-Over Cost $275,000,000 Says Saunders

TORONTO (CP)—Hydro Chairman Robert Saunders said Thursday night the total cost on Ontario's hydro cycle change-over may climb to $275,000,000.

The original estimate for the job to change 25-cycle over to 60-cycle, which is only 30 per cent complete, was $191,000,000.

Mr. Saunders said he did not expect the job, begun in 1948, to be complete for another eight years, but he did not anticipate any further increase in hydro rates for at least two years. The hydro commission recently increased its rates 14 per cent.

To the end of November, 1952, the last date for which figures are complete, Mr. Saunders said hydro had paid out $118,182,897 for the conversion job—$91,199,266 for work completed and $26,983,631 for equipment and materials for work yet to be done.

Following a warning that the final bill would be much higher than originally estimated, Mr. Saunders said the main reasons for the increase could be found in the tremendous industrial expansion in the section of the province affected.

Two Children Burned to Death In Manitoba

MCTAVISH, Man. (CP) — Two children were burned to death Wednesday night. Their mother rescued a third infant from its crib in their blazing home near this town 38 miles south of Winnipeg.

Dead are Alva, 2, and Annie, 3, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Loewen.

The fire started when another daughter, Erna, tripped while carrying a kerosene lamp. The flames quickly spread beyond control. Mrs. Loewen rushed from the house with the baby in her arms.

Neither Mrs. Loewen nor her husband, who had been working in the stable at the time, had a chance to get back into the blazing building to rescue the other two girls, believed to have been asleep at the time.

Teacher Shortage Forced Closing Of Some Schools

TORONTO (CP)—Canada's teacher shortage has forced the closing of 143 one-room rural schools, including 50 Roman Catholic schools in the province of Quebec, the Canadian Education Association reported Thursday.

The report covered the 1952-53 school year in Canadian elementary and secondary schools.

It said Canada's total shortage of fully-qualified teachers is 6,556. There were 11,092 teachers in training but the school population was increasing year by year. Teachers in one-room rural schools with no professional training total 1,558 and those with only partial training 2,794, the report said.

Average rural school salary in Ontario was given as $2,271. Ontario showed a shortage of 956 untrained and partially-trained teachers in rural, elementary and secondary schools.

134,000 Short In Funds Of Credit Society

OTTAWA (CP)—A shortage of $134,000 has been discovered in the funds of the Civil Service Co-operative Credit Society Ltd., a special meeting of the Credit union was told Thursday night.

A report from the society's board of supervisors said that an audit two weeks ago found that liabilities had been understated by about $134,000 in the 1951 report of the credit union, which has 9,310 members in the federal civil service.

The meeting approved formation of a three-man committee to investigate the shortage. It is made up of David Sim, deputy minister of the customs and excise department; J. C. Lessard, deputy minister of the transport department, and B. G. McIntyre, comptroller of the treasury.

The meeting was told that the government has promised financial assistance of up to $100,000 to keep the credit union in operation.

The board of supervisors stressed that the credit union is still entirely solvent and that there is no need for alarm by depositors and shareholders.

No suggestion was made as to the cause of the shortage.

Amherst Island Running Short Of Food Stocks

BATH, Ont. (CP)—Food stocks are dwindling on nearby Amherst Island as treacherous ice between the island and this village, about 12 miles west of Kingston, keeps communication to the occasional pedestrian or skater.

Ferry service, normal method of communication, was discontinued Feb. 1 and since then island residents report their food supplies declining steadily.

Three youths who attempted to push a cutter the three miles to the island to bring an elderly woman to the mainland gave up after the cutter broke through the ice.

On Tuesday, two men dared the ice to take a veterinarian to the island. On Wednesday, however, a cutter loaded with cream broke through and no further crossings were attempted.

Word Dodenstad In Dutch Means Village of Dead

Written for The Canadian Press
By FRED EDGE

NIEUWE TONGE, Holland (CP)—The word "dodenstad" in Dutch means "village of the dead." Today in Holland it means the neighboring towns of Nieuwe Tonge and Oude Tonge on the North sea island of Overflackkee.

Before the water came, Nieuwe Tonge and Oude Tonge were picture-book Dutch villages, alive with the voices of Dutch women and children.

Today they lie silent beneath a drizzling rain, surrounded by the waters of the killer North sea.

Long rows of coffins line the ruptured cobblestone streets. Wall-eyed cattle, their crazy fright preserved in death, lie chained to their stalls. Rubber-gloved men silently probe with pitchforks, searching for bodies beneath the water-soaked rubble, and the houses tell their own story.

At Oude Tonge, in one house a young Dutch couple scooped up their two small children and roped them high in the rafters. Two days later when rescuers arrived the children were soaked but safe. Their parents were found crushed beneath a heavy sofa.

Everywhere are signs that warn against touching anything without wearing rubber gloves. All dogs and cats, because of the typhus infection from thousands of livestock carcasses, are being shot on sight.

Drive Checked

TORONTO (CP)—Officials of the Lord's Day Alliance said Thursday that representations of Canadian citizens and of the Lord's Day Alliance have checked a drive to introduce commercial sport and entertainment on Sundays.

At the annual meeting of the association it was reported that in British Columbia, Saskatchewan and New Brunswick, officials have been unwilling to introduce legislation comparable to Ontario's law on Sunday commercial sport.

Rev. Ernest Marshall Howse of Toronto was elected president. Vice-presidents included Rev. W. L. L. Lawrence of Hamilton and Rev. J. A. MacInnis of Orillia.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Veronica Langlois Thursday was committed for trial on a charge of manslaughter laid following the death of her husband, Charles, last Dec. 4. Langlois was found sitting at the side of the front steps of their home with his spine dislocated. Cyril Jenkins, a roomer, testified: "I saw Mrs. Langlois standing over her husband, cursing him. There was a flurry of arms and he was lying at her feet."

Increase in Cases Brought Before Court in 1952 Over Previous Year, Chief Reports

A total of 1,853 cases was brought before the court in 1952 by the Belleville Police Department, stated R. W. Probert, chief constable, in the official police report for that year made available to the Ontario Intelligencer today. This figure marks an increase of 284 over the 1951 figure of 1,569.

There were 35 motor vehicles reported as stolen during the year Chief Probert said, but all were recovered and returned to the owners. The department also recovered four stolen cars for other police departments.

The local force investigated 581 motor vehicle accidents during the year, a decrease of 12 from 1951. Of this number, 151 suffered damage amounting to more than $50. There were 49 persons injured in these accidents and one fatality.

Property patrol by police officers is given to front and rear business places, especially during the night hours. Such a patrol, Chief Probert explained, affords an opportunity to detect fires that may start while such premises are closed and unattended. During these patrols in 1952, constables found 134 insecure doors, unlocked doors, or windows open. In each case the owners were notified and the premises made secure. Officers do foot patrol in the downtown business section while two radio-equipped cruisers give good coverage to all city streets during the night hours.

Nine sudden deaths were reported to the department for investigation. Four of these were from natural causes, three were suicides, one as the result of a car accident, and the other by drowning.

The total amount of fines and fees collected in court amounted to $15,129, all of which was handed over to the magistrate for distribution. Revenue received by the city from parking meters reached $24,547.07 and from parking tickets, $3,925 for a total of $28,472.07.

The department is now operating two cruisers and one motorcycle, all equipped with three-way radio systems. This gives good city-wide supervision, Chief Probert stated. Belleville now has an area close to 2,000 acres and about 65 miles of streets, plus laneways and rear entrances that require patrolling.

A number of payroll escorts are provided by the department to ensure the safe delivery of large sums of money. All signal calls from watchmen in certain industrial plants are also recorded. In the event of a signal not coming in, a cruiser is despatched immediately to ascertain the reason for the non-communication.

All properties whose inhabitants are out of the city are constantly checked, provided the police are notified of such a situation. Chief Probert stressed the fact that it is to the advantage of the property owner or leaser to notify the police in cases of this kind.

Major criminal offences during the year were the blowing of two safes and unsuccessful attempts made on two other safes. About $2,500 was taken in the first two instances, of which more than $1,000 was recovered with the apprehension and conviction of three men, Mickey Metrunitz, Albert Johnson and Robert Knudson.

Breaking, entering and theft comprised the next most serious cases. Thorough investigation was made in all such cases and many offenders were brought into court. In most cases, the occupants were in the house at the time and did not hear the offender gaining entrance.

Traffic in Belleville, as well as in other cities, continues to increase and is of much concern to all police departments, Chief Probert said. There were 593 accidents in the city in 1951. In 1952, the figure was down to 581.

Along these lines, the traffic committee of city council has proposed forming a traffic commission which will investigate all angles of the traffic situation. This is a useful, and most necessary step, Chief Probert said.

"Efficient police work depends a great deal upon the citizens themselves," Chief Probert told the Ontario Intelligencer. "Citizens should work in co-operation with the police. They should feel that any information they may have involving police work should be turned over to the department. It is kept in strict confidence and no one should feel like a "stool pigeon" for imparting vital information."

The chief constable's report was passed by the police commission at its regular meeting held this week.

Coronation Escort

Lieut. H. McLellan of Sarnia, Ont., is one of the four members of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, stationed at Winnipeg, chosen to ride in the coronation procession next June. The team is practising daily on the outskirts of Winnipeg. — (CP from National Defence.)

Four Officers of RCHA Will Be Part of Sovereign's Escort At Coronation in June

By ART BRYDEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP)—Four officers of the 2nd Regiment Royal Canadian Horse Artillery have launched a gruelling program, preparing for one great day in the saddle.

Part of the sovereign's escort at the Coronation, they are out every day, rain or shine, in temperatures ranging down to 20 below zero, jogging around a paddock and across snow-covered fields, sharpening their riding technique under the patient tutoring of a watchful Dutch immigrant.

For another hour, they run through a strenuous program of physical exercises in the Fort Osborne barracks gymnasium. All this must be done in their spare time. Regular jobs are carried on as usual.

Veterans of Korea

Headed by Lt.-Col. E. G. Brooks of Montreal and Winnipeg, the men, all Korean veterans, comprise the Canadian section of the sovereign's escort at the Coronation ceremonies of the Queen next June 2. Col. Brooks is officer commanding the regiment.

The group includes Lieut. H.E.E. Pepler of Oakville, Ont., Lieut. H. A. McLelland of Sarnia, Ont., and Major J. S. Orton of Ottawa. Major Orton is serving and training at Ottawa. The fourth member at Winnipeg is Lieut. D. R. Foster of Assiniboia, Sask., an alternate provided in case of sickness or injury to one of the other men.

On Coronation day the men will be in the saddle from early morning until late afternoon, a stretch of perhaps 10 or 12 hours. There will be no relief and no lunch. Each man must carry a ceremonial sword, point skyward, in his right hand while controlling his horse with the other hand.

A rigidly smart appearance must be maintained, even while the actual ceremony is in progress within Westminster Abbey and the escort is waiting outside.

The task calls for perfect physical condition and the ceremonial demands special riding training.

Requires Perfection

Col. Brooks, a perfectionist by nature, is leading the way in a training routine, probably as tough as any in the men's military careers. The morning and part of the afternoon is spent at regular duties. The rest of the time is devoted to riding, exercises and preparing uniforms.

Frank Dopheide came to Canada less than 16 months ago from Holland where he was an instructor in Haarlan, a famous Dutch riding academy. He puts them through a strenuous period in the saddle. While the men circle him he stands in the centre of the paddock issuing instructions in English to the men and in Dutch to the horses.

Dopheide is employed by J. B. Richardson, a Winnipeg broker who is supplying horses and a training ground on his summer estate near Winnipeg.

Each man saddles his own mount and unsaddles it when the workout is over. While the tutoring goes on each sheds his identity as an officer and obeys instructions.

Weight is Factor

When chosen for the group each man was given an exhaustive medical examination. Weight is important. Lieut. Foster, through diet and the tough schedule, has lost 28 pounds in the six weeks since the training started. The colonel is trying to keep his weight up.

Uniforms will be identical to the last detail. Every piece of leather will be scraped bare and polished with exactly the same shade. The black riding boots, which accompany the dark blue full dress uniforms to be worn in the parade, will get the same treatment.

Some time late in March the four men will go to Ottawa to embark on full-time training. They expect to receive horses identical in size and color.

After six weeks in Ottawa they leave for England in May. Col. Brooks hopes to spend some time training with the metropolitan police to accustom the horses to crowd noises, bands, the firing of salutes and particularly the whizzing of the ceremonial sword past their ears as it is lowered in salute.

Newspaper Guild Vote Ordered For CP Workers

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canada Labor Relations Board decided Wednesday to order a vote among editorial employees of The Canadian Press on the question of revoking the certification of the American Newspaper Guild (CIO-CCL) as bargaining agent for a unit of CP editorial workers.

The decertification was asked by a group of CP employees. It was the fourth application made by a majority of the bargaining unit in the last 1½ years. Two others were rejected, and on a third the board advised the applicants to withdraw it as premature.

The board's decision on the latest one, filed Dec. 31, was taken at a closed meeting at its regular February session. Board officers withheld any announcement pending notification of the parties involved.

However, an informant said the board had decided merely on a vote, leaving details such as the date of the ballot to be arranged by the staff of the federal labor department.

The action came after a long dispute between CP, the national co-operative news-gathering agency, and the guild, which was certified in April, 1950, as bargaining agent for the unit of editorial workers in Canadian Press bureaux within Canada.

After long negotiations, the CP and guild did not reach contract terms. During the proceedings, the guild brought five court charges against CP under the federal labor code, alleging failure to bargain properly and discrimination against some employees. All were dismissed in magistrate's court in Toronto. After appealing, the guild withdrew four charges and lost the fifth in a higher court.

The union did not contest the latest application for decertification. It suggested to the board that there be a scrutiny to make sure that all was in order with the individual petitions calling for decertification. It did not ask a hearing.

In the application, 50 employees signed the petitions for the revocation of the guild's certification. The bargaining unit consists of about 87, though this figure is to be established officially by the board later.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON OF THE WEEK

We Have Been Warned

By ROY L. SMITH

There are those spiritual eccentrics and sensationalists who depend upon frenzied declarations of doom for the purpose of getting a crowd—and a collection—who have been shouting dire things into our ears about the dreadful things that lie ahead for this nation and our civilization. And the total result is that judicious and sensible men have almost discounted the warnings of religion because of these eccentricities. "The queer have queered religion." There is, however, real cause for alarm, and we have actually been warned by reliable prophets.

The Kefauver Committee

When all its political implications have been discounted the fact still remains that the Kefauver Committee did lift the lid, and let the people see just a little of the terrible machinations of the crime syndicates as they operate in modern life.

> The Uniform Sunday School for February 15: "Whose Is The Kingdom?," Matthew 21:1—22:14.

The intimate relationship between crime and local government, the price good citizens have to pay in extra taxes because of the alliance between the underworld and the upper crust, the awful toll paid to gangsters and their ilk every year, the burden borne by legitimate business as a result of the depredations of the criminal elements, the fantastic parade of the gangsters in the role of leading citizens—all this the American people now know. It is no longer a matter of "yellow" journalism. It is a matter of official record.

Police Chiefs Talk Up

The chiefs of police in every city in the land know the situation. Occasionally they talk out boldly, as did William H. Parker, the head of the Los Angeles police department. He said in an address to the Automatic Merchandising Association that the threat of organized crime on the home front is as serious a menace to a nation's life as the threat of communism abroad. This attack comes wholly from within. Said he, "We build our walls high without attending to the moral timbers which sustain the structure. We arm against barbarians without and seek their agents within, but calmly ignore the fact that self - destruction-barbarianism within can accomplish our downfall more quickly than an enemy outside our borders."

Endangered Birthrights

In the parable of the criminal husbandmen Jesus was talking about the question of responsibility. A little group of men had been provided with all the equipment, capital, and resources they needed to make a fine living and enjoy life. But that very equipment implied a responsibility. They were willing to accept the advantages, but they were unwilling to accept the responsibilities. In that they were strangely akin to our generation.

We are in great danger of losing what the past has bequeathed to us because we are unwilling to take a responsibility for the future. We are content with today's harvest and are giving no thought to raising a seed crop for tomorrow. We blithely live beyond our income accumulating a national debt that can have but a single result—national bankruptcy. We squander the souls of our children we ignore the claims of the spiritual, we try to build a civilization without making firm the foundations in moral convictions.

There is coming a day when destiny the judgment day, the final reckoning. God—whatever the name the end is the same—will have to be taken into account.

But we have been warned!

(Copyright 1953 by the Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches of Christ in the United States of America.)

HUNTERS' TOLL

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP)—A member of the Cape Breton county council urged that the provincial government be asked to increase deer hunters' fees by $1, using the extra towards a fund to reimburse farmers for slain livestock. Another member suggested an extra $2, so farmers could also be reimbursed for damage to crops.

New Insulin May Reduce Number Injections

LONDON, (CP) — A new form of long-acting insulin may reduce the number of daily injections needed by diabetics, says the British Medical Journal.

The publication says the new form, called lente, limits the necessary injections to one a day instead of at least two. It controls the blood sugar of moderately severe cases for at least 24 hours, the Journal says.

The more lasting effect is said to have been achieved through adding an acetate "buffer" together with small amounts of zinc. It is expected to be available for general use soon.

Congregational Meetings

ST. THOMAS' CHURCH

MINTO.—St. Thomas' vestry meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Colden on Wednesday evening of last week. Canon J. M. Brownlie opened the meeting with prayer, after which he gave a resume of the year's work in the parish. Mrs. Lindsay Tanner acted as vestry clerk.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

NOT FOR WEAK HEARTS!

That drowning man clutching at the proverbial straw had a loose-leaf system compared to the tenacity with which the Peterborough Petes are clinging to that playoff hope. And danged if the pesky cusses from Perdueville, with their backs to the wall, aren't fightin like the equally proverbial demons, in a desperate effort to snatch a spot from under the very schnozzles of the Glens.

The Goodyears' 6-5 defeat of our side Wednesday night, coupled with the upset victory of the Petes over the Stouffville Clippers started the Glen Roy master minds off on a spree of noggin scratching. As matters stand now the Petes are but three points behind the Glens, who in turn trail the Goodies by two points.

Kingston has two games left, both with the Petes. The Liftlockers have three games left, the odd one with the Glens. Our side has three, the other two with Stouffville here Saturday night and with Orillia Pontiacs a week hence.

One of these important games takes place tonight in Peterborough when the Goodyears meet the punch-packing Petes in the first of their last two meetings. The Glens will be awaiting the result with more than passing interest since a Goodies' victory will enhance their playoff chances no end, while a Petes' win will narrow the margin between our side and the Liftlockers to one point, a digit which might mean the difference between the playoff gold and glory and elimination.

It should be a rip-roaring joust. The Goodies, red-hot with two successive victories, since Johnny Carr-Harris was hoisted into the driver's seat, are confident they can stretch their win streak to three and strengthen their hold on the perch. On the other hand the Petes, who assumed the role of giant-killer the other night when they scored an upset victory over the potent Stouffville Clippers in Stouffville, have had their morale boosted higher than a stratospheric jet, and are equally sure they can take the measure of their ancient enemies from the Limestone City.

It may be wishful thinking but the Glens can yet finish on top of this wacky senior "B" section. In the event the Petes and Kingston split their two-game series, and the Glens win their remaining three games it will hoist them to top-slot with 30 points. If the Petes are defeated tonight, all the Glens need is one victory out of their three games to get "in". In other words, if the Petes lose all they can garner is four points over the rest of the route while the Glens with one win out of three opportunities will have five points and the berth.

But don't forget, men, the chips are down with a solid thud. Kingston is definitely in the charmed circle and battle has resolved itself between the Petes and the Glens with the Goodyears playing an important role.

Meanwhile the Glens are nursing their wounds and dignity after that setback in Kingston Wednesday night. They're not feeling too happy after the borderline officiating they claim was handed out by Referees "Mo" Walsh and Jim Crombie.

Penalties did not help the Glen cause, it appears, and when "Red" Doran grabs himself a match-misconduct something has happened. "Red", who has more hockey between his ears than most of the players in the group have in the lower regions, is not the referee-baiting type. And according to the Kingston report of the game it was admitted that Landry charged him when he was not carrying the puck. Johnson tripped Goyer when he was in alone, and the Glens clamored for a penalty shot.

Then again they have a tough proposition on their hands tomorrow night when they tangle with the Stouffville Clippers. The Clips are already "in" as far as the playoffs are concerned and will battle with the Oshawa Truckers for the sectional title and the right to meet the eastern winners for the group honors and playdown glory and gold.

But while the Clippers are in, don't think they won't be out there in an effort to clip the wings of the Glens but good and by as much as possible. They haven't forgotten that near sensational game here earlier in the season when the Glens nipped them 2-1 in their first appearance. And there's no sentiment in hockey. Playoff or no playoff, the Clips will be battling for another victory regardless of what it means to the Glens. And with the spectre of elimination hovering in the background, you can bet your income tax rebate the Glens will be out there with all batteries firing and every man at his battle station.

NOT FOOLING!

The Ontario Minor Hockey Association apparently wasn't fooling earlier in the season when its executive stated that it would stand for no rough stuff or unseemly conduct on the part of players, coaches or management.

It believes, and rightly so, that to maintain a high calibre of hockey, all breaches of the rules, especially with regard to behavior, should be met with punitive action.

And it is living up to its word. A Niagara Falls juvenile coach and player have been suspended for the season for criticising and attacking a referee. Three players from Brooklin, Campbellford and Sutton have also been suspended for disrespect for officials.

Teams are reminded that referees have been instructed to rule strictly and call all offences. They also will report any cases of disrespect, and such reports will be met with suspension.

Team managers are reminded that February 15th. is the last date to have players' certificates and age proof in the hands of OMHA registrar, J. M. Whiston, 93 Tiago Avenue, Toronto 13.

Gain Fourth-Place Deadlock With Idle Toronto Leafs; Habs Edge Chicago Hawks 3-2

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The rookies who led Montreal Canadiens into last year's Stanley Cup finals but seemed to fizzle out as sophomores this National Hockey League season are once again lifting the heights.

In Chicago Thursday night it was Dick Gamble with two goals and Dickie Moore with one who gave the Montrealers a 3-2 decision over the Black Hawks.

The victory moved the Canadiens to within three points of the league-leading Detroit Red Wings, who dropped a 3-1 decision to Boston Bruins. The two points hoisted Boston into a fourth-place deadlock with the idle Toronto Maple Leafs.

Chicago opened the scoring against Montreal when Sid Finney, up from Calgary Stampeders of the Western Hockey League, came through at 5:18, only to have Gamble pot his first goal 12 seconds later.

Gamble scored again in the second session, then Moore scored what became the winning goal. Jim Peters hit for the Hawks'last goal in the closing minutes of the period.

Fleming Mackell provided the Bruins with their punch as he tallied twice against Detroit, his first in the opening period and his second in the middle session.

Reg Sinclair scored Detroit's lone goal midway through the first period. Joe Klukay clinched the decision for Boston.

The loss was Detroit's first in eight games. It also marked the third straight clash in which Gordie Howe, the NHL's top scorer, has gone without a goal. He is trying for his 200th marker.

Schwabs, CNR Lead Major A

Schwab's and C.N.R. are having a close battle for top spot in the third quarter of the Major "A" Bowling League schedule. Following last night's games and with one night left to play, Schwab's lead the railroaders by a scant two points.

Three seven-point wins were chalked up, with G. H. Wood's (3562); C.N.R. (3411) and Moore's Chisellers (3405) defeating Lawn Bowlers (2888); Upper Canada News (2940) and Belleville Golf (3024).

Schwab's (3122) took a 5-2 verdict from Hardwick Printing (2943) in the other game.

Doug Ashley C.N.R. was high with 829 (378-224-227). W. McLaughlin had 800 (314), W. Bateman 762, F. Martin 761; C. Marriott 760; J. McKenzie 729; L. Lennox 716; R. Lundberg 705; W. Rawson 703; D. Pointer 696; C. Hardwick 691; M. Hunter 672; W. Dingman 666; J. White 652.

TORONTO (CP)—Gordon Wallace of Brantford and Billy Fifield of Toronto will meet here in a bout for the Canadian light-heavyweight boxing championship late this month or early in March.

Chatham Rink Represents Ont. In Curling Final

TORONTO (CP)—Peter Gilbert of Chatham, who skipped a rink to the Ontario Curling Association championship in 1949, repeated again Thursday night when his foursome defeated Syd Smithers of Galt 11-9.

The victory gave the Chatham quartet—which includes two sons of the skip—the right to represent Ontario in the Canadian championships which begin March 2 at Sudbury.

The final was one of the most exciting in the history of the championship. The stars were Gordon Gilbert, who threw fourth rock for the winners, and skip Smithers of Galt.

Galt scored three on the first end, but Gilbert went in front on the fourth with a four, only to have Smithers knot the count on the fifth. Gilbert counted three on the sixth and was never caught.

On the final end, Gilbert was lying three with only four rocks remaining. Smithers drew him for a shot and then Gordon Gilbert came through a port to count.

Smithers came back with a perfect draw to the face of the Gilbert shot, but once again Gordon Gilbert drew in to the face of Smither's stone to count one for the victory.

Thursday night's finalists were the last of 129 rinks which entered competition three weeks ago.

In the consolation final Tom Beattie of Toronto Granites drew away from Jack Sands of Kingston for the final half of their game for a 10-7 decision.

Gilbert defeated Dr. A. C. Baillie of Orillia 6-4 to make the finals while Smithers dumped Harold Haight of Hamilton Thistles 10-9 in his semi-final game.

Beattie gained the consolation final with a 13-2 landslide over Frank Smith of Owen Sound. Sands made it with a 7-5 win from the defending champion Dr. R. Clark of Peterborough.

Schoolboy Rink From Quebec Has No Jinx

By BARRY WEST
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—If there's a sophomore jinx in curling, the schoolboy rink from Pointe Claire, Que., has never heard of it.

The quartet from Montreal's Lakeshore topped a field of six teams to win the Quebec provincial curling championship Jan. 24 and the right to represent Quebec in the Dominion schoolboy curling championship at Saskatoon Feb. 16-21.

Playing together for the second year, the team includes Richard Bebee, 15, lead, Jack Mersereau, 16, second, Warren Robb, 16, third, and Graeme McMurray, skip.

It is our second year together and we have none of those jinxes supposed to affect hockey players," McMurray said.

The boys began curling three years ago. Ivan Stockwell, superintendent of schools in Pointe Claire and Beaconsfield, has been their coach and will accompany them to Saskatoon.

Bebee, Mersereau and Robb are hockey players while McMurray plays basketball. They dropped the other sports to give full time to curling this year.

Bebee and Robb said their fathers interested them in curling. Bebee's father played at North Bay, while Robb's curled at Calgary. Mersereau and McMurray "just picked it up" after Stockwell asked them if they'd like to learn the game.

The boys, who play the draw type of game, have been practising three hours a day since winning the provincial title.

They said the principal of Montreal West high school approved the trip and the necessary time off for the competition.

"He's an old curler himself," said Bebee.

Bewley Winner Copp Memorial

TORONTO (CP) — Halfback Bill Bewley of the University of Toronto Blues Thursday was named winner of the Johnny Copp Memorial Trophy, awarded annually to Varsity's outstanding football player.

The 22-year-old veteran of three years in intercollegiate football is a graduate of Saltfleet high school near Hamilton. He was captain of the 1952 Varsity team.

The trophy is to perpetuate the memory of Varsity footballer Johnny Copp, shot and killed by a thug in 1933. The players vote it to the member of the team they judge worthiest by virtue of sportsmanship, character and playing ability.

Rex Layne, LaStarza Fight Tonight Should Resemble a Bout—Talbot

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Those television fans who still are game and full of fight after having attended the rites for their idol, Chuck Davey, are promised something more closely resembling a contest in tonight's 10-rounder here between Rex Layne and Roland La Starza.

It could even develop into a real good fight, this meeting between the two princelings of the heavyweight division. The affair has been kept something of a secret by the International Boxing Club, which was occupied with fleecing its midwest clients, but the fact remains it is the nearest thing to a natural the unlimited class affords at the moment, excepting the big one coming up between Marciano and Walcott in April.

Unless they somehow contrive to eliminate each other, eight Layne or La Starza is virtually assured a crack at the title during the summer. Both have upon occasion shown themselves capable of giving such revolting exhibitions that they were forced to flee across state lines, but with the prize being dangled before them tonight it seems safe to predict they will really go at it.

Split Decision

Though La Starza was a slight favorite the last time we looked, there really is very little upon which to base a choice.

Layne has never given anyone cause even to suspect what he might do next. He holds decisions over two former world champions, Walcott and Ezzard Charles, and yet he has lost to men who probably had to buy their way into the ring record book.

Layne is supposed to have become an absolutely changed gladiator, as full of determination as a slot-machine addict and his eyes unwaveringly upon the big goal. They say this could have come from the shock he received when referee Jack Dempsey lifted his glove at the conclusion of his bout with Charles at Salt Lake City last summer. That was the one where the Old Mauler awarded Layne three rounds and said that nothing had happened in the other seven.

This is about the first real chance LaStarza has had to get back into the main picture since his unfortunate meeting with Marciano some three years ago. He's 26 now, and unless he makes his move tonight he'll soon find the years running out on him.

First Lap Dog Sled Derby Starts Today

STE. AGATHE, Que. (CP)—Dog-derby time has arrived in this Laurentian mountain centre and the familiar cry of "mush" resounds through the hills today as the first lap of a three-day international sled dog derby gets under way.

Fifteen drivers, including three women contestants, have entered the annual marathon to be run in three daily laps of 20 miles each. The start and finish of the course will be on the frozen surface of Lac des Sables.

The most colorful team is probably that of George Worthley of Farmington, Me., whose team includes several dogs from the Mush Moore team which in 1951 were driven more than 5,000 miles from Alaska to Lewiston, Me.

The fair sex is represented by Mrs. Bunty Dunlop of Freeman, Ont., Mrs. Louise Lombard of Wayland, Mass., and Mrs. Jean Lane of Lunenburg, Mass.

Indies Win Test

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (Reuters)—The West Indies Thursday beat India by 142 runs with more than a day to spare in the second match of a current cricket test series here. The first test was drawn.

The Indians were well placed win when the fifth day's play began. But they lost their last seven second-innings wickets for only 75 runs and were all out for 129.

Final scores: West Indies 296 and 228; India 253 and 129.

The third in the five-match series begins in Trinidad next week.

FRANKFORD

Trenton Defeats Frankford 13-8

Frankford — Trenton continued their perennial jinx over Frankford in the Trent Valley Hockey League, as they handed the locals a 13-8 shellacking in the Frankford Lions Arena Wednesday evening. A great deal of the credit for the Trenton victory goes to Hill, their youthful netminder who always seemed to be in the right place at the right time. This is borne out in the fact that Frankford had considerably more shots on goal than did the visitors.

As was typical of a Trenton-Frankford game, penalties were handed out wholesale, with fifteen being issued by Referees Scarrow and Conley. Many felt that there should have been twice as many, as both teams committeed every offence but homicide.

Trenton scored first, Demille from McDonnell, and a minute later Rankin tied the score, from Moran and Adams. Jones put the visitors in the lead again on a play with Istead and Scott. Courtney tied it again from Cooke and Bone. Carey put the home towners in the lead for the first time on a solo effort. Three minutes later he added another from Rankin.

Trenton ran wild in the second period, scoring seven times. Jones from Scott was the first of the period. Watson scored for Frankford's only goal of the period, Courtney getting an assist. Jones scored from Black, Scott from Jones, Jones from Scott, Scott unassisted, Jones unassisted, and Jones from Istead.

Scott scored from Jones to open the third period, and Bone scored for Frankford from Cooke. Scott scored again for Trenton unassisted, and Courtney came back for Frankford, with the assist going to Adams. McDonnell scored from Turland for Trenton, and Leavey from McDonnell. Frankford's final goal came on a play with Rankin, Carey and Mitts.

Jones, o Trenton, had a field day, with five goals and two assists, as did his team-mate Scott, with four goals and three assists. Frankford's top smarksman was Carey with two goals and an assist.

Penalties:

First Period—Carey, Farmer, McDonnell, Scott, McDonnell.

Second Period—Adams, Black.

Third Period—Courtney, Stephens, Carey, Adams, McDonnell, Demille, Black, Leavey.

Trenton—Goal, Hill; defence, Turland, Black; centre, Beale; wings, Jones, Scott; alternates, McDonnell, Barre, Leavery, Istead, Demille, Campney, Terry.

Frankford—Goal, Foshay; defence, Bone, Farmer; centre, Foster; wings, Courtney, Cooke; alternates, Adams, Rankin, Mitts, Stephens, Moran, Reid, Watson, Carey, Belford.

Frankford District Hockey League

Frankford upset Glen Miller 5-4 Tuesday night in Marmora, although it took a Frank Merriwell finish to pull the game out of the fire. Trailing 4-2 going into the final minute of play, Frankford scored three times in a matter of seconds to retain their unbeaten record, with three wins in as many starts.

The play was fairly even in the first period, with the score being tied 1-1 at the end of that frame. Glen Miller completely monopolized the play throughout the second period, scoring twice, Frankford got one. Glen Miller scored again late in the third period, in which they had a decided edge on play until the fateful final minute.

Robert Tomecek was the big hero for Frankford, scoring the winning goal with approximately five seconds to go. Ironically enough, the tying goal was scored by Jimmy Appleby, a goal tender by trade who played forward in the game to fill in on a short-handed line.

The hockey was clean and fast, with only five penalties being issued.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Los Angeles Angels of the Pacific Coast League announced Thursday the purchase of veteran pitcher Joe Ostrowski from New York Yankees.

Ostrowski, 32, has been a relief pitcher most of his major league career. Last season he posted a 2-2 record.

Australian Runner

John Landy, 22-year-old Melbourne university student, is one of the world's top middle-distance runners. He slashed 14.4 seconds off the Australian two-mile mark recently, completing the distance in nine minutes, 1.2 seconds. The time was 20.8 seconds off the world mark set by Belgium's Gaston Reiff. A few days after the two-mile race Landy won the Victorian mile championship in the comparatively slow time of 4:11. It was far behind Gunder Haegg's world mark of 4:01.4 and his own 4:02.2 set at Melbourne in 1952.—(CP Photo.)

Sport in Brief

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Chuck Connors has made his decision. He'll try for hits in the movies instead of on the baseball diamond.

That became official Thursday when the rangy first baseman sent his application for voluntary retirement to President Don Stewart of Los Angeles Angels. He played for Montreal Royals in the International League three years ago.

A former major leaguer with Brooklyn Dodgers and Chicago Cubs, Connors figures at 32 he's reached the twilight of a professional sports career that included basketball as well as baseball.

At present the tall slugger plays the role of Burt Lancaster's pal and Virginia Mayo's sweetheart in "Sulu Sea." That's his fifth part since he parlayed an after-dinner rendition of "Casey at the Bat" and his baseball activities into a movie tryout.

In baseball last season, Connors was handicapped by a shoulder injury and hit for only .259. In 1949 he hit 20 homers for Montreal.

OWEN SOUND (CP) — Rinks skipped by W. W. Barnard of Owen Sound and Jack McVittie of Bracebridge Thursday entered the final round of the third annual Grey Granite Club bonspiel. Ivan Brown of Thornbury and W. McClure of Paisley will clash in the consolation event final.

A native of Buckingham, Que., Sgt. Campbell played with the Senators in 1921 and again in 1924 after playing two seasons with Saskatchewan and Edmonton.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—Sudbury Wolves Thursday night continued their winning ways in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A southern group as they downed the second-place Sault Ste. Marie (Ont.) Greyhounds 8-5.

SUSPENDED 10 DAYS

OLDSMAR, Fla. (AP)—Tony DeSpirito, the leading U.S. rider of 1952, Thursday began a 10-day suspension for interference in a race at Sunshine Park. The track stewards ordered DeSpirito set down for his riding in the second race at Sunshine Tuesday. DeSpirito was riding Hush Money which finished fourth. White Leads Que. Scoring

MONTREAL (CP) — Sherman White, starry forward of Chicoutimi Sagueneens, leads the Quebec Senior Hockey League scoring parade as the drive starts toward the playoffs.

White has 22 goals and 48 assists for a 70-point total, two more than Andre Corriveau of Valleyfield Braves, with 30-38, and Stan Smrke Chicoutimi, with 28-40.

Jean Beliveau, Quebec Aces, with 31 goals, most in the league, and 31 assists, is one point behind in fourth spot. Next is Ralph (Bucky) Buchanan, Chicoutimi, with 63 points.

Warriors Wallop Hershey 5-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Syracuse Warriors walloped Hershey Bears 5-3 Thursday night and moved into fourth place in the American Hockey League.

Sam Casanato, moved from his usual wing position to a defence spot, scored three goals for the Warriors in the second period. Eric Pogue scored for the Warriors in the same stanza and Leo Curick sent a screened shot into the Bears' net for the fifth point in the final period.

The Bears hurled their only threat early in the second period when Lorne Ferguson's goal tied the score. Dunc Fisher and Obie O'Brien scored for the Bears in the final period.

Layne's Manager Dares La Starza To 'Open It Up'

NEW YORK (AP)—Roland La Starza is expected to throw some of his caution aside tonight in a bold bid to knock out Rex Layne and earn a title shot this summer.

The 24-year-old Layne, No. 3 heavyweight contender from Lewiston, Utah, and the 25-year-old La Starza, ranked No. 4, meet in a Madison Square Garden 10-rounder. The 10 p.m. EST bout will be televised across the country.

La Starza is rated a 7-to-5 choice to whip Layne. The winner is almost certain to earn a shot at the winner of the April 10 title bout between champion Rocky Marciano and Jersey Joe Walcott.

Layne and his manager, Marv Jenson, don't want to take any chances on getting sidetracked.

Jenson dared La Starza "to open up and make it spectacular. Let's not stink up the place. If the fight is good the winner will have to get the next chance at the title."

Layne has said "I'm going to knock him out. This is my big chance"

"I'm ready for him," said La Starza. "I'm going to try for a knockout. I know I've been too careful before but I know what this fight means."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

At the afternoon bridge clubs where the main attraction is eats and conversation, you can hear almost anything about bids. They dispense more misinformation than a propaganda machine.

North has the hand you see here:

NORTH
♠ 9 8
♥ 8 4 3 2
♦ J 7 5 2
♣ 9 7 5

I am told the bidding went like this:

South	West	North	East
2 C	Pass	2 NT	3 S
4 C	Pass	Pass	Pass

When south showed disappointment at stopping short of game, it was north who became indignant and said: "My two no-trump told you I had nothing. If you wanted to go to game why not do it yourself?"

North was absolutely wrong. Any opening of two in a suit is a forcing to game signed. It is a positive assurance to opener that the partner will continue to game while they exchange advices.

The north response of two no-trump denied a sure trick and thus discouraged a slam. It did not say the hand had nothing. For all the south player knows, north might still have a dandy suit.

If so, the north suit might be the best trump for their pair if the south suit does not find support. The south four club bid was to show it rebiddable and to await further advices from north.

Remember this: A signal has been used that insists the bidding must not die short of game. Both partners are obligated to stick by this signal. Even the partner who may have nothing.

The four club bid by south is not a game contract. Therefore, it is up to north to see that the bidding does not die there. It is true that north is ready to faint with such a holding. But, the hand has three clubs which are support for a rebid suit. Bid five clubs.

Don't change horses in the middle of your courses.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SATURDAY, FEB. 14, 1953.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—You may be required to do more than just your share (probably work overtime, too!) to make this a worthwhile day. Take it in stride!

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Use extra special care in all matters involving income, expenditures, debts. Also your strong will, clever mind in handling personal problems.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—You born before June 5: fewer restrictions evident. Consistent effort important for all. Geminians born after June 4: be on guard in heart, money affairs.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Natives June 22 to July 7: treat all matters most carefully but without anxiety. All: endeavor to associate with right people at work or play.

June 24 to August 22 (Leo)—Inspiring, productive period. Interesting happenings through those of the Signs Aquarius, Libra, Gemini and Aries.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Scrutinize each problem with utmost care ,especially contracts. Your presence of mind and practicality should aid.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Head up, eyes front! You are mostly on your own. Don't be too ready to confide in others. Be extra conservative in money matters.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Stars stress self-development. Not very favorable period for whims, likes and dislikes. Use your innate ability to discern good from bad, and put deductions to wise use.

Novemebr 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Born before Dec. 7? Day likely tantalizing. Even though you try hard, you may not seem to get results. This outlook is only on surface, so forge ahead.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Money matters, education, legal transactions require forethought. Avoid issues that could react most unfavorably.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—A word to the wise presaged by today's indications: continuous effort not overdone is healthier, more successful than alternate periods of inactivity and rushing.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—May not find it easy today for certain matters. But if you are alert you can expect to do a creditable job. Romance, family affairs highly rated.

YOU BORN TODAY: As Aquarians, you seldom lose your tempers, usually have mild disposition. Are, as a rule, too lighthearted to become melancholy. Of all the Signs, Aquarians perhaps are the most changeable: some of the most forward thinking come under this Sign. Do not allow restlessness or lack of continued urge to hold you back. Avoid careless speech. Birthdate of: Israel Zangwill, great Jewish leader, author.

DODGE DIVORCED

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Mrs. Clara Tinsley Dodge Wednesday was awarded a divorce from motor heir Horace E. Dodge. The 35-year-old Louisville nurse charged abandonment and cruelty. Dodge, of Detroit, did not contest the suit. A property settlement will give Mrs. Dodge nearly $1,000,000.

Youth Released After Serving Time in Prison

TORONTO (CP)—A detective's belief that Ronald Power, 21-year-old former Nova Scotian, was wrongly identified as a hold-up man resulted Thursday in the youth being released from jail after serving 10 months of a five-year sentence.

Power and Michael Nugent were convicted of robbing Robert James Clarke of a wallet containing $50 and sentenced by Judge Robert Forsyth to five years each in penitentiary.

Two days later, Quebec provincial police arrested Cass Martin, who was taken to St. Catharines on a car theft charge. Clarke's wallet containing identification papers was found on Martin.

Detective Dave Graham of Toronto went to talk with Martin and was struck by the resemblance between Martin and Power. He wrote to the attorney-general's department and said he was certain Power had not been in the robbery. "One could easily be mistaken for the other," he said.

Power Appeals

Power appealed and his counsel, G. S. Scully, asked for an acquittal, but Mr. Justice J. A. Hope said he felt there was "a great deal of evidence" and a new trial was ordered.

At the new trial/Thursday, Power was acquitted.

Martin escaped from the Lincoln county jail Aug. 21.

Power said: "It feels good to be out, but I figure I got a pretty raw deal. Isn't there some way I can collect for the time I spent in the Don?"

Attorney General Dana Porter said he knows of no provision for compensation in such cases. The matter is one for the minister of justice, he added.

Commons Defence Committee Defeats Opposition Motion

OTTAWA (CP) — The Liberal majority of the Commons defence committee backed by the one Social Credit member, today rejected an opposition motion for a wide inquiry into Canada's defence department. The vote was 13 to 7.

At the same time the committee heard Percy Wright (CCF-Melfort) say that the department of defence production will hear very shortly from "authorities" about a "certain matter." He earlier defined the matter as correspondence dealing with dishonesty and extravagance on a secret defence contract.

Mr. Wright said "I am turning this matter over to the police."

The committee disposed of one argument after two full meetings but was promptly presented with material for another which will come up again Tuesday.

The vote involved a Progressive Conservative motion that the committee make an interim report to the Commons saying that the Currie report has been fully supported by the evidence of George S. Currie and that Mr. Currie should be asked to investigate the system of accounting, organization and administration in the whole defence department.

In the vote the Conservative and CCF members supported the motion while the Liberal and Social Credit members were against it.

The basis for new argument emerged at the close of the meeting when Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton) presented a new motion. It calls for production of all reports of the chief auditor of the defence department on accounting irregularities in the works services in the period covered by the Currie report.

Why We Say—
POT-LUCK
7-22

. . . Good or bad

It used to be popular for housewives with large families to keep a pot boiling in which scraps of meat and vegetables were kept. There was always stew ready, but how it tasted was just pot-luck . . . depending on what scraps were in the pot at the time.

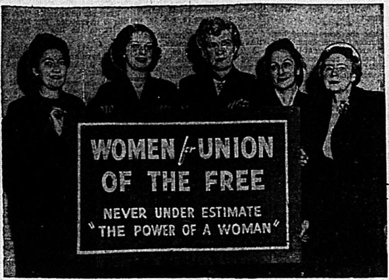
"Never Underestimate the Power of a Woman"



The first international women's organization for keeping the free nations united, known as "Women for Union of the Free" is meeting in New York to begin plans for setting up chapters in all of 48 states and every free country in the world. The purpose of the organization is to educate citizens of the free world, particularly women, to understand the dangers facing the free nations, and to inform them as to proposals being made to keep the democracies united against aggression to prevent World War III. Among members attending meeting are: Mrs. Suzanne Schumann, left, of Germany; Mrs. Hattie May Pavlo, Rye, New York, president of the organization; Mrs. Marcelle Henry, of France, and Mrs. N. C. Stephens of Toronto. — Central Press Canadian.

"He hasn't convinced me of anything," Ginny said stiffly. "But I understand him. He doesn't have a happy life. People — important people — are always after his scalp. They're trying to silence him, and they can't. He has courage, Roy. You'll concede him that, at least."

"He has the courage of his own prejudices," I said. "And he's got brass."

"That shows how far wrong you are," Ginny said. "He isn't brassy at all. He pretends to be hard, because he has to, but it's just pretend, just poise. It's his armour, Roy, and underneath it he's shy and worried and unhappy."

CHAPTER XXIV

That was a new slant on McDonald, I thought, and her reaction disturbed me. Clyde had not won his reputation for a way with blondes by a series of rebuffs. I was sure of that. On one point Ginny was certainly correct: he was a good talker.

"Ginny, it's an act," I said. "He's trying to soften you up to get that story from you. Please don't answer any questions he asks you. Will you promise me that?"

She stepped back and gave me a level look. "Why should I make you any promises, Roy?"

"I can give you lots of reasons," I said. "Just give me a chance to have a busy day, but after the Governor's speech tonight, I'll be free. May I see you tonight?"

She hesitated, and before she could answer, Dr. Arnold came down the stairs, saying loudly, "Ladies, I'm afraid you'll all have to go. Mrs. Warburton is critically ill."

The sound of women's voices in the living room ceased abruptly and there was a movement toward the door.

"You haven't answered, me, Ginny."

"Roy, I don't see how I can see you tonight," she said, with a little shrug. "Mr. McDonald is our house guest, and I have obligations. Don't you see."

I put my hands on both her shoulders and pulled her toward me.

"Ginny," I said, "you're going dancing with me tonight."

She did not draw back, and when my arms went around her she did not resist. She stood motionless, in frigid silence, and I dropped my arms. Then she looked up at me and smiled.

"I tell you what Roy," she said. "I can get another girl and we can all go to the Casino. How's that?"

"Fine," I said. "But who gets the other girl?"

"What difference does that make? We'll all be together."

I looked into her eyes and shrugged. "I'll get the other girl,' I said. "For Clyde. She's right here in the house, and he knows her pretty well already."

Her eyebrows drew together. "Who's that?"

"Her name is Lucy Strawn," I said. "She's the Governor's secretary, and Clyde has been giving her a good deal of his time lately. Yes, I'll bring Lucy."

Ginny's smile did not altogether clear up her frown. She said lightly, "All right Roy, We'll have fun."

I closed the door behind her, and turning, found John Mills and Dr. Arnold talking at the foot of the stairs. I approached them and said, "John, it's noon. I'd better do something about the Governor."

I put on my hat and coat and went out to the car. I drove out of the driveway and turned toward town. Two blocks farther on I cut off toward the highway. There was practically no rain now, and the wind had dropped low in Beaufort's scale. I made good time and turned off the highway at the tourist camp at a quarter past one. I drove through puddles to cabin nine, jumped out, and hurried to the door.

In daylight the cabin was even more desolate than it had seemed by night. The three beds were rumpled and the walls looked drab and streaky. But my stare was not that of a man appalled by terrible decor; my stare was that of a man appalled by the absence of Governor Warburton. I looked in the shower. I looked in the garage. I called his name softly, and received no response.

I ran back to the car, and saw the old man of the night before watching me from a cabin two doors along. He called, "Looking for your friend?"

"Yes."

"He took out a little while ago." the old man said. "Said he was going to town."

I sucked in my breath and said, "Was he alone?"

"Alone? Yeah, he was alone."

• • •

I got in the car and drove toward town. At the first filling station I turned in and used the telephone. John Mills answered and I cried, "John, the Governor's not here!"

"I know," he said. "You'll find him at the Elite Pool Parlor, Roy, down on Columbia Street."

"A pool parlor," I said.

"He telephoned just after you left, Roy," John explained.

"But a pool parlor!" I said. "Is this a rib?"

"Ever try to lose yourself Roy?" John asked. "The movies weren't open yet, and he was walking past the pool parlor and he figured nobody would look for the candidate for Vice President in a pool hall, so in he went. They think he's a drummer, he said."

"He will be a drummer if this ever gets out," I said, and went back to the car.

He was actually playing pool with the table attendant. Completely relaxed, he looked no more like a man who had gone a night without sleep than he did his party's nominee for the Vice Presidency. His coat was off and his shirt sleeves were rolled up and a cigar was clamped in the corner of his mouth as he made his shot.

The six ball dropped in the corner pocket and the Governor grinned, glanced at me, and chalked his cue. He was about to shoot again when I said sharply, "Listen here, we've got to be moving."

"Oh, yes," the Governor said. "that Birmingham speech."

A few miles outside town I turned off on a side road and parked near a highway bridge. The Governor outlined his thoughts to me and I made notes and had roughed out some of them on my typewriter, sitting on the back seat with the machine balanced on my knees, when the Governor pointed out at a quarter to four that it was time we started for Hydetown.

CHAPTER XXV

The radio men came early and set up microphones in the living room, where at 7:30 I was still at work at a desk by the window. I had more than half the Governor's speech written, but I knew there was not time to complete it, so I arranged the notes in sequence and carried it all up to Governor Warburton to lok over.

I tiptoed past the sickroom, where Ruth Warburton still slept, and was approaching the Governor's door when I met Lucy Strawn in the hall. I called to her, "Lucy, you and I have a date tonight."

I saw her quick smile. "My, my, this is unexpected, Mr. Mason."

"It's in the line of duty," I said.

"Oh," said Lucy, grinning. "I should have known. What kind of date is it? You and me and a typewriter?"

"You and me and a couple of aspirins," I said. "We're going dancing with Clyde McDonald and Ginny Perkins."

"That should be fun," Lucy said.

"Your assignment is to take Clyde's attention off the local talent," I said.

Lucy raised her eyebrows. "So it's that way,' she said. "Jealousy intrudes his jaundiced eyes."

"It's nothing of the sort," I said. "I've got to keep Clyde away from Ginny until I can get her promise to keep quiet."

"So," said Lucy, "But why is it so difficult to keep Clyde away? Can't you take care of that little job yourself?"

"She has a date with Clyde tonight."

Lucy grinned without sympathy. "For you I should think you had a little influence."

"She's just a kid from a small town," I said. "Naturally she's impressed with Clyde McDonald."

"I'm from a small town myself," said Lucy. "But even in high school I would have sized up Clyde McDonald."

I stared at her. "You're from a small town?"

"Smaller than Hydetown, as a matter of fact," Lucy said. "I got out of there fast, and if you ask me, I think your little you-all friend has the same idea."

"But what's wrong with that?"

"There's nothing wrong with that," said Lucy. "Except the way I did it, I went to the city and got myself an honest job."

"Well?" I said.

"Well," said Lucy, "I expect there are lots of good jobs in Washington, don't you?" Her grin broadened. "If you know the right people, I mean."

"Ginny's not that type," I said. irritated. "She's not the opportunist type."

"Either she's that type," said Lucy, "or Mr. Mason is sadly deficient in appeal, poor fellow, to yeild the field to competition like Clyde McDonald."

• • •

I grunted and walked on to the Governor's room. If Lucy were right, I saw what I was up against. It would not be easy to prevent Ginny from telling Clyde McDonald all she knew, if that information had a market value. But I did not believe that Lucy was right. Lucy had spoken from personal bias. Because she had been a small-town girl with itchy feet herself, she imputed similar motives to Ginny. The caustic, cynical opinions one woman passes on about another generally make me impatient, but I could not altogether overlook what Lucy had said.

Says German Reds 'Freeze' Population Of East Berlin

Identity Cards Restrict Travel to 20 Miles

BERLIN (AP)—The Russian zone has completed plans to virtually "freeze" its 18,000,000 population, much as the Soviet Union prohibits travel within its borders.

A Jewish refugee who saw the documents before he fled to West Berlin gave the details today. He asked to remain anonymous.

The key to the "freeze" lies in new identity cards which have been printed.

The cards restrict the holder to travel within a certain limit. For most East Germans the maximum will be 20 miles. State and party officials will require special travel orders to go with their cards when they have reason to visit East Berlin.

Anyone caught outside the limit of his card will be in serious trouble.

The cards will be issued, the informant said, the day the federal Parliament at Bonn ratifies the European Defence Treaty. Part of the plan, it was said, is to then proclaim the national army officially and institute a draft law.

Rumors of the "freeze" plan spread through the East zone weeks ago. They contributed to the flood of refugees to West Berlin.

The flood continues daily with another 1,014 reported in the last 24 hours. They included 80 farmers and their families, bringing the total of farmers to 5,639 since last October. They have deserted an estimated 450,000 acres of land.

In-Law Chant Gives Native Stomach Ache

DARWIN (Reuters) — An aborigine named Mick has been "operated" on here for barbed wire on the stomach, an imaginary black magic disease said to have killed many tribesmen.

Mick was admitted to hospital here this week from a remote part of western Australia after he had been "sung" — chanted at—by relatives of his late wife who believed him responsible for her death.

Aborigines believe barbed wire grows in the stomach of a victim who has been "sung."

Dr. John Carter gave Mick a local anaesthetic and pretended to perform a big operation. He suddenly whipped out a beetle which he said came from Mick's inside.

Mick immediately began taking an interest in life again.

21 Killed In Fireworks Plant Blast Near Tokyo

TOKYO (AP) — A fireworks factory near Tokyo exploded today and Japanese police reported 21 known dead, at least 23 injured, 110 nearby homes destroyed and 150 damaged.

The victims — mostly women and girls — earlier had been numbered at between 22 and 25 with an undetermined number missing. Police said the figure might later be confirmed at 22 dead.

Bodies and parts of bodies were strewn all over the scene of the blast, which shook downtown Tokyo 15 miles away.

An AP photographer, Yuichi Ishizaki, reported that eye-witnesses said three explosions ripped the factory in suburban Fuchu.

"Everything is gone," Ishizaki reported. "Only the concrete floors of two of the factory buildings are left, and I saw parts of bodies 200 yards away from the warehouse."

Police said the explosions apparently were touched off by ignition powder in a concrete warehouse. A high dirt bank around the warehouse was breached by the explosions.

The factory was a branch of one of Japan's largest fireworks manufacturers.

Ishizaki said all of the bodies had not been identified by late afternoon. Arms and legs were scattered. Some bodies were pierced with flying debris.

"Some of the families were identifying relatives by underwear, socks and other bits of clothing," he said. "The whole area is smeared with mud from the water and bits of cotton and paper for making fireworks."

Damage was spread over an area several hundred yards from the powder warehouse.

DAVIES DINNER SPEAKER

TORONTO (CP) — Robertson Davies, Peterborough editor, playwright and author, was guest speaker Friday night at the Upper Canada College Old Boys' Association founder's dinner. Mr. Davies, who attended the college from 1928 to 1932, called his talk "Wild Teachers I Have Known, or Through the Educational Jungle with Gun and Camera."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: A weak disturbance over Lake Superior will move eastward across central Ontario bringing light snow to northern regions today. Colder air is pushing south eastward beyond the disturbance.

A southerly flow of warm air will bring temperatures up to 40 in Southern Ontario today. However the colder air from the Prairies is expected to reach southern regions by Sunday. Light snowflurries will accompany the colder air.

Film Head Becomes High Commissioner

OTTAWA (CP) — W. Arthur Irwin, 54-year-old government film commissioner and head of the national film board, is to be appointed Canadian high commissioner to Australia, it is understood.

Mr. Irwin will replace C. Fraser Elliott as high commissioner. No film board successor has been chosen.

Mr. Irwin left the editorship of Macleans Magazine about three years ago to reorganize the board.

Student Plane Missing in N.Y.

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—A search widened today for a plane carrying four Niagara University students who set out to "bomb" a rival campus with leaflets.

The single-engine craft vanished Friday on a flight to Olean—70 miles south—where the "target" was St. Bonaventure University. Niagara's basketball team plays the Bonnies tonight.

The plane took off at 1:30 p. m. at suburban Amherst. It carried fuel for 3½ hours in the air.

Pravda Alleges Israel Behind Vile Plot, Promises Retaliation

MOSCOW (AP) — The Communist party newspaper Pravda charged today that Monday's bombing of the Soviet legation in Tel Aviv was directly connected with activities of Israeli intelligence.

The Soviet government broke off diplomatic relations with Israel following the explosion, which injured three Russians, including the wife of the Soviet minister to Israel. A stern Russian note Wednesday accused Israeli leaders of inciting hostile anti-Soviet action.

The Tel Aviv government denounced the bamb attack as "dastardly", started a roundup of suspects and offered to pay reparations to the Soviets. The bombing was believed to have been in retaliation for recent anti-Zionist charges in Moscow following the arrest of nine doctors —some of them Jewish—accused of plotting against top Soviet leaders.

Pravda claimed the rulers of Israel were so enraged by the charges against the Zionist doctors that they undertook a campaign to incite hate of the Soviet Union and violence against Soviet representatives in Israel.

"A pack of mad dogs from Tel Aviv is repulsive and vile in its thirst for blood," the newspaper declared. It charged the ruling group in Israel had encouraged in every way terrorist groups preparing acts against the Soviet Union.

Pravda said the Soviet people would answer the "Israeli provocation" with vigilance and still more vigilance. "With a red hot iron," declared the paper, the Russian people will "burn out a dangerous disease of terror and liquidate gullibility i all ranks."

It predicted that the Tel Aviv "criminals" will "not escape their just deserts" but will stand before the court of the people and pay in full measure for their evil doings.

Pravda said the Soviet Union had saved the Jewish people from annihilation by Hitlerites during the Second World War and now the Israel Zionists were repaying Russia with terrorist acts instead of gratitude.

WIDE DIFFERENCES SHOWN ON U.S. FAR EAST POLICY

Foreign Affairs Debate Postponed Indefinitely

OTTAWA (CP)—A three-day Commons debate on foreign affairs has brought out sharply-differing party views on the new United States administration's Far Eastern policy.

In the debate that started Wednesday and was postponed indefinitely Friday night, the chief point of contention was the recent U.S. decision to withdraw its 7th fleet from around Formosa, loosing Formosa-based Chinese Nationalist forces against the Red China mainland.

Party attitudes ranged from outright disapproval by the CCF—which contended it might be a step towards world war—to the Social Credit's warm approval and suggestion that it should be followed by a blockade of Communist China coastal trade.

The government steered a cautious course between the two extremes. The official Progressive Conservative view leaned to favoring the U.S. decision.

Pearson Urges Caution

External Affairs Minister Pearson, possibly operating under wraps because of his dual job as president of the United Nations general assembly, urged caution by the Western Powers in hitting aggressors in new places and with new weapons. This might backfire.

He was apparently referring to the China coast blockade, but was not specific, and opposition members called for a more clear-cut statement of Canadian policy. Mr. Pearson's outline was described variously by them as "tip-toeing through the tulips" and "a masterpiece of circumlocution."

After waiting for the last 1½ days for a chance to close out the debate on his motion to deal with external affairs estimates — in which he would reply to criticisms — Mr. Pearson saw speakers of all parties keep the discussion going until the House rose Friday night.

In Friday's continuation of the debate, John Diefenbaker (PC - Lake Centre) — one of his party's parliamentary advisers to the Canadian UN delegation — led a demand for a sharper definition of the Canadian government stand on the Formosa move.

He said Canada cannot adopt a middle course, and uncertainty over her stand is not in keeping with her responsibilities.

Royal Guards Go 'Hopalong'

LONDON (AP)—A detachment of the Queen's Household Cavalry pranced along the Mall today rehearsing for the Coronation procession.

The officer in charge—all dignity and elegance in plumed helmet and breast plate—began having trouble with his horse. It kicked, shied and bucked.

A group of little cockney lads standing on the sidewalk shouted: "Go on—rid 'im cowboy!"

Rosenbergs Now Facing Early Execution Date as Atom Spies; No Record of Pope's Plea

WASHINGTON (AP) — Condemned as atom spies, Julius and Ethel Rosenberg today faced the naming of an early execution date after a mystery-tinged development in their controversial case.

Roman Catholic sources at the Vatican said Friday the Pope had intervened in behalf of the husband and wife whom President Eisenhower has refused to spare from the electric chair.

The apostolic delegation here said appeals for the Rosenbergs received by the Pope had been sent to the justice department without entering "into the merits of the cases." The delegation said this was done last December, before presidential clemency was sought for the Rosenbergs.

No Official Record

But the White House press secretary, James C. Hagerty, said there was no official record of such a Vatican approach. He said, however, there could have been a personal contact with some justice department official before the Eisenhower administration took office Jan. 20.

Former president Truman, in office when the clemency appeal was filed Jan. 10, had no comment. James P. McGranery, Truman's last attorney-general and a prominent Catholic layman, was not reached immediately.

In New York, Judge Augustus N. Hand of the U. S. Court of Appeals turned down a defence request to stay the execution pending an application for Supreme Court review of the case.

Federal Judge Irving R. Kaufman indicated in New York he will set an early execution date, possibly within a few weeks.

Set Date on Monday

He told the Rosenbergs' lawyer, who asked for a delay, that he did not believe "anything can be accomplished in too long a delay except bringing upon the prisoners mental anguish by instilling false hopes in them." Judge Kaufman will set the date Monday. The electrocution, originally set for January 14, had been postponed while the presidential appeal was pending.

The Rosenbergs were sentenced April 5, 1951, after Mrs. Rosenberg's brother, David Greenglass, testified they persuaded him to turn over wartime atomic secrets to a Russian official in New York. The Rosenbergs have insisted they are innocent.

Greenglass and Morton Sobell were sentenced to prison in the case.

Paper Gave No Details

First word of the Papal intervention came out Friday when the Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano said the Pope "had not omitted to intervene." The paper gave no details but emphasized that the action was made public because of insinuations in the Communist press — which has been crusading against the death sentences — that the Pope was not interested in the Rosenberg's fate.

Democratic Criticism Cools With Dulles' Assurance Of Consulting Allies on Moves

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary John Foster Dulles' assurances that the Eisenhower administration will consult Congress and U. S. allies before making any dramatic moves in the Pacific took the heat out of Democratic criticism today.

Senator John Sparkman (Dem. Ala.) voiced the new feeling among congressional Democrats. He said he was satisfied the Republican administration "has slowed down what I was afraid was about to develop into a headlong rush into war."

Sparkman In Debate

The Alabama senator said he felt Senate foreign policy debate stimulated the administration into promising "adequate consultation on a bipartisan basis." Sparkman touched off the debate last week when he asked whether the Korean war would be broadened by President Eisenhower's order directing the U. S. 7th fleet to quit "shielding" Red China from attack by Nationalists on Formosa.

Senator Guy Gillette (Dem. Iowa) said he thinks the administration soon will have to make some other move in the Pacific, adding: "The 7th fleet order is a futile gesture unless it is followed up by some concrete action."

Senator H. Alexander Smith Rep. N. J.), chairman of the Senate Far Eastern affairs sub-committee, put a lid of secrecy on Dulles' testimony in a closed meeting before the sub-committee Friday. But he said he would consult with Dulles on the possibility of releasing parts of the statements which would not endanger national security if made public.

On a CBS radio program Friday night, Smith said British and U. S. representatives ought to sit down and work out a program for cutting off trade with Red China. He commented: "We're in a terrible position (to settle the Korean problem) as long as the British recognize Communist China."

Three Youths Given Terms

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Three of six districts youths rounded up in the wake of last month's wave of break-ins at rural schools were sentenced Friday to reformatory terms.

The others, facing trial in the armed holdup of the King Theatre in Strathroy Jan. 16, were remanded to Feb. 19.

In county magistrate's court evidence was heard on 14 school break-ins and one entry of a private home.

Magistrate R.P. Locke sentenced the three who admitted sharing in three of the school entries to six months definite and three months indeterminate in reformatory. They are: Gordon Westbrook, 18, Michael Peady, 18, and James William Leker, 18, all of Komoka. Each pleaded guilty.

Bit Rough But Still Her Man

PORTLAND, Me. (AP) — Mrs. Bina Evans told a judge Friday that her husband "broke my teeth and my nose, tore my ear broke my arm and some ribs, but outside of that he's an awful good man and there's no one in the world I love more." She contested a divorce action brought by her husband, who charged that the injuries were suffered when she was drunk and fell in the bathroom. Justice Arthur Sewall took the case under advisement.

Spain Reported Raising Price For U.S. Bases

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spain was reported today to have raised her price for an air and naval base agreement with the United States — apparently as a bargaining measure to find out how much the Eisenhower administration may be willing to give.

Agreements covering development and use of bases in Spain by U.S. forces and providing for U.S. economic and military assistance to that country on a limited scale were virtually completed last year under the Truman administration.

But final details were not worked out.

It is understood here the Spanish negotiators are again pressing some demands that had been rejected earlier by the United States. Negotiations had continued meanwhile without these coming up.

What Spain Wants

The Spaniards are now said to be asking that:

1. A total of $125,000,000 in financial aid voted by Congress be made available without any strings attached.

2. The U.S. undertake to modernize the Spanish army, which would mean a large-scale military aid program.

3. The U.S. guarantee Spanish security in a virtual alliance.

Spain would then proceed to work out the U.S. bid for use of bases in peace and war.

FLYING TO HUSBAND

New York (AP) — Film actress Zsa Zsa Gabor will fly Sunday to the bedside of her husband, actor George Sanders, ill in Italy. The Hungarian-born blonde said her husband was in serious condition in Naples as the result of food poisoning.

LEGISLATURE SOON TO UNFOLD PLAN FOR TORONTO AREA

Frost Says Bill Will Be Introduced Feb. 23

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Legislature will learn within 10 days the government's plan for straightening out the tangled skein of municipal affairs in the Greater Toronto area.

Premier Frost said Friday legislation dealing with the conflicting problems of 13 municipalities in the area will be introduced the week of Feb. 23.

He said he is holding up the bill until after the federal budget is brought down Feb. 19, so it will be given comprehensive coverage in the newspapers.

Premier Frost indicated the bill has already been drawn up and will not be submitted to a House committee before introduction. However, he said the government has no intention of trying to push it through without full debate.

"We're going to take lots of time and have the whole thing clear in the minds of all the members, before we put it to a vote," he said.

Legislature business Friday was confined to the appointment of a deputy speaker, tabling of the 1951-52 fiscal report and introduction of several bills.

A. Kelso Roberts (PC—St. Patrick), a Toronto lawyer, was appointed deputy speaker. He is the first member from a Toronto riding to be given the post in 27 years.

County courthouses, clogged with old and useless records, may get a chance to do some housecleaning. An amendment to the Judicature Act was put forth which would allow old records to be destroyed at the discretion of a judge.

E. German Jail Recalls Horrors Of Nazi Camps

BONN, Germany (Reuters) — Communist East Germany has imprisoned 5,000 men and 1,000 women at Waldheim prison, Saxony, under conditions recalling the Nazi horror camps, West German intelligence officials said today.

The chief difference is that Communist authorities have not introduced gas chambers and cremation ovens, the officials said.

Their report was based on the interrogation of prisoners released last October. They said at least 90 per cent of the inmates are political prisoners. Most prisoners sleep on straw sacks on the floor, they said, and some have not had a change of clothing in three years.

Women are housed six to a cell and each cell receives only one can of water daily for all purposes.

All inmates are subject to beatings and "many die partly as a result of their treatment," the report said.

CHINESE NEW YEAR

NEW YORK. (AP) — The Chinese New Year starts at midnight tonight. In Chinatown today, they're already anticipating the advent of the year 4650. Gaily-colored lanterns and other decorations were going up on home and store fronts along Old Pell and Mott Streets.

Rush for Low-Cost Meats Tapers Off But Price War Far from Over

COLUMBUS, O. (AP) — The housewives' rush to the corner grocery for low-cost meats has tapered off, but the price war is far from over.

The price battle was stepped up today as Ohio market men continued to offer slashed prices on home-grown meat to challenge New Zealand competition.

With the New Zealand beef selling at 39 cents a pound, meat markets were deluged with eager customers and at least one store limited the amount a customer could purchase.

Then a Marion beef booster, Merle Wise, began his sale of cut-rate Ohio meat Thursday at 39 to 59 cents a pound. Meat shops in other cities followed suit.

A Cleveland store sold all steaks at 39 cents a pound — offered stewing beef at nine cents a pound while hamburger went for 19 cents.

In most areas buyers were accustomed to the paring of prices. But in Marion — a day after the cut-rate sales went into effect — long lines awaited store openings and owners limited the number of customers permitted in the store at one time to prevent damage.

The quality of the foreign meat came under fire by the Cleveland Retail Meat Dealers Association. It said the New Zealand meat was an inferior grade.

But James Long, manager of an Oberlin market, said customers in the college city of 5,066 liked the imported meat.

Long's market finished selling its first purchase of 6,000 pounds of New Zealand beef Friday, but Long said he has 2,000 more pounds for today.

An outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in Saskatchewan opened the way for the importing of New Zealand beef to the United States. The U. S. clamped an embargo on Canadian cattle, forcing Canada to seek other markets for her meat.

An agreement was reached whereby Canada sold the meat to Britain, taking the place of the previous supplier, New Zealand. In turn the New Zealand beef was sent to the U. S.

Claxton Outlines Four-Fold Role For Reserve Army

Says Regulars Have Nearly Enough for Two Divisions

SHAWINIGAN FALLS, Que. (CP) Canada's regular army already contains "a substantial proportion of the major units necessary to constitute two divisions." Defence Minister Claxton said today.

He said expansion of this full-time force to a strength of roughly 50,000 men "has modified but not changed completely" the role of the part-time reserve force and enumerated a four-fold role for the reserves.

In a speech prepared for the opening of a new armory for Shawinigan's 62nd light anti-aircraft regiment of the reserve, the minister said the reserve force is an important supplement of the regular force.

He listed these objectives for the reserve "as we see them today" without elaborating on his statement that they represent a modification:

1. The reserve army provides men for the regular force. Since Korea started, 10,000 men have left the reserve to go active.

2. The reserve would provide forces "to supplement the civilian agencies to safeguard communications and property and to take the other steps necessary in the event of an emergency until the situation is stabilized."

Source of Trained Men

3. The reserve would provide the source of trained or partially trained officers, NCOs, tradesmen and men to supplement the active forces in the event of an emergency."

"This role of the reserve army has been modifed but not changed completelyin consequence of the build-up of the active force. In the year 1038-39, the strength of the active army was 4,169. It was almost entirely an administrative and training cadre.

"At the time of Korea, in addition to the administrative and training forces, we had six major units in being. Today, however, we have in the active army 26 major units, representing a substantial proportion of the major units necessary to constitute two divisions."

No, Not Then But Should Be From Now On

BALTIMORE (AP)—Judge Herman Moser asked Irving Sammis, 33-year-old television repairman up for sentencing, if he were a triskaidekaphobe. If so, he would postpone sentencing until Monday.

Defence counsel assured the judge Sammis was not a triskaidekaphobe.

Moser then gave the defendant six months in jail and a $1,500 fine for collecting money for supposedly repairing TV sets he didn't actually work on them.

A triskaidekaphobe?

Moser explained it's a person who has certain notions about events that occur on Friday the 13th.

Part of Cheddar Cheese Shipment Now Being Moved

PICTON—Part of a shipment to Britain, 1,800,000 pounds of Canadian cheddar cheese, which has been stored at Picton, is being moved. It is part of a five-million pound order being filled for the British government.

Since the central warehouse at Belleville, and storages in other centres, have been filled with cheese, some of it has been brought here from various parts of Ontario for storage, some at the Prince Edward Fruit Growers' storage and more at the Howard Leavens'plant. In all, two and one-half million pounds has been stored here, under the direction of the Ontario Cheese Producers Ltd.

Some of the cheese is being shipped in box cars while some is being trucked to Belleville for shipment. The cheese is being weighed, boxed, wired and labelled by workmen under the direction of Joe Bey of the Ontario Cheese Marketing Board, with F. T. Hart as official weigher.

The British shipment is welcomed by producers who were becoming alarmed at the great surplus which has been piling up in storehouses.

Mark Golden Wedding

A family gathering Sunday will mark the Golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Smith at Cherry Valley. Mr. Smith still carries on the blacksmith shop, which he has operated for the past 45 years, though he admitted that there is much less business since the tractor replaced the horse to a great extent.

Mrs. Smith was formerly Lydia Ryan and was born in Picton. Mr. Smith was born at Coe Hill but has spent most of his life in Prince Edward County. Both have been active in community work and Mrs. Smith for many years was a member of the Women's Institute.

They have a family of six children, Mrs. Howard Ferguson, Route 3, Picton; William of Conway; Mrs. Stan Hyatt, Cherry Valley; Mrs. Everett Dulmage, Picton; Mrs. David Cole, Northport; Mrs. Walter Kokesh, Belleville. Mr. Smith has a half-brother, Robert Thompson, Bloomfield road, while Mrs. Smith has two sisters, Mrs. Andrew Goodwin, Picton, and Mrs. Mamie Fulford, Windsor.

Harry Leavitt Heads Club

Harry Leavitt was elected president of Prince Edward Rod and Gun Club at the annual meeting. He succeeds William Norton. Eugene Kearney is vice-president; Arthur Steet secretary and Leonard Jones, treasurer. One of the activities during the past year was establishing a new and modern trap-shooting range.

It was reported that part of the dam at Melville, at the head of Consecon Lake, has broken away. This allows spawning fish to run for several miles into the swamps during the spring freshet. As the water recedes, large number of fish are unable to return to the lake, becoming stranded and die. A few stop-logs are required. The club decided to advise the department of the matter and seek a remedy.

Colored Film On Great Britain Shown Men's Club

A colored travelogue of Britain and several other European countries featured the February meeting of the Men's Club of Tabernacle United Church, which was held in the Sunday School room last Tuesday evening.

The travelogue was conducted by Dr. G. A. Stewart, whose son, Robert, now a student at Trinity College, Toronto, did the photography work during an overseas trip last summer.

The pictures provided a fine record of views and famous buildings in England, Scotland, France, Germany, Austria, Switzerland and Holland. During a break in the showing of the pictures, the gathering joined in a community sing-song, accompanied at the piano by Phil Huddleston.

Wives of the members were also present at the open meeting. At the conclusion of the program Evan Barlow moved a vote of thanks to Dr. Stewart.

'Smash and Grab Union' More Active Last Year Than in Two Previous Years Says Report

Members of what police refer to as the "smash and grab union" were more active in Belleville in 1952 than in the previous two years, the anual police department report released Thursday by Chief Constable R. W. Probert reveals.

The "smash and grab" lawbreakers are those who break into buildings and steal what of value they can. There were 18 such cases of breaking, entering and theft in the city last year, as compared to 13 in 1951 and 15 in 1950. Correspondingly, there were three cases of breaking and entering with intent to steal.

Proof that every offender apprehended by police does not surrender meekly was evidenced by the fact that seven officers were assaulted carrying out their duties during the year. Seven cases of common assault were also recorded as well as five instances of assault which caused bodily harm.

In offside financial transactions, the report notes three cases each of forgery and fraud, with an additional 25 involving false pretences.

Gambling Falls Off

The record indicates that illegal gambling fell off somewhat last year—or it could indicate that the boys in the back room are becoming increasingly wary. At any rate, two premises were prosecuted as gaming houses involving nine found-ins. Last year, operators of eight such properties were prosecuted, while the year previous 10 were brought to court.

The number of drunken drivers prosecuted last year and in 1951 was exactly the same—16. There were nine cases of dangerous driving.

52 Theft Cases Reported

A total of 52 cases of theft was reported to police during the year, an increase over the previous two years. Four persons were charged with receiving stolen goods and there were three instances of shopbreaking. One person was held for possessing burglar's tools.

Five cases were registered for uttering false documents. In all, 25 persons were charged with vagrancy during the year.

In sex offences, there were two cases of indecent assault and two of carnal knowledge.

The value of property reported lost in 1952 amounted to $6,866.69. The value of lost property recovered totalled $3,027.15.

Word Received Of Airman's Death In Great Britain

Picton. — Word was received here yesterday that Warrant Officer Steve Bloomer had been killed in a plane crash in England. No details of the accident were received by his father-in-law, James Walmsley.

Warrant Officer Bloomer came to Canada with the Royal Air Force in 1941 and trained at Picton. He was married to Margaret Walmsley of Picton in 1942. He later served in England, Rhodesia and India, and for the past year had been an instructor at Little Rissington, Gloucestershire, England, where the crash occurred.

The funeral took place at Pontypridd, Wales, where he was born 34 years ago.

William Walmsley, Picton, flew overseas last week and was visiting his brother, Rolfe Walmsley in Scotland when they were informed of the accident.

They attended the funeral. Mrs. Bloomer will return to Canada with W. Walmsley in the near future.

MOTORIST KILLED

TORONTO (CP) — George Costron, 33, of suburban Alderwood, was killed early today when his automobile crashed into a concrete support under a subway near his home. Police said he died of multiple injuries about five minutes after the accident.

Correct Styles for All

Miss Mary Carmichael and Mrs. Emily Reid of McIntosh Bros have been graduated from the Gossard School of Corsetry, it was announced today. The Canadian H. W. Gossard School of Corsetry is the oldest of its type in Canada.

Miss Mary Carmichael and Mrs. Reid were awarded the degree of Graduate Corsetieres (G.C.) after intensive study of basic anatomy, figure analysis, fashion trends, merchandising and advertising techniques.

Miss Carmichael stated upon her return from the School that "figure-wise women are depending more and more on correct foundation garments. It is possible for every woman in Belleville to have the new fashionable narrow-look figure in a custom-fit type garment. The work I have just completed taught me that every woman can have this exclusive custom-made fit without paying custom-made prices."

McIntosh Bros. invites everyone to come in and discuss with Miss Carmichael their figure problems. A figure consultation service has been established and will help all women without cost or obligation. — (Adv.)

Price of Eggs Takes One-Cent Jump on Market

The price of eggs took on a small increase today as farmers quoted 50c for firsts and 48c per dozen for mediums. This was a one-cent increase per dozen over last week.

Fowl sold readily at 45c for hens and 50 per lb. for younger birds. A few ducks were offered at 60c per lb.

Potatoes took another drop with vendors quoting $3 per bag and 50c for ten pound bags. Carrots were 35c per small basket, parsnips 50c, cabbages a dime each and sauerkraut 25c per qt.

Pork by the quarter was 32c and 36c for fronts and hinds respectively. Beef by the quarter sold at 35c and 40c per lb. Pike sold at 35c per lb. and herring 35c or three pounds for $1.

There was a fair offering of apples with top grade Delicious bringing from $4 to $4.50 per hamper and 90c per basket. Top grade McIntosh also fetched 90c per basket. Talman Sweets were 75c and Salomes and C grade Spys $3.00 per hamper.

Mrs. E. Badgley Celebrates Her 86th Milestone

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Elizabeth Badgley of Cannifton, who was visiting at the home of her niece, Mrs. Don Brown, 98 Pinnacle Street, was most agreeably surprised when several of her nieces and nephews paid a surprise call on the occasion of her 86th birthday. Among those present was Mrs. H. Collins of Saskatchewan.

The afternoon was spent in a social get-together, and in talking of by-gone days.

Mrs. Badgley was the recipient of several lovely gifts including many cards wishing her many happy returns of the day, and for many more such anniversaries.

Refreshments were served, including a most beautiful birthday cake topped with "86." One of the highlights of the occasion was the taking of a flashlight picture of the guest of honor cutting the cake.

Develop Iron Ore Deposit At Campbellford

(From the Northern Miner)

Two new magnetite (iron) mines are looming for eastern Canada as the result of the successful exploratory efforts of Trent River Iron Ltd., a subsidiary of W. S. Moore Co., a Minnesota iron ore mining and contracting company. After quietly pursuing an intelligent search and exploration program in this country for the past several years, the company has come up with what appears to be several winners. It has interested both Canadian and American capital. Production announcements may soon be forthcoming.

"We are continuing our exploration work in Eastern Ontario and are of the opinion that additional reserves of magnetite will be found. We feel that this section of the province will ultimately produce a tonnage of magnetite comparable to New York State," Warren S. Moore, president of the parent company told The Northern Miner on a recent visit to Duluth, iron mining centre for the Lake Superior region.

Big Potential

These new developments again emphasize the iron potential of this long neglected section of the country. Mining interest was first re-focused here with the announcement that Bethlehem Steel would bring a large body of low grade magnetite into production. More recently has been the announcement that Algoma Ore Properties has located "a substantial and important body of iron ore," near Renfrew, Ont. It is expected that production plans for this latter deposit will be announced at an early date.

Among the properties currently under exploration and development is what is known as the Bristol mine, located just inside the Quebec boundary some 40 miles west of Ottawa. Work to date has outlined a substantial tonnage of magnetic ore which has proved quite amenable to beneficiation. It is quite similar to that being developed at Marmora by Bethlehem Steel. It looks as if both an open pit and underground operation will result.

May Go Underground

A second magnetite deposit of similar proportions has been outlined by drilling two miles north of Campbellford, which in turn is 30 miles northwest of Belleville in Eastern Ontario. This looks like an underground operation. Negotiations are now under way which will likely lead to the early development to production of both this and the Bristol property.

Ed. Note: Bruce Robson of Belleville, was the prospector who found the Campbellford property and was instrumental in getting Mr. Moore interested in the Bristol property.

Three male dogs are residing in the city pound on Cannifton Road, Charles Thorn, dogcatcher, told the Ontario Intelligencer today.

One is a black and tan hound. When picked up it had a collar with a rope trailing from it. The second is a young black and tan part-hound. The other is a Walker hound, black and white with a brown head and with a small patch of brown on its right hind leg.

All dogs are kept 72 hours before being destroyed.

Deganawidah Worked for Peace Five Centuries Ago

Donna Maracle, 14 and Viola Brant, 15, public school pupils from the Mohawk Indian Reservation east of Belleville, read the inscription on a memorial erected in honor of Deganawidah, tribe member back in the 15th century who is credited with founding the first United Nations. The memorial, erected on the scene of Deganawidah's birthplace near the Reservation council house carries Indian symbols denoting peace and union.

Handsome Memorial Honoring Indian Founder of United Nations Idea Will Be Unveiled in Mohawk Reservation This Year

The United Nations Organization formed by world powers back in 1945 and aimed at saving the world from the scourge of future wars was not a new idea.

Instead, the idea had its birth, not in the so-called civilized countries, but among the humble North American Indians more than five centuries ago when five tribes bordering Lake Ontario formed themselves into the Iroquois Confederacy now known as the Six Nation Indians.

That first attempt at uniting the world's peoples was not entirely successful, It met with opposition both from Indian tribes and from the white men, but the Six Nations Indians still have their Confederacy formed back in the early 16th century.

Its founder was one Deganawidah, a Huron by birth and a Mohawk by adoption, whose life ambition was to unite all Indian tribes. To his memory the Akwesasne Mohawk Counsellor Organization of the St. Regis Mohawk Reservation at Hogansburg in New York State has erected a memorial.

Has Share in Honor

And the Bay of Quinte district has a share in that honor because it is at the birthplace of Deganawidah on the site of the present Mohawk Indian Reservation east of Belleville that the memorial has been erected. Next spring or early summer will see the handsome memorial officially unveiled with the chiefs of the Six Nations Indians and other dignitaries taking part.

The story of Deganawidah giving him the honor of founding the first united nations is more than a mere legend kept alive down through the centuries by members of the Six Nations Indians.

The legend is sufficiently factful to be recognized by today's United Nations Organization in New York City and an inscription honoring Deganawidah as the founder of the idea has been placed in the United Nations building there.

It was even appropriate that Mohawk Indians, long recognized as being among the nation's top steel workers, helped to erect the steel for the United Nations building in New York.

Born in Tyendinaga

Legend has it that Deganawidah was born in an Indian encampment near the present council house on the Tyendinaga Reserve. The date of his birth is given as some time during the early 15th century.

At Onondaga, near Syracuse, N.Y., he planted the Tree of Peace which he hoped some day would shelter all mankind. He gave his people the great peace laws which unite them to this day.

"Our strength shall be in union, and our way the way of reason, righteousness and peace," reads the inscription on his memorial.

"I am Deganawidah and with the Five Nation Confederate Lords I plant the Tree of Great Peace . . . Roots have spread out from the Tree of Great Peace . . . and the name of these roots is The Great White Roots of Peace . . . If any man or Nation outside the Five Nations shall show a desire to obey the laws of the Great Peace . . . they may trace the roots to their source . . . and they shall be welcome to take shelter beneath the tree."

Carved Symbols

Indian symbols denoting peace and union are carved on the handsome memorial. Included are the Tree of Peace, the sun and the eagle with a war tomahawk buried beneath the Tree of Peace. The memorial was fashioned and erected by A. C. Campbell, local memorial craftsman, on the direction of Ray Fadden, secretary of the Akwesasne Mohawk Counsellor Organization.

According to the legend Deganawidah was destined by the Great Spirit to band warring Indian tribes together and cease senseless bloodshed. Iroquois tribes had always been at war with one another while other hostile tribes were continually at war with the different Iroquois villages.

It was in the midst of this constant conflict that Deganawidah began to talk about peace among the Indians. Leaving his family and encampment on the site of the present Mohawk Indian Reservation at Deseronto, he crossed Lake Ontario (The Beautiful Lake) in his canoe and paddled up the Oswego River and on to the country of the Onondagas. There he met Hiawatha, the great Indian poet.

Deganawidah was the real prophet and planner while Hiawatha acted as spokesman and devoted helper. Together they united the five Iroquois tribes into one people.

Included in the Five Nations were the Mohawks, Oneidas, Onondagas, Cayugas and Senecas. The Onondagas were made the "firekeepers" with Onondaga the capital. It was here that Deganawidah planted the Great Tree of Peace.

Later the original five tribes making up the confederacy were joined by the Tuscaroras making the Six Nations Indians.

French Ruined Union Efforts

But the early French colonists headed by Champlain and his armies defied the attempts of the Six Nations Indians to effect a peace between them and the English and also worked against the union of all Indian tribes. They did this through the hope of more financial gain through trade with individual tribes.

In their attempt to effect a union among all Indian tribes the Six Nations Indians during the latter 17th century dominated all surrounding tribes from their homeland in Northern New York between the Hudson and Niagara rivers and in their heyday extended from New England to Illinois and from the Ottawa to Chesapeake Bay.

They held this region not by force alone but by an Indian version of statesmanship and an understanding of the principles of peace based on justice and reason.

Deganawidah's ultimate goal of peace among all nations was defeated but the Six Nations Indians, once torn by internal strife, still live on united.

And so tribute to the founder of the first United Nations is being paid by proud descendants of the original Six Nations Indians. Tribute is being paid through the erection of a suitable memorial near the scene of his birth.

Wants Princess To Open House

OTTAWA (CP)—Gordon Graydon external affairs spokesman for the Progressive Conservative party, said Thursday Princess Margaret should be invited to Canada to open the 22nd Parliament in 1954.

He said in the Commons that "officialdom" probably would look askance at his suggestion and that it would require a lot of undercutting of red tape brambles and underbrush, but "where there's a will there's a way."

There was much to be said for having a member of the Royal Family in Canada from time to time to open Parliament and since the Queen herself could not come in 1954 Princess Margaret should be invited.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By
WINIFRED E. WILSON

OUR CHANGING CLIMATE

Away back in the distant ages ice covered a great part of the land which we now call North America. Slowly the ice fields retreated, so that before man appeared here the continent became habitable. Over the centuries there have been vast climatic changes in this western hemisphere, but so very gradual that an individual perceives little difference within his lifetime.

It is from geological surveys and reports of our forefathers that our attention is brought to the fact that nothing is static. We are told that the sea is encroaching on the land in one place, retiring in another; that a certain glacier is moving more rapidly than formerly, that another has practically ceased advancing. Events of this sort, little by little, bring a change of climate, which, in turn, affects plants and animals. And so scientists watch out for activity in various forms of life. Even birds can give the cue as to where we should look for changes.

Changing Habits

Within the last 40 years a number of birds have altered their habits and their migrations. Reports show that certain water, shore, and land birds have been affected by the change taking place in the climate of Greenland. As the winters are less severe now than heretofore, white-winged scoters, greater yellowlegs, American avocets, cliff swallows, crossbills, Baltimore orioles, Canada warblers, and ovenbirds, all species never before 1920 identified in Greenland, have appeared there from time to time. The first record of a black scoter in East Greenland seems to have been in the summer of 1932.

But this does not mean that Greenland has more birds than formerly. Some that enjoyed its past climate are finding present conditions too mild. Consequently, northern horned larks, black-bellied plovers, and pectoral sandpipers are less frequently found there.

Come From Abroad

Since 1935 birds from America and Europe alike have visited Iceland. These include wood warblers, skylarks, Siberian rubythroats, scarlet grosbeaks, pipits, and thrushes — all species that ordinarily avoid cold.

The cardinal brings to our notice changes in Canadian climate. In '33 an ornithologist gave it as a resident from New York to the Gulf of Mexico; by '39 it had spread to the most southern part of Ontario; at Christmas '51 a cardinal was reported in Port Arthur for the first time. If we watch birdlife we will not need weather experts to tell us that our winters are less severe and that we have less snow than our ancestors had.

Brotherhood Week Stresses Value Of Good-Will and Understanding

Brotherhood Week, February 15-22, stressing the moral and spiritual values of a nation embattled in the defence of its democratic principles, opens Sunday as churches throughout the nation hold services keynoting the theme of the observance, Brotherhood — for Peace and Freedom — for Good-Will and Understanding.

The week long dedication is sponsored annually by the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews. Prime Minister, the Hon. Louis St. Laurent is honorary chairman of the observance. J. Gerald Godsoe, vice-president of the British American Oil Company is general chairman.

More than seven thousand communities in Canada and the United States will participate in this year's program marking the fifth annual Brotherhood Week observance and the fifth anniversary of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews. Abroad in the free nations of Europe, World Brotherhood, an organization formed in 1950 to lessen frictions created by national, religious and cultural differences will sponsor hundreds of Brotherhood programs.

The special religious services held Sunday and throughout the week by churches and synagogues will dedicate the peoples of the nation to the Judaeo - Christian concept of the Brotherhood of Man under the Fatherhood of God, according to Mr. Godsoe. Proclamations by the premiers of nearly every province, and the mayors of large and small cities have spurred civic bodies, schools, colleges, fraternal organizations, veteran and youth groups to plan special activities related to the Brotherhood ideal, he continued.

Prime Minister, The Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent will speak on Brotherhood to the nation over the trans Canada network at 6.15 Sunday night. A special plea will be made to the people of Ontario by Premier Frost.

Mr. John Marshall of the Windsor Star, Mr. Werden Leavens of the Weekly Newspaper Association and Mr. J. E. Campeau of CKLW, Windsor, have urged the participation of the press and radio in the campaign. Mary - Etta Macpherson of the Canadian Home Journal has requested the co-operation of her fellow magazine editors.

Heading the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, the organization that sponsors Brotherhood Week are Mr. John Hayes, president of Laura Secord Candy Shops, Mr. O. B. Roger, vice-president of the Shell Oil Company and Mr. Roy H. Thomson of the Thomson Dailies.

Sprightly Play 'The Happy Time' Under Rehearsal by Theatre Guild

Under the direction of Sid Rose, rehearsals are in full swing for the Belleville Theatre Guild's next stage presentation, the comedy called "The Happy Time," which was one of the most successful plays on the New York stage in the last decade, and is to be given at the Collegiate auditorium two nights in March.

The action of "The Happy Time" takes place in Ottawa, Canada, in the early twenties, and deals with the French-Canadian Bonnard family—a volatile, warm-hearted household whose members pursue their individual pleasures in uninhibited fashion, to the dismay of the Scottish matron who had married into their midst and fears their influence upon her adolescent son.

It is an odd household in which to carry a boy over the period of ripening from childhood to adolescence, when he is beginning to learn about the bees and butterflies. With Grandpere Bonnard persisting in philanderings that ill suit the state of his arteries, Uncle Louis continually imbibing from a water-cooler full of wine that he carries with him wherever he goes, and Uncle Desmond proving his numerous conquests with a collection of garters, and with the boy's father amiably tolerant of the antics of his brothers and father, the prim mother has to fight uphill to bring up her son respectably.

Because the family are all inherently generous, sunny-natured, and light-spirited, the play is a felicitous blend of hilarity and poignancy. When it was produced in New York by the team of Rodgers and Hammerstein (authors of "The King and I", "South Pacific" and "Oklahoma!") it had such a spectacular success it ran a year and one-half.

Syl Quinn and Dolly Cane will be seen in the roles of the Papa and Mama of the delightful family of this nostalgic tale of a happy childhood, Jean Sisler will be their 13-year-old son, who is suddenly beset with the adult enigmas of love and truth, Stu Robb and Robt. Temple as the bibulous and the gay-blade uncles, Ray Brule as the goatish grandfather, and Milda Dandeno as the lovely newcomer to the home who makes Bibi aware of his dawning masculinity, and evokes a love from Desmond that leads him to abandon his garter-collection. Others in the cast will be Helen Sulman, Shirley Foster, Frank Deacon and Bert Simpson.

Local Campaign To Raise Funds Off to Good Start

The local campaign to raise funds for the Younger Boys' Parliament got away to a good start over the week-end, according to David Gourlie, Albert College student, who has been named representatives for the Belleville area.

Receipts so far have been encouraging but David pointed out that contributions would have to be increased if the objective of $2,000 for this city was to be reached.

The campaign will last for three weeks.

Mr. Gourlie said that contributions were being received by himself personally and could also be forwarded or left at the Christ Church rectory, or at the Ontario Intelligencer. "We must have increased donations if our objective is to be reached," he said.

He said that work was progressing rapidly in forming a Boys' Work Board with tentative officials already being chosen. The first meeting of the board is scheduled for early in March.

Rev. Lloyd Shorten, Boys' Work Secretary for the United Church, will visit the city this week in an organizational capacity. Mr. Shorten is former United Church minister at Foxboro.

Problem Will Be Carried To Queen's Park

The present problem of transient traders is going to be carried to the provincial government. A notification from the Ontario Chamber of Commerce to the directors of the local chamber, stated applications for amendment of the present legislation would be made to Queen's Park. The correspondence was read to directors at the weekly noon luncheon in the Shrine Club by the president Charles Cawker, yesterday.

In view of the pending situation and controversy over the by-law, the directors were urged to individually support the motion by contacting local provincial representatives to Queen's Park and requesting their support when the brief is presented.

A letter of thanks was received from the Sanders Marketing Research, the brother and sister team, who were guest speakers at the Chamber's annual dinner several weeks ago. They expressed their pleasure at being invited and thanked the directorate for a pleasant visit.

Malcolm Robb submitted his report on the financial aspects of entertaining the speakers for the dinner. Other expense bills were passed by the directors at yesterday's meeting, and a letter of thanks was prepared which will be sent to Mr. Robb for the arrangements be made.

Four new members were accepted into the Chamber: Louis Yanover, real estate; B. D. Gill, William Deline Appliances (Associate); Howard Booth, Booth Radio; Arthur Tomsett, (Tourist establishment).

Six Africans Killed

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters) — Six Africans were killed today by a police patrol rounding up suspected Mau Mau terrorists in wooded hill country north of Nairobi.

The patrol said it ran into a big band of armed natives near Thomson's Falls. It called on them to halt and opened fire when they fled.

It was the second clash in the area this week. Two nights ago police shot and killed two of a party of tribesmen supposedly on their way to recruit new members for the anti-white Mau Mau cult.

Correspondence Turned Over To Mounties

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP said today they are discussing with defence officials correspondence turned over to them by the CCF alleging extravagance and dishonesty in a secret defence contract.

Out of the discussions is expected to come a decision as to whether there is sufficient evidence to warrant a police investigation.

The correspondence was taken to RCMP headquarters Thursday by two CCF members of Parliament, Percy Wright of Melfort and Stanley Knowles of Winnipeg North Centre.

Mr. Wright first disclosed the existence of the letters in the Commons defence committee and later told a reporter they involved allegations of extravagance and dishonesty in a secret defence contract.

It is understood that the CCF made its own initial investigation into the author of the letters and, being satisfied, decided to go to the police. The allegations also are understood to involve persons in relatively high places on a particular project.

Weddings

PYMER — GRAY

MARMORA — A quiet wedding took place on Sunday afternoon at the home of the bride in Marmora township when Mrs. Isabella Gray was united in marriage to George Pymer, of Cordova Mines.

Rev. Norman F. Perry, pastor of Cordova Mines Free Methodist Church, performed the ceremony.

The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. J. Whitney of Cordova Mines.

Immediate relatives of both bride and groom attended the ceremony as well as a few close friends.

Following the wedding, a buffet luncheon was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Pymer will reside at Cordova Mines.

PIXLEY—ROLSTON

A midwinter wedding took place on Saturday, January 17, at two o'clock in the Grace United Church parsonage, Trenton, when Miss Shirley Ann Rolston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rolston, Picton, was united in marriage to Mr. Donald Gardiner Pixley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Pixley, Napanee, Rev. G. A. Puttenham, uncle of the groom, officiated.

The bride wore a suit of navy blue wool with a powder blue hat and navy and white accessories. Her corsage was of American Beauty roses.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Frederick Pixley, Napanee, sister-in-law of the groom, who wore a wool suit of deep maroon with black accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

Mr. Frederick N. Pixley, brother of the groom, was best man.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Lew Reynolds, Belleville. The bride's mother, wore a black dress with black accessories and a corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother was in a navy sheer with silver grey accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

After the reception, the young couple left for a wedding trip to Hamilton and Western Ontario. On their return they will reside at R.R. 1, Napanee.

Women's Activities

ST. ANDREW'S W. M. S.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian W.M.S. met in the school room on Tuesday with Mrs. John Craig in the chair.

There was a remarkable attendance and a most stimulating meeting was enjoyed by all. Mrs. Craig brought a "bulletin board" with pictures and news of missionaries which was quite interesting. Also a "Missionary Library" was a new institution with Mrs. J. Millar as librarian.

Business was discussed. The postponed tea to be held at the manse was changed from the 3rd week of March to the last week. The CGIT are holding a pancake supper on Tuesday to which WMS members were invited.

The World Day of Prayer is to be held in Tabernacle Church on February 20th.

Twenty-eight visits were recorded for the month. Miss Hildur Hermanson was the missionary for whom prayer is made this month.

New Buildings

Mrs. D. Fleming read a letter from Rev. John Elder of British Guiana. He said that Georgetown was the Garden City of the Caribbean. Beautiful new buildings were being erected every day painted in fascinating pastel shades.

As in Canada they have been experiencing some difficulty in getting the teen-agers to unite with the church after they have left the Sabbath School. They were hoping the Church Loyalty League will be an effective link between the school and the church.

Miss M. McIntosh was the devotional leader. Mrs. J. Brisbin rendered a beautiful solo and also read from the study book. The news for February was "Of One Blood—All Nations."

The question was asked "how do we think of the African natives?" Basil Mathews was quoted—"How do we stand as Christians? Who is our neighbor?"

Mrs. Mills interspersed with Bible readings: "What are Christ's teachings?" He gave "eternal principles" on which to base human conduct. He set forth principles good for all time, principles which are not dated. "We must ask ourselves. Who is my neighbor? who is my friend? Are they people with the same likes and dislikes or the same color? We must put our theories into practice and fight for His Kingdom."

Readings of current events were given by Mrs. Brisbin. The tea committee had a busy half hour and good fellowship was enjoyed by everyone.

Kiwanis Ladies Aux. Holds Valentine Bridge

A most successful Valentine bridge and tea was held on Wednesday, in the gaily decorated rooms of the Kiwanis Centre. The bridge was sponsored by the Kiwanis Ladies' Auxiliary and the guests were received by the president, Mrs. Hugh Murray, assisted by Mrs. Frank Creeggan.

After welcoming the guests, Mrs. Murray called on Mrs. H. J. Emerson and Mrs. A. S. Robb, conveners of the bridge, to explain the rules of play. Mrs. Emerson also invited the large number present to attend the May Ball to be given by the same organization in May at the Club Commodore.

Bridge prizes were won by Mrs. Morley Ward, Mrs. H. R. Varcoe and Mrs. G. C. Baragar. Mrs. S. E. Vermilyea won the door prize.

Arrangements for the tea were under the convenership of Mrs. Robert Irvine and Mrs. W. McCreary, who were assisted by Mrs. F. Wotten, Mrs. H. Argue, Mrs. E. Cooper, Mrs. A. Wilson, Mrs. R. Kuntze, Mrs. N. Edwards, Mrs H. Bateman, Mrs. M. Vanner, Mrs. A. Duffy, Mrs. W. Sinclair, Mrs. J. Black, Mrs. H. Fuke, Mrs. J. Kuntze, Mrs. J. Sills, Mrs. J. Allan, Mrs. H. Cross and Mrs. C. Mott.

Mrs. R. G. Clapp, treasurer, presided at the table where monies were collected.

Mrs. Emerson's active committee consisted of Mrs. A. S. Robb, Mrs. H. Carruthers, Mrs. A. O. Drysdale, Mrs. H. L House, Mrs. W. Sinclair, Mrs. H. Trepanier, Mrs. H. W. Fox, Mrs. C. I. Wilson, Mrs. W. C. Allen and Mrs. G. Hosang.

Miss Helen Marsh Is Queen of Hearts

The "Queen of Hearts Ball" at Club Commodore on Wednesday night, was certainly the highlight of the season. A capacity crowd danced until 1.00 a.m. to the music of the Commodores in the beautifully decorated hall.

Mr. Robert Temple acted as master of ceremonies and welcomed the guests to the third annual "Queen of Hearts Ball" on behalf of St. Michael's Sodality.

During the evening several novelty numbers were featured and the winners of the spot dances were Audrey Stuart and Alfred Pago; Margaret Whalen and Jerry Moher; Robert Burke and Joan Milne; Mary Buckley and John Munro. Balloon dance prizes went to Rita Christy and Earl Badgley.

After intermission Mr. Temple announced the big moment had arrived when "Lady Luck" would look down on all the lovely ladies and one would be named "Queen of Hearts."

Queen Chosen

Dancing to the melody "If You Were the Only Girl in the World", ladies were eliminated who were not in evening attire; who wore wrist watches; red roses; platform shoes; ornament in their hair; who had celebrated their second wedding anniversary, until one lovely lady was left dancing with her partner. She was Miss Helen Marsh, Reg. N., Alexander St., Belleville. Miss Marsh was presented with a dozen American Beauty roses by Miss Helen Hudon, president of Sodality, and declared queen by the master of ceremonies.

The song stylings of Miss Sylvia Motley and Mr. Arthur Duby were much enjoyed as were the surprise numbers of Mr. Robert Burke, promising versatile young Belleville tenor.

Patrons and patronesses of this lovely party were: Mrs. J. E. Boyd, Mr. and Mrs. E. Bowers, Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Burley, Mr. and Mrs. P. Cleary, Mr. and Mrs. J. Fitzgerald, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Logan, Mr. and Mrs. H. O'Neill, Mr. and Mrs. C. Philbin, Mr. and Mrs. G. Powers, Miss Helen Hudon, Miss Beverly McCabe, Miss Catherine Meagher, Miss Ethel Joudoin, Miss Catherine Fortin, Mr. Joseph O'Leary and Mr. Edwin Esbaugh.

Women's Institute

MARMORA W.I.

Marmora—The monthly meeting of Marmora Women's Institute was held on Wednesday evening at the home of the vice-president, Mrs. Hogarth Sabine, who took the chair in the absence of the president, Mrs. H. P. Nayler. The meeting opened in the usual manner.

A donation of $10 was voted to the Navy League. The president was appointed as delegate to the town meeting called by Reeve Ritchie Wells for February 18 in the interests of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

A.C.W.W.

A circular letter was read drawing attention to the conference of the Associated Country Women of the World which is being held in the Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto, on August 21. Mrs. M. Kouri is the delegate from the Marmora branch and other members desiring to attend are requested to submit their names without delay as accommodations are limited. $10 was also voted to the Penny Roundup fund.

Mrs. E. C. Prentice reported that a new scrap book had been acquired. Mrs. P. Gordon was appointed convener for a drawing to be held about Easter.

A paper was given by Mrs. E. C. Prentice on the month's motto, "All of us are going to do better tomorrow, and we would, too, if we only started today."

Mrs. Charles Sopha followed with an excellent paper on "Agriculture and Canadian Industries." Mrs. Percy Gray read a paper prepared by Mrs. Ernest Belanger on "Health and Home Economics."

As the program committee took over, Mrs. Ed. Post gave a reading, "Why Not Have a Tea?" Mrs. Sabine followed with two humorous readings after which a contest, prepared by Mrs. E. C. Prentice, on a jumble of letters, spelling the names of flowers, was won by Mrs. Charles Sopha.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the committee for the month.

WALLBRIDGE W.I.

The recent meeting of the Wallbridge Women's Institute was held in the evening at the home of Mrs. Roy Shorey with an attendance of 18 members and a few men as guests. The president, Mrs. E. Phillips, presided.

'Thank you' cards from Mrs. H. Jeffrey, Mrs. Emaline Bruce, and Mrs. Vera Vermilyea were read. Literature on the "Penny Round-up" project, sponsored by the F.W.I.O., was read and discussed. The health convener was appointed to be responsible to choose her own committee to help. Literature for the standing conveners' committee was also given to each convener as well as the address of the district conveners and for the different standing committees.

Girls' Club Work

A report regarding the Girls' Club Achievement Day to be held at Stirling, Saturday, February 21, from 9:30 a.m., to 4:30 p.m., was read; a special invitation being sent to the mothers and members to attend in the afternoon, as it helps encourage the girls in their work.

Tickets were given out to the member to sell on the quilt, the time of the draw being left to the social welfare committee to decide. The concert to be sponsored by the school children was also discussed and left over to be decided at the next meeting, as was the rug contest project.

An appeal for help from the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, was read and the same amount of money was approved to be sent. Health and resolution conveners are eligible this year to attend the Guelph conference, held the first week in May, and that the W.I. send conveners if they wish to attend.

District president, Mrs. Burkitt, sent word to announce that the district is allotted 40 seats for the A.C.W.W. conference held in Toronto in August. These seats are to be divided among the seven branches of the district; each one attending to pay her own fare to Toronto and back.

"Citizenship and Education" convener, Mrs. C. G. Smith, gave the topic, "Hope Report". Much credit is due for the time and effort spent in its preparation and the fine manner in which it was presented.

The first part explained the "Aims of Education"; the second part, the "Development of Education", was given by Mrs. L. Ketcheson, starting from pioneer days to the 20th century, a space of 150 years, inclusive. More studies of educational problems should be made. The third part was given by Mrs. E. Evans, on the "Outline of Education", which was most complete.

A story by Dorothy Thompson, found in the February issue of a woman's popular magazine, under the title, "Do Our Children Need an S.O.S.?" was presented by Mrs. R. Woods, and was also much enjoyed by all.

Program Numbers

The program consisted of a reading by Mrs. F. Tucker entitled, "My Corner in the World", which stated that each one has a corner to fill, if he will. Current events were given by Mrs. A. Lloyd, who said: "The new way they have of cooking today does not appeal to the men folk."

A vote of thanks was tendered to the hostess for her hospitality.

Refreshments served by the hostess and her committee, brought an educational and busy meeting to a close.

Back from China

Free from a Chinese Communist prison, four Roman Catholic missionary nuns arrive in Vancouver from Hong Kong. The nuns were given a public trial in December, 1951, on a charge of "murdering" orphans. SISTERS ALL

By Jean Love Galloway

Mothers everywhere will be interested in the recent ruling of the Toronto Board of Education against the sale of chocolate milk in city school cafeterias . . . For years, doctors and dentists have advised that chocolate milk was detrimental to the health and teeth of children. Yet it is not until this year that the Board of Education of this large Canadian city has taken steps to remove the sweetened drink from their own cafeteries.

At the meeting of the board which ruled out the sale of chocolate milk, it was said that this variety of milk "had been sold at a slightly higher price than the white milk in order to discourage its use."

It is certainly obvious that members of the Toronto Board of Education have fallen down somewhat in their responsibility for the health of those in their care and in their grasp of modern psychology. Anybody in this day who could believe that a slight price rise would discourage sales, needs to get his ear to the ground.

Help

Reading accounts of rescue work at Kingston harbor this week when a multiple drowning was averted, makes a person ponder about the helplessness of help.

Two lads taking a short cut home decided to walk across a corner of harbor ice instead of going around by the road. Only about a hundred feet from shore the ice broke beneath them and they were trapped in a hole.

Passersby gathered promptly to help. Firemen were called. Everybody tried to reach the lads whose heads were bobbing around in the icy waters. But as each prospective rescuer ventured forth on the ice, he too would break through and have to be pulled in. At one time there were as many as seven people in the water.

This near tragedy makes it clear that people can be only a few feet away with all the courage and willingness to help, yet quite helpless in the circumstances.

This incident in Kingston harbor should alert parents all over the country to warn their children against crossing on unsafe ice especially at this season of the year.

Corsages

Young marrieds resent the high cost of fresh flower corsages for special parties. But any girl can make herself a beautiful little corsage or hair decoration by buying one or two fresh single short stem roses at the florist's. Cost will vary from 30c to 40c each.

By winding half a pipe cleaner around the shortened flower stems and enclosing a short bit of the rose leaf stem, milady will be surprised at her own creation. Her 30c or 60c floral piece will draw more compliments than many a professional corsage. Try it, sister.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

It's wise to "Look before you leap"

People call them cliches, those old proverbs, and have a tendency to sneer at them. But somehow, time after time, they prove that the truth behind the symbolic language in which many of them are couched is so right, that one often wishes one had taken their advice more seriously.

There's one old saying which always seems to me particularly appropriate to the woman who falls in love with a married man, burns all her bridges behind her in the expectation of becoming his wife, and then finds he is not going to get his divorce after all. It's the one that suggests it's wiser to "Look before you leap."

Here's the kind of thing I mean, in a letter from a young woman of 27—old enough, I'd say, to have known better:

"About a year ago, I met and fell in love with a man who works in the same office where I do. I was married at the time, and so was he. I had a six-year-old son, and he had two little daughters.

"We went out together a number of times and finally found ourselves falling helplessly in love. After discussing our situation endlessly, we decided that I should leave my husband, with whom I had not been getting along well for some time, and get a divorce. Then this other man would get his divorce as soon as I was free, and we would be married.

"I carried out my part of the bargain, and went to live in a nearby town with the idea of staying there until my marriage to the other man. But presently this man told me that his wife had refused to let him go. He tried every way he could to get her to agree to a divorce, even telling her there was some one else he wanted to marry, but that only made her more determined to hold on to him.

"What I want to know is, should I keep on seeing this man, whom I love and who I know loves me, yet whom I also know may never be free to marry me, or should I stop seeing him? Or, rather, should I try to stop seeing him, because I don't know whether I can do it or not? He means so much to me that I don't see how I can go on if I give him up, yet I am afraid it will hurt me too much if I don't."

Look Before Leaping

If this young woman had been cautious enough to have looked (ahead) before she leaped (out of her marriage), she would almost certainly have been in a far better position than the one in which she now finds herself. For if she had stayed with her marriage until this man had freed himself, she would not now be left stranded without a husband, and with the prospect before her, no doubt, of having to get busy and support herself and her child. She might, if she went about it in the right way, even have righted whatever was wrong between herself and her husband, and been a happy wife today instead of the lonely and discarded girl friend I'm afraid she is going to be.

For the fact, that this man persuaded her to be the first to get a divorce makes me rather dubious about the sincerity of his promise to get one himself. Unfortunately, there are many married men who encourage young women to become involved with them without having any real intention of freeing themselves to marry them.

If it comforts this one to believe that this man does actually love her, and did honestly intend to marry her, as of course it does comfort her, let her keep on believing that, by all means. But, either way, I strongly urge her to make the break and follow it up by removing herself as far as possible from him. If he does love her, and is honest, the whole thing may straighten out eventually, so that they can be together. But any steps to bring this about are clearly up to him. And I think it would be definitely better for this young woman not to lean too heavily on the chances that the marriage may some time take place. Her best plan would be to try to put her attention on the responsibilities immediately before her—which confront any woman with a child, and who has left her husband—proceeding on the assumption that, as she is now, so she is likely to be indefinitely — on her own.

Readers' Saturday Column

By Mary Moore

As you read this it is Valentine's Day. It is my wish that your loved ones are near you, as mine are, and that your hearts are young and gay no matter what the calendar says about your age.

QUESTION:

Will you please give me the recipe for Scottish Black Bun as printed some weeks ago. . . I especially enjoy hearing about Marianne as I wanted to be a nurse but illness ran away with my money. I turned to dental assisting and enjoyed many years work.—Mrs. D. G. MacL.

ANSWER:

Thanks for you good wishes. . . I'm afraid I talk about my two bairns more than modesty should permit. . . but it will out.

SCOTTISH BUN

(As contributed by Marion S.)

Crust: 2 cups flour, 1-4 lb. shortening or margarine, 1 tablespoon brown sugar, pinch salt.

Cake: 2 cups flour, 1 lb. each raisins (seedless) and currants, 2 oz. mixed peel, 1 tablespoon each brown sugar and ground almonds, 1 teaspoon each cream of tartar, baking soda, ground ginger, cinnamon, mixed spice "Jamaica pepper" (the 19th century name for paprika), pinch salt. Mix with lukewarm milk to a stiff dough. Grease tin, line with pastry and put cake dough into lined tin. Cover top with pastry also and press well into edges. Brush top with egg, prick all over top with fork and bake in moderate oven 3 to 5 hours. Use round tin 7x3 1-2 inches if possible.

QUESTION:

Enjoyed and tried several of your recipes. Would you have one for Sweet-Sour Spareribs? We have tried to make this Chinese dish but seem to leave something out that puts the zip into the sauce.—Irene S.

ANSWER:

SWEET-SOUR SPARERIBS

Cut spareribs so that meat is left on both sides of 1 rib. The rib is then chopped in half crosswise and dipped in Cover Batter—To 1 beaten egg and 3-4 cup milk, 1 teaspoon melted fat. Sift over them 1 cup sifted flour mixed with 1-2 teaspoon salt and 1 1-2 teaspoons baking powder. Stir until batter is smooth. Fry in deep or shallow fat until golden. Place in baking dish. Pour over them Sweet-Sour Sauce—1 cup sweet pickle vinegar, 1 cup best tomato catsup, 1-2 cup cold water. Into this stir a mixture of 1-4 cup brown sugar, 2 tablespoons cornstarch until thick and smooth, over heat. Add 1-2 cup chopped sweet pickle, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper. Pour over ribs fried in batter, bake covered at 300 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour. These may be basted once or twice during baking period.

QUESTION:

. . . follow your column every night. . . .have misplaced my copy of Brisket with Onion Gravy . . . would you let me know if the top of the Canadian make of Mason fruit jars—the top with the rubber thereon—can be used a second time or not . . . how long should liver be cooked. . . .I cook pork liver after soaking in cold water 10 minutes and rolling in flour with salt and pepper, by searing it on both sides in hot bacon dripping and then add vegetable water, cover . . . but I think I cook it too long. . . .I wonder if I could use Love's vanilla, walnut and lemon flavorings in cookies?—Mrs. Gordon C.

ANSWER:

If the inner rim of the jar top is completely coated with rubber—and none of the rubber worn away—it may be used again. Yes use the flavorings you refer to in any cookies.

BOILED BRISKET WITH ONION GRAVY

Select a brisket point weighing 4 lbs. or a piece of rolled brisket. In a large kettle or Dutch oven combine 2 quarts boiling water, 1 bay leaf, 2 whole cloves (or more), 2 chopped cloves garlic, 1 small onion sliced, 2 chopped stalks celery with leaves, 2 tablespoons each vinegar and sugar, 2 teaspoons salt. Bring to boil, add brisket, cover and simmer 4 hours or until meat is tender. Water should always cover meat. Lift out meat and slice on hot platter. Strain broth. Saute 2 large onions in 4 tablespoons butter but do not brown them, they should absorb the butter and be limp. Sprinkle over 4 tablespoons flour, stir this in, then gently stir in two cups of the strained broth. Taste—it may need salt and pepper. Pour over meat on platter. Sprinkle generously with chopped parsley.

Actually liver only needs to be cooked until it is "set". If the liver is tough it will require three hours cooking to make it tender but you can overcome this by being very choosy when you buy liver—freshness is of paramount importance. Try to find a butcher who buys young beef and pork, then the livers are tender enough that they may be quick-cooked.

St. Valentine's Day

When February comes 'round once more
And storms beat wildly at the door,
Our hearts grow warm in spite of cold
In memory of a Saint of old—
Saint Valentine who taught that love
In earth below and Heaven above,
Is greatest of all gifts Divine—
A thanks to you St Valentine'

And as each year the time comes 'round
We keep the day with joy profound,
And Cupid speeds his little darts
In many a happy maiden's heart.
No room for hate on this fair day
When love o'er hearts holds kindly sway.
What need to murmur or repine?
The day is yours, St. Valentine!

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Bill's nomination of "the meanest woman" . . . she won't take off her hat in the movies

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

May I, a mere man, have a corner in your column today to nominate as the meanest and nastiest-tempered character the woman who grimly keeps on her hat in a theatre or movie, even when the long-suffering customer behind her most pleasantly and politely asks her to remove her hat? Last evening my wife and I sat just behind two of these Meanies-with-Hats, who glared around at me when I asked them so politely. We had the only two seats left in the movie house. P.S.: We'll try again some other time to "catch" the movie! But really, Mrs. Beeckman, there should be a law against wearing a hat in a movie theatre!—Bill C.

You've said it. . . . and I thank you, deeply. It does seem inhumanly inconsiderate for a woman to keep on her hat in the theatre or movies. And the chances are that if she is this selfish or thoughtless she will be mean enough not to take off her hat when someone asks her politely to do so. And I've observed, as I am sure you have, too, that many people suffer in silence rather than take a chance on being snapped at, or their courteous request heartlessly disregarded. There should indeed be a law!

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Two months ago Hal and I broke up our friendship of between two and three years. We had a serious quarrel and have not seen each other since. We were not engaged, we never spoke of being engaged, but we had frequent dates, really more or less "going steady". During this time I gave him a very handsome gold seal ring, a pair of platinum cuff links, a tie clasp with his birthstone on it, and a very expensive wrist watch. Now I have just been told that he is to enter the Service and will soon leave for camp. My mother and I have talked this situation over and we think that I should ask him to return these presents before he leaves. Don't you agree, Mrs. Beeckman, that this is the correct thing to do?—Dorothy S.

No, Ma'am, I don't agree. These presents were, you admit, merely friendship presents, and it certainly isn't correct to ask the return of "mere friendship" presents. The fact that the presents you gave this friend were expensive and important presents. . . the fact that seems now to be emphasized in your thought . . . doesn't mean that he necessarily should return them (although it would be a good idea for him to suggest their return voluntarily). However, the fact that the presents were such expensive and important presents does show and point-up, unfortunately, your unsure taste in misguidedly giving a man who was "only a friend" presents that would be appropriate for you to give only to a fiance. This experience is an unhappy. . .and costly!. . . lesson for a girl to learn, but, if you are wise, you can make it a constructive experience for your sure and sensible guidance in the future, and that's indeed a most important something for you and your mother to "talk over"!

No tooth-picking. . .no napkin-screen. . .just excuse yourself from table

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To settle a discussion, please answer this: When one is at table and something gets lodged between one's teeth and is most uncomfortable, is it or isn't it permissible to hold up the napkin before the mouth and try to dislodge the something with one's finger or even fingernail?—T. and R.

(a) Tooth-picking of any kind in public isn't proper, because it's mighty disagreeable to observe, even when not in 'plain' view. (b) Spreading out the napkin in an attempt to screen the morsel-removal procedure makes the awkward procedure even more obviously awkward. (c) The sensible thing to do is to say "Please excuse me for a moment" . . .not even necessary to speak about the culprit-lodger . . .and quickly and quietly leave the table.

In a campaign to encourage homemakers to use more canned foods, new recipes have been issued by the Canned Foods Association of Ontario. One in particular—an apple sauce sherbet—sounds like an attractive dessert and one that could be prepared in a hurry if necessary.

Ingredients: One No. 2 can apple sauce; one-quarter cup corn syrup or honey; few grains salt; one tablespoon lemon juice; one-quarter cup orange juice; one-half teaspoon grated orange rind; one-half cup sugar; two egg whites.

Turn freezing regulator of refrigerator to coldest point. Combine apple sauce, syrup, salt, juice and rind with half the sugar. Mix well. Beat the egg whites until stiff; add the remaining sugar gradually, beating. Fold into the apple sauce mixture. Pour into refrigerator tray and freeze. Six generous servings.

Tasty Cake

Something new in upside down cake is the following made with gingerbread mix and canned fruit cocktail.

Ingredients: Two cups canned fruit cocktail; two tablespoons butter; one-quarter cup brown sugar; one-half orange; one package gingerbread mixture.

Drain syrup from fruit into a heavy skillet and reduce by boiling to one-half cup. Add butter and sugar and stir until well mixed. Arrange paper-thin slices of unpeeled orange in skillet and cover with fruit. Mix the gingerbread, following directions on package. Pour carefully over the fruit mixture. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees fahrenheit) about 40 minutes, or until cake is done. Remove from oven and allow to stand five minutes. Turn out on serving plate.

A deep baking-pan may be used instead of a skillet.

Fruit Salad

A recipe for fruit salad follows: Cover a large plate with chicory or lettuce leaves and put a bowl of mayonnaise in the centre. Divide the plate, or tray, into quarters with rows of orange slices and put welldrained canned fruits in each quarter.

The four spaces may be filled with the following: Peach halves filled with cottage cheese crowned with walnut halves; pear halves topped with chili or cranberry sauce; pineapple chunks; well-drained cherries.

This salad may be served with pimento cheese and deviled ham sandwiches.

Last Night's Potatoes

Home economists of the consumer section, Canadian department of agriculture, have a few suggestions about making an appetizing dish from leftover potatoes.

Interest is added to the mashed potato crust for meat-pie by adding a little chopped onion, diced green pepper and celery and grated Cheddar cheese to the potato mixture. This adds to both the flavor and color of the crust.

Meat and potato cakes also are an easy-to-make supper-dish. Combine 1½ cups of diced or ground cooked meat with two cups of mashed potatoes. Add a beaten egg and a little minced onion. Combine the mixture and mould into cakes. Brown the cakes in hot fat and serve piping hot. A can of condensed cream of mushroom soup or cream of celery soup makes a good sauce to serve with the cakes.

Fireworks Forecast When Habs Meet Leafs In Important Game Tonight

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

'OU FIGURE IT!

Three coaches sat down this morning and thumbed their scalps.

Three managers sat down and the look on their faces was not because of income taxes.

Three teams went into a huddle and wondered what would be the outcome.

Three teams are in this wacky section of the district senior "B" group and three teams can finish on top and three teams can be eliminated. You figure it out.

The big upset was Peterborough's clean-cut 5-2 victory over the Kingston Goodyears last night. The flaming Petes battling with their back to the wall, sprang back into circulation savagely, knocked off Stouffville and deflated the surging Goodyears in no uncertain manner.

It is, men, a "rat-race" from here in.

The Goodyears have 26 points, the Glens 24, and the Petes 23.

Right now as it stands our side has the best chance of reaching the charmed circle. In fact they can make the top spot.

The Glens have three games to play. Tonight they meet the Stouffville Clippers. Monday night they trek to Peterborough to meet the Petes. A week from tonight they entertain the Orillia Pontiacs in the final game of the season.

Now what's going to happen?

Kingston has one game left, that with the Petes. Let's repeat: the Goodies have 26 points.

The Petes have two games to play, the other with the Glens in Peterborough on Monday night. The Glens, as stated before, have three left including tonight's tilt.

Here's the possibilities. Dammit why did we flunk mathematics at deah old Picton C.I.? Mebbe they weren't invented when we went to school. That saves somebody a wise crack.

The Glens can win tonight and raise the stakes to 26 points, tied with Kingston. The Petes can defeat the Glens Monday night and get themselves 25 points and if the Glens lose tonight that puts the Petes in second spot.

The big game is the clash between Kingston and Peterborough in Kingston. If the Petes defeat the Glens and the Goodies, they are on top of the heat. BUT, the Glens can win tonight, Monday night and next Saturday night and reach the top slot.

But the main idea is the Glens must win the game tonight against Stouffville so that the butter-making machinery at the Glen Roy Creamery can resume operations.

If the Glens can take the Clippers tonight we can then sit down and do a little sane figuring. And vice versa.

We spoke with two coaches over the week-end.

Johnny Carr-Harris, of the Kingston Goodyears, stopper over yesterday afternoon after seeing his charges safely off to Peterborough.

"Brother, what a team." Johnny almost whispered that one. "What a grand gang of players," he said. Johnny is not given to boasting but after all you couldn't blame the guy for a little strutting after the performances of his charges in their two starts against the Glens under his tutelage. (He didn't know at that time what was in store for the Goodies in Peterborough.)

"The Goodyears," Johnny said, "will be in there in the playoffs." Jim Ellis said the same thing last night about the Petes in Peterborough after the Petes' victory. "Red" Doran said the same thing this morning about his Glen Roys.

"This game tonight," said the sorrel-top, "is the baby. We want it and we're going out to win it."

Summing it all up, it's every man for himself from here in with the Glen Roys having a distinct advantage. If they are eliminated, it cannot be said they did not get the breaks as far as games to be played are concerned.

Walt Gerow's ice hacienda should be packed to the rafters tonight. The Glens are ripping mad, rarin' and ready to go. Stouffville has no idea of letting them get away with anything and the Clippers, according to advance information, are out to blast the city upstarts in revenge for that 2-1 licking the easterners handed them in their first clash of the season. It will be a battle, don't miss it.

Gad, Men What We Like About Talbot In His Modesty---He's Embarrassed

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—It is with a certain embarrassment that we continue to receive well-meant encomiums for having called the turn on what was going to happen to poor Chuck Davey the other night.

Normally we like it as well as the next, but this is different. We tighten up and can't seem to think of anything to say when these TV fans shake their heads in honest admiration and remark that, boy, you sure had it right what Gavilan would do to him.

There is a feeling of getting something under false pretenses. You don't give a man a marksman's medal for shooting fish in a barrel, which is what it amounted to. Anyone who had ever seen Gavilan fight close-up against fellow like Sugar Ray Robinson knew he was a cinch.

All of them said so, too. It was spread out on the sports pages for all to read. It said right there that this campus hero had no business in the same ring with a tiger like Gavilan, that he might get seriously hurt.

The picture tube experts must have read some of this, and yet the evidence is that it didn't change their way of thinking.

No great damage has been done to anybody, fortunately. Gavilan, knowing for sure from the third round on that he had a soft touch, took it extremely easy from there until the ninth, when he finally decided to end the unequal contest. It was not the Cuban's fault that Davey kept getting up.

The boy from Michigan had himself a wonderful payday, better than $40,000, and that should go a long way toward salving the wound of the discovery that he had been used by a soulless corporation. Chances are that he'll never see that kind of money again, though there is no reason why he cannot go on and make more than adequate living out of fighting for a number of years.

In his own class, he is good We imagine the television sponsor will welcome him back with open arms the next time he appears

Canucks Hot on Wings' Tail While Desperate Smythemen Strive to Hit Playoff Spot

By CRAIG SWAYZE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

This may be St. Valentine's Day, but Dan Cupid won't get much business around Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens.

Montreal Canadiens skate into town tonight for the season's second Saturday night clash against their arch-rival Maple Leafs. There is every indication the meeting could be one of the roughest of this five-game National Hockey League week-end.

The league-leading Detroit Red Wings hold a three-point edge over Montreal and the Canadiens will be driving hard to close the gap. The Leafs, tied for fourth with Boston Bruins, by winning could move into a third-place deadlock with Chicago Black Hawks.

Toronto has won four of its 10 games against the Habs this year while losing five and tying the other. Although only two goals separated them, Montreal has shut out Toronto in their last two games.

Biggest news out of the Canadiens camp was the return of Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion, the high-scoring right winger who brought the Calder rookie award to Montreal last season. He injured his shoulder in practice 10 days ago.

Geoffrion will be gunning for his 20th goal of the season.

Toronto's attack will be sparked by the return of key centre Max Bentley, missing for several weeks with a recurring back injury. Bentley will be working between George Armstrong and Harry Watson.

Tonight's other game sends the cellar-dwelling New York Rangers into Boston against the Bruins.

A full slate of games is scheduled Sunday night. Toronto moves into New York while Montreal visits Boston and Detroit is at Chicago.

LaStarza Wins Split Decision Over Rex Layne

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—Roland La Starza is aiming at a title shot with Rocky Marciano after his split decision over bullyboy Rex Layne in a rugged Madison Square Garden bout.

"I thought I beat Marciano the first time," said the 25-year-old New York heavyweight Friday night in his dressing room. "I feel he is easier than this guy (Layne)."

Jimmy De Angelo, La Starza's manager, led the "we want Marciano" chorus.

"They ducked us after they beat us on a split decision three years ago," he said. "Now we want that rematch."

Marciano must first defend his title against Jersey Joe Walcott at Chicago April 10. Roland and Jimmy both will be pulling for Marciano.

Layne, the split decision lostr, from Lewiston, Utah, thought he had beaten La Starza. He has fought Walcott, Marciano and Ezzard Charles and holds decisions cot nd Charles.

"Charles would beat La Starza," said Layne. "Marciano is a better hitter. I don't know about Walcott."

The crowd of 7,180 paid $24,139 gross to see the televised bout. and judge Arthur Susskind 6-4, both for, La Starza. Judge Harold Barnes saw it for Layne 5-4-1.

It was a rugged battle with mudh tugging and wrestling in the late stages. Layne bulled La Starza in the first round and almost dropped him with a smashing right to the thin.

Boxing Bosses Offer New Plan For Middleweights

NEW YORK (AP) — The 11-man middleweight boxing tournament will be scrapped and a new two or three-man plan is to be offered today by Bob Christenberry, chairman of the New York State athletic commission in joint action with the National Boxing Association.

Christenberry admitted the field had been narrowed to two or three after a telephone conversation Friday with George Barton, president of the NBA. He declined to name names until he has talked with Abe Green, NBA commissioner.

Jack Solomons, leading London promoter, visited Christenberry Friday, insisting that any bout involving Britain's Randy Turpin must be for the title vacated by Sugar Ray Robinson. Solomons took the stand that he didn't care whether it was Turpin-Bobo Olson or Turpin-Charles Humez as long as it was for the championship. He refused to enter Turpin in any eliminations.

School Court Tourney Set For Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—Charles Box, secretary of the Ontario Federation of School Athletic Associations, announced Friday that the group's annual basketball tournament will be played here March 6.

Eight teams representing Ontario school groups will enter. The A group will include the Toronto district, Toronto secondary, Niagara district and Hamilton champions. The B group takes in eastern Ontario, Western Ontario, Northern Ontario and central Ontario.

Box said the OFSAA is particularly concerned with the good and ill effects of athletics on elementary and secondary school students. The Ontario department of education has already granted funds for OFSAA's research into the defects of school sports.

The association hopes to standardize school sports and assist in co-ordinating the efforts of Ontario schools toward athletics.

Boston 'Teener' Holds Lead In Skating Contest

DAVOS, Switzerland (AP)—Seventeen-year-old Tenley Albright of Boston, who overcame an attack of polio in 1947, held a comfortable lead Friday in the women's world figure skating championships.

If the pretty blonde senior of Manter Hall, Cambridge, Mass., continues her sparkling performance in the free skating Sunday, she can become the first American girl to win the world title.

Valda Osborn of England, was third with 456.1, and Suzanne Morrow, 22, of Toronto, fourth with 450.7.

Indians' Scuttle Sarnia Tars 16-8 To Move Closer to Leading Mercurys

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sarnia Sailors are hopelessly tangled near the bottom of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A standings, With less than a week of the regular schedule left, it appears as if they've lost all incentive to win.

Friday night at Stratford, the Sailors were drubbed 16-8 by the runner-up Indians, one of the season's most one-sided games, equalled only by Hamilton Tigers who have been able to salvage but two victories since the start of the schedule.

While Stratford was going through the motions to move within three points of the idle first-place Owen Sound Mercurys, Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen consolidated their hold on third spot with a 4-2 win over the fifth-place Chatham Maroons.

In Northern Ontario Hockey Association play, Abitibi Eskimos took a 3-1 lead in their best-of-five semi-finals with a 5-3 decision against Noranda Copper Kings in Porcupine Mines Senior A play.

North Bay Trappers moved to within two points of the second-place Sault Ste. Marie (Ont.) Greyhounds by nosing out the league-leading Sudbury Wolves 6-5.

Billy Flick scored four times for Stratford while Herve Dejordy sank three goals. Jackie White, Bill Walsh and Lloyd Ferguson potted two each. The others went to Mickey Roth, Denny Flanagan and Hugh Wilson. Mack Beaton tallied three times for Sarnia. Vern Gardiner tallied twice while Tom Emms Al Lewsy and Haddy Haddon notched singles.

Howie Lee, Don Rope, Don Bauer and Charlie Brooker scored for Kitchener. Jackie Price and Ernie Dick came through for Chatham.

Don Hogan tallied twice for North Bay with the others going to Bo Elik, Chick Cecchini, Bill Dwyer and George Gosselin. John Mestan banged in a pair for Sudbury. Yacker Flynn, Lennie Speck and Roly McLenahan grabbed singletons.

Tonight's OHA Senior A play schedules Chatham at Owen Sound, Hamilton at Sarnia and Stratford at Kitchener. North Bay plays at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., in the NOHA and moves to Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Sunday.

Dutchies Give Barrie Flyers Assist In Thumping Toronto Marlies 8-6

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts, mired deep in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A cellar, have assumed the role of "spoilers" in the nine-team circuit.

Friday night they upset the league-leading Toronto Marlboros 8-6 while Barrie Flyers were edging the Quebec Junior Amateur Hockey Association Montreal Canadiens 3-2 and moving to within a point of the Dukes' top slot.

Guelph Biltmores defeated the JAHA Quebec Citadelles 7-5 in another interlocking game while St. Catharines Teepees rallied to down Windsor Spitfires 2-1.

Bilts Win

Graham Joyce, Gregg Hicks and Buddy Horne scored two goals each for the Greenshirt cause while Marc Boileau and Ken Collins added the others. Jerry James and Bill Harris notched a pair apiece for Marlboros. Wally Maxwell and Dave Reid shot singletons.

Orv Tessier, Don McKenney and Doug Mohns came through for Barrie in its important win while Phil Goyette and Doug Lilley were the Canadiens' scorers.

Jim Connelly tallied three times for Guelph while Bill Tonegusso came through twice. Danny Blair and Birley Dimma added singles. Camille Henry and Raymond Cyr sniped a pair each for Quebec. Jackie Leclere collected the fifth goal.

Danny Poliziani and Billy Haas were the St. Catharines marksmen while Elmer Skov notched the lone Windsor goal.

Tonight Guelph moves into Oshawa while St. Michael's is at Galt. Sunday Quebec plays in Windsor while Montreal Canadiens meet Marlboros and Kitchener play St. Michael's in a Toronto twin bill. Montreal Royals visit Three Rivers in the JAHA.

Green Wins First Lap Dog Sled Derby

STE. AGATHE DES MONTS, Que. (CP)— A former cross-country skier from Morin Heights, Que., who traded his hickory blades for a sled and a team of Siberian huskies, captured the first lap of the three-day Laurentian international sled dog derby Friday.

Basil Green, driving a team of nine thoroughbred huskies from the Bryar Patch Kennel of Centre Sandwich, N.H., showed his heels to the 15 other starters. His time for the 20-mile run was one hour, 33 minutes and 23 seconds.

Second was Bill Shearer, veteran driver from Boston, who drove his team of 11 "woolies" over the course in one hour, 35 minutes and 13 seconds.

Flyers Humble Quakers 7-2

(By The Canadian Press)

Edmonton Flyers humbled Saskatoon Quakers 7-2 in a Western Hockey League game Friday night. Three soft goals within 2 1-2 minutes of the second period broke up the tight game.

Len Haley Ching Johnson and Jim Anderson notched two goals each for the Flyers, Dutch Reibel adding a single. Jack Evans and Cy house connected for Saskatoon.

New Westminster Royals edged Vancouver Canucks 5-4 after building up a 3-0 first-period lead. Gord Fashoway paced the Royals with two goals. Claude Robert, Pete Durham and Blinky Boyce fired singles. Billy Wylie, Walt Atanas, Les Hickey and Larry Popein sank the Vancouver markers.

Tacoma defenceman Buck Jones suffered a stick in the eye as the Rockets downed Victoria Cougars 6-3. Tacoma goalie Doug Stevenson was knocked cold in the final period when the puck hit him on the chin. The game was delayed 20 minutes while he got some stitches.

Frankford Bowling Loop

FRANKFORD— Frankford Bowling League, Division "A", saw action this week, with no change whatever in the standing. Ray Scott's Outlaws took five points from Jack Farley's Jack's Jokers, and have only to coast now to clinch first place. Ross Huffman's Racketeers dropped five to Karl Austin's Curley's Crew. Gib Gilmour's Gib's Gang took five from Bob Arbuckle's Hopefulate.

Standing: Outlaws, 109; Racketeers, 91; Gib's Gang, 88; Hopefulate, 84; Jack's Jokers, 77; Curley's Crew, 74; Robbers, 72; Jets, 49.

Frankford district league hockey team continued to pace the loop, as they chalked up a 6-4 victory over Springbrook Thursday night in Frankford. The game was very even all the way, and with Frankford leading by a single goal in the third period, it looked as if Springbrook might knot the count. A Springbrook rally kept the Frankford net minder on his toes, until Frankford broke away for the goal that clinched the victory.

In the other game of the double header, Glen Miller had their hands full to down Johnstown and Centenary Combines by a 9-5 score. Johnstown played by far their best game of the season, but Glen Miller was a little too much for them.

B.C. Youngsters Aim For Curling Title

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP)—Tommy Bebb wanted to be a hockey player. Ralph de Pfyffer and Bill Gaddes are skiers at heart.

Their common objective: a curling championship.

These three youngsters, along with classmate Don Gillespie, won the provincial title by an unprecedented second chance and will carry the British Columbia banner into the Dominion high school curling finals which open Monday in Saskatoon.

De Pfyffer, playing third, won three titles last year at the Canadian junior ski championships in Vancouver.

Skip Bebb is the only really experienced curler on the team and he turned to the game only after reasons of health conspired to keep him off the hockey rink.

Gillespie, the rink's second, did a bit of curling in his native Dawson City but took it up in earnest only after the Kelowna Curling Club began promoting the sport among juniors last year.

Bebb organized the rink late last autumn and the group clicked. They developed a smooth draw style that has confounded older and more experienced opponents.

The rink entered the semi-finals of the provincial championship last month but was eliminated in the semi-finals by Cranbrook, which went on to take that title—temporarily.

Fortunately for Kelowna a replay was ordered this week when it was discovered that the Cranbrook rink had used two members over the age limit set by the Dominion Curling Association.

In the replay the reorganized Cranbrook rink was eliminated and Kelowna won the title Thursday with wins over Salmo and Nelson.

Bebb, who moved here from Dauphin, Man., four years ago is 18 years old and in his final year at high school. He was introduced to the game by his parents.

De Pfyffer and Gillespie are also 18. Gillespie, while attending high school in Dawson, was chosen as the Yukon's representative on a tour of Britain sponsored by British industrialist Garfield Weston.

Gaddes, at 16, is the youngster of the rink. He is grade XI. Both he and de Pfyffer were born in Kelowna.

Track Meet Dates Set

MONTREAL (CP)—The Eastern Canadian indoor track and field championships will be held at Montreal Forum March 20—the Canadian Legion's seventh annual meet.

Norman H. McLeod, meet chairman and vice-president of the legion's provincial command, said Friday night that sanction of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada and the Women's Amateur Athletic Federation has been received for 18 championship events. Additional events will include public school and high school relays.

H...mm Not Bad, Look at This

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Jockey Club said Friday it made a net profit of $99,811 in 70 days of racing last year.

Its gross profit was $425,798 before taxes, depreciation and other charges. During the year it acquired three companies which operated Ontario tracks, increased its stock.

It has purchased, since the end of the fiscal year, the Thorncliffe Breeding and Racing Association, the Napanee Driving Park Association, the Chatham Driving Park Company and the Essex Racing and Athletic Club.

ATTACKS REFEREE

TORONTO (CP)—Defenceman Kent Douglas of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior B Weston Dukes was automatically suspended Friday night after attacking the two officials during a game in suburban Weston.

Douglas had been given a major penalty for a fight with Brampton's John Slawson. He climbed out of the penalty box to attack the referees.

Weston won 5-2 from Brampton.

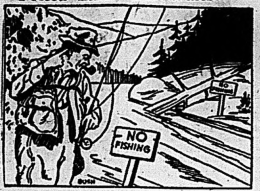
Posted Lands and Waters



By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT

(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables)

It is a fortunate thing for all of us who enjoy our leisure time with rifle, shotgun or fishing rod in hand that this country of ours has been endowed so liberally with that priceless commodity, the great outdoors. Even though the ranks of the hunters and fishermen of the nation are increasing in geometric proportion, there is still room for all.

Gradually, however, the picture is changing. Lands which once — not so long ago — were hunted without question and lakes and streams which were open to those who wished to fish them now are fringed with a series of signs, warning the public not to trespass.

To a fellow who has once known this country as a wide-open playground where he and his companions could roam at will, a string of trespass notices is a depressing sight.

Knowing as I do the abuses of hospitality which the landowners have suffered at the hands of unthinking or don't-give-a-hoot individuals, I can't find it in my heart to blame the landowners too much. Just the same, trespass notices make unpleasant reading.

Enjoy New Country

The individual can assure himself of hunting territory and fishing waters by joining a club which owns or controls such property. This step, however, is apt to narrow his scope considerably. All of us, I think, enjoy hunting new country and fishing new waters.

If a man does not want people on his property, he has every right to post it against trespass and to prosecute those who do not obey his warnings. With fishing waters, however, his postings rights are not so clean-cut.

The laws which fix the rights of riparian owners in the various states are both conflicting and confusing. The difficulties probably can be accounted for by the customs of the old lumbering days.

Then the only way to bring logs from the forests to the mills was by water. Thus, most of our trout streams and bass rivers have been used to float logs at one time or another. In this way, public easements were created which allowed the use of the streams for the general good of all.

These easements were, of course, confined within high-water marks. Naturally, there would be little reason for a lumberman, driving logs, to wander away from the bed of the stream. When the log-driving days were over, however, and the numbers of the fishermen began to increase, things began to grow somewhat complicated.

Law suits between landowners and fishermen resulted, and decisions were handed down by the courts of the nation. There is little uniformity in these decisions. Some of them arrive at strange conclusions.

Unusual Laws

For instance, there is one in New York State which allows a man free gangway in a boat along a stream whose banks are posted by riparian landowners. However should that man or his boat, or his oars or push pole, touch the botton of that stream in passage, then the man becomes a trespasser and can be prosecuted.

Maine, a noted vacation state, gives every possible break to the fisherman. By state law, every lake or pond of a fixed minimum acreage — I think it is five acres but it may be ten — is automatically public water and cannot be posted. Moreover, the public has an easement which grants access to that water over the land of riparian owners.

At the present time there is a friendly test case being tried in the courts of Missouri. The fishermen and landowners of that state would like to have a clearer idea of where they stand in the matter of fishing waters.

On November 19 last, Judge Gordon Dorris of the Circuit Court handed down a decision which should be of nation-wide interest. The ruling was most definitely in favor of the fisherman.

That decision states, in part, that the waters of the Meramec River "at points described in the petition, although flowing over privately owned lands, are public waters and subject to public travel by those who desire to wade it or float down it in boats."

The ruling was in the case of George N. Elder against J. M. Delcour. Elder stated that he was travelling by canoe, fishing in and upon the water course of the Meramec River, and wading on the river bottom and along its banks, "all the time staying well within the high water mark."

Elder said that he came upon a wire obstruction in the nature of a water gap across the river. He asked the court to set forth his rights as a fisherman and those of Delcour, the landowner.

Portage Permitted

Continuing his opinion, Judge Dorris stated that Elder has the right to fish the stream, subject to the regulations of the Conservation Commission and the laws of the state. He has the right to make portage, carrying his boat on the bank around obstacles in the stream.

He is subject to liability only for damages he might cause the landowner if he failed to use proper caution to protect the landowner's property. In other words, he can be sued only for actual damage caused by his transit over the other's land.

Further, the fisherman "has the right to put in, tie up or camp on said stream so long as he uses the stream bed, gravel bar, or clearly recognizable area over which the stream flows during the varying stages of its flow."

The defendant's attorneys at once appealed the case to the Springfield, Missouri, Court of Appeals. The case is expected to be carried to The Supreme Court of the United States for eventual and final ruling.

What effect his case will have on the posting of fishing waters the country over is anybody's guess at present. Meanwhile, it shows a tendency for the pendulum to swing away from closed waters and toward our former state of fishing waters being open to all.

Bruins Recall 'Red' Sullivan

BOSTON (AP)—Boston Bruins annouhced Friday that under a directive issued Feb. 7 by the central registry in Montreal they have made George (Red) Sullivan, 23, a member of the club.

To make up for his recall from Hershey the Bruins assigned winger Leo Labine to the American League team.

Sullivan had been recalled on an emergency basis twice to fill in for ailing forwards.

Under an agreement between the National and American Leagues any player recalled in an emergency has to be returned as soon as the parent organization reaches full strength in the player's specialty—forward or defence.

Boys Disappear After Breaking Station Window

Three teen-age boys were having a big time on the market square near the police station as they batted a frozen chunk of snow around with their hockey sticks.

Market vendors were showing their displeasure as the flying bit of ice narrowly missed shins and ankles. But the boys kept on playing.

Then it happened.

In his enthusiasm one lad shot the chunk of ice a bit too high. In the police station the desk sergeant looked up as the clink of shattered glass broke the silence. Investigation revealed a broken window in the upstairs courtroom, the telltale chunk of ice resting on the floor.

The officer picked up the chunk of ice and started out the door. In less than a minute he was back.

Yep, you guessed it, the boys with their hockey sticks and skating paraphernalia had disappeared.

POLICE BLOTTER

Canadian National Railways police have reported that six box cars spotted on a siding leading to the city industrial area were entered. Police were unable to say however if anything was missing from the cars and said they would have to check the contents.

A small pup which darted out from the curb and under the wheels of a passing car was killed yesterday afternoon on Front St. The matter was reported by A. Dickens, 169 N. Front Street, driver of the car.

A local junk dealer complained of two juveniles, who he said, had attempted to sell him scrap metal that he already owned. It was claimed that the scrap had been taken from a railway car of scrap metal, which was being loaded by the dealer.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The trouble with most poor bridge partners is not with a lack of intelligence. It is because they try to remember complications where the simplest rules should be followed without change.

There was the north hand you see here:

NORTH
♠9 5 2
♥A J 3
♦10 8 6 3
♣J 4 2

South opened with a bid of two spades, a forcing to game bid. In answer thereto, immediate response of two no-trump is signal reply for denying a sure trick; after which he shows what he does have.

When responder has a sure trick, he should not reply with two no-trump. It should be anything but two no-trump in the order of choice in T-A-N; take-out, assist, no-trump.

This is the distinction an opening two bidder has for knowing if the pair has slam material. If responder denies a sure trick, it is unlikely the pair has a slam between them.

If, however, the immediate response is other than two no-trump and thus responder admits a sure trick, a slam is probable. It is then a matter only of finding out what is trumps, if any; and enough aces and kings.

North lacks a biddable suit for a takeout. He lacks what would be adequate support for an assist of a spade suit bid only once. So, with a sure trick he bids three no-trump; not two.

When this happened, I am told that south then bid four no-trump and north passed. The excuse given by north was that the bid of four no-trump by south showed intention to play it there; not slam asking.

What north did was try to complicate the simple rule he knew, that four no-trump asks partner how many aces and kings he has. Here he attempted to read a new meaning into the bid.

Four no-trump was not used for playing at that contract. It asked for aces and kings. It said south was prepared to go to slam in something after north replied again. Stop mixing your thinks.

BANCROFT

Home Heavily Damaged by Fire

BANCROFT — Fire on Tuesday night heavily damaged the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Holland, located on 62 highway three miles south of here.

Members of the Bancroft fire department rushed to the scene and with the help of friends and neighbors were successful in bringing the blaze under control and saving many of the belongings of the family of five.

The fire is believed to have originated in an overheated stove at the rear of the house.

Mr. Holland is employed by the Department of Highways here.

TWEED

High School Trims Marmora

Tweed — In a good game of interscholastic hockey Tweed high school vanquished their Marmora opponents on the latter's rink on Friday afternoon by the score of 7-5. Superiority in combination was a factor in Tweed's win but had the homesters settled down in the initial period as in the closing one, the result might have been in their favor. Larkin for Tweed proved a tower of strength getting four goals unassisted and giving MacMillan an assist in the first goal of the second period. Woodcock got Tweed's other two goals each on an assist from Thompson. For the losers O'Neill got their only goal in the first putting Hickey's pass to good account. Brady scored for Marmora in the second period, an assist going to T. Prooks. Brady scored twice in the third, the first on Hickey's assist and the next on T. Brooks' assist. T. Brooks unassisted got the last goal of the game.

Tweed: Goal D: LeSage; defence P. LeSage, Curry; centre MacMillan; wings Woodcock, Lynn. Alternates McGrath, Cassidy, Rivers, Larkin, Thompson, Morton.

Marmora: Goal M. Walker; defence T. Brooks, Lynch; centre Brady; wings Wright, Darrah. Alternates, Price, VanHeuklehom, H. Brooks, Hickey, Corrigan, McInroy, Clemens.

Referees: W. Jones, Marmora; B. Hunter, Tweed.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Here we go on the awards circuit again! statuettes and plaques are popping up all over the place.

Within a few days, there were the TV academy awards, the movie academy nominations and the photoplay award dinners. Also in season are the award events of the Screen Directors Guild, Screen Writers Guild, Redbook, Look, Pic and Click.

The TV academy's Emmy statuette may yet become a full sister to the austere Oscar. That will take a little time, but this year's TV academy event was a professional show. Sole hitch came when emcee Art Linkletter ran through three microphones before finding one that worked.

The TV affair seemed to have even more excitement and electricity than the movie event. Maybe that's because it was held at a dinner, as the Oscar events were in pre-war days. By limiting attendance to a select audience, the sponsors provided an atmosphere that was tense and responsive.

It's possible that the Oscar presentations can be held in more intimate surroundings, now that the event is being televised.

There has been some clamor for the TV academy to make more award categories and honor writers, singers, producers and directors.

The movie academy has insisted on rewarding every creative branch of picture-making. That's nice for the creators, but it merely bores or confuses the public. Why not just cite the best pictures or TV shows and let all the creators take the bows.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Business interests, selling, new contracts, unique deals on favored list. Personal affairs come in for share of advantages.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Yours is a level head and an alert mind to use today to further sound ideas. Don't look for too quick returns, go along without haste or worry.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Influences stimulating for you who help yourself rightly. Mercury lends mild rays for your work, business matters.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—If you conduct your affairs sensibly and avoid unpleasant controversy, you can expect appreciable gains. Best rays after 5 p.m.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—Some irritating tendencies concerning personal items. Be wise, sidestep unnecessary disputes; don't be dictatorial. Silence is golden now!

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Mercury, your planet, should be helpful in both mental and business problems now. Outlook generous if you don't worry over unimportant matters.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Commodities for betterment of home, matters required to help others are auspicious now. Be co-operative; cultivate friendships.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Friendly rays abound in your day. Show Scorpio's better side always; you have much talent, use it to advantage.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Stimulating outlook for necessary projects. Indulging an avocation or health giving activity on favored list. You may have to double effort for better progress.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Looks like some heavy going ahead. But don't let it affect bright attitude and you will carry on with fair success.

YOU BORN TODAY: generally mild, sympathetic. This is commendable in most instances but it can lead you into troubled circumstances. Sometimes form opinions before you know the facts; watch that! Aquarians succeed best in pursuits which require concentration and steady application. Can do well as inventor, artist, writer, musician, merchant.

Allied Soldiers Hurl Back Seven Red Attacks

SEOUL (AP) — Allied soldiers hurled back seven Communist attacks and killed or wounded 200 Reds as bloody fighting erupted across the 155-mile Korean battle front today.

In the air, three B-29 Superforts followed up a navy strike by dumping 30 tons of bombs on a Red marshalling yard near Wonsan, on the east coast.

Planes from the carriers Kearsarge and Philippine Sea reported destruction of eight supply buildings and damage to four others at Wonsan Thursday.

Allied infantry and artillery repulsed the Reds' Friday the 13th attacks along the front.

South Koreans killed or wounded 72 Reds in stopping a Communist jab at Anchor Hill at the eastern end of the battle line.

The Communist attack, tripped off shortly before midnight, continued until a heavy Allied artillery barrage drove the Reds back about an hour later.

The Communists threw three platoons — 100 to 120 men — into an attack on an Allied outpost east of the Pukhan River on the central front. Allied defenders were forced to pull out temporarily, but smashed back after an hour-long artillery barrage softened up the Reds.

Second Man On The Ticket

By Edwin Lanham

I knocked on the Governor's door, and his cheerful voice called, "Yes, I'm ready."

The Governor opened the door. He had shaved and changed his clothes. He had had the forethought to cram an extra suit into the Gladstone that had been travelling with him about the country, by plane and John Mills' car.

I said, "I think we got away with it, Governor."

We found John Mills standing guard at the front door. He beckoned to me and said, "Roy, those reporters want to watch the Governor make his speech. What do you think about it?"

"Keep them outside," I said.

"Now wait a minute," the Governor said. "Seems to me they've got a right to be here, Roy."

"All right," I agreed. I really had nothing against newspapermen. Just Clyde McDonald.

John and I hurriedly carried chairs from the hall and from a room opposite that John called the music room. When we had arranged the chairs in the living room John went back to the door and let the reporters in.

There were half a dozen of them, and John pointed to a row of chairs as they filed into the house. Last in line was a tall, deaconish man who showed John a faint and rather sour smile. His rasping voice said, "Where's the Governor?"

I said quickly, "Only the press is allowed in, Mr. Fisher. I'm sorry."

Melvin Fisher raised his thin eyebrows. "Only the press?" he said. "I'm the mayor of Hydetown young man, come to pay my respects to Governor Warburton."

"After the broadcast, Mel," John Mills said. "Come back after the broadcast."

But a genial voice interrupted. "Why, if Mel wants to listen, I don't see why he can't," Governor Warburton came forward smiling. "I guess I can stand it if Mel can. How are you, Mel?"

Fisher gingerly put out a hand and the Governor shook it. The mayor said, "Welcome home, Willie. I had a little speech I was going to make when I met you at the train tommorow, but I have not practised it up yet." He showed his thin smile again. "Matter of fact, I want to talk to you about that. I'm wondering what the plans are for tomorrow." He added hastily. "We're all mighty upset about Ruth."

"We'll have to call the reception off, Mayor," I told him.

"Willie, it's pretty near time." John Mills warned. "Better get in to the microphone."

CHAPTER XXVI

John led the Governor into the living room and I went into the music room and switched on the radio. I was afraid my own nervousness would show if I stayed in the living room, and would affect the Governor. Melvin Fisher followed me in, and said as I bent down to the dial, "What I want to know is what to do with those 250 straw hats."

"Straw hats?" I said.

"And sunbonnets," he said, "for the kids. We got all those straw hats and sunbonnets for the kids to wear in the parade."

I shrugged my shoulders. The program had already begun in Birmingham and a United States senator was introducing the Governor. I sat down to listen to the Governor's speech.

When he started speaking the Governor's tone was low, and I saw the radio engineeer fiddling with his dials, but as he warmed up, his voice gained power. I waited the time when we would have to lay the manuscript aside and speak from the notes. There had been so much on the Governor's mind the past 48 hours that I was afraid he would have trouble speaking extemporaneously, but I should have known the Governor better. He went on speaking from the notes without a pause.

He had ten minutes yet to go when I heard a knock on the front door. It sounded loud in the hushed house, and the radiomen turned their heads and frowned. I hurried to the door and opened it. Ginny Perkins stood at the sill, and Clyde McDonald's bulk loomed behind her.

• • •

I motioned them into the music room, and indicated chairs, but before he sat down Clyde said, "Roy, it's too bad about Ruth Warburton. I met the lady at the convention and she's okay."

I met his small eyes; there seemed to be no cynical gleam.

"Why, thanks, Clyde," I said. He lighted a cigarette and dropped into a chair, and I looked down at him, wondering how much Ginny Perkins had to do with it, and how much of it I could believe.

Lucy Strawn tiptoed downstairs before the Governor had finished, and appeared smiling at the door of the music room. She had been a busy girl in the hour since I had seen her in the hall, and her entrance was effective. Clyde McDonald rolled his head around to look at her, and Ginny's shoulders became noticeably erect.

The radio drummed with applause from faraway Birmingham meeting, and I got up and turned it off. I imagined that in Birmingham, Bill Evers breathed a sigh of relief as I did. In the room across the hall the reporters were crowding in around the Governor, and I hastened over to run interference. But the Governor chose to remain and answer a few questions. His wife was doing well, he said, as well as could be expected. They were awaiting the crisis and he would remain at her bedisde until it had passed.

The reporters moved on to the door, which John Mills held open, but Melvin Fisher lingered, and approached the Governor diffidently. His rasping voice was pitched low, and sounded unnatural, "Willie, I'm right concerned about Ruth," he said. "If there's anything I can do, I wish you'd call on me."

"Thank you, Mel," the Governor said. "I will. Indeed I will."

Melvin Fisher smiled, gave the Governor's hand a disengaging shake and turned away. John Mills let him out the door, then pushed it hard shut.

From the stairwell a voice called, "John, have the reporters gone?"

"Yes, all gone Agnes.'

The Governor heaved a mighty sigh, and said, "Well, that's over."

He grinned at me, and my answering grin froze on my face as a clear singing came drifting down from the floor above.

"Will," it said, "come on up hello."

I lifted my eyes and saw Ruth Warburton there at the head of the stairs, standing in her pink negligee with one hand on the railing.

• • •

She was not aware, as I was in every jumping nerve, that Clyde McDonald was there in the house. Sitting in the music room just across the hall. She thought that all the reporters were gone, and she didn't see Clyde until Clyde's red head appeared under the hall chandelier and his sharp eyes turned staring toward the stairs.

Ginny Perkins cried, "Why, it's Mrs. Warburton!"

Lucy Strawn had the presence of mind to whirl on the stairs and call, "Somebody telephone the doctor. She must be delirious. Roy, call the doctor quick!"

"I'll do it," John Mills said.

Clyde McDonald stood with his feet wide apart.. "What's going on here?" he said and slowly turned to face the Governor. There was a wise, malicious smile on his lips. "So she's got pneumonia, has she?"

Governor Warburton acted with the characteristic hard-hitting Warburton directness. He hit hard and with excellent direction and Clyde never saw the fist coming. Neither did I, until I heard a solid blow and saw Clyde's heavy body topple backward in the hall.

I looked down at his slack face and said, "Governor, I guess that does it."

"It was worth it, Roy," said Governor Warburton grimly, but with a note of uneasiness.

Clyde McDonald opened his eyes and lay staring up at Governor Warburton, but he made no move to get up from the floor. Lying so, he had the composure of a man in control of events; he did not have the look of a man who had been knocked down.

I caught the Governor's elbow and urged him toward the stairs, whispering, "Let me handle this."

Governor Warburton strode on up the stairs in grim silence, and I turned back to Clyde McDonald. He was sitting up now, and Ginny Perkins had knelt beside him. Her blue eyes were big and her face was flushed with excitement.

Clyde looked at me and said, "What's the matter with the guy? What did he do that for?" His voice was aggrieved.

"The Governor's under a pretty tough strain, Clyde," I said. "You know that."

"He hit a member of the press," Clyde said solemnly. "He can't get away with hitting a member of the press."

"Well, you can't get away with making cracks when his wife is critically ill."

Clyde grunted and fixed his wary eyes on me. "Roy, what is going on here. You're not kidding me. She's no more sick than Ginny here."

"You can ask the doctor about that."

"You've got something there." His eyes brightened. "I'll get a medical opinion on it, all right."

"Dr. Arnold should be here in a few minutes."

"Who's he? The local vet?"

"He's the leading physician of Hyde County."

• • •

Clyde grinned without humor. "Fine. The leading physician of Hyde County attends the wife of the candidate for Vice PPresident, stricken with double pneumonia. What's his name again, Dr. Pellagra?"

I said quickly, "The Governor's personal physician is on his way here. Meantime, Dr. Arnold is doing all he can."

"Dr. Arnold really is a good doctor, Clyde," Ginny said. "Ask anybody."

It was the first time she had spoken since the Governor had knocked McDonald down, and we had both forgotten she was there. Clyde looked at her, put his hand on her shoulder, and said, "Honey, you're sweet. I bet he treated your measles, didn't he?"

"He cured them, too," Ginny said.

Clyde patted her shoulder, but spoke to me. "Roy, I know I'm not going to get anything out of you, and I'm not going to try. But I'm beginning to see the light. You can go up there and tell your candidate he won't get away with it. You can tell him I'm going to get the facts and I'm going to use them."

I hurried down the stairs, and found a dejected group assembled in Ruth Warburton's room.

The Governor got to his feet. "But see here, Roy, even though he did see Ruth on the stairs and even if he does suspect what's going on, he has no proof. He has nothing to go on; besides that. I tell you, we're climbing molehills again."

I shook my head. "There's plenty to worry about. Clyde McDonald is far from stupid. He has the imagination to figure the whole thing out, and probably he already has. All he needs is the proof, and I'm afraid he can get it."

The Governor's eyes darkened. "What do you mean, Roy?"

"All he needs is a foundation," I said. "He can build the structure on that, typical McDonald-style architecture. The foundation is that sheepskin coat story. If he gets that out of Ginny Perkins he'll build his story on it."

John Mills frowned. "You mean to tell me Ginny knows that story?"

"That's it."

He shook his head dolefully. "Then she'll tell. If there's anything in it for her, she'll tell. But what's in it for her?"

"A little trip to Washington," Lucy said. "Maybe a mink coat."

"I don't agree," I said. "I think you've got Ginny wrong."

"Roy," Lucy said. "Someday you'll find out that women are just born materialistic."

"At any rate, we're not resorting to bribery," the Govenor put in. "This situation is questionable enough as it is."

"But wait," Lucy interrupted. "Governor, maybe we can't bribe her, but it's all right to red-apple her a little, isn't it? Let's serve up our nicest, reddest apple."

The Governor said, "Meaning Roy?"

Ruth Warburton inspected me and said, "Why not? Roy, you're an attractive man, you can do it."

"Roy," said Lucy, "are you prepared to make the sacrifice?"

I scowled and said in a voice sharp with irritation, "What am I supposed to do, marry the girl?"

"I mean something to get her out of town," Lucy said. "A job. Governor, if you're elected you could give her a job in Washington, couldn't you? That wouldn't be bribery?"

"I can always find a job for a friend of Roy's," the Governor said.

"Then ,Roy, we've got work to do," Lucy said. "Distasteful as it is."

"I never had an assignment I liked better, Lucy," I said.

As we drove away Lucy said, "Know where this place is, Roy?"

"Of course," I snapped. I had forgotten to ask, but was obsinate enough not to admit it. Its name was a clue, so I drove out of town on the main highway, in the direction the car was headed. We travelled two miles, and saw neon lights on the roadside spelling out Route One Casino.

"Your job is to concentrate on Clyde," I told her. "Keep him busy. Dance with him. Keep close to him. Make yourself as obnoxious as possible."

"Meaning that should be easy?" she said.

CHAPTER XXVIII

The casino was crowded, although it was a weekday night. Apparently the observance of Warburton Day had already begun in Hyde County. The Casino was a juke-box joint, with booths along the wall and space for dancing in the centre, but tonight the juke box was silent and its spectral colors did not flow.

We found Clyde and Ginny in a remote wall booth, and the greeting I received from Clyde was hardly a greeting at all, although his eyes approved of Lucy. He was sitting beside Ginny drinking beer, and he made no move to rise. The bench opposite was unoccupied, and Lucy and I sat down.

"Roy," Clyde said. "I've been thinking it peculiar the way you keep popping up. You were in Hydetown last night when I got here, and this morning you showed up on that train with Ruth Warburton, Ginny tells me. How do you do it?"

"Clyde," I said, "for your information, Mrs. Warburton's temperature shot up a full degree."

"Then it's 105 now," Ginny said. "That's pretty high."

"Yes," I said.

"Oh, quit kidding," Clyde said. His face was flushed and in another man I might have thought the cause was a sense of shame at his behavior. He pointed a finger at me and said, "He won't get away with hitting a member of the press."

"Why don't we forget all that?" Ginny Perkins said softly. "Let's have fun."

Clyde fingered his left eye. He glanced at Ginny who said, "No, I don't see anything yet. Don't worry about it."

"I'm getting a mouse, though," he said. "I can feel it. Let me have your compact, Ginny." He took it from her and held the mirror up to his eye. "It's beginning to swell," he said morosely. "Right here by the nose. See Ginny."

She put her hand on his and said tenderly. "Sweetie, don't worry about it."

"Clyde, Ginny's right," I said. "Let's forget it. Let's have a drink."

"A drink??" he said. "This county is dry, except for beer."

"They serve setups," Ginny said "But you have to bring your own bottle."

"There must be some place in Hydetown we can get a bottle," I said.

"Yes, I know a place," Ginny said.

"Then suppose I get one," I said. "How about coming with me and showing me where to go?"

"All right," Ginny said, and Lucy gave me an approving glance. But as Ginny started to her feet Clyde said. "Not so fast. You're horning in a little bit, aren't you Roy??'?'

"I don't think so."

"I think so." He sent the words sliding out of the corner of his mouth in the tough-guy way of talking he affected. "Ginny's my date."

Lucy said, "Let's all go."

Clyde looked across at me, suddenly shrugged. "Oh, all right. You and Ginny go Roy. But hurry back." He gave me a one-sided grin. "I'm in a pretty lousy mood tonight. I don't get clipped by a potential Vice President every day." He put his palms on the table and pushed himself to his feet. "And I don't like it," he said. Abruptly he walked away.

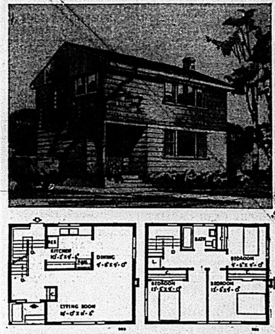
HOUSTON'S "HOME OF THE WEEK"



This attractive three-bedroom, two-storey house was designed by Edwin Raines, Winnipeg architect. Its well-balanced exterior appearance is highlighted by the recessed front entrance with full-length side lighting which provides good light for the hall. Although a small house, the first floor room arrangement gives a feeling of spaciousness. The service entrance at the rear is handy to the kitchen and gives ready access to the basement as well. The bedrooms feature larger than average clothes closets with sliding doors while a cupboard at the head of the stairs gives ample storage for linens.
The dimensions of the house are 28 feet by 22 feet with an overall floor area of 1,192 square feet and cubic measurement of 16,260 cubic feet. Working drawings for this house, known as Design 503, may be obtained from The Houston Co. at minimum cost.

Hint United States May Use Atom Bomb In Korea

Gen. Van Fleet to Appear Before Congress Committee

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whether atomic weapons should be used to win the Korean war is certain to be among the questions asked of Gen. James A. Van Fleet when the former 8th army commander goes before congressional committees next month.

There was some speculation the same question was up for discussion at a top-level White House meeting today. If it was, presumably several new factors would be taken into account:

The stockpile of A-bombs for tactical use on a battlefield is growing;

The army has a new big-calibre gun it claims can shoot atomic shells;

Intensified pressure at home for ending the war.

So far, the answers of most military leaders have been against using nuclear weapons, for both military and political reasons.

Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, repeated in an interview recently that he sees nothing to be gained now by using the atomic bomb tactically.

Atomic explosives can kill everyone above ground within the great radius of the blast, pulverize equipment and burn what is left. But the 155-mile line of the Chinese and Korean Reds is dotted with bunkers ranging from 20 to 50 feet in depth, capped with earth and sometimes concrete. Except for a virtually direct hit, they would withstand atomic attack.

Bombs or shells set to burst upon impact with the ground, however, could produce highly-effective cratering and earth-shock results.

Since the army announced last fall that it has new 280-millimetre guns capable of shooting atomic shells, there has been growing talk about the possibility of using such weapons in Korea.

While a few such guns are in existence and have been demonstrated in firings of conventional ammunition, there is nothing to indicate that the first experimental atomic shell has been fired. That may be tested this spring at the Nevada proving grounds.

Aside from the tactical factors, military men do not discount the possible bad effect through the whole Asiatic world — enemy, neutral or friendly — of using the mass destruction weapon on Asians.

Nor can the possibility be ignored that Soviet Russia, with its own A-bombs, might take this as a signal for joining in and making it a world war fought with nuclear weapons.

Day in Prison Is Penalty For Maid's Murder

KARACHI, Pakistan (Reuters) — Mannawar Jehan, senior begum of Junagadh, today was sentenced to one day in jail and fined 6,000 rupees ($2,250) for her part in the death of her 13-year-old maid, Banu, Jan. 23, 1952. Junagadh is a former princely state of India.

Another maid, Allah Rakhi, said her mistress had tied Banu to a bed and beat her with a cane because she had used the begum's bathroom. Allah Rakhi said Banu died four days later and was buried at night.

Winter in Mean Temper Across Land on Week-end

TORONTO (CP) — Old Man Winter gave the back of his hand to most of Canada during the week-end, sending citizens scurrying for snow shovels or buckets of sand.

Soggy wet snow or freezing rain swept back into most Eastern Canadian regions while light flurries followed by continued below-zero temperatures were Western Canada's fare.

An Atlantic coastal storm poured freezing rain over most of the maritimes during the night. However, temperatures are rising in its wake and extremely mild air is spreading into the area with temperatures in Nova Scotia rising into the 40s.

Light snow and freezing rain peppered most of Ontario Sunday with the eastern sections of the province due for more snow today. However, northern and central sections will have mostly sunny skies with near-zero temperatures.

It was 25 below zero at Prince Albert, Sask., this morning while Winnipeg reported 18 below and Saskatoon 13 below.

11-Year-Old Boy Hit-Run Victim At Georgetown

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

An 11-year-old boy hit by a truck which did not stop as he walked home after a game of cowboys and Indians was one of six persons to die violently in Eastern Canada during the week-end.

A survey showed five were traffic deaths. Of the total, Ontario had four fatalities, all of them traffic, and New Brunswick two, one of them traffic.

Ross Dudley Peters of Georgetown, Ont., was found by his mother in a clump of bushes near the road after he had been struck by a truck. Police later arrested Joseph Fry, 23, and charged him with manslaughter.

Other Ontario deaths: George Costron, 33, of Alderwood, when his auto crashed into a concrete support under a subway near his home; Mrs. Colleen Moore, 23, of Toronto, when thrown from her husband's car in a head-on crash near Hamilton; Mrs. Anabelle Younger, 68, of Barrie, struck by a car.

John Carvell, 52, of Saint John, N. B., died in hospital of burns and other injuries suffered when an oil tank exploded at his home. William Dunlo, 52, was fatally injured when his dairy truck was struck by a train at a level crossing at Woodstock, N. B.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: A severe storm moved rapidly northeastward - battering the Atlantic coast Sunday. Strong winds snow and rain are continuing this morning in the Maritimes and northeastern Quebec.

Cold Arctic air pushed across Ontario Sunday night. Snowflurries are accompanying the strong northwest winds today. Winds will become light Monday.

67 Cases Beer Seized at Party

PICKERING (CP)—Police raided a St. Valentine's dance party at the Rouge Hill Golf Club Saturday night and seized 67 cases of beer.

Lockhart Trinnell, Pickering police chief, said the names of 200 guests were taken down by the officers and charges of being found-ins will be laid.

The party was being held by the AFL union representing employees at the Johns-Manville Company plant in Scarborough, a Toronto suburb.

46 BELIEVED DEAD IN PLANE CRASH IN GULF

17 Bodies Recovered

Darkness Halts Search

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A fourth life raft from the National Airlines DC-6 plane that plunged into the storm-tossed Gulf of Mexico with 46 persons aboard was found empty today "apparently ending all hope for survivors."

Three other life rafts—all empty —were found bobbing on the choppy waters yesterday by an armada of planes and ships that combed the waters.

Account For All Rafts

The U. S. Coast Guard said the fourth raft was recovered, "accounting for all of the rafts and apparently ending any hope for survivors." The raft had never been inflated.

The Coast Guard said even if survivors had managed to get on the rafts that the rough waters would have probably washed them overboard.

The ill-fated four-engined plane, flying in 100-mile-per-hour winds, was en route from Tampa, Fla., to New Orleans when it crashed Saturday afternoon less than five minutes from possible safety.

Many persons prominent in business and society were aboard the big airliner when it left Tampa at 4 p. m. EST Saturday for the 419-mile run across the Gulf. It was due in New Orleans at 6:25 p.m.

A search, started when the plane failed to arrive, expanded hourly despite 20-foot waves which hampered rescue vessels.

It was the first fatal crash by U.S. domestic airlines since a National DC-6 fell at Elizabeth, N.J., Feb. 11, 1952.

At Miami, Fla., National's vice-president in charge of operations, Capt. E. J. Kershaw, said the DC-6 in Saturday's crash may have met "tornado conditions."

Former General, Actor's Father Dies on Coast

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Peter Lawford's father, Lt.-Gen. Sir Sydney Lawford, who once objected to his son's acting in movies but later not only approved but did a bit of acting in them himself, died Sunday. He succumbed at 87 after a relapse of influenza.

He objected when Peter acted in several British movies as a boy but thought his son might get the acting bug out of his system. Later, after world travels, the family settled in Florida. With family funds frozen by the Second World War, Peter worked as a parking-lot attendant and later, in Hollywood, as an usher. Then an agent landed him a role in "Mrs. Miniver," and his Hollywood career began. The family moved here in 1940.

In recent years Sir Sydney—tall, dignified, white-haired, mustached—played bit parts for a lark in several of Peter's films. He was a barrister in "Kitty," a clubman in "The Picture of Dorian Gray," and a general in "The Rogues' March."

FURNACE EXPLODES

TORONTO (CP)—Twenve persons fled from a three-storey house Saturday night when a fire started as a result of an oil furnace explosion. Bruno Garresto, 32, suffered a cut hand when he broke a window to escape from his bedroom down a fire department ladder. Firemen estimated damage to the house at $5,000.

Found Alive in Embalming Room Aged Man Dies Later in Hospital

NEW YORK (AP) — An 80-year-old man was found alive in an embalming room two hours after the family doctor had issued a death certificate.

William C. Brossman was taken to hospital where he died early today, more than 14 hours after being pronounced dead.

Dr. David Blumenfeld had listed arterio-sclerotic heart disease, generalized arterio-sclerosis and senility on the death certificate.

Assistant District Attorney George E. Regan quoted the doctor as saying he found no heart beat, pulse or any other indication of life when he twice examined the patient Sunday morning.

After the death certificate was signed, Brossman was taken to the Queens funeral home of Charles Morton and placed in an embalming room. Morton and his aides noticed a flicker of the eyelids and an apparent slight exhalation.

The funeral men wrapped Brossman in a blanket and called an ambulance. An ambulance doctor was able to restore breathing sufficiently to permit Brossman's removal to Wyckoff Heights Hospital Brooklyn. There he was given shock treatment, oxygen, and blood transfusions but failed to rally.

Issuance of a new death certificate will be up to the city medical examiner's office, a hospital spokesman said.

Relatives of Brossman, a retired clothing cutter, said Blumenfeld had been treating him for a considerable time and made lengthy and careful examination before pronouncing him dead. Brossman, who retired from his trade 30 years ago, had been ill for a long time.

200 Allied Fighter-Bombers Turn Huge Communist Troop, Supply Area Into Junk Pile

SEOUL (AP)—More than 200 Allied fighter-bombers smashed at a huge Communist troop and supply buildup area in North Korea today and turned it into a mass of smoke and flames.

Sabre jets, flying a protective screen for the massive raid, clashed with Communist MiG jets deep in northwest Korea. Pilots reported one MiG probably destroyed and two damaged.

The Sabres, outnumbered 45 to 22, shot down two MiGs Sunday, probably destroyed a third and damaged four. They were shielding Allied fighter - bombers which knocked out two generators at the big Suiho hydro-electric plant on the Yalu river boundary of Manchuria.

More than 500 planes turned the giant Suiho plant — the world's fourth largest — into a pile of junk last June 23, but the Communists evidently had rebuilt it.

Today's target for the big Allied air strike was Kyomipo, about 20 miles southwest of the Korean capital of Pyongyang.

Williams Back Safely

Participating in the stepped-up air blows were Marine Capt. Ted Williams, famed former Boston Red Sox slugger, and Air Force Maj. James Jabara, the first jet ace who is flying his second combat tour in Korea.

Williams' fighter - bomber developed trouble over the Kyomipo target area — presumably hit by ground fire. He managed to get the plane back to an Allied air strip and crash landed. He walked away from the wrecked and blazing plane.

Jabara was credited with damaging a MiG — the first claim of his second combat tour after 20 or more fruitless missions. On his first tour Jabara destroyed six MiGs, probably destroyed another and damaged four.

Shell Shore

Allied warships, meanwhile, began the third year of their bombardment and siege of the eastern Korean port of Wonsan. The U. S. heavy cruiser Toledo and two destroyers shelled shore installations.

The siege of Wonsan began Feb. 16, 1951 after UN units were evacuated in the 8th army's retreat from North Korea.

AP correspondent Olen Clements, aboard the U. S. carrier Valley Forge, described Wonsan as "a battered hulk of rubble and death." The city once had a population of 100,000 and was eastern Korea's transportation hub.

On the battle front Allied infantry threw back five small Communist probes in pre - dawn darkness. Temperatures dropped below zero all along the front.

The 8th army's new commander, Lt.-Gen. Maxwell Taylor indicated there might be some unpleasant surprises for the Communists.

Taylor told a press conference the 17-contry army is "a formidable military force which has accomplished great things in the past and is capable of further achievements in the future."

He added that he would like nothing better than to meet a Communist offender. Taylor also said Korea offers great opportunities for "ingenious and unorthadox commanders." But he did not indicate what unorthodox strategy he might have in mind.

Britain's Battered Sea Walls Hold Fast Against Rising Tides, May Prevent Flood

LONDON (AP)—The battered sea walls of England, The Netherlands and Belgium held fast against still-rising spring tides today and forecasts of calm or only light winds raised hopes that the vast flood disaster of two weeks ago would not be repeated.

In both countries, however, an emergency army of military and civilian workers stood by or toiled to further bulwark the soggy sea defences, breached at hundreds of points and only temporarily plugged.

The BBC warned people living in the low-lying coastal areas to continue on the alert.

Holland's waterways director, August Maris, toured his country's stricken southwest area — where some 1,400 persons died two weeks ago—and termed it "very, very vulnerable."

"Many of the holes in the dikes have been plugged, but it is only a provisional job," he added.

Forecasting no wind in the flood area, however, the Dutch weather bureau said there was "no reason for alarm."

British forecasters charted light or moderate westerly winds for their endangered east coast.

The morning high tide passed in both countries without a major new break in the defence system.

Another peak was due this afternoon, with two more potentially critical heights Tuesday.

At Britain's hard-hit Thames estuary island of Canvey, the morning tide fell six inches short of the predicted level.

The tides flooded hundreds of acres of uninhabited marshland Herne Bay, where a stretch of the sea wall knocked down in the Feb. 1 storms has not yet been repaired.

In central London, the Thames rose above the level of adjoining streets and moored ships floated high above nearby residents, but the water did not flow over the high embankments. The water was two feet lower than two weeks ago, when there was extensive flooding.

Freight Running Wild Causes 3-Train Crash

PUEBLA, Mex. (AP) — A three-train collision killed two persons Sunday and threatened 30 passengers aboard the day train from Veracruz. A 41-car freight train, running wild, dashed into the station at nearby Oriental, knocked a steam switcher and a group of cars off the track, and then struck the passenger train's diesel. The diesel and express cars had been cut off the passenger train while the switcher added cars to it. The crew of the switcher was killed.

Service Operator Fires on Car After Purse Taken

SARNIA (CP)—Two men believed to be driving a stolen car were fired on early Sunday by a 70-year-old service station operator after they had robbed him of a shoulder purse containing more than $70.

Charles Robinson, whose station is on No. 7 Highway six miles east of here, told police the two drove up and ordered gas.

Then one of the men came up behind him and tore the leather-belted purse from his shoulder, climbed in the car and sped away.

Mr. Robinson drew a .32-calibre revolver and fired two shots at the car. He was unable to say if he scored a hit.

Set Rosenbergs' Execution For Week of March 9

NEW YORK (AP) — Execution of atomic spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg today was set for the week of March 9.

Federal Judge Irving R. Kaufman scheduled the new execution date for the husband and wife, whose appeal to the President for clemency has been rejected.

The couple was convicted nearly two years ago of conspiring to transmit atomic information to Russia. They have been in Sing Sing prison's death house ever since.

Dr. Bernard Loomer, dean of the University of Chicago's divinity school, said Sunday night he had mailed a letter to the President renewing a plea by some 2,300 Protestant clergymen from every state for commutation of the Rosenberg's sentence.

The Rosenbergs Saturday spent two hours with their two sons, aged five and nine, in the death house of the prison.

Afterward their lawyer, Emanuel H. Bloch, released a statement from the condemned couple in which they expressed thanks to the Pope.

Two papal communications, the latest sent to the White House Saturday, related that the Pope is getting many requests for clemency for the couple. Neither communication urged clemency nor entered into the merits of the case.

ITALIAN TRAIN LEAVES TRACK; 22 DIE; 80 HURT

Jumps Rail at 65 MPH

Faulty Brakes Blamed

BENEVENTO, Italy (AP) — Excessive speed, blamed on faulty brakes, hurled the Bari-Naples express train off the track here Sunday, killing at least 22 persons.

Eighty were injured, 23 severely. All casualties were Italian.

The 10-car train raced down a hill at 65 miles an hour into this south Italian city and jumped the rails as it approached the station. The locomotive plunged on to the station platform. Only the last car remained on the tracks.

Many of the victims were headed for Naples to sail for a new life in Venezuela.

Train engineer Roberto Pitera and his assistant, Nicola Ricciardi, were arrested and placed under guard in Benevento's hospital, which was crowded to overflowing with the injured.

Pitera told investigators the brakes failed.

Survivors told tales of horror and heartbreak:

Renato Girolamo, 32, lost his bride of one day, Rosaria, 28.

Body of Baby Found in Bush, Mother Held

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP)—Police searching through brush-tangled woods near here Saturday night found the body of a baby whose mother claimed it had been destroyed in a fiery furnace.

The body, in a brown paper shopping bag, was uncovered while police pressed an investigation of the baby's death and disposal.

Police said the mother, Mrs. Viola S. Opanowich, 42, was being held on a murder charge. Her husband, Peter, 55, was held on a charge of being an accessory before and after the fact.

Mrs. Opanowich stated the child was born prematurely about a week ago and did not live. She told police she baptized it and placed the body in the flaming furnace. She said her husband was not the baby's father.

The husband said he had no knowledge of the baby.

Canadian Couple Dies in Florida When Boat Sinks

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — A Canadian tourist rescued his wife when their small boat sank in the Hillsborough river here Saturday, but another Canadian couple drowned.

The victims were Mr. and Mrs. William Tomlinson, Keswick, Ont. They were in their early 30s.

Hugh Strachan, Oakville, Ont., jumped into the water as soon as the boat began to sink and swam with his wife to shore, about 100 yards.

By the time he swam back to the spot the bodies of the Tomlinsons had disappeared.

The couples had been staying at a hotel in Clearwater.

Surgeons Rebuild Injured Valve; Mechanical Heart Keeps Boy Alive

By [illegible]TON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter

DETROIT (AP)—Amazing plastic surgery rebuilt a bad valve in a boy's heart while a pulsing mechanical heart kept him alive, it was learned Saturday.

With the whole right side of his heart empty of blood, Harper Hospital surgeons calmly rebuilt the valve which had threatened to kill 16-year-old Charles (Chuck) Moses of Detroit.

This plastic surgery is apparently a medical first. It opens prospects of ability to repair human hearts much as plastic surgeons now rebuild a nose or ear or hand.

The "Michigan heart," the glass-metal-and rubber device that works like a 12-cylinder automobile engine, made the surgery possible.

Chuck, who dreams now of becoming a big-league baseball player, was the second person so far disclosed to have been attached to this machine.

Last Oct. 17, Dr. F. D. Dodrill and associates told of using the heart for 50 minutes to put the left side of a man's heart on vacation. For the man, the machine pumped his blood through his body while surgeons repaired a bad valve in the left side of the heart.

Bypassing the right side of the human heart was more difficult. It meant taking blood being carried back to the heart through the veins, and pumping it into the lungs. The Michigan heart did this for Chuck for more than an hour during the 7½-hour operation last Oct. 21.

Today, Chuck's heart is back to normal size, and he has every prospect of living a normal life. That includes hopes for a try-out with Detroit Tigers some day.

Says Reds May Strike By Air Without Notice

U.S. Civil Defence Report Visualizes Horrible Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U. S. civil defence administration said today Russia could send 400 planes against any spot in the United States and drop numbers of atom bombs capable of inflicting 110,000 casualties with each blast.

Such an initial attack, the agency said, would come practically without warning, probably during working hours, and would be aimed primarily at crowded industrial areas.

It would be backed up by psychological warfare, to spread panic and weaken the will to fight, and biological warfare, to add disease to bombed-out devastation.

The civil defence agency's annual report was sent to President Eisenhower and Congress by acting administrator James J. Wadsworth.

"Make no mistake about it, America's civil defence is not developing fast enough to meet the threat that now faces us," the report said.

Would Pass Defences

The report quoted the air force as saying 70 per cent of an enemy bombing mission would get through the country's defence.

The agency assumed 400 bombers would strike, with no more than 15 minutes warning if any, among the 67 areas it has designated as most likely targets.

The bombers, it said, would carry conventional bombs as well as atomic bombs 2½ times as powerful as the one dropped on Hiroshima.

In a daytime attack, it said, such A-bombs would kill or wound 110,000 persons, about half of whom eventually would recover.

Man Got Roast Off Mammoth In 10,000 B.C.

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Indications of how pre-historic humans carved a caveman's rib roast from a slain mammoth have been found on a ranch near Estancia, N. M.

Officials at the University of New Mexico say a skeleton turned up by a plow proved to be that of a huge beast slain by Folsom hunters some 10,000 years ago. It bore indications that a 300-pound rib roast had been hacked out by some flint instrument.

Folsom man is a pre-historic human believed to have lived in this area about 10,000 B.C.

U.S. Jets Clash With Red Planes

TOKYO (AP)—Two United States jet planes challenged two Russian-type fighters over northern Japan today, damaged one in a brief skirmish, and chased both intruders to the Soviet-held Kurile Islands, the Far East Air Force said.

It was the first time Soviet planes had appeared over northern Japan since the Japanese government, with strong U. S. backing, warned Russia Jan. 13 against such unauthorized flights.

The Thunderjets broke off the chase "to avoid violation of Russian-held territory," the air force said.

Thursday Will Be Budget Day In Parliament

OTTAWA (CP)—The government document that means dollars and cents to Canadian taxpayers will beunveiled in the Commons this week.

At 8 p.m. EST Thursday, Finance Minister Abbott will present his budget, outlining how he proposes to set the rates of taxes, duties and other sources of government revenue for the fiscal year starting April 1.

It already is known that government spending will be some $29,000,000 higher in the next fiscal year than in 1952-53. But the government will end the year with a bigger - than - expected surplus—about $100,000,000 to $125,000,000—so the betting is strong that the budget will bend toward lower taxes. This is generally expected to be the last budget before a general election.

Here are some of the ways Mr. Abbott could lighten the taxpayer's load:

He could cut personal income taxes; scale down the impost on cigarets, tobacco and spirits; eliminate the annual $2.50 radio licence fee and trim some of the duties on consumer goods.

BELLEVILLE CARS IN KINGSTON CRASH

Two motor vehicles, one a car driven by Earl E. Morgan, and a truck driven by Raymond Ervine of this city, were involved in a four-vehicle accident near the LaSalle Causeway near Kingston over the week-end. Neither Belleville resident was injured The Morgan car suffered slight damage.

Belleville Group Lauded in Play By Adjudicator

A new page in the history of the Canadian theatre was written in Toronto last week, when the Central Ontario Drama League held the first festival of one-act plays devoted entirely to the works of Canadian authors. The Belleville Theatre Guild entered its production of Robertsoh Davies' "Overlaid," which was presented to the local public last spring. It is obvious that this is a very popular choice among amateur organizations, since three other groups submitted the same play. Thus, on each of the four nights of the festival, the program opened with a performance of "Overlaid."

In his remarks to the Belleville cast, and in his public summing up on the last night of the festival, Lister Sinclair, adjudicator and himself a well-known Canadian playwright, stated that he felt that they, of all the four groups, had given the best performance and had come closest to interpreting the spirit of the play. He gave special praise to the relaxed acting of Bert Simpson in the part of Grandpop, the sprightly old septuagenarian planning a riotous vacation in New York on the proceeds of his insurance policy.

Other members of the cast were Gladys Simpson as Ethel, and Court Miller as George Bailey, the insurance agent, the play was directed by Catherine Darlington, assisted by Joan Tanner.

Attempt Seen to Steal Funds For Flood Relief But Money Not in Smashed BCI Vault

What was believed to have been an attempt to steal money collected for flood relief in Britain and in Holland was made at the Belleville Collegiate over the week-end when intruders smashed their way into the school vault.

Using tools taken from the boiler room in the basement, the would-be thieves dug a hole about 12 by 20 inches in the brick wall of the vault. Nothing was disturbed in the vault and nothing was taken.

"Obviously the intruders were after money," stated school principal G. E. Currie. "But no money is kept in the collegiate vault."

Police Inspector J. C. Hayes said it had not been determined how entry had been made into the school. The reason for the break-in was also a mystery as no money was kept at the school, he said.

Mr. Currie said no exam papers were in the vault.

The break-in was discovered Sunday morning by the school caretaker, who phoned the school principal and police when he discovered the vault had been entered. Tools from the furnace room were used to pry loose the bricks in the vault wall. The intruder then crawled through the hole into the vault.

The school principal said that collections had been made at the school for overseas flood relief and this may have been the reason for the break-in.

District Unemployment Total At Highest Point in Years

Absence of snow in north which has put a temporary halt to hauling operations at lumber camps has caused a lay-off of about 400 men swelling the unemployment total in Hastings to its highest point in recent years.

As of last week-end there were 1,280 registered unemployed persons in Belleville and in Hastings. According to H. H. Reed, manager of the local employment service, this is the greatest number of unemployed in the history of the Belleville office.

The fact that woods workers are now eligible for unemployment relief has served to swell the present total of persons out of work.

Normally woods workers would be busy at this time of year but an unusually mild winter has put a halt to timber hauling operations and the season's cut has been felled. Ice is too thin on northern lakes and there is no snow for hauling operations.

287 Greater Than Last Year

In Belleville and within an eight-mile radius of the city there are 466 men and 125 women receiving unemployment relief, while on so-called "postal claims" or persons living more than eight miles from the city, there are 607 men and 51 females. In addition to this there are 16 men and 15 women in Belleville who are working short time.

Today's peak in unemployed is 287 greater than last winter's peak, it was stated.

Maximum benefits for a married person with a family is $24 per week, while the maximum which a single person may draw is $18.20 per week.

The fact that the construction program at Canada Cement has been completed has thrown an additional load on the Belleville employment service office this winter. During recent winters up to 400 men have been employed in construction at Point Anne.

On the other side of the picture, however, Stewart Warner recently took on 64 women, while several construction jobs are scheduled to start shortly. These include the new Dominion Parasite Laboratory building on Dundas Street which is expected to take up to 125 men, and the new six room Catholic school on East Bridge street where about 45 men are expected to be placed.

Rangers Lose To Black Hawks

In a sudden-death Bantam League playoff game, the Black Hawks defeated Rangers 4-2 at the Arena Saturday morning.

McLean led the winners with three goals, while McBride scored once. Pollard, Green and Alyea contributed assist. Wannamaker scored both goals for the losers, Dickey picking up an assist.

In the first game of two-game, total goals to count PeeWee playoffs, Red Wings dumped Barons, 3-2; Black Hawks blanked Hornets, 5-0; Rangers whitewashed Maple Leafs 2-0 and Canadiens squeezed past Bruins 2-1.

Allan Dever paced the Red Wings, scoring all three goals. Gordon Fuller and Ken Asseltine tallied for the Barons. David Benn, with two, led the Hawks, singletons going to Bernard Boulter, Earl McDonald and Leslie Smith.

In the Rangers' triumph, Gary Goyer scored both goals. Ronnie Hull pulled a similar stunt in the Canadiens' victory, Barry Tetterson notching the lonesome Bruin tally.

Child Awakens Family Before Fire Gets Started

Trenton—A four-year-old girl's habit of making a daily early-morning visit to her mother's bedroom was believed to have saved possibly four lives and severe property damage.

Mrs. Murray Wilson, 252 Sidney Street, awoke suddenly at 4.20 this morning, when she heard a pattering noise and a muffled boom. Thinking that her daughter was moving about in the one-storey bungalow, she left her room to investigate.

She found that oil, had been spilled underneath the oil burner, had ignited and was burning along the floor. Along with her husband, daughter and another daughter aged three, the family made their way safely outside.

Damage was confined to a small patch of floor under the stove and to a small carpet behind the burner.

Gets $10 Bonus

A thief got $10 bonus the other night and the law is after both of them.

Jean Tyler of Queen street left her station wagon coat in a car outside the Trenton arena. When she went back to get it after watching a game she found the air vent had been pried open and the coat stolen.

When she reported the matter to the police she told them that the thief got a $10 bill in the coat pocket along with the jacket.

Not Fooled

The firemen thought they had been fooled by a false alarm this morning until they went back to the firehall and looked up the location of Birch street on the east side of town.

The pumper sped to a reported chimney blaze on Birch street but the address was not located despite a careful check. Later on returning to the station a look at a street plan showed that there was an extension to Birch street. The firemen went out again in search of the complaint. They found it this time and the owner already had the danger eliminated.

Look Over New Plant

Sir Claude Gibb, vice-president of the Pyro-Tenax Company of England and Gordon Davies, vice-president of the Canadian branch of the firm, visited Trenton Sunday and looked over the new plant on West Street, which is nearing completion.

Both stated they were well pleased with the progress of the building. The two officials were entertained at dinner by Councillor Eben James. Later they conferred with Senator W. A. Fraser.

Crowds Stand in Line to See Gleam, Glitter of Motor Show

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

The man who hadn't attended a motor show in some years was surprised.

"People," he said, "were standing on slushy pavements in a line two blocks long, waiting to pay 50 cents to give somebody a chance to sell them a car. And, when they got inside, the place was already packed."

The man was referring to Saturday night at the national automobile show now being held (Feb. 13-21) at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto.

Gleaming Spectacle

Whether or not the people would buy, they were seeing the most gleaming spectacle of motor-cars ever shown in Canada—a revival on a grander scale of the shows staged in the pre-war years 1932-39.

As side bits, they might see a fashion show and models wearing $250,000 worth of furs, or hear entertainers.

Even such eye-filling attractions, however, could hold attention for only a little while from the 200 streamlined creations of motordom which made the car-owner think of trade-ins, and wore to a wafer the sales resistance of others.

Museum Pieces

Along with the new is a showing of old-time cars dating from 1896 to 1914 and, as museum pieces, some of these had higher price-tags than the highest-priced beauties of 1953.

The gleam and glitter, we are told, are not just for pleasure but to put an attractive garb on rugged mechanisms with which people go about their work-a-day life.

For, research men say, pleasure driving accounts for only one mile in 10 which the average Canadian car owner drives.

"Mr. Average owner," they add, "bought his car for work or business, for travel in connection with his livelihood, or some necessary purpose."

Wedding Rites On Water Skis End in Splash

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) —Betty Anderson, 19, and Frank Dyslin, 25, wanted a wedding on water skis because they met and fell in love while learning the sport.

So it started out that way yesterday, with the bride and groom skimming along behind the minister in a motorboat.

No one, however, could hear Rev. Jefferson Stiles' words above the roar of the motors, the bathing suit of one of the bridesmaids split up the back, and finally both Betty and Frank pitched into the ocean.

The bride and groom swam to the beach. Mr. Stiles joined them there and had them repeat the vows while standing knee-deep in water.

38,000 Pounds Of Relief Goods Sent Overseas

By PETER BUCKLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

MONTREAL (CP)—Canada is sending everything from rubber boots to diapers and thermos bottles to army mattresses to the flood-harassed peoples of Britain, Belgium and Holland.

The supplies, coming in the tens of thousands of pounds, are being shipped to Montreal by the Canadian Red Cross from many parts of Canada. Then they are flown to overseas distribution points.

At latest count, approximately 38,000 pounds of relief goods, valued by a Red Cross official at $70,000, have been sent overseas.

Air lines and shipping companies have volunteered to fill available cargo space with relief cartons. About 10 flights have been made.

The most important item included is blankets. Woollen blankets, sheets and quilts make up most of the shipments.

Some indication of the thorough manner in which the relief goods is designed to clothe and care for the flood victims is given by the contents of one carton, which contains 20 layettes for babies.

Each layette consists of eight diapers, two nightgowns, two flannelette vests, a woollen jacket, a pair of bootees, a face cloth, towel, a tin of baby talcum, a bar of toilet soap, a bar of laundry soap, a blanket and six safety pins—enough to equip an infant from head to toe.

Frankford Dumps Point Anne 12-5

FRANKFORD — Frankford hockey team ran wild against Point Anne Friday night in Frankford as they handed the Cementmen a 12-5 setback. Carey and Cooke were the big marksmen for Frankford, Carey with three goals and two assists and Cooke with three goals and an assist.

The game was typical of all games with these two teams, very clean all the way. Each team got two penalties, all of the minor nature. It is noteworthy that in four games, only fourteen penalties, all minor, have been issued against the two clubs.

The game was never in doubt from the first drop of the puck. Point Anne played hard as always, but were outclassed all the way.

Division "B" of the Frankford Bowling League held their weekly competition in Trenton Friday night, and saw the Aristocrats, led by Milford MacAuley take a firm hold on first place by taking five from Earl Rogers' Merry Macs. Elmer Rogers came within striking distance of second place by blanking Selbourne Sharpe's Kareless Kids.

Standing to date: Aristocrats, 90; Merry Macs 86; Screwballs 79; Kareless Kids 53.

BLAST WRECKS FACTORY

PATERSON, N.J. (AP)—A series of explosions followed by fire wrecked a block-long factory Saturday and wiped out four frame houses and two stores in a congested section of this industrial city. The blasts destroyed the three-storey building of the Wire Corporation of America. Flames leaped across the street to the 2½-storey frame homes, setting them afire.

RAISE $14,000,000

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Jewish leaders from 125 cities donated $14,150,000 Sunday to start the United Jewish Appeal on its annual drive for funds to aid the Jews of Europe. The goal this year is $144,524,250.

Ted Williams, Former Boston Red Sox Slugger, Crash-Lands Plane

SEOUL (AP)—Ted Williams slid home today—safely.

The famed former Boston Red Sox slugger, now a marine captain and pilot, crash-landed his burning Panther jet fighter-bomber at a forward base after taking part in a 200-plane strike in North Korea.

Williams, on his first Korean combat mission, fought his plane back across the lines and belly-landed when his wheels stuck.

On the harrowing flight his radio went out, his ailerons stuck, his plane was on fire and his air speed indicator quit.

But he was able to walk away from his damaged plane. There was no indication he suffered any injuries.

Williams said his pass over the target, a sprawling Red troop and supply centre near the Red Korean capital, Pyongyang, was "a smooth run."

"I can't understand it," he said. "I didn't feel a thing hit me."

Fellow-pilots, however, said Williams' plane was blazing when it left the target, and flames were seen coming from the brake ports all the way back to the forward base.

Hit by Ground Fire

Presumably the plane was hit by Red ground fire.

"As I came off the target, my light indicator showed that my wheels were down, but I got them up all right," Williams said. "Then the stick started to shake like mad in my hand.

"I tried to call one of my companions to get a visual check but my radio was out."

Williams then climbed to gain altitude and headed toward the nearest Allied air base.

"As I neared the base the aileron started to get stiff so I turned off the hydraulic boost. I had to use both hands on the stick on the final approach. I thought I was going too fast but when I looked at my airspeed indicator, it wasn't working. It showed zero."

Furthermore, the former Boston outfielder declared, his wing flaps weren't working and his wheels wouldn't go down.

"There was nothing to do but belly in. I hit pretty hard and went chugging down the runway. I thought I would never stop. I jerked the emergency release on the canopy and got it off, then I practically fell out of the airplane."

ACCIDENT FATAL

GARY, Ind. (AP) — A young photo laboratory employee caught his head in a photographic developing machine Sunday and died of a broken neck. Police said Robert Lawrence, 17, apparently dropped something in the dark room and was looking for it in the developing machine. His head was caught between an elevating bar and a safety guard.

NEW DEAL FOR MUNICIPALITIES

The most encouraging word that Ontario municipalities have had in a long time came in the Speech from the Throne in the Legislature on Thursday. It had been intimated that the Frost Government has had a 'new deal' in the making for the municipalities and it was confirmed in the promise of "very important measures . . . tending to strengthen the autonomy and powers of our municipalities."

The extent of these measures has yet to be revealed but there have been hopeful indications that an entirely new approach to the problems of local government is being taken by Premier Frost and his colleagues.

"It has been the constant object of the government to assist and improve the fiscal position of the municipalities to enable them to better carry out their great responsibilities," the speech informed the legislature. This is true, but it is more encouraging to the municipalities to learn that the emphasis is not to be only on continued financial aid, but financial aid on a basis which will restore some of the powers of local government which have been infringed over the years.

Whatever steps taken in this direction will be welcomed in municipal quarters. They will bring approval also from far beyond this province to the Frost Government in reversing a trend in provincial legislation over many years which has tended to curtail the rights and powers of municipal governments. It is not alone in Ontario that local governments have had to acquiesce in regulations and restrictions at the provincial level in order to gain relief from pressing financial burdens.

The problem of relieving the much over-burdened property owner is one to which this government has been giving the fullest possible study. It is the good fortune of the harassed municipalities at this time that both the Premier and his minister of municipal affairs, Mr. Dunbar, have both had experience with local affairs. In fact, a large proportion of the members of the legislature are men who have graduated from municipal councils.

In this atmosphere, and with an expressed desire to improve the existing conditions, there is the good prospect of a fully sympathetic attitude to a new deal program.

IT IS ALREADY HERE

Socialists' glib talk of public ownership of industry, about this and that great company they would take over if elected to power, is out of date in Canada, says the Financial Post. The great bulk of Canadian companies has already been taken over by the public.

Capitalists in Canada, says the Post, are not numbered by the scores, or the hundreds, or the thousands, but by the millions. This has come about in several ways, including direct interest as stockholders, but in the largest way as investors in life insurance.

Through more than five million life insurance policies Canadians have invested five billions of dollars in national development. Investment in this form is increasing at the rate of $400 millions a year. "This represents the nation's largest single reservoir of long-term investment resources," George W. Bourke, president of the Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada, told his annual meeting last week.

This capital, he pointed out, is being used "in the manifold developments now taking place in every province of our country: waterways, railroads, highways, public utilities, oil developments, home building, municipal expansions, schools and hospitals . . . This contribution is made possible by the typical life insurance policyholder, representative of millions of his fellow-citizens. There is no magic in this formula. It is achieved by production and by saving, an accomplishment of our fellow-citizens, far-sighted people who have faith in their country and are ready to invest in its future."

Public ownership of industry is not coming in Canada, comments the Post. It is already here.

ONTARIO PLAN PROVES BETTER

Compulsory motor vehicle insurance has many advocates but the Ontario Government is not persuaded that it is as satisfactory as the Unsatisfied Judgments' Fund which this province has established.

The Ontario fund has been adopted by some other provinces and a number of states as preferable to compulsory insurance. Hon. George Doucett, minister of highways, told the Good Roads' Association last week that the weakness of compulsory insurance is in its failure to offer any protection for Ontario motorists against thousands of others of un-insured visitors from other provinces and the United States who travel the highways of this province.

Through the Unsatisfied Judgments' Fund the injured party or parties are able to recover damages when the driver at fault is un-insured or financially unable to pay. It has paid out more than $3,000,000 to accident victims and at the same time has suspended driving permits of those at fault until they could furnish proof of financial responsibility.

Those who have benefited by the fund will be Mr. Doucett's strongest supporters. While an Ontario law could force off the highways all Ontario motorists who neglected to have insurance, the protection now afforded to all under the existing fund would not be available to victims of un-insured drivers from outside the province. Hundreds of Ontario citizens have beneficiaries in cases of this kind.

Mount Pleasant hockey team defeated the Bonarlaw team Thursday evening by a score of 4 to 2. Bethel team also defeated Glen Ross.

Belleville Doherty's hockey team, managed by Elwood Dudley of the Cities Service, and coached by Les Shiels, defeated Campbellford in that town by a score of 2 to 1 and captured the round by a score of 7 to 4. They fully deserved their victory and in the two games they were the better team. Every member of the team gave their best and if a star were to be named it would be Les Tice. Up front "Red" McDonald, McMeekin and Pete Morgan were the best, but that is not saying that the others were not in the picture. Harry Morgan and Gord McMeekin were the sharpshooters for the two goals scored, but 'Pete' Morgan and Harry Nicoll gave the passes which caused the red light to flash. Both of the passes were beautifully executed. Ken Davis never played a better game and he worked hard throughout the game, but the cards were stacked against him. The following composed the Belleville team: Goal, Tice; defence, Sherry and Gilbert; centre, McMeekin; wings, McDonald and P. Morgan; subs., Nicoll, Weir, H. Morgan and St. Denis. The referee was Frank McCurry, of Toronto. The team is certainly worthy to represent Eastern Ontario in the Intermediate O.H.A. playdowns.

Gypsy Customs

(Halifax Chronicle-Herald)

Gypsies have ever been a law unto themselves. As a people apart, they have preserved their own manners and customs, their own characteristic ways of earning a livelihood, and even their own tongue, the Romany. Their origin is obscure and the names by which they are known are numerous. The generally accepted English title of "gypsy" is reminiscent of their supposed Egyptian origin, although at the time of their appearance in Europe in the 14th century the name of Egyptian denoted little more than a people of strange and occult powers, such as the second sight for which the gypsy has always been noted, and the general mystery surrounding a people who kept themselves to themselves.

The other familiar name which the gypsy bears is the European form, represented by the German Zigeuner; this resembles tha Hungarian Czigany, which is closer to the original Atzigan, of unknown derivation. It has been suggested that this word is a corruption of Athinganoi ("Touch-me-nots") a descriptive title applied to an exclusive and puritanical sect of the ninth century Middle East, described by the historians as soothsayers, magicians and serpent-charmers.

Traditionally, the gypsies are tinsmiths, beggars, fortune-tellers and poachers, with a skill at all these which sets them apart from other people.

THE YOUTHFUL DAY

There's nothing old about a day;
It's always new and fresh and bright.
Each morning takes a different way
Unto the sable realm of night.
Sometimes the sun withholds his face,
Sometimes the fields are splashed with rain,
Sometimes as children we may race
Or join with men and strive for gain.

This day perchance a friend we find,
Tomorrow may a friend depart;
The next may bring us peace of mind
Or else the tears of grief may start.
One day we touch the hem of fame,
The next we wince 'neath failure's stings,
Nor shall tomorrow be the same
For something new each morning brings.

The day is never old and gray,
Nor like the ones which went before;
What it will bring no man can say
Until its round of life is o'er
And he is young, who'er he be,
Despite of care and sorrow's stings
Who waits with eagerness to see
The changes that each morning brings.

Camera Man At Gettysburg

(New York Times)

A photographer at Gettysburg, Pa., on Nov. 19, 1863, lost the supreme opportunity of his career: he did not have his camera ready when Abraham Lincoln got up to make "a few appropriate remarks." The remarks were indeed, as has since been realized, appropriate, but they were also few. The gold ofLincoln's speech took up so much less space than the brass and silver of Everett's which had preceded it, that the lens was not focused, the plate inserted. The camera was adequate, for it has preserved to this day a recognizable Lincoln making his first inaugural address. It was the man who failed.

Or perhaps he did not wholly fail. The library of Congress has just released a photograph thought to have been taken by Matthew Brady at the time of the dedication ceremonies, though probably before Lincoln began to speak. Possibly everyone, including the President, was waiting for Everett, who arrived half or three-quarters of an hour late. Maybe the head we see in the confusion of this photograph is Mr. Lincoln's, and maybe it is not. The pose, at least, is characteristic—the kindly bend of the tall man's head as he may have been greeting some one. But the enlarged fragment of this picture bears some resemblance to a well-known photograph of the crowd at the dedication which has been ascribed to Alexander Gardner. The mystery remains. And a blurred blob of a face, though it may be dramatic, is not a new portrait of Lincoln.

But we may not need such a portrait. Perhaps, on any day of the year, it is enough that we remember the words which Lincoln certainly spoke, even while Brady or Gardner fumbled with his camera. Perhaps it is enough that from time to time we renew the high resolve that the kind of government for which Lincoln gave his life "shall not perish from the earth." A photographic negative may fade but this positive, this print on the American consciousness, can endure forever.

The Dail And a Horse

(New York Herald Tribune)

England once fought Spain over a sea-captain's ear, and there was bitter feuding between Austria and Serbia in what was known as the "pig war." Certainly a horse is a more dignified bone of contention than either Jenkins' ear or the swine trade, especially in the Irish Republic, which prides itself on fine horses and horsemen even in this mechanized age. Besides, Tulyar, the colt which has precipitated a parliamentary crisis in Dublin, is no ordinary horse. Prize of the Aga Khan's famous stables, Tulyar won seven races in a row last year, including every British flat racing classic.

Michael Ohehir, a racing commentator, considers the acquisition of Tulyar by the Irish National Stud as an "unequaled service" to the Irish horse-breeding industry, not only for stud purposes but for the glamor the purchase sheds on the Irish equine population. In other words, the Irish horsemen think the colt was worth every penny of the 250,000 pounds ($700,000) which the government paid for him at auction.

There are complaints, however, from members of the Dail who know that $700,000 is a lot of money, and that Ireland has many uses for such a sum. Outsiders, of course, cannot pass judgment on so delicate a matter. But the suggestion which has been made, that Hulyar will run in the Coronation Cup this summer, under the colors of President Sean T. O'Casey of Ireland, against Gay Time, the English National Study entry, with Queen Elizabeth's colors, makes the question of more than national, more than horse-racing interest. Tulyar offers international drama of a high but harmless kind.

Mice and Women

(Letter in Charlottetown Guardian)

Sir: I had a woman friend who chased a bear into the woods near her home, took a lamb from him and nursed it back to health; and yet if a mouse ran across her kitchen floor she would jump up on a chair and scream. Isn't it funny that a woman should face a bear but run from a mouse?

Fort Walsh

(Regina Leader-Post)

Fort Walsh, southwest of the present town of Maple Creek, was "famous before Regina was known." In 1883, the mounties made their headquarters in Maple Creek, patrolled from the South Saskatchewan to the U.S. border and prevented the Cree Indians from joining their fellow Crees up north in the Riel Rebellion. In the earlier days in the nearby Cypress Hills, more than 1,000 grizzly bears were killed in one year alone.

Jingo Bigger Than Jumbo

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

Like most people we believed that Jumbo, who brought immortal fame to this city by getting killed here, was the largest elephant ever known to man, and it came as a shock to us when we read in "The Zoo Story," by L. R. Brightwell, which we took out of the city library the other day, that it wasn't so—that he was not the biggest of his kind. The biggest elephant was Jingo, and there was a tragic parallel to their ends.

According to the biography of the London Zoo, which is what this interesting book is, Jingo was acquired shortly after Jumbo was sold to Barnum's circus and went to the United States. Jingo was a little over 20 years old at that time and lived in the Zoo for nearly a quarter of a century. He was actually about a foot taller than Jumbo, so that, foot for foot, he must also have been heavier.

Like his famous predecessor his temper became a little uncertain, and it was felt that he should not be entrusted with the carrying of children on his back. Moreover, for an unknown reason, he sometimes lay down and it was difficult to get him on his feet again. Once he stayed down for several days, and it took block and tackle and much pulling to get him up. About tihs time Mr. Bostock, of the famous Bostock and Wombwell's travelling menagerie, which was known to British people for generations, was going to the United States, and he bought Jingo.

Jingo was put aboard the White Star liner Georgic, but when a few days out to sea he took suddenly ill and died, and his immense carcass was hoisted overboard in mid-Atlantic.

So Jingo became a big "splash" in the news at the end. It was lucky some ship did not get wrecked by bumping against his submerged body. The wreck might have been attributed to a submerged iceberg.

Knew What He Wanted

(Montreal Gazette)

The motives for theft are usually too obvious to deserve analysis or even comment. Occasionally, however, a burglar's choice in loot does intrigue the imagination. The victim cannot help but wonder why the burglar took that awful wedding present that has been an eyesore for years, why he made off with the golf bag but not the clubs, or why he wanted two shoes both for the same foot.

In some cases the reason is plain; he was surprised, or thought he was about to be surprised, and fled with whatever came to hand. This was not choice, but rout, like the fugitive from a midnight fire who puts on his hat but forgets his trousers.

No such simple explanation applies, however, to the choice exhibited by a Montreal burglar this week. He crippled a Montreal chess club by stealing nine sets of chessmen and the boards to go with them.

His choice was deliberate, for what else would he expect to find in a chess club in the middle of the night (except, perhaps, a cautious player or two still considering the next move).

If he didn't know the character of the establishment he invaded, he soon found out. And he wasn't surprised. A frightened burglar might run off with one set, even with one board to use it on, but not nine.

No, the choice was evidently deliberate. But why? The association does sound strange, but these sets are "hot." Other players, as well as the police, are watching for them. And whom else could they be sold to but other players?

Perhaps the burglar is a chess player himself. Perhaps he plays chess like Bret Harte's "Heathen Chinee" played poker. The bland Oriental in the Harte poem kept his hands in the voluminous sleeves of his tunic. In these sleeves, as well as his hands, Ah Sin also kept six extra decks of cards.

It would be difficult, though, to conceal nine sets of chessmen about the person.

No, this burglar's intentions are certainly not easy to discover. But one thing is certain. Montreal is going to be very interested in any chess wizards who develop locally in the future. Particularly if the wizard is able to play nine games, on nine boards, at the same time.

The Best Drink

(Halifax Chronicle-Herald)

There are almost as many kinds of coffee in the cup as there are drinkers; from the muddy sweetness of the Turkish finjan to the beige delicacy which accompanies the Parisian croissant, from the hearty Canadian brew which flanks the flapjacks and maple syrup, to the delicately bitter pallor of ceremonial Arab Mocha, coffee runs a wide gamut of taste and fragrance. But to the devotee, whatever the blend and the brew of his taste, it is still and always the best drink in the world.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

NOW WHEN I WAS A GIRL

"Dear Dr. Brady, My three teen-aged boys, all in excellent health, eat continuously. Only one bothers to eat any breakfast. They eat a substantial lunch; they eat between school and dinner; at dinner they consume massive portions with as many helpings as they desire, but two hours later they are back in the kitchen eating again, and I mean eating, not snacking. Now when I was a girl . ." Mrs. J. F.

Thats' just it, Madam. You were a girl. Adolescent boys require half as much again from food. The reason is that the girls' metabolic rate comes down to adult level around the age of thirteen; the boys' remains high.

The difference in energy output is usually vast. A boy in his teens requires three large meals per day, each including meat or eggs or fish, or equivalent protein, milk, fruit and vegetables, whole grains.

If your boys can eat between meals, as you say, and still eat good meals, then what disturbs you? I hope you are not saving on food bills to spend on doctor and hospital bills?

But what's all this about no breakfast? I'm afraid the teaching of hygiene and physiology is overlooked or neglected in your schools. I suppose this vital part of secondary education is left to the physical training instructors, who naturally are too busy training the "varsity" teams to give any time or attention to physical education.

Fortunately, teen-aged boys are as interested in building strong bodies as teen-aged girls are in building a wardrobe, so if you will send your sons for a conference on nutrition to the physician who treats their recognizable illnesses, I am sure they will make the wise decision, and start eating meals in the morning.

I said "recognizable" illnesses. The vitamin-deficiency diseases, resultant from poor nutritional habits—such as omitting breakfasts—are often not recognizable to the layman, and your physician, if he has continued studying since earning his degree, will examine the boys with this thought in mind.

Answer—No. Keep the baby warm and the household temperature between 65 and 70.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Counting sheep is really a poor way of trying to put yourself to sleep. A friend of mine who suffers from occasional fits of sleeplessness has come up with what might be a remarkable discovery. His theory is that the best way to put yourself to sleep is to try to stay awake.

He did a job of research on his own case. He recollected that during the bouts of sleeplessness, his mind had been occupied with his troubles; he lay hour after hour going over the unpleasant things that had happened yesterday, and the equally unpleasant problems that faced him tomorrow.

But during the spells in which he found no trouble sleeping, he recollected that the thoughts occupying his mind were pleasant things. It was a pleasure to dwell on them. For example, he would go over a fishing trip he remembered, and try to re-live the whole experience, step by step. It was so pleasant a recollection, he tried to stay awake. But instead, he dropped off to sleep. In his youthful days, he had had a couple of love affairs that lingered secretly in his memory long after he had become a husband and father. Whenever he lay in bed fondly and wickedly recalling the experiences of those early love affairs, he would just be reaching the more delightful passages of memory when, hang it, he would go to sleep.

Now, he admits that most of us have troubles and worries that are more likely to inhabit our minds in those first few minutes on going to bed than are pleasant memories. But after a few tries, he says anybody can banish wakeful and fretful memories by a sort of physical act of conjuring up some story from one's own past. It is, he declares, as simple a deliberate act as picking up a book to read. You say to yourself, on tucking yourself in: "Now I will tell myself the story of that first trip I made to Grandma's farm. Or now I will go over, detail by detail, that wonderful fishing trip I had in 1937."

You snuggle up to yourself and start the pleasant train of memory.

Somewhere about the beginning, hardly before you have got the first fish, or eaten the first of Grandma's pies, you are away in dreamland.

If it is dreamland you seek, dream. Don't fret.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

LOOK OUTWARD

An alarming number of people are suffering from mental illness, today. Despite energetic building programs, state asylums are over-crowded. Private institutions are thriving — if that is the right word. Some psychiatrists, especially in the larger cities, can scarcely find time for all the patients who wish to lie on their couches and pour out their woes.

What is wrong with all these people? Few have any reasonable cause for fear. Still fewer are suffering from serious remorse. Poverty is not the upsetting factor, for some mental patients spend hundreds of dollars per month on psychiatric treatments.

But there is one very common element: most mental patients are highly self-centred. People having "nervous breakdowns" or suffering from more severe mental disorders are very likely to be those who have devoted their lives to serving themselves. They frequently have few or no unselfish interests, and are rarely deeply attached to others.

Men who love and believe in something outside themselves can generally manage to keep going, no matter what their trouble and difficulties. Men who worship themselves soon or later find that they are serving a false god, and suffer the consequences. And the same holds true for women.

"Whosoever will save his life shall lose it: but whosoever will lose his life for my sake, the same shall save it."

Target Date for Nationalization Of Airlines Set for April 1

By HAROLD K. MILKS

NEW DELHI (AP) — India has set April 1 as the target date for starting nationalization of its internal and international airlines.

At the same time the government has increased its pressure on the United States and other countries with airlines operating to India, for curtailment of their services to give India a greater share of the international travel business.

India has nine privately operated airlines and one government company.

Patterned after the British system, India plans two state-owned corporations, one to handle its internal air services, and the other its international routes.

India's government had two stout clubs backing its nationalization program.

One was the threat to cut off government subsidies which since India's independence have kept the private airlines alive. The other was the withholding of government loans to finance the purchase of modern transports to replace existing equipment, most of it dating back to the Second World War.

Large Payments

The nationalization scheme involves payment of an estimated 40,000,000 ($8,400,000) to shareholders of the private companies, against paid up capital of 60,000,000 rupees ($12,600,000) in the nine airlines.

Boss of India's international air services is J. R.D.Tata,Bombay industrialist and present head of Air India, International, the country's Bombay-to-London air service, and of Air India, the nation's largest internal airline.

Selection of a chairman for the internal airlines corporation is still under discussion.

With the approach of nationalization, India is seeking a guaranteed market, especially for its international air services.

Basic contention of the Indian government is that Article IV of the Indo-American air agreement signed November 14, 1946, which says "the primary objective is the provision of capacity (of seats) adequate to the traffic demands between the country of which such arilline is a national and the country of ultimate destination" means that American airlines should primarily serve only direct passengers between India and the United States.

Claim Right

Both the U.S. government and the American flag airlines insist that "orderly development" of air services gives them the right to carry unlimited passengers from way-points to or through India.

Indian regulations already ban the carrying of passengers between two points within India by foreign airlines.

Developments expected to follow the nationalization include purchase of modern multi-engined aircraft. British-built Vickers four turboprop Viscounts or American twin-engined Convair 340's have both been considered as basic for India's internal services. Internationally, Super-Constellations appear to be first choice.

Another development is expected to be expansion of international services of Indian flag planes westward across the Atlantic to the United States or Canada and eastward from Calcutta to Tokyo via Hong Kong.

Three Escape Being Drowned At Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP)—Three boys escaped being drowned Saturday night, but were forced to spend the night in a shack on a small island in the Dundas marsh.

The boys, Berry Lowe, 11, and two brothers, Douglas, 12, and Raymond Varley, 9, all of Hamilton, made their way over thin ice to shore Sunday. Twice they plunged in up to their necks, but helped each other to safety.

They set out Saturday on a hiking trip and walked along the shore of the marsh on their way home. They walked across the ice to investigate a small island 100 feet from shore when they fell into the water.

They scrambled on to the island and found shelter in a shack. They wraped themselves in sacks and huddled together for warmth.

By Guess or By Design . . .

One day last December : : : it was December 4th to be exact . . . Mr. Murray Kingsley came in to see us. Murray Kingsley, of course, isn't his real name, but the story we are going to tell is real, every bit of it.

Murray Kingsley holds a responsible job with a large Canadian company and had come to us on two or three occasions because he needed assistance in working out some rather involved security matters for company account. The officers of his company seemed pleased with the manner in which we worked for them, and Murray seemed relieved to have experienced people to advise him and work with him.

Naturally we got a kick out of doing business with his company, who are old friends of ours, but we really got a much bigger kick out of helping Murray himself . . . he seemed so appreciative.

On December 4th when he came in, he said to us—"I've never bought many securities for my own account, but I'm getting some loan repayments every three months or so, and maybe I should have a plan for investing them or, first thing I know, the money will be spent. What should I do?"

Well, for the next few minutes, Murray must have thought he was dealing with the secret police. We started to ask some pretty personal questions. Did he own his own home? Was there a mortgage against it? Did his company have a pension plan? Exactly what securities did he now own? and so on.

From questions and answers, we got into discussion and finally agreed that a programme of investment in common stocks was the thing for him but . . . only investment type common stocks of certain leading Canadian companies. We drew up an approved list and suggested he buy one at a time in amounts of about $500 and later on, as money should come in, to add about $500 to each. We think he can stand about $1,000 per company.

However, the important thing is not what he said or what we said. The important thing is that Murray Kingsley now has a plan. He invests not "by guess" but "by design." He will follow a plan worked out for him personally, that is practical, simple, and sound as a bell for what he needs and what he wants.

For Murray Kingsley, having a personal investment plan is pretty important. We think it's pretty important for every investor . . . whether he deals in a little or a lot. If you do not have an investment plan or are in doubt about your present programme . . . or are just plain curious . . . we invite you to write us or drop in to any of our offices.

Junior Farmers Vary Their Interests

Interests of Junior Farmers of Ontario are diverse enough to include dramatic presentations, fashion shows, debates, bazaars, sports and lectures in addition to their chosen lifetime work of farming. The organization has gathered together all the individual enterprises of local groups and directed them into various channels. One of the best examples of Junior Farmer organization is at Bolton, Ont., where funds raised by the Junior Farmers built a $30,000 fair ground hall. Gordon Mason, of Bolton, shown with his prize-winning calf, above, is one of the 11,000 members of the JFO who have found it an organization valuable for both work and recreation. — Central Press Canadian.

Sardinians Swear on Cross To Give Up Vengeance Code

ORGOSOLO, Sardinia, (AP)—The hard-bitten men of this town have sworn on the cross to give up vengeance after generations of following their island code of an "eye for an eye."

Their oath may mean a radical change here where "vendetta" is a deep-rooted tradition. "Vendetta" is the primitive law of avenging by blood a wrong done to a member of the family. Honor is handed down from father to son, like family wealth.

It wasn't easy to convince Sardinians to give up what they consider a sacred obligation.

The task was undertaken by well-loved Dr. Leonardi Monni, the town physician.

The doctor talked to each family in the town. He reminded these proud people that 16 persons were assassinated in the last few months of 1952. Unless the chain of vengeance was broken, he said, 33 more citizens of Orgosolo would wind up in their graves this year.

List Smeared on Walls

In April, 1950, a "death list" of 40 names was smeared on the walls of the town's church. Each name was labelled "spy" or "traitor." Several days after the secretary of the commune ordered the list whitewashed, he was killed.

Since then seven of those marked for death on the church wall have been murdered.

No important arrests were made. The Italian government sent General Ugo Luca, Italy's leading bandit buster, to put an end to the killings and wipe out banditry. The killings continued. Bandits continued to block roads and hold up travellers.

Mouths are sealed because by talking one may betray his own blood. If he speaks, he may be killed or kidnapped and held for ransom. So powerful is the code of silence that island journalists will not write about banditry.

Monni knew many of the outlaws were members of families he approached.

There was the widow Maddelena Masuri, whose husband was killed in Sept. 1950. There were Mr. and Mrs. Taras, whose three sons were killed a year ago.

When these showed a willingness to follow the doctor's suggestion for peace, others followed. Dr. Monnic persuaded the heads of 50 of Orgosolo's most influential families to lead the movement to abolish banditry and revenge.

Form Peace Committee

Heads of families formed a peace committee. The older men sported long mustaches and carried stilettos in their belts in keeping with an old tradition that no man should be caught without a weapon to defend his honor.

These decided to take an oath on the crucifix to give up vengeance. They decided they would talk to the outlaws hiding in the mountains of this central Sardinian province and try to convince them to give up their reign of terror.

On Jan. 3, these Sardinians marched in a body to the main square of the town.

Most of the town's 3,000 inhabitants crowded the square.

After a special mass the heads of Orgosolo's leading families, approached a table on which had been placed a crucifix. Each man touched the cross with his right hand and took the oath.

Weddings

BROWN—STRUDWICK

A lovely candlelight wedding was solemnized on Saturday, January 31st, at 1.00 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Strudwick, Bancroft, when their daughter, Dorothy Mary Strudwick, of Belleville, became the bride of Thornton Scott Brown, also of Belleville, son of Mrs. S. S. Brown and the late Mr. Brown. The Reverend Alan Borland officiated before a background of mums, narcissi, hyacinths and Hesperus, interspersed with ferns.

Mr. Murray Maxwell provided the wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. David Callaghan, who sang "Because", before the ceremony, and during the signing of the register, "I Love You Truly."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charmingly gowned in white Chantilly lace over nylon taffeta, fashioned with fitted bodice having a scalloped portrait neckline, long sleeves ending in lily points over the wrists, and full floor-length skirt. Her finger-tip veil of tulle illusion was caught by a bandeau of bugle beads and seed pearls, and she carired a bouquet of white and blue carnations and hyacinth bells.

Miss Bernice Strudwick, of Peterborough, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, wearing blue nylon net over taffeta featuring a strapless, fitted bodice with bolero having short sleeves in cap effect, with ballerina length skirt.

Miss Betty Allcorn, of Belleville, wore gold net over taffeta made on similar lines to that of the maid of honor. Both carried nosegays of mixed flowers in matching colors with matching headdresses.

Mr. Charles Peters, of Belleville, attended the bridegroom.

The reception was held at Hotel Bancroft, where the bride's mother, attired in brown crepe with matching accessories, and corsage of talisman roses received the guests, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore navy blue crepe with matching accessories, and corsage of pink roses.

For travelling the bride chose a gold dress, with white and gold accessories, blue tweed topcoat, with navy accessories and corsage of yellow 'mums. Mr. and Mrs. Brown are residing at 44 Highland Avenue, Belleville.

Arts-Crafts Hear Talk on Architecture, Past and Present

Miss Helen Keeler opened the meeting which was held in the library on Friday afternoon.

Miss Mary Moult introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr. W. Watson, a local well known architect. Mr. Watson was educated at Toronto University and went on to Europe for a year's travel and study.

The speaker pointed out that every age has its characteristics. He illustrated his most interesting talk with pictures of different periods and varying architecture. Egyptian structures were mainly built by slave labor, taking hundreds of years. Grecian architecture was more professional.

Inventors of Cement

The Romans strange to relate, invented concrete. Men dedicated their lives to masonary and the skill was handed down from father to son. Labor, too, was cheap and time did not count, soon pointed arches were more effective than round arches and so progress continued.

Mr. Watson said that English architecture was more insuler, England being more of a naturalist it showed in their designs.

More modern plans, mainly in U.S.A. were also shown.

The age in which we live must conserve man power and material. All great art has a significient form.

The plain walls can be pleasing he speaker said. The modern structures are built for efficiency and speed as well as a new type of beauty. Mostly glass is used, along with cement. It was only 140 years ago they discovered large sheets of glass could be made.

After thanking Mr. Watson for his most enlightening talk, two films were shown by Mary Moult. Miss Moult gave a short resume of Mr. Norman McClaren's picture, "Be Gone Dull Care" which is quite a controversial picture, Mr. McClaren being a modern and an abstractionist. His designs are pure and colorful. He is world renowned. A delightful picture was then shown of the "Road to Gaspe."

Miss Barbara Serbert Bride-to-be Honored By Valentine Tea

A dainty Valentine tea was held on Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Bruce C. Robson, Charles Street in honor of Miss Barbara Serbert, bride-elect, whose marriage to Mr. Harold Floyd takes place in April.

The tea table was charmingly appointed with an ecru colored Madeira cloth, centered by a silver bowl of dark red roses intermingled with white gypsophelia and flanked by tri-branched crystal candelabra holding ivory-tinted candles.

Those who presided during the early portion of the afternoon were Mrs. Arthur Smith and Mrs E. G. Gurnett, while Miss Ivy Dickens and Mrs. George Brooks presided during the latter part.

Those who served included Mrs. Ross Scriver; Mrs. John Kerr and Mrs. Robert Matthews; Mrs. Bruce Robbins; Miss Joan Seeley, of Toronto and Mrs. Ben Burley.

Mrs. Eric Keeler was tea room hostess.

WHAT A DAY!

What a misery it can be on those days when you are feeling way below par. How slowly the hours drag by when you feel seedy and sluggish and seem to ache all over.

And how unnecessary it all is, very often.

Most times that dull, logy feeling is the direct result of constipation and kidneys not working properly. You need something more than a simple laxative these times. You need Kruschen Salts.

Millions the world over have learned the benefits of Kruschen . . . the salts that are like those in the waters of famous Mineral Springs. Acting in two ways at once, laxative and diuretic (for sluggish kidneys), Kruschen helps rid the body of waste matter. It goes right to the cause of that miserable, sickish feeling that constipation brings about.

Get some Kruschen today. Less than half a teaspoonful can make you feel better all day long.

TABERNACLE E. A.

The February meeting of Tabernacle Evening Auxiliary was held at the home of Ethel Horton, Grier Street.

The first part of the meeting was in the form of a pot luck supper, but the table, laden with many tempting dishes, looked more like a banquet. The Valentine motif was carried out in tablecloth, red candles and a heart-shaped cake decorated in pink icing.

After the supper hour, the regular meeting was conducted with the president, Dorcas Cowles, presiding.

Gladys Shane was in charge of the devotional, the theme being "Sacrament of the Lord's Supper." The scripture readings were from Mark 14:12-26 and John 13:1-17. Gladys Shane read a prayer as given by a mother in Angola.

A short business period followed in which plans were made for the World Day of Prayer service. Plans were also made for the next meeting which will not be held until March due to the School for Leaders courses to be held in Bridge Street Church.

Phyllis Rowley gave a short message on Christian Stewardship "Feed My Sheep" closing with prayer for people of all nations.

African Church

Prayer for mission work was offered by Ethel Horton.

Albert College Formal Most Successful Event

Dan Cupid and his courtiers reigned supreme as the annual Albert College formal was held Saturday in Ackerman Hall. Transformed into a veritable fairyland for the occasion, the hall was resplendent with traditional red and white streamers, cupids and hearts, forming a perfect setting for the most important social event of the students' year.

As guests entered the ball room through a huge heart framing the doorway, they were welcomed and received by the principal and Mrs. A. E. MacKenzie, Mrs. Gillis, Mr. Dave Lucas and Miss Elaine Dick, the latter two being respectively the president and vice-president of the Student Council. Representatives of the College Board, Alumni, parents and many former students were in attendance. A feature of the evening was the crowning of the "Queen of the Ball," the honor going to Miss Marijo Williams, of Oshawa, a fourth-year Albert student.

Student representatives from neighboring collegiates and high schools were as follows: Miss Joan Slade and Jack Matthews from B.C.I. & V.S.; Miss Elinor Hicks and Jack Hicks from Picton Collegiate; Miss Margaret Whalen, Zdenek Kvarda, Miss Woods and Doug Foley from St. Michael's; Miss Marilyn Wright and Ray Hermiston from Stirling High School; Miss Enid Bennett and Tom Alexander from Trenton High.

AVONDALE NEIGHBORS' AID

The ladies of the Avondale Neighbors' Aid held their February meeting in the home of Mrs. Debbie Smith. It was attended by 21 ladies, two were guests and three children.

The president opened the meeting and then turned it over to the program committee, Betty Lough and Bessie Bush.

The devotional began with the scripture, St. John 3:14-21, read by Marion Anger. Bessie Bush read the devotional and Doris Daniels sang the beautiful "Lord's Prayer". Betty Lough then concluded with a reading titled "A Commmon Match."

Erma Reid was in charge of the business period. It was decided to hold the meeting on the second Wednesday of the month instead of the second Thursday. This will be tried for a few months to see the results.

Another euchre party will be held in the school in the near future. It was moved that a donation of $10 be given to the blind.

Mrs. Nellie Chambers invited the group to meet in her home in March.

The entertainment for the afternoon was a white elephant sale with Erma Reid acting as a most proficient auctioneer. There were lots of bargains, and more laughs. Besides this the sum of $11.03 was added to the balance.

The lunch committee Olive White, Pearl Holmes, Dorothy McLean, Gwen May, then served sumptuous refreshments to which all did justice.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

CAN A MEAN DISPOSITION BE CURED?

A mean disposition is a pretty hard thing to cure. For there are so many causes from which a bad disposition springs, and so many of the causes are located so deep within the individual, that it is a very tangled problem to unravel.

Here is a woman who has lived for 19 years with a jealous and nasty-tempered husband. There are two children in the family, one a high school girl of 16, the other a 12-year-old boy in grade school. It was all bad enough while the children were very small, the wife says, but now that they are older it is even worse.

For example, she tells of a recent incident where the daughter brought some of her friends home for dinner. Before the meal, the father "sat around and sulked," and at the dinner table, he "suddenly flew into a rage because he felt ignored, and used vile language right in front of the young people."

She goes on to say that he "goes out of his way to belittle me, especially when anyone is nice to me." Twice he refused to take her to the hospital when she was ill, and when neighbors came to her rescue and took her there themselves, he not only abused them but refused to pay the hospital bills. While she tries to bring her children up to be church-goers, he denounces church-going people as hypocrites.

"I don't want a divorce," she concludes. "All I want is peace for myself and my children, too; for my husband also, if I knew how to go about finding it for him."

What I think this woman will have to do first is to look at her situation a little more realistically. Of course she wants peace in the family, but, since she obviously wants to stay with her husband, I'm very much afraid her problem is to learn how to live without peace. Certainly there is no magic wand she can wave to acheive it, and it seems equally certain that their is no immediate prospect that her husband is going to work toward that end. Unless there is some way of making him want peace, too, and want it enough so that he will make an effort in that direction, she will have to put up with him.

It would take a big effort, but there is a possibility that if she and the two children would start a campaign of being thoughtful and loving toward this husband and father, and could have the patience to keep it up for a reasonable length of time, whether he seemed to respond or not, it might gradually have a beneficial effect. In one part of her letter, the mother says that the children pay far more attention to her than they do to their father; that they talk with her as they do not with him, and that all their confidences go to her. This, she says, makes him jealous and even meaner to them all. Such behavior on the children's part is only natural when they have a bad-tempered father; and his own jealous reaction is equally natural. If the mother would deliberately encourage the children to consider their father more, explaining to them in private how they might show him little attentions he might like, he might be surprised and pleased, even though he was too stubborn to show that he was. It would be worth trying, anyhow.

I don't mean that this wife and the children should constantly pamper, indulge, conciliate and baby this man, but simply to treat him as they would treat him if he acted like a normal husband and father. For sometimes, if a person feels that others take for granted that he has good qualities, he quietly makes an effort, almost without realizing himself that he is doing so, to live up to their expectations.

Chances are that this woman has been quarrelling with her husband and nagging at him about his attitude all through the years. You cannot make a plant grow by taking a hammer to it. If you ever expect it to attain normal growh and beautiful blossoms, you must give it what the hospitals call "tender and loving care."

The same principle, I think, applies to developing a person. Nagging and quarreling are hammer blows that only serve to retard the development of an endearing personality. On the other hand, a patient program of "tender and loving care" may work wonders. If it doesn't, then there is deep trouble in the person's soul which needs more expert treatment than the average wife can give. But I think this one should try the program she can handle first, before deciding that she can do nothing with her husband.

For Your Next Party Would You Like to Make Meringues?

By Mary Moore

NOTE: Before I start with the meringues and with a calm, quiet voice in a wilderness of mail, I raise a feeble bleat: Would you please enclose stamped envelopes when you want return mail? This is only addressed to those who forget, and I forgive them . . . but . . .

• •

You may remember that I promised to give you a meringue recipe from Yvonne S. I have tried it now and find it all that Yvonne claims: she says "I have a very simple recipe for meringues that I have used al lthese years. It is foolproof and so easy a ten-year-old would have good luck. I very often whip up a batch when my neighbors drop in to give me a hand with a quilt, and we all end up in my kitchen having a cup of tea and sampling the said meringues. Here it is in all its glory.." Yvonne.

YVONNE'S MERINGUE

"Beat 2 egg whites with a little salt until they peak, then add, oh so slowly, ½ cup sugar in which you have put ½ teaspoon of baking powder. There's the secret—beat and beat. Add ½ teaspoon vanilla so slowly it goes in drop by drop as you beat, also ½ teaspoon vinegar drop by drop as you beat some more. I pin wax paper on my oven rack, scrub my hands and my nails, and drop the "goo" from the tip of a spoon peaking them. I use my finger to push it off, but you can use another spoon if you'd rather, but I could never master the art. Put them in a slow oven of 200 deg. Fahr. (very very slow) and let them stay there until they change color and are firm to the touch (I try one) — it takes about 30 minutes. Let them cool before taking off the paper otherwise they will stick."

These are lovely and all that Yvonne claims for them.

Yvonne and many others asked for more skim milk powder recipes. I have chosen these that I think will be most useful for you at this time of year.

QUANTITY TEA BISCUIT MIX (using milk powder)

(Make this up to store in refrigerator. You take out 2 cups of it to make 1 12-biscuit batch later. See below).

Eight cups sifted all-purpose flour or 9 cups sifted pastry flour, 4 tablespoons baking powder, 1½ tablespoons salt, 2-3 to 1 cup skim milk powder, 1 cup shortening. Mix and sift sifted flour with the baking powder, salt and skim milk powder. Cut in shortening until mixture is fine like sifted breadcrumbs. Store in covered container in refrigerator or other very cold place. To make into

TEA BISCUITS

Measure out 2 cups biscuit-mix (above) and to it add slowly 2-3 cup water or enough to make a soft but not sticky dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and roll lightly to ½ or ¾ inch thckness. Cut with floured cutter, place on unbuttered baking sheet and bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for about 12 minutes. Break one open before removing them to see that it is baked to the centre.

BAKED CUSTARD (using skim milk powder) (makes 4 individual custards)

Two eggs slightly beaten, 2 tablespoons sugar, dash of salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1½ cups reliquefied skim milk (I advise using ½ cup skim milk powder to 1½ cups water for this), nutmeg. Beat eggs just enough to make them smooth, then stir into them the sugar, salt and vanilla. Scald the milk and slowly stir it into the egg mixture. Pour into lightly butered custard cups. Sprinkle top with nutmeg. Stand custard cups in pan containing 1 inch hot water. Bake in slow oven of 300 deg. Fahr. until when silver knife is inserted near centre it comes out clean — it takes about 45 minutes. These are good both hot and cold.

Let me know if you want me to keep on with these skim milk powder recipes.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

No Affectation Please

A manner, or a manner of speaking, assumed for an occassion, in the hope of impressing someone, is foolish — so transparent that it fools no one. Better to "be yourself". If you're not satisfied with "yourself", make a wise and constructive change in your manners and personality. It can be done—and it's wonderful fun to do it

She Shouldn't Misinterpret Her Friend's Honest Explanation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A short time ago I invited a young couple and their children to dine with us. The day before our little party I received a letter from my husband's mother saying that she and her family would arrive the next day for the week-end. They are from another city. My dining table is small and is uncomfortably crowded with more than eight persons seated at it. It became very apparent that I could not entertain all of my guests at the same time. So I telephoned my friend, as graciously and carefully as possible, explained my situation, and invited her and her husband for another time. She assured me that it was quite all right but said she does not accept invitations far in advance because of the children. This gave me the impression that she was upset because I changed the date of our party and would not accept further invitations. Did I handle this situation in the best possible way? And shall I invite them again?

—Grateful Reader.

Indeed you handled this difficult situation graciously. But since you are, obviously, a woman very sensitive to the feelings of other people, it is understandable that you are worried by your friend's reply to your honest explanation and gracious repeat-invitation. But I'm quite sure you are misintepreting her straightforward reply. Of course she must provide for the care of her children, either arranging for a baby-sitter or a kind relatives or friend; or, if the children are invited, make plans to prepare them for their "social engagement." So take her at her word, and invite her a short time before the date you've chosen. Give this invitation at once, to register regret for the cancelled engagement, enthusiasm for the future engagement.

Why Plan to Give a Wedding Dinner in Groom's Home Town?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I realize that the church wedding should be in the bride's parish. But is it customary for the bride to have the wedding dinner in her home town? Is there a definite rule that she must also have the dinner in her town when most of the groom's family and friends do not live in her town?

—J.N.

It is certainly customary for the bride's parents, who are the hosts of the wedding, to have the reception or dinner, or whatever festivity follows the marriage ceremony, in their home town. I have never heard of the plan to have the reception and/or dinner in the groom's home town for the reason that most of the groom's family and friends live in that town rather than in the bride's town.

$100,000 Worth Of Items On Sale at University

LONDON Ont. (CP)—A 700-year-old ivory chess set, once used by Indian princes in matches for women, land and money, is among the $100,000 worth of items on sale at the University of Western Ontario today.

Delicately-carved ivory, textiles, tapestries and brass handicraft, representing some of India's finest arts, are included in the exhibition, sponsored by the World University Students of Canada.

All except two of the items are for sale and Western students said that after the exhibition has toured most Canadian universities the proceeds will feed 150,000 Indians for four months. Some $27,000 worth of handicrafts have been sold, netting a little less than $10,000.

The chess set, priced at $3,900, was sometimes used by rulers to settle matters of state. The two items not for sale are two caskets given to Canadian students by the Maharaja of Mysore. One is carved in silver and gold and valued at $25,000 and the other is made of sandalwood, sacred wood of the Hindus, and valued at $1,800.

The sale moves to the University of Toronto Saturday.

What keeps a jet plane from burning up, Dad?
INCO
INCO Nickel

"Nickel alloys, son. The problem with early jet engines was the terrific heat which caused metal parts to warp and crack. Then new alloys containing nickel were developed to stand up under the intense heat. Jet engines became more efficient. Today engineers keep trying to develop better and better nickel alloys to make jet engines more efficient still."

"It's a good thing we have nickel in Canada, isn't it, Dad?"

"It sure is, son. Most of the nickel for planes, battleships and other defence equipment for Canada, Great Britain and the United States comes right from our own Canadian nickel mines."

Wellington on the Lake

Wellington — This winter weather of 1953 has been mild, and even the older residents declare they cannot remember a winter so continuously mild. But the following lines from the Port Hope Times tells of similar weather in February, 1919.

These days are not like winter,
These days so bright and still,
That close in golden glory
Behind the western hill;
For they set the heart to dreaming,
Dreaming of days gone by,
When autumn's pensive stillness
Enfolded earth and sky.
— H. B. A.

An impressive and inspiring service was held in the school room of Wellington United Church under the auspices of the local W.M.S. last Sunday evening. President Mrs. Clarence Hicks was in charge, assisted by Mrs. J. L. Ross and Mrs. A. Poulter, with Mr. T. Fillingham as pianist. At the conclusion of the service, views were shown under the direction of Mr. B. Wiltse, of Cuba, and the wonderful transformation of the natives under the influence of the gospel of Christ.

After the showing of the views a song service was conducted by Rev. A. Poulter. A quiet social half hour with refreshments served by the members of the W.M.S. closed the meeting.

The remains were placed in Wellington vault, the bearers being: Elwood Cronk, Clifford Cleave, William Maynes, Earl Maynes, John Adshead and John Chapman.

Among those attending from a distance were friends from Madoc (including Rev. J. F. Lane, a former pastor), also friends from Trenton, Tweed, Belleville, Queensboro and Yarker.

Gordie Howe Scores 200-201st Goals In Detroit's 4-1 Win Over Chicago

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

CLEAN WIN!

There was nothing "fluky" about the Glen Roys' victory over the Stouffville Clippers Saturday night. The Men 'o McNevin with that playoff spot beckoning to them over the hockey horizon came up with a consistently fine display of offensive and defensive hockey, took advantage of a penalty break that came their way and served up their first shut-out of the season to nearly 1500 bath-night fans.

The game started off like an old maid's picnic and in the first period the only thing to rave about was the fine work of Parisi and Eatough in the respective nets. And as it happened the game developed into a two-period, crowd-pleasing exhibition with Master Parisi stealing the glory spotlight with a display that at times was nothing short of sensational. And basking in his glory shadow was M'sieu Eatough at the other end.

The Glens thoroughly deserved the victory. They struck a fast stride early in the second period and playing smart two-way hockey were a good two goals better than the Clippers.

Prospects, after the win, look exceedingly bright for "Red" Doran's crew for a place in the playoff sun. They are tied with the Kingston Goodyears, each having 28 points, three in front of the trailing Petes. The Glens trek to Peterborough tonight in a game that means elimination for the Petes if they lose and another slim chance if they win. The Glens with two games left can grab the top spot if they win both and Kingston drops its next Friday date with the Petes. The Liftlockers by winning tonight's game and that of Friday can take over top spot with 27 points. If that happens it will be strictly up to the Glens to knock off the Orillia Pontiacs next Saturday night. If that should happen then the Goodyears will be eliminated.

And so tonight's game in Peterborough should be one for the archives of the group. Always a tough team to beat on their own ice, the Petes with equipment mothballs staring them in the face will be out to annex a victory at almost any cost. The Glens, oozing confidence after Saturday night's win, will be out to wrap up their playoff spot.

HAWKS START WEDNESDAY!!

The junior "B" Hawks have wiped off the schedule slate and by virtue of their finishing well out in front of the pack entertain the fourth-place Lindsay Warriors in the third of their best-of-five semi-finals series here on Wednesday night. They play the second game in Lindsay Saturday and likely the third here next Monday. The series must be completed a week next Saturday.

Kingston Vics, second-spot finishers, will be hosts to the Peterborough Triple Links tonight in their semi-finals series with the second game in Peterborough Wednesday night.

Knowing that anything can happen in a hockey game, especially in a "chips" series such as the one just starting, Coach Don Barrett of the Hawks is not taking any chances with his charges. He realizes that it is a fresh start, and schedule performances mean nothing except for the statisticians. Lindsay can prove to be tough nuts to crack and Barrett will throw the full force of his power at the Warriors in the all-important first game here Wednesday. This series should produce some outstanding junior hockey and the youngsters who came up with a highly creditable performance during the season just past, are deserving of some box-office support.

BASKETBALL!

Belleville Moiras, Bay of Quinte intermediate "B" Basketball League champions, go to Brockville tonight for the first of their two-game, points-to-count, first round playdowns with the river city's eastern league champions. The second game is scheduled for the BCI gymnasium Wednesday night. The Moiras eliminated the fast Trenton Flyers in a series that went three games and are fully confident they can bring the first round playdown honors to this city. Brockville eliminated the strong Kingston five in loop competition and the series should be a close, hard-fought brace of games.

NICE PERFORMANCE!

Gary Schreider, St. Michael's College Toronto football and track star, formerly of this city, got the thrill of his life on Saturday night. Gary was running in the famous Millrose Games in Madison Square Gardens, New York City, and finished second in the 60-yard junior dash to Joe Collins, the American champion. It was a great night for the son of "Pop" Ed. and Mrs. Schreider, and track authorities, especially Schreider's coach, Lloyd Percival, of the well known Sports College, predict great things for the fleet-footed youngster.

STATISTICS FOR CAR OWNERS AND DRIVERS!!

Mechanical failures, bad roads and driving conditions cause a very small percentage of accidents. The real offender is "human factor", the driver.

Speeding, drinking and driving, driving on the wrong side of the road and ignoring the rights of others cause nearly 70% of all traffic deaths.

Under-25 drivers make up 15% of the driving public but are involved in 30% of all fatal accidents.

Three out of every 10 fatal accidents brought death to themselves or others, simply because they were driving too fast.

10% of fatal accidents are caused by a motorist being on the wrong side of the road.

More than 80% of all accidents occur on perfectly dry highways.
